Stepping up the settlement of nomads to help make the mountain areas economically, politically and militarily strong and creating conditions for stabilizing the production and living conditions of millions of people who are still practicing nomadism constitute an active measure that is necessary to manage and preserve forests, effectively use forested land and curb slash-burning and forest fires. We must promote the allocation of land and forests to cooperatives and families for preservation, improvement and afforestation according to state programs, plans and policies.

Reorganizing forestry production at the district level is an important task in developing and preserving our forest assets. We must quickly improve zoning, build key forestry production areas by integrating forestry with agriculture and industry in a rational forestry-agricultural-industrial or agricultural-forestry-industrial structure, depending on the characteristics of the resources and the socioeconomic conditions of each area. We must implement the slogans "the state and people work together" and "the central authorities and the localities work together" so as to fully exploit the great potential and aggregate strength of the entire people, the central authorities and the localities in building and developing forestry throughout the country and in each locality. We must strengthen the management work of the forestry sector to correctly concentrate our efforts on and effectively carry out the key tasks dictated by the demands of the national economy. At the same time, we must rationally carry out the division of labor and decentralization and satisfactorily settle the relationship between sector, local and territorial management in forestry. We must effectively use our material and technical bases and capital and give priority to making investments in developing key areas where there are favorable conditions for production to be developed quickly. This is aimed at expeditiously creating abundant and concentrated sources of goods in order to meet local and foreign demands satisfactorily.

Minister of Agriculture Report

BK051300 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 8 Apr 82, p 3

[Excerpt from report by Minister of Agriculture Nguyen Ngoc Triu to the Fifth VCP Congress: "Advance Agriculture a Step Further to Large-Scale Socialist Production"]

[Text] In order to outstandingly develop and advance agriculture a step further toward large-scale socialist production, we believe that we must pool the efforts of all sectors and echelons throughout the country for the following tasks:

At present the most urgent task of strategic importance is to concentrate on resolving the problem of grain and food products.

This problem must be resolved in several ways: On the one hand, we must accelerate the production of grain and food products; on the other, we must resolve to use grain economically, improve our diet, consume grain in line with the local production capacity and adopt birth control measures to prevent the population from increasing too rapidly. We must relocate the work force and population throughout the country to alleviate shortages of grain in those densely populated areas where production is difficult and transportation is urgent in the initial transitory stage of advancing from small to large scale socialist production. Among these tasks to be carried out simultaneously, the acceleration of production is the most vital and decisive while the economical use of grain is of paramount importance.

We must do our utmost to intensively cultivate and increase crops by fully using all the land in the country's two major rice areas -- the Mekong and Red River Deltas -- and the major rice areas in each province in order to increase the yield and production volume. At the same time, we must strive to vigorously develop the cultivation of secondary food crops such as vegetables and legumes in terms of area, productivity and production volume and must organize their processing and consumption.

Accelerating the intensive cultivation of crops to boost their yields is the "prime strategic guideline" for grain production in particular and agricultural production in general.

Multicropping is a major guideline which, for little expenditure, can bring about quick results in expanding the cultivated area.

Along with concentrating on intensive cultivation and multicropping on reclaimed land, which is the present main guideline, we must have positive and rational plans to redistribute the labor force among various regions in order to expand the agricultural area, develop forestry and combine agriculture with forestry in the new economic zones.

While concentrating on resolving the grain problem, we should quickly increase the supply of raw materials to industry and the quantity of agricultural products for export in order to obtain equipment for agriculture, contribute positively to equipping the national economy and, at the same time, meet the requirements of importing consumer goods essential to the people's life.

With a view to fulfilling the above requirements, it is necessary to organize a rational agricultural structure for each region which can meet the local demands for raw materials from centrally run factories and for valuable agricultural products. These products must be produced easily by the people, call for little investment, not take much land from the grain production area and be popular on the international market.

To ensure the successful implementation of agricultural development tasks and objectives and advance agriculture a step further to large-scale socialist production, one of the most important and urgent tasks is to reorganize agriculture along with transforming the old production relations in the Nam Bo rural areas, consolidating and improving socialist production relations in agriculture throughout the country and urgently changing anew our economic management system.

The reorganization of agriculture throughout the country in the direction of gradually advancing toward large-scale socialist production as we are doing now means that we must, on the basis of correct agricultural, forestry and industrial planning, establish production guidelines, structures and organizations in line with the situation in each region and in the direction of gruadually concentrating and specializing crop cultivation, combining agriculture with forestry and associating agriculture and the processing industry and production with transportation and the organization of consumption.

We must primarily base ourselves on the conditions of labor, land, sectors, professions and other existing material facilities in reorganizing the work force and production in each primary installation (cooperatives, villages and farms) and in each multicropping, making full use of land and expanding sectors and jobs on the spot. At the same time, we should plan to relocate people from those areas with unemployed excess manpower to thinly populated areas with much land so as to establish new economic zones.

In our agriculture the collective economy has played a vital role for a long period. We should constantly and comprehensively consolidate and strengthen all the agricultural cooperatives in order to secure total victory for socialism in the countryside. We should immediately stabilize the organizational scales, giving cooperatives a suitable production strucuture. We should raise the level of management in line with each developmental step of the production forces. We should also raise the cadres' standard of managerial knowledge in order to increase labor productivity, the economic results and the quality of products, ensuring that the business of cooperatives is clearly superior to that of individuals. On this basis we will enable cooperatives to fulfill their obligations and provide increasingly more agricultural products to the state. We should constantly strengthen the material and technical bases and the welfare facilities of collectives, thus steadily improving and raising the living standard of cooperative members through each crop season and each production year.

In the past 20 years we have built nearly 370 state farms. Although these farms are still weak in several respects, they have annually contributed large amounts of goods for export, provided many seeds and breeding animals to agriculture and begun to provide some capital accumulation to the state. We should continue to consolidate and strengthen state farms, change anew the management system, eleiminate the magerial method of administrative subsidization, give units more independence in management, production and business and make more in-depth investment so that the state farms can develop their existing potentials, increase the economic results and contribute considerably to advancing agriculture to large-scale socialist production.

We should attentively help, encourage and guide the members of cooperatives and state farm in developing their family economy in the right direction.

Along with vigrously developing the collective and state-run economies, we should turn into good use the economy of individuals and other private sectors in those areas where agriculture has not been cooperativized in order to increase the supply of agricultural products and commodities to society. At the same time, we should attentively overcome negative manifestations, especially the spontaneous capitalist force of these economic elements.

We should resolutely change anew the management system, continue to extend independence in production and business to localities and primary installations, enhance the responsibility and authority of sectors in the chain of command and production process and establish policies to stimulate agriculture comprehensively. As an immediate task, we should make timely additions and adjustments to such irrational policies as that concerning the selling prices of production means and organize the scrupulous implementation of published incentive policies to stimulate production. The new management system and policies must be able to resolve present problems, strongly encourage the optimal use of land and labor and create conditions for agriculture to develop favorably and accumulate assests for expanding production.

Effective 1982 we must create some definite changes in the reorganization of production and work force and in the economic management of agriculture within every cooperative and state farm and in each district.

Our agriculture is advancing from small- to large-scale socialist production. This advance requires that we accelerate the scientific and technical revolution in agriculture by intensively building the material and technical bases of agriculture and quickly applying technological innovations to production. This is a very important matter to ensure the successful implementation of agricultural objectives and to advance agriculture a step further to large-scale socialist production.

We have made much valuable scientific and technical progress which has contributed to promoting the intensive cultivation to increase the productivity of crops and animals. We have changed our crop cultivation patterns and crop seasons by refining generalities and making in-depth exploitation and increasing the effectiveness in using labor and land to increase labor productivity in agriculture. It is regrettable that the popularization and application of scientific and technical innovations is still slow, irregular and loosely led. In the time ahead we should pay proper attention to this matter.

MINISTRIES DISCUSS POWER SUPPLY TO FIGHT DROUGHT

OW051015 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 4 May 82

[Text] According to figures released by the Agriculture and Water Conservancy Ministries, by early May the area of ricefields affected by drought in the 9 provinces with pumping stations serviced by a power network had reached 175,000 hectares. If one adds the 125,000 hectares of ricefields lying outside the electric pumping stations system, the present area of affected ricefields is about 300,000 hectares. In the region where electric pumping stations are operating, the largest areas affected by drought are Thanh Hoa, 28,000 hectares; Hai Hung, 27,000; Ha Bac, nearly 25,000; Ha Nam Ninh, over 23,000; Hanoi, nearly 19,000; and so forth.

In the face of the urgent situation, the Agriculture, Water Conservancy and Power Ministries recently held a meeting to resolve in good time the power problem to meet antidrought requirements. In order to fight the drought, we presently need some 60,000 kilowatts of electricity. However, due to the common difficulties experienced throughout the country, the power supplied to agriculture amounts to only 40,000 kilowatts. The lack of electricity has expanded the area of heading and budding rice affected by drought. Consequently, the power sector must adopt plans to supply electricity in a rational and concentrated manner, avoiding an average supply, so that the fight against drought will achieve maximum economic effectiveness.

With regard to key pumping stations, that is, those located in areas of water sources such as Nhu Quyny, Ap Bac, La Khe, Van Lam, Van Giang, Bach Hac, northern and southern Ma River, and so forth, we must ensure the supply of power 20 to 24 hours per day. Only by ensuring such power supply will we avoid wasting the water reaching the canals, thus creating conditions for the operation of small electric and oil pumping stations and for irrigation with water baskets by cooperative members. In order to conserve power and save it for the large key pumping stations, the people's committees and power services of various provinces should resolutely cut down on unnecessary operations.

With regard to areas outside the electric pumping stations system, these regions should make full use of every type of oil pump, thus creating more means to fight the drought, and should motivate the cooperative members to unite with and help one another and engage in labor exchange to fight the drought and save the rice in good time by every manual means.

According to forecasts of the meteorological service, rainfall during the first days of May will be slight. Since the 5th-month spring rice is in the heading and budding stage, the fight against drought at present is urgent. Along with conserving electricity and using it at the right time and the right place, the regions must make full use of every means and all available manpower to effectively fight the drought in order to achieve a successful 1982 5th-month spring rice crop.

On Golkar's promotion efforts and program, Sukardi said that after the current general elections have been completed, Golkar will immediately carry out the program for the people's political education based on the Pancasila ideology and the 1945 Constitution.

Speaking about the forthcoming People's Consultative Assembly [MPR] plenary session, Sukardi said the first step to be taken by Golkar is to hold dialogues and discussions with the other contesting parties to discuss positive problems to ensure the smooth and orderly proceeding of the MPR plenary session.

ELECTION RESULTS DRAW EDITORIAL COMMENT

BK261023 Kuala Lumpur NEW STRAITS TIMES in English 24 Apr 82 p 12

[Editorial: "Loud 'Yes'"]

[Text] The prime minister asked for a mandate from the people, a stamp of approval for the government's intention to provide an administration that will get the job done. He has it. The results of the 1982 general elections are an unequivocal "yes". Some observers feel that the overwhelming success of the Barisan Nasional candidates was unexpected. They had expected a closer race. They had not expected the successful breaching of so many opposition "strong holds." However, this was an assessment that did not take into account various factors: that the two largest opposition parties, PAS [pan-Malayan Islamic Party] and DAP [Democratic Action Party], had been experiencing bitter and costly internecine squabbling, a deep disaffection between the leaders and their followers; that the opposition parties' main line of appeal to the electorate -- that their interest needed a strong watchdog on the government -- had begin to pall in the face of the opposition parties' inability to do much for the people; that an increasingly more sophisticated electorate will become less responsive to a harping on racial prejudices and fears, narrow chauvinistic perspectives. There has been 25 years of steady growth and progress. Not without the occasional failure of understanding and faltering in implementation, but basically a good quarter of a century. In all this time, the government and its idea have grown in maturity. The Barisan Nasional is more than a group of politicians. It is an idea that the communities can work together harmoniously for a common interest, that there is no disagreement so deep that it cannot be bridged, that there is no problem so intractable that it cannot be overcome by united resolve. The Barisan Nasional is a vision of what can be, should be -- a domestic well-being and assurance matched by respect internationally. Ill-feeling and bruised egos are inevitable consequences of a hard-fought campaign, but now that the day of national decision is over, they must be set aside, at least for the next five years or so, for the more important task of making the nation even stronger and wealthier -- spiritually and economically. It must be reiterated that, much as we are blessed with abundant resources, things cannot be taken for granted. Not when we must develop greater self-reliance. Not when we want better things for everyone. This certainty of purpose must override all potentially divisive issues.

INDUSTRY MINISTER MEETS WITH SAUDI'S YAMANI

[Text] Tokyo, May 6 KYODO -- Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter, has decreased oil production considerably to a level as low as 6.5 million barrels per day in the face of the current petroleum glut, a Japanese Cabinet minister hinted Thursday.

Shintaro Abe, minister of international trade and industry, dropped the hint at his first news conference since returning home Wednesday from a tour of the United Arab Emirates [UAE] and Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia's Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Yamani told Abe at Dhahran, near Bahrain, the Middle East state has reduced oil output "Considerably lower than 7 million barrels," the Japanese minister related. Abe predicted that the Saudis may further trim petroleum output for some months to come.

But the MITI chief told reporters Saudi Arabia plans to step up oil production once demand begins to pick up, possible in 1983.

Abe said Yamani stressed the need for a dialogue between oil producers such as his country and oil-consuming states like Japan to help the world economy retain its vitality.

Yamani and his UAE counterpart, Mani' ibn Sa'id al-'Utaybah, criticized the West for reducing their petroleum stockpiles to fuel their economy, Abe added.

He said he will convey the displeasure by the two key members of the Organization for Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to American and European delegates at a meeting of the International Energy Agency (IEA) in Paris later this month.

Abe's meeting with the oil minister was almost put off when the Saudis said they were not ready to receive a ministerial level guest, but after that decision was rescinded without clear reasons, the meeting with Yamani was hastily arranged.

Abe said his talks with the two influential oil ministers were "very meaningful" to prepare him for the IEA conference and "made me confident."

Yamani told Abe of Saudi Arabia's oil plans under which the Riyadh regime will maintain the current oil price level of $34 per barrel until the end of next year.

OPEC will hold a general meeting later this month to map out a future oil production policy.

Japan, which imports some 50 percent of its oil from the two Middle East states, will continue its technological cooperation with Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, Abe said.

Abe said he also explained to Yamani Japan's energy conservation efforts, which have resulted in a 20 percent cut in oil consumption in the past two years, and alternative energy programs calling for reducing the country's petroleum dependence from the present 67 percent to less than 50 percent by 1990 through utilization of coal, nuclear power and other resources.

Abe said a two-day quadrilateral conference in France of the United States, Canada, the European Community and Japan will pave the way for the Versailles summit in June.

LDP SEEKS CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION ON MILITARY

[Text] Tokyo, May 7 KYODO -- A ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) panel Friday came up with an outlined draft of revision of the Constitution's Article 9 renouncing war, calling for recognition of the right of belligerency of the state. The revision draft was presented by Kiyoshi Mori, leader of the LDP's Constitution Research Council fourth subcommittee in charge of renunciation of war and amendments, before a subcommittee meeting.

The Mori draft holds the first paragraph of article 9 saying "The Japanese people forever renounce war as a sovereign right of the nation and the threat or use of force as means of settling international disputes" as a universally-established national policy to prohibit a war of aggression.

But it proposes to delete the article's second paragraph saying "land, sea and air forces, as well as other war potential, will never be maintained" and that "the right of belligerency of the state will not be recognized."

The Mori draft also proposes to stipulate the right of command of the self-defense forces in the constitution allegedly as a basic provision for "civilian control" of the SDF.

The draft also demands that the constitution contain provisions about the commencement of hostilities and peace as necessary ones.

The revision is aimed at clarifying the state's right of self-defense, to dispel doubts about the right of belligerency and to establish "civilian control" of the SDF.

The Mori draft is expected to incur controversy in and out of the party before the constitution research council works out its revision draft in June.

As reasons for the deletion of the second paragraph of article 9, the draft claims that the paragraph should be deleted on the premise that every country is bestowed with the right of belligerency based on the right of self-defense.

Along with the draft, Mori also submitted his written views on the right of belligerency, criticizing the government's stance that minimum self-defense power is recognized, but the use of the power and the right of belligerency are two different things. He said that stand is contrary to the reason of international law.

SUZUKI COMMENTS ON FALKLANDS FIGHTING, DEFENSE

OW061408 Tokyo NHK Television Network in Japanese 0700 GMT 6 May 82

[Text] Prime Minister Suzuki told journalists today: Japan is dedicated to purely defensive capabilities and we have no need for the conventional big gun, big warship defense setup.

He said this in answering a question concerning the sinking of British and Argentine warships during recent clashes between the two countries, which are parties to the Falklands dispute. Suzuki's statement indicates his intention to make the most of his pet porcupine defense concept which assumes repulsing an invader on shore.

Referring to the sinking of the British destroyer and the Argentine cruiser in the continuing armed clashes over the Falkland islands, reporters asked: Does this not support your porcupine defense concept? Prime Minister Suzuki replied: That is right. I must have to have defense experts study the fighting over the Falklands dispute very carefully. He added: Japan is dedicated to purely defensive capabilities. We have no need for the conventional big gun, big warship defense concept.

This indicates that Prime Minister Suzuki has a keen interest in the results of the fighting over the Falkland Islands. It may also be construed as signifying his intention to take his pet porcupine defense concept into consideration in studying Japan's defense policy. His statement, together with the sealane defense issue, is expected to create a stir in the controversy over defense.

NODONG SINMUN RAPS U.S. FALKLANDS POLICY

SK061012 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0710 GMT 6 May 82

[NODONG SINMUN 6 May commentary: "Brigandish Act of Aggression by British Imperialists"]

[Text] With Britain's military attack on the Malvinas Islands -- also called the Falklands -- In the southern Atlantic, a grave situation is being created in this area. Having occupied the South Georgia Islands by sending a strong mobile fleet composed of several score naval ships and established a 200-mile blockade zone around the Malvinas, Britain launched an attack on the islands on 1 May with the support of the U.S. imperialists. The British expeditionary forces bombed and bombarded an airfield on the Malvinas Islands and many other areas on the islands, mobilizing bombers and naval ships.

Britain's military attack is a grave threat to peace and security in the south Atlantic and a challenge to the desire of the peace-loving people of the world for a peaceful solution to the Malvinas problem.

Britain's anachronistic act of trying to reestablish the old colonial order by force has aroused condemnation among the peoples of the Latin American countries and the progressive people of the world. Britain claims that the Malvinas Islands, located 12,000 kilometers from it, are part of its territory. This is foolish logic. Britain has continued its illegal occupation of the Malvinas Islands for a long time. It has never given any interest to a peaceful solution to the Malvinas problem. Instead, recently it began to encroach on Argentina's sovereignty.

Britain's encroachment on Argentina's sovereignty is an expression of its wild design to act as an emperor of the sea, as in the past, by brandishing the old gunboat diplomacy. What draws our attention is the move of the U.S. imperialists. When the Malvinas incident broke out, the United States directly involved itself, wearing the mask of a mediator. It secretly transferred espionage materials on the military movements of Argentina to Britain, supporting and encouraging its acts of aggression.

The crafty nature of the United States is vividly exposed in its "three-nation rule" plan and "five-point plan." According to this, by taking advantage of the clash between Britain and Argentina, the United States tried to seize the Malvinas Islands and use them as a strategic military base in the south Atlantic to achieve colonial domination over Latin America. When this plan fell flat, the United States threw away the mask of the mediator and on 30 April openly announced that it would apply sanctions against Argentina and stand at the side of Britain. U.S. Senate and House subcommittees adopted a resolution on the United States' support for Britain.

This act of the U.S. imperialists hinders a peaceful solution of the Malvinas issue, makes the Malvinas issue more complicated and creates tension in this area. This vividly reveals the hypocritical and aggressive nature of the United States. Facts show that U.S. imperialism is the chieftain of the imperialists and colonialists trying to block the decolonization of the Malvinas and to realize their aggressive design on Latin America and is not a friend but a vicious enemy of the peoples of Argentina and Latin America.

History is created according to the people's wish and desire. Today the peoples of Latin America are advancing along the road of independence, opposing domination and subjugation. No matter how desperately the imperialists may try to maintain their colonial domination in Latin America, it is a foolish act.

The imperialists must renounce their anachronistic stance. Britain must stop its military actions in the Malvinas Islands and withdraw its armed forces of aggression.

The decolonization of the Malvinas Islands must be realized. This is a demand of the times. If the imperialists defy this just demand, they will be more vehemently denounced and rejected by the peace-loving people of the world.

VRPR: ANTI-U.S. PAMPHLETS DISTRIBUTED IN SOUTH

[Text] According to the Taegu municipal chapter of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification, anti-U.S. leaflets were scattered last night in Taesin-dong, Chung-ku, Taegu. The leaflets cite instances of recent anti-U.S. struggles, such as the fire set at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan by patriotic students, the anti-U.S. statement released by clergymen who defended the students and demanded the recall of Wickham, commander of U.S. forces in South Korea, and Walker, U.S. ambassador to South Korea, and the struggle of Kangwon University students in Chunchon, who burned the Stars and Stripes and scattered leaflets reading, "Yankee, go home!"

The leaflet reads: By waging the anti-U.S. struggle, we can end the U.S. military occupation, realize social democracy and achieve national reunification. The United States is the very source of all the misfortune and suffering of our people and the very cause of all the diseases of the nation. Accordingly, for the South Korean people, an anti-U.S. struggle is the cure-all. We should double our efforts in waging the anti-U.S. struggle, clearly establishing the notion that the United States is not a liberator, a helper or protector but an occupier, a plunderer and an aggressor and the archenemy of the nation.

VRPR: 'SECRET DOCUMENT' SCORES AMBASSADOR WALKER

[Text] On 17 April the NEW KOREA TIMES, a newspaper published by Korean residents in Canada, carried the first part of a secret document contributed by persons engaged in the democratic movement in South Korea. The document, entitled "The South Korean Situation Assessed by Democratic Forces," denounces the U.S. ambassador to South Korea, Walker, for portraying South Korean dissidents as spoiled brats and saying that Chon Tu-hwan enjoys popularity among South Korean workers and has contributed to eliminating repression.

Calling such pro-Chon remarks, which the ambassador made in a press conference in mid-February, preposterous, the document reads: He expressed his support for Chon Tu-hwan in such a fashion as a colonial governor hails the chief of the natives for his leadership or a boss of gangsters praises his underling. We have no idea what Walker based his remarks on. We would like to ask him how he was able to hear the free voices of the South Korean people under present circumstances where they are suppressed. Chon Tu-hwan tortures and persecutes dissidents. The evidence of killings and tortures is well known to the world. Walker has said that the South Korean people, who are suffocated and silenced, support Chon Tu-hwan. We ask if he knows what consequences his remarks will bring.

Noting Walker's remarks that the South Korean economy is coming out of the 1970's recession and is developing, the document says that the economic recession and the suffering of the South Korean people are what the Chon Tu-hwan regime itself concedes to be real and true.

The document exposes the fact that Walker participated many times in so-called international political science seminars held in Seoul in 1970, 1971 and 1972 to support Pak Chong-hui's plot for Yusin and was warmly treated by the dictatorial regime.

The document says: We know very well that the relationship between Walker and South Korea goes back a long time. By meeting with him, South Korea is hurt rather than helped in trying to become democratic.

OVERSEAS KOREANS DENOUNCE REUNIFICATION PLAN

[Text] Pyongyang, May 6 (KCNA) -- Overseas Koreans of broad segments are denouncing the splitting manoeuvres of the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique against the unanimous desire of the nation for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country, expressing their ardent desire for it.

Eight organisations of compatriots under the influence of "Mindan" including the Japan headquarters of the "National Congress for the Restoration of Democracy in South Korea and the Promotion of Unification" (?Hanmintong"), the "Mindan Committee for Defence of Independence" and the Tokyo headquarters of "Mindan" published a joint statement some time ago, which says:

Chon Tu-hwan brought forward a deceptive unification proposal for the purpose of waving off the spearhead of attack of people bitterly denouncing his criminal massacre, preventing the eruption of peoples growing discontent with the economic bankruptcy and escaping from international isolation.

Chon Tu-hwan's "unification proposal" is an elaboration of his policy of freezing the division and creating "two states."

Stripped of hypocritical phraseology, the whole plank of the "unification proposla" of Chon Tu-hwan is a crystallization of his anti-unification doctrine.

In their statement the "Liaison Council of Korean Youth and Students in Japan for Supporting the Struggle for Democracy in South Korea" and the "Society for Defending Human Rights of Korean Women", organisations of Koreans in Japan, note that the "unification proposal" brought forward by the traitor Chon Tu-hwan makes no mention of the principles of national reunification -- independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity -- laid down in the July 4 North-South joint statement. It is evidently deceptive that he put forward "national self-determination," "democratic procedures" and "peaceful means," not confirming the three principles of national reunification.

The society of Koreans in the United States for unification in its statement stresses that to achieve unification, a desire for it should be proved with action, and the main obstacle to it be removed first of all. It says:

As was shown by the massacre in Kwangju, the mother of military dictatorial "regime" is the outside forces. Accordingly, the basic obstacle to democracy in South Korea and to national unification is also outside forces.

He who wants to discuss the unification problem should act in independence and speak about national self-determination.

In its recent statement, the Democratic Koreans United in the Americas demands as follows:

Firstly, Chon Tu-hwan held that a constitution for unification should be instituted through free referendum by democratic means. If he really wants this, he must revise the fascist "constitution" of South Korea through a free referendum by democratic means, before proposing "unification."

Secondly, he must renounce the confrontation policy being hostile to and slandering the North, the other party to dialogue for unification.

Thirdly, he must release all the patriots including students, democrats, intellectuals, men of the press, religionists and workers who were imprisoned by applying the draconic fascist evil laws.

Fourthly, freedom of speech, the press, association, assembly and demonstration must be permitted.

Fifthly, he must apologize for the massacre in Kwangju and make due compensation.

If he clamours about the "unification proposal" without giving primary assurances of unification, he will only earn the derision of all people.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES SOUTH'S OLYMPICS PLANS

[NODONG SINMUN 6 May article: "Who Is the Victim of the Gamble for Hosting the Olympics?"]

[Text] Traitor Chon Tu-hwan has loudly advertised the theme of increasing national prestige. This is a cunning trick designed to deceive the people and serve his dirty political goal. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The South Korean reactionaries have further stepped up their fascist suppression of the South Korean people and patriots to perpetuate national division and fulfill their wild desire for long-term power and have unhesitatingly committed treacherous acts of selling the country and the people.

The filthy aim of the puppet traitor's sordid maneuvers to host the Olympics in Seoul, suppressing by force the South Korean people's opposition, is to improve his position of isolation at home and abroad and to fulfill his wild desire for the perpetual division of the people and long-term power. This is proven by the fact that hosting the Olympics is necessary only for the purpose of propaganda when we view the situation in South Korea and realize that it will not benefit the South Korean people at all. South Korea is not in a position to host such a major function as the Olympics. South Korea is an arena where a bloodthirsty atmosphere prevails, where the barbarous act of slaughtering people has been brazenly committed and which is plagued by fascist terrorism, evoking panic.

The economic situation in South Korea is terrible. Today, the South Korean economy has gone irredeemably into bankruptcy because of worsening financial, material and managerial difficulties. Enterprises have gone bankrupt one after another; millions of unemployed are roaming the streets; and the people's sufferings have reached their zenith. The foreign debts that South Korea has to pay amount to $30-odd billion.

This being the case, hosting the Olympics, which will require at least $2.2 billion for the construction of athletic facilities -- besides those funds required for related projects -- exceeds the imagination of everybody but traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who ignores the interests of the people and pursues an impure political aim. Needless to say, traitor Chon Tu-hwan will build up the funds for his gamble for the Olympics by exploiting the people.

Brazenly trumpeting themes on the enhancement of national prestige, aid and patriotism through the mobilization of government-sponsored propaganda agencies, the puppets have already launched an exploitation campaign to raise funds for the Olympics. Setting some 100 goals, the puppets have launched the so-called Olympic New Community Campaign. This campaign is, in fact, one to exploit the people through coercive mobilization. The Olympic donation campaign that the puppets have recently begun carrying out is more brazen. In this campaign, the puppet clique has had its petty officials extend the working hours of 172 workers at an enterprise in the Kumi Industrial Complex in North Kyongsang Province, donate more than (?285,000) won from this extended labor as funds for the Olympics and raise a total of 30 million won to this end by March 1988. Trumpeting that workers have volunteered this fund-donation campaign, it has urged all enterprises to follow this example.

As is known, while being forced to do protracted, slave labor, the South Korean workers are receiving starvation wages, which does not amount to what is needed to maintain the minimum standard of living. Since traitor Chon Tu-hwan usurped power, workers' working hours have increased while their real wages have continuously decreased. Payment of wages, allowances and severance pay have been overdue. There are many workers who have failed to receive a penny for several months. Who will believe that workers under pressure just to stay alive, have volunteered to donate for the Olympics the money they have earned at the price of their toilsome, extended labor? It is crystal clear that the fund donation campaign has been enforced by the government. Using such a wicked method, the puppets planned and maneuvered last year to exact 40,000 won per capita.

The fund donation campaign forced by traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a piratic exploitation maneuver against the South Korea people, who are suffering unprecedented destitution because of protracted inflation and a heavy tax burden and is a murderous act. The puppets' treacherous maneuvers to host the Olympics have imposed enourmous sufferings on the people in their daily lives in various ways.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is foolishly maneuvering to improve his already stained image, saying he will show certain aspects of development while hosting the Olympics. Part of these maneuvers is reflected in the fact that, after openly announcing the demolition of 210,000 shacks last December on the pretext of improving the living environment before hosting the Olympics, the puppet traitor has raised a great commotion in demolishing houses. Such maneuvers by the rascals have gravely affected the people's daily life. Because of the puppets' house demolition campaign, numerous people, including 500 residents in Kamani village in Tongjak District, Seoul, were driven out of their shelters in the cold winter season. Daily, there have been miserable incidents in which some people have frozen and starved to death. Some have died because of disease and some others have committed suicide.

Such criminal maneuvers by the puppets to make preparations for the Olympics are only beginning. Everyone can easily tell how much damage the people will sustain until the Olympics take place and in their aftermath. Because of this, the people at home and abroad have strongly rejected the puppet clique's maneuvers to host the Olympics.

Defining traitor Chon Tu-hwan's maneuvers to host the Olympics in Seoul as a wicked intrigue to maintain his regime and as tactics to exploit the people and avoid international isolation, the South Korean people are now strongly urging him to immediately stop these criminal maneuvers. Overseas compatriots have raised their voices to protest and denounce these maneuvers. They have unanimously said the puppet clique's maneuvers to host the Olympics will only cause damage to the people and that Chon Tu-hwan's gamble for the Olympics while South Korea is suffering economic destitution is a wicked intrigue aiming at usurping power after 1988 and as tactics for unilateral admission to the United Nations through a diplomatic campaign at the time of hosting the Olympics. They have strongly demanded that the attempt to host the Olympics, which clouds the prospect for democratization and reunification, be thwarted without fail.

The broad strata of social circles in the world are enraged with this attempt. Noting traitor Chon Tu-hwan's maneuvers for unilateral admission to the United Nations, taking the advantage of the hosting of the Olympics in South Korea, (M.R. Guktta), chairman of the Indian East-West Friendship Association, said recently this shows the rascals have already run wild to employ the hosting of the Olympics for their political ends. He added that South Korea is a horrible place into which American cannibals have crawled and which has been plagued by fascist elements who are frantically running amok to hunt men. He said that hosting the Olympics at such a place will only make people uneasy.

A Norwegian newspaper said traitor Chon Tu-hwan has attempted to obtain the recognition of South Korea as an independent country with the Olympics as momentum, and that the Chon Tu-hwan clique's maneuvers to employ the Olympics for its two Koreas policy -- wicked plot for the perpetual division of the people -- is an intolerable treachery against all the people who ardently desire reunification and is an intolerable defilement of the world's people and athletic circles that desire friendship and peace among the people.

Every fact clearly shows that felonious traitor Chon Tu-hwan does not hesitate to commit the criminal act of sacrificing the people to fulfill his wild desire for power. As long as traitor Chon Tu-hwan remains in power, national prestige will never change no matter how often such a function as the Olympics may be hosted in South Korea. No matter how wildly the puppet traitor may run under the slogan of increasing national prestige, he will be unable to conceal his criminal attempt to employ the hosting of the Olympics for his long-term office. Nor can he placate the rage of the South Korean people. The outcome of the gamble which has been dreamed up by traitor Chon Tu-hwan will never be good.

[Text] Today the hearts of all people of the nation are overflowing with great pride in carrying out the revolution by upholding the great Comrade Kim Il-song as leader.

Our people splendidly celebrated the 70th birthday of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Korean People's Army [KPA]. On these occasions all the Korean people at home and abroad and international friends extended warm greetings with a sense of boundless reverence to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, wishing him a long life.

The birthday of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a revolutionary festival of the working class and a commemoration day on which a new history of the sacred cause for the people's liberty and liberation was opened. All our party members, workers and people of the nation, cherishing the ardent desire and burning wish to uphold the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, celebrated this significant revolutionary event as a great political festival which will shine forever in the history of our fatherland.

This is a lofty demonstration of the ardent loyalty of the entire people, of their noble revolutionary principle and boundless affection and reverence for their leader, who has been dedicating his whole life only to the fatherland and revolution.

On the occasion of the 70th birthday of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, heads of many nations of the world, a number of foreign delegates representing parties and governments, noted personages in the fields of economy, society and the press and artists visited our country, crossing continents and oceans. They extended ardent congratulations and endless reverence to the great leader.

Thus, the great political festival became not only a great national day but also a festival of solidarity and friendship overflowing with the brotherly affection of international friends. This is a clear demonstration of the international support for and encouragement to the just cause of our people advancing under the banner of the chuche idea, and is a historic event displaying the might of the international unity of the world's revolutionary people based on independence.

In the long 5,000-year history of the nation, never before has there been such great pride as our people cherish today, advancing under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Never before has there been such glory, which our Korea is brightly exhibiting to the world.

The people who came from various parts of the world's continents differed from each other in ideologies, political views and religions. However, they marvelled at the successes our people have achieved by embodying the chuche idea. They enhanced their friendly relations and unity with our people.

Our people and our fatherland, once most backward and discarded, came to have such honor and dignity because we uphold the respected Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader. With the greatness of his ideology, his boundless sincerity to the revolution and immortal achievements he made for history and mankind by overcoming arduous storms of the revolution, the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song is boundlessly respected by the people. He has absolute authority. The name of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song is shining as a symbol of victory and honor, giving endless hope and courage to all people who love justice and truth, leading them to the rewarding struggle and bright future.

We again experienced this solemn historic reality: Nothing is happier and more proud for our people than to carry out the revolution in the glorious era by upholding the respected Comrade Kim Il-song as the great sun of the revolution. This great political festival was an important occasion which strengthened the unity and cohesion of the entire party, people and army firmly around the party and the leader and demonstrated their might.

Our people greeted this great political festival with great pride in having brought gifts of loyalty by achieving great renovation on all fronts of socialist construction. The great monuments, including the tower of the chuche idea and the triumphal arch, are historic creations in which dwells the sincerity of loyal people striving to glorify their leader's history and revolutionary achievements for many generations to come. A number of various festive events which filled the people with admiration were impressive scenes which could be produced only by a people who deeply feel happiness and gratitude for living in the bosom of the party and the leader. They were a vigorous demonstration of our people's lofty organizational discipline and firm unity.

This marvelous reality, not seen anywhere else, was one which could be created only by invincible unity between the great leader and the loyal people, who are firmly united, ideologically and morally. This unity and cohesion of all the people with the party, the leader and of all the revolutionary forces will not be smashed by any force.

The entire course of events vigorously demonstrated to the world that the invincibility of our revolution and limitless power of chuche Korea are based on this great unity and cohesion. The events of the great festival were proud functions through which we fostered powerful political and ideological strength to more persistently advance our revolution and contruction. They opened up an endlessly bright prospect for our people.

Through these significant days which brilliantly illuminated the history of our fatherland, all our cadres, party members, the new generation and the people of the nation have experienced joy and deep emotion, which they will never forget throughout their lives, and they have come to have a firm resolution and determination as to how they should live and struggle for the rest of their lives.

Our people, the officers and the men of the People's Army will invariably and permanently adhere to the firm resolution of loyalty they made before the party and revolution and will realize it brilliantly.

The significance of various events of this great festival lies in the fact that we consolidated the political and ideological foundation on which we can advance our revolution forever and perfect it following only the road pioneered by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Today, our people's ideological and spiritual state is very good and their morale and fighting spirit are very high. All cadres and workers are overflowing with the spirit of repaying the lofty political trust and benevolence of the party and the leader with loyalty in their respective outposts.

We should strive to organize this great political and ideological strength and to turn the burning loyalty and ardent revolutionary zeal of the broad masses into actual successes in the socialist construction.

When we energetically organize and mobilize the people's enhanced revolutionary zeal and creative initiatives, displayed on the occasion of this great political festival, there is nothing we will not be able to accomplish and another upsurge will be registered in the revolution and construction.

"Let us continuously and energetically push ahead with the revolution and construction without the slightest stagnation and slackness, cherishing great pride in carrying out the revolution by upholding the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" -- this is the unanimous intention of our people and political slogan raised by the party.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: All the people should courageously, struggle to expedite the bright future of communism by cherishing lofty revolutionary pride and a firm belief in victory.

Now, the revolutionary mission and militant goal which we should achieve is clear. An endlessly bright prospect is ahead of us. Firmly grasping and thoroughly implementing the decision of the historic sixth party congress is a general task assigned us today. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is leading today's worthwhile struggle to implement the revolutionary line and the militant program set forth by the party congress.

After leading the arduous Korean revolution to victory over the long period of 50 years, the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song is personally grasping and developing in a revolutionary manner the vast task of implementing the decisions of the sixth party congress with extraordinary revolutionary energy, adept organizational skill and tested leadership.

The policy speech which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song recently delivered at the joint meeting of the party Central Committee and the Supreme People's Assembly [SPA] is a programmatic guideline for victoriously accelerating the overall Korean revolution and the cause of independence against imperialism by brilliantly implementing the decision of the party congress. There is no more important duty today for our people than to thoroughly perform the militant task which the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth in his report at the sixth party congress and in his recent policy speech.

By vigorously advancing along the victorious road indicated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, all functionaries, party members and workers should accelerate the final victory of socialism and the fatherland's reunification and should brilliantly achieve the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea.

By enacting a great upsurge in socialist economic construction, we should, above all, strengthen the country's political and economic might in various ways and epochally improve the people's material and cultural life.

By fanning the flames of the speed battle under the banner of the three revolutions, all functionaries and workers should implement the second 7-year plan ahead of schedule and should further accelerate the all-out advance movement to achieve the 10-point prospective goals for socialist economic construction.

All sectors of the people's economy should successfully accomplish their assigned economic tasks with the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and should continuously improve economic guidance and enterprise management.

They should not slacken the spirit and zeal with which they have continuously enacted production upsurges, should continue to advance so that they can place production on a higher level and should overfulfill this year's national economic plan without fail. Thus, they should significantly have this year recorded as a great year of change -- a year in which a great innovation is enacted in the history of socialist economic construction in our country.

The role of guiding functionaries and the core elements of the party in enacting a new upsurge in socialist construction is very weighty. The party's expection for them is very great. Only when cadre members and the core elements of the party fully play a leading role at all outposts can the political spirit and the spirit of innovation prevail in the party and society. All cadre members and the core elements of the party should cherish deep in their hearts the party's and the leader's lofty political trust in and expectations for them and should brilliantly implement their loyal resolve, taking the lead of the people. In particular, guiding functionaries should correctly understand what our party desires today to make real the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's idea and leadership, should closely organize organizational and political work to achieve this end and should responsibly carry out all work with an attitude worthy of masters of the revolution so that they can accomplish their duty as the core elements of the party. Enacting a great upsurge today in socialist construction is the responsible task of highly demonstrating the honor and dignity of chuche Korea, which is led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and which is glorified by the KWP. By holding in high esteem the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our Korea, which was once obscure on the world map, has come to enjoy high honor as chuche Korea and as a socialist model country in which a great guiding idea of the contemporary era has been invented and fully developed.

Many international friends recently visited our country and sincerely extended support and solidarity to us. This is a clear sign that our people's struggle under the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's leadership and under the banner of the chuche idea has always been righteous and that, when we advance under this banner, we can advance toward communisim -- the ideal of mankind. This makes our people believe in the justness of their cause and in victory and gives them pride in living in, and carrying out the revolution in, the origin of the guiding idea of the contemporary era.

Our Korean communists and people will build the paradise of communism in this land at the earliest possible date and accomplish their noble duty for the contemporary era and history by resolutely protecting and thoroughly embodying the chuche idea forever. At the same time, they will continuously uphold the banner of independence against imperialism, strengthen friendship and unity with international revolutionary forces and actively contribute to achieving independence all over the world.

All the struggles to enact a upsurge in socialist construction and to endlessly glorify our fatherland have been waged victoriously, led by our party. Without the leadership of the glorious party center, we cannot imagine the brilliant completion of the chuche revolutionary cause, the endless prosperity of our fatherland and the happiness of posterity, generation after generation.

Only under the leadership of the KWP, which possesses victorious might and an outstanding and tested leadership, can we achieve the cause of the fatherland's reunification and expedite the bright future of communism when the chuche idea is completely materialized. We should be endlessly loyal to the leadership of the party. The entire party, the entire army and all the people should unconditionally implement party policies and decisions to the end and should more thoroughly establish the ironclad revolutionary discipline with which they act as one in accordance with the order and directives of the party center.

The ironclad unity around the party and the leader is a firm guarantee for enacting a new upsurge in socialist construction and is a decisive factor for all our victories. As shown over the entire course of the recent great political festival, the united strength of our people has the inexhaustible might to smash high mountains and of go through fierce, raging billows. Under difficult circumstances in the past, we resorted to this strength, defeating imperialist aggressors, and clearing away the ashes, magnificently built today's prosperous chuche Korea.

As long as we have this great unity, we need not fear, no matter what difficulties we may encounter in the future. There is no fortress which we cannot occupy.

We should develop the unity of our revolutionary ranks -- unity which has been achieved in protracted trials and whose invincibility has been fully proven -- into ironclad unity achieved with a sole idea and a sole center and based on a noble revolutionary fidelity and creed.

All honor and dignity enjoyed today by our fatherland and people are the result of the high authority and honor of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. We have vividly witnessed how high is the authority enjoyed by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of the working class. We are proud of this.

Only when we protect and safeguard the absolute authority of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and only when we advance along the road indicated by the leader, can we strengthen international friendship and solidarity in various ways, reunify the fatherland and complete the chuche cause.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who pioneered the future path of the Korean revolution and the era of independence in the forest of Mt Paektu under the banner of the chuche idea and who has brilliantly glorified the course of revolutionary activities over more than half a century with heroic epics and with the chronicle of exploits, is now leading our party and people along the single road of victory and glory, saying that completing the revolutionary cause is his noble revolutionary duty.

The firm, unwavering conviction of our people, who have travelled the distant road of bloody struggles and of creation and construction, following the leader, is that when they advance and struggle, bearing deep in their hearts the honor and pride of holding in high esteem the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. They will win victory without fail, overcoming all difficulties and trials. Always cherishing this conviction deep in their hearts, our people will firmly trust and follow only their party and leader and will tenaciously live and struggle forever on the single road may be than the one they have already traversed.

By enacting another great upsurge in the revolution and construction, let us all more highly demonstrate the pride of the people to carry out the revolution in chuche Korea under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

HUN SEN TALKS ON IMPORTANCE OF VCP CONGRESS

BK020710 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 24 Apr 82

[Text] 1. The situation in the period between the Fourth and Fifth VCP Congresses: The Vietnamese comrades assessed that the period between the Fourth and Fifth VCP Congresses, that is, from 1976 to 1982, was a period filled with difficulties when Vietnam is confronted with many acute problems in the economic and social sectors.

Given such acute problems and difficulties, the fact that the Fifth VCP Congress reached a consensus represents a great success that will ensure the advance of the Vietnamese revolution. This is because the experiences of a number of other parties show that whenever there are problems and difficulties within a party a party congress will not be successful. Take China as an example. Every time China faced difficulties in the economic and social fields, it was not even able to convene its party congress, let alone make it a success. China has repeatedly postponed its party congress because it has been unable to convene its congress and has nothing to report to the party.

So, it is assessed that in the years 1976 to 1982, Vietnam, in the postliberation period, has faced many difficulties and problems. But by the time the fifth party congress convened, it has achieved great unity. This represents a success that will ensure the further advance of the Vietnamese revolution.

The Fifth VCP Congress marked the culmination of a period of introspection which lasted for more than a year. This was a period of criticism and self-criticism from the grassroots level to the top levels and vice versa. Yet the same time the congress could assess all points concerning the collective spirit of the party members -- numbering 1.7 million of whom, according to democratic procedures, 1,033 delegates attended the congress -- at all levels.

It is to be noted that the preparations for the convening of the Fifth VCP Congress lasted for more than a year. During this period, the VCP convened local party successive congresses, conducted a drive of profound criticism and self-criticism to examine the pros and cons within the party, and evaluated the results of these efforts in order to prepare a political report as well as reports on guidelines for future tasks. Drawing from the debates, assessments and the spirit and views of the 1.7 million party members, expressed through the 1,033 delegates who attended the congress, the congress approved three reports: 1) The political report read by Comrade Li Duan; 2) the economic report read by Comrade Pham Van Dong; and 3) the report on party building read by Comrade Le Duc Tho.

2. The assessment of the situation made in the party congress: The Fifth VCP Congress noted that the past 5 years are inscribed in history as a period of victories for the Vietnamese revolution. This means that the 5 years which elapsed between the fourth and fifth congresses were regarded as a period of victories similar to those victories won over the U.S. imperialists and [words indistinct]. It has been inscribed in the history that Vietnam has won victories over the French, Japanese and U.S. imperialists. The period between the fourth and fifth congress was regarded as a period of victory inscribed in history. The victories scored in the period between the fourth and fifth party congress are as follows:

The first victory is the victory in the reunifi ation of the country, embodied in the establishment of the constitution and the implementation of the system of the dictatorship of the proletariat throughout the country. This is a victory of great significance to Vietnam as well as [words indistinct]. This is because the colonialists divided Vietnam into parts -- the north and the south -- as seen on the world map. It was divided in this way. However, we can see that of all the countries in the world that were divided by the colonialists, Vietnam is the only country that has been reunified.

Look at Asia: We will see that there are mainland China, Taiwan, Macao and Hong Kong. Until now, even the land of Taiwan that China [words indistinct] still cannot be reunified. Hong Kong and Macao have become colonies of Britain and Portugal. The colonialists have also divided Korea into the northern and southern parts, like Vietnam. But, until now, Korea still has not been reunified.

Unity in Vietnam is a model that we must draw experience from. It is a model for Kampuchea. Vietnam was divided by the colonialists into two parts -- the north and the south. They made two separate maps of the north and the south as if the north was one nation and the south another. However, since the fourth party congress Vietnam has become reunified. It has a single constitution and has established the system of the dictatorship of the proletariat throughout the country.

Vietnam is a single nation. This statement by President Ho Chi Minh has been inscribed in the hearts of the Vietnamese nation. Thus, the reunification of Vietnam by the Vietnamese people is not a reunification just on the map, but a profound political, spiritual and all-embracing reunification. This is the first point regarding as the significance of the Vietnamese victory. This is the first victory scored in the period between the fourth and fifth party congresses.

The second victory is the victory in crushing the two wars of aggression launched by the Chinese expansionists. China launched the first war by instigating the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique to sabotage Vietnam, using Kampuchea as its springboard. At that time, Vietnam, on the one hand, successfully defended the Vietnamese people's peaceful life and, on the other hand, carried out a proletarian duty to the Kampuchean nation by crushing the war of aggression being waged by the Beijing lackeys. Thus Vietnam ensured security in the south.

The second and most cruel war of aggression by the Chinese expansionists was launched in February 1979. This is the second victory.

The third victory is the building and development of the economy, the restoration of the culture and the maintenance of political security.

After the war Vietnam had many difficulties left over by (?the U.S. imperialists), particularly in the southern part of the country. But after liberation, and especially after the fourth party congress, Vietnam had plans for the general development of the economy. Vietnam acknowledges that it has economic difficulties. But if we examine its material and technical bases we can see that Vietnam has a strong foundation. It is temporarily poor but it has many, good possibilities for the future given its construction, technical and material bases. Vietnam, at present, is in the stage of construction. (?This construction has achieved some results.) According to some of our Vietnamese comrades, in 1983 Vietnam will (?obtain some of its oil for its own use). Therefore, Vietnam has a lot of natural resources.

Political security is well guaranteed in Vietnam. In the northern part of the country, which is the vital base of Vietnam, political security is well guaranteed. Although the Chinese expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists carry out sabotage and subversion, political stability in the society is good. This the third victory.

The fourth victory is the increase in combat activities and the strengthening of close relations between the three countries of Indochina. This victory is also related to increased cooperation in all fields with the Soviet Union and various socialist countries.

After the fourth congress, Vietnam made many efforts in (?all fields). Concerning our Kampuchean people, Vietnam protected and liberated them from the genocidal regime. Moreover, after liberation the combat activities of the three Indochinese countries became a strong (?base) guaranteeing independence, sovereignty and socialist construction in the three countries. Concurrently, cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union and various socialist countries has grown in all fields. This is the fourth victory.

The fifth victory is the international influence of the Vietnamese revolution. On this point, I would like to tell you that the period since Vietnam's victory over the imperialists its known by the world as the post-Vietnam period. If one talks about the post-Vietnam period, it means the period (?after) the U.S. was defeated by Vietnam. It is so. The post-Vietnam period is the period when the U.S. and the imperialists (?displayed guilt). (?Vietnam's frankness) led its influence and existence to grow greatly.

Over the past years, the imperialists, the Chinese expansionists and other international reactionaries have not been happy with Vietnam's help in liberating the Kampuchean people. (?This worried the imperialists). But various socialist and progressive countries as well as all peace and justice-loving peoples all over the world praised Vietnam's important role. Sometimes, they thanked Vietnam on behalf of the Kampuchean people. Various members of Communist Party Political Bureaus who (?were our guests) have visited Kampuchea, (?such as) the general secretary of the Communist Party of Australia who had not clearly understood (?the situation in our country) before but (?after visiting our country) expressed his thanks to Vietnam on behalf of the Kampuchean people because it liberated them from the massacre perpetrated by the Pol Pot group. The influence of Vietnam has grown because of its smashing of the imperialists and for performing its duty to the Kampuchean people and (?in other places).

These are the important points of Vietnam's victories. The fact that the Vietnamese revolution scored such victories created a new strategic situation. What is this new strategic situation? Before, Indochina was a colony of the imperialists. The fact that the Vietnamese revolution was victorious and the good implementation. Of the resolutions of the fourth congress since 1976 created a new strategic situation in which (?stability) and socialist influence increased there. (?The toppling of colonialism was also noted). Before (?this region) consisted of colonies of the imperialists, now it is becoming socialist. [passage indistinct] (?It is an important fact in the development of socialism) and it is a weak point for the imperialists. This is the reason that the imperialists used to say that they were afraid of the domino theory. At present, the imperialists are trying to use the Chinese expansionists to oppose Indochina. If the Indochinese revolution has influence and strength it can spread its influence in Southeast Asia.

The VCP evaluated these victories as being possible due to the correct leadership of the party and that the lines of the fourth party congress are correct. They constituted resolute strategies to take the Vietnamese revolution past the turning point. They are the correct lines to stabilize the country and build a base for taking the country past the turning point, such as the postwar period [words indistinct]. At the same time, the Fifth VCP Congress examined a number of complexities and the lack of progress that occurred in the party for the period between the fourth and the fifth congresses.

In the period from the fourth to the fifth congresses, Vietnam faced many difficulties in economic field. The livelihood of the people is still fraught with difficulties. Slackness still exists. Due to some causes, Vietnam's production is still small. The bad consequences left for Vietnam by the aggressive wars of the United States and China are heavy. This is because following the departure of the United States, China caused destruction to Vietnam. The United States instigated China to cut off aid to Vietnam and later on to launch a war of aggression and destruction against Vietnam. Thus, Vietnam has suffered great difficulties. At the same time, Vietnam has to fulfill its proletarian internationalist duties in Laos and Kampuchea, particularly in Kampuchea, were it has made tremendous sacrifices in terms of lives, property and forces -- cadres and technicians -- in order to save us from [words indistinct] until today. With its sense of responsibility, the VCP has conducted criticism and self-criticism from the top to the grassroots levels and vice versa in order to review the (?mistakes) and difficulties and draw experiences from the good points [words indistinct].

3. The two strategic tasks and the new step of development of the Vietnamese revolution: The fifth party congress stated: Our country is now in a situation wherein it enjoys peace while having to face a kind of multisided war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists, and at the same time, to stand ready to cope with the possibility of a large-scale war of aggression started by the enemy.

Proceeding from the above-mentioned situation, the congress set forth two strategic tasks: first, to build socialism successfully; and second, to stand combat-ready to defend effectively the socialist Vietnamese fatherland. The congress clearly defined the major task as one of building socialism and of continuing the implementation of the line of socialist revolution and the line of building a socialist economy mapped out by the fourth party congress. In this advancing stage, the fifth party congress set four objectives as follows:

Firstly, gradually to stabilize and improve to some extent the people's material and cultural life;

Secondly, to carry on the building of the material-technological basis of socialism;

Thirdly, to promote the socialist transformation of the state economy; and Fourthly to meet the defense requirements, to consolidate national defense, to maintain security and order.

According to the assessment of the fifth party congress, if these four objectives are realized, there will be an important, fundamental change in Vietnam's economic structure. In order to reach this goal, the congress concluded that it is necessary to implement a 10-point policy and various major measures which mainly stress the state's research and development of all existing capabilities and economic strength, as well as the broadening of international cooperation, first of all, cooperation with the Soviet Union. In the 10-point policy of the VCP, the congress clearly defined the significance of socialist industrialization that is, in the 5 years of 1981-85 and in the 1980's as a whole, it is necessary to concentrate forces on a vigorous development of agriculture, to regard it as a primary front, to take it a step further to socialist large-scale production, to strive to boost consumer goods production and to carry on the building of a number of important branches of heavy industry; to combine agriculture, consumer goods industry and heavy industry in a rational industrial-agricultural structure.

4. The 5-year plan: Concerning the 5-year plan, although Vietnam has made long preparations, there are many factors that the Vietnamese comrades have not yet been able to sum up. They have not yet been able to sum up the data on (?crops) to be planted and have not coordinated sufficiently with the localities. Due to this problem, the congress only approved a document on economic targets and important directives on the food production plan mapped out after thorough debate by the congress. Thus, due to the fact that conclusions on material to be imported and work with localities have not yet been completed thoroughly, the targets on some issues have not yet been adopted. The congress has approved the food production plan. In this plan, Vietnam will produce from (?19) to 20 million tons a year. In 1981, Vietnam produced 16 million tons. In future plans, Vietnam will produce from (?19) to 20 million tons.

5. Party building and the election of new Central Committee members: The congress stated clearly: The VCP is a heroic, valiant and strong party. It always grasps the two [words indistinct]. However, after our party conducted a vigorous self-criticism on various shortcomings and mistakes, particularly in ideological and organizational aspects, the task of party building is aimed at implementing the revolutionary lines and heightening the capability and leadership skills of the party in order to ensure the implementation of the two strategic tasks.

The congress also affirmed that the party must be (?clean) and must remove those elements which are [words indistinct] and have a weak revolutionary will. The party must have a revolutionary, combative, scientific and [words indistinct]. The party must apply the principle of democratic centralism in lifestyle meetings; enhance revolutionary ethics, unity and international solidarity; fulfill international duties; and implement the work system wherein the (?party) organs lead, the state controls and the people are owner of the collective.

6. Foreign policy: In this matter, Vietnam has correctly assessed the world situation. Concerning its foreign policy, the VCP stressed: the militant solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union, Kampuchea and Laos are regarded as principles of strategic significance and the vital factor of the Vietnamese revolution. The VCP carries out international obligations tothe working class and workers in the world and for the communist and workers' movement in the world.

In the report to the congress, the Vietnamese comrades also stressed their support for the peace proposals initiated by the Soviet Union, particularly the proposals made by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev on the reduction of tension, elimination of arms race and so forth.

The last point is the impressions of our delegation. In attending the Fifth VCP Congress, our delegation had many impressions. The VCP is a party that has much experience, in political and ideological work and in mass persuasion for fighting against the enemy and defending the country. It is a party that has a high spirit of internal unity. Looking at the parties in the world, we will never see any other party like the VCP. No other party has as high a unity as the VCP. Take the party in China as an example; it is rife with disunity and disorder. The parties in various other countries are also the same as that in China. The VCP has great internal unity and good experience in party leadership and work. Our delegation was very impressed by everything we saw -- the unity and the sentiments of the delegations toward the congress and their unity within the party ranks and at the congress. We are very pleased to see our comrades unite around the party. We are happy to see our comrades unite. This is because we regard Vietnam as our support. We regard this as a success of the Vietnamese nation and party as well as of our own. This is our impression. Another impression is of the sentiments accorded our delegation by the Vietnamese party leaders which could be seen in the congress.

The Vietnamese comrades clearly defined in their [words indistinct]. They regard the alliance of Vietnam, Kampuchea, Laos and the Soviet Union as the cornerstone of their foreign policy. Moreover, this is attested to through the sentiments accorded our Kampuchean delegation by the Vietnamese leaders and the participants in the congress.

Ceremony To Mark Victories

BK060739 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0356 GMT 6 May 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 6 May (SPK) -- The Kampuchea-Vietnam Freindship Association [KVFA] on Wednesday [5 May] celebrated in Phnom Penh the seventh anniversary of the complete liberation of South Vietnam in 1974 and the 28th anniversary of the Dien Bien Phu victory in 1954. Present at the ceremony were Chan Ven, president of the KVFA; and Chhuk Chim, vice chairman of the Women's Association and vice chairman of the KVFA. Also present was Nguyen Thao, counsellor of the Vietnamese Embassy in Kampuchea.

Chan Ven stressed that the Dien Bien Phu victory over the French colonialists in May 1954 and the victory over the U.S. imperialists in April 1975 were the result of the solidarity that bound the three Indochinese peoples together in their struggle against the common enemies. These victories, he said, have encouraged oppressed peoples in the world and provided them with experiences in the struggle for the liberation of their countries.

Editorial Greets Anniversary

[Unattributed editorial: "Warmest Welcome to the Seventh Anniversary of the Liberation of the Southern Part of Vietnam"]

[Text] Today, the fraternal Vietnamese people are celebrating the seventh anniversary of their historic victory over the U.S. imperialist aggressors in conjuction with the brilliant successes of the Fifth VCP Congress. The Kampuchea people would like to participate enthusiastically in this splendid day together with the fraternal Vietnamese people and to express their sentiments of friendship and solidarity.

The date of 30 April 1975 marks a historic event for the fraternal heroic Vietnamese people who ardently struggled for many years to smash the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys. This great historic victory unified Vietnam and put a permanent end to the yoke of domination placed by the U.S. imperialists on the shoulders of Vietnam. In fact, the Vietnamese people have become the masters of their own destiny in building and defending their territory while advancing toward socialism.

After the 30 April 1975 victory, under the clear-sighted leadership of the VCP, the heroic Vietnamese people struggled against all kinds of obstacles and made courageous sacrifices with lofty heroism in order to defend and rebuild their country. They also struggled to fulfill their international proletarian duty toward various oppressed peoples. In particular, they assisted the fraternal Kampuchean and Lao peoples.

During the past 7 years, the heroic Vietnamese people have made great efforts to demolish the remnants of the war of aggression left behind by the U.S.. imperialists. Among these efforts were active struggles to increase production, restore the economy and improve the people's standard of living. These struggles were successful.

There were also strong struggles against the unfriendly acts of the Beijing Chinese hegemonists and expansionists and the U.S. imperialists. During this same period, the heroic Vietnamese people defeated two wars of aggression launched by the Beijing Chinese expansionists. Concurrently, the heroic Vietnamese people defeated and smashed all maneuvers of the Beijing Chinese expansionists and the imperialists who attempted to subdue their struggle spirit and to isolate them. Moreover, the heroic Vietnamese people have contributed and sacrificed their blood in saving the Kampuchean people from the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime -- the devoted lackeys of the Beijing Chinese expansionists.

Under the leadership of the VCP, the Vietnamese people have upheld the banner of determined struggle in all periods -- from the epoch of French colonialism and Japanese fascism to U.S. imperialism -- and scored brilliant victories all over the world. Therefore, the Vietnamese people are praised by people all over the wolrd and they have attained great prestige on the international scene. The Beijing Chinese hegemonists and expansionists, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionaries, are stubborn and have made efforts to look for all types of poisonous maneuvers to oppose Vietnam and to undermine the good influence of the Vietnamese people. Despite these obstructions, the heroic Vietnamese people are constantly advancing toward their goal and scoring successive victories.

On the occasion of the seventh anniversary of the victory of the fraternal Vietnamese people over the aggressive imperialists, the Kampuchean people all over the country would like to participate in welcoming this victory with joy and the warmest and most sincere fraternal Vietnamese party, government and people for their enormous assistance and support. The Kampuchean people are determined to learn from the Vietnamese people's model of heroism and their valiant and courageous struggle spirit. The Kampuchean people will never forget the sacrifices made by the Vietnamese people to liberate and unify their territory and will remember forever Uncle Ho's saying. "There is one Vietnam, there is one Vietnamese nation."

Through this model of heroism and brilliant victory, the Kampuchean people are determined to preserve and defend the ties of friendship and militant solidarity and the cooperation between the two countries in order to promote the development and common interests of the two countries. The Kampuchean people would like to warmly wish the fraternal Vietnamese people more and greater successes in the defense and construction of their glorious socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

VODK ASSAILS INDIA'S SUPPORT FOR VIETNAM

BK010914 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 27 Apr 82

[Unattributed commentary: "If India Really Wants Peace To Be Restored in Southeast Asia, It Should Join With All Peace- and Justice-Loving Countries in the World in Forcing Vietnam To Withdraw All Its Aggressor Troops from Kampuchea in Accordance With the Resolution of the UN General Assembly and Should Stop Giving Aid to Vietnam"]

[Text] When Nguyen Co Thach, the big liar for the Le Duan Vietnamese aggressors, began his visit to India, the Indian Government announced that India was ready to accept the mission to eliminate tension in Southeast Asia and restore peace, stability and security in this region.

What is the source of the constant tension in Southeast Asia? Who has destroyed peace, security and stability in this region? Does India realize the root causes of these problems and on whose side does India stand?

Everyone is well aware of and has seen the root cause of the current tension in Southeast Asia. The peoples and countries in Southeast Asia and elsewhere throughout the world fully realize that the current tension in Southeast Asia is due to the Le Duan Vietnamese clique's war of aggression and genocide in Kampuchea and that this Vietnamese war of aggression is the first step of the implementation of the Vietnamese-Soviet strategy of aggression and expansion into Southeast Asia and the Asian-Pacific region.

On whose side does India stand concerning the problem of Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea, which has caused tension in Southeast Asia? Does India stand on the side of the Vietnamese aggressors or the victimized Kampuchean people and the peace- and justice-loving countries which oppose this aggression?

Concerning the Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea -- which constitutes a gross violation of the principles of the UN Charter, international law and the Nonaligned Movement of which India is a member -- the Indian Government has not sided with justice nor defended the principles of the international law and the principles of nonalignment. On the contrary, India has all along sided with the Vietnamese aggressors. India has supported the Vietnamese aggressors and defended their aggression at all international forums, particularly at the UN General Assembly, and all the conferences of the Nonaligned Movement. India has recognized the Vietnamese aggressor administration in Phnom Penh and given aid to Vietnam, which serves to reinforce Vietnam in continuing its aggression against Kampuchea and carrying out its strategy of aggression and expansion into Southeast Asia.

At the same time, India has operated actively in the international arena in the service of the Hanoi clique's deceitful diplomacy in an attempt to deceive the ASEAN countries into negotiating with the Vietnamese aggressors and accepting the Vietnamese aggression in Kampuchea as a fait accompli.

Since it has actively supported Vietnam and defended the Vietnamese aggression, how can India act as the mediator in solving the crisis in this region? If the Indian Government really wants Southeast Asia to enjoy peace, security and stability, it does not have to be diplomatically active everywhere. All it should do is stop supporting and giving aid to Vietnam, join with the peace- and justice-loving countries and other nonaligned countries in demanding and forcing Vietnam to withdraw all of its aggressor troops from Kampuchea immediately and unconditionally in accordance with the resolutions of the UN General Assembly and the international conference on Kampuchea, and support the Kampuchean people who are struggling against the war of aggression, expansion, annexation and genocide waged by the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy. Only by so doing can India contribute to solving the Kampuchean problem, eliminating tension in Southeast Asia and restoring peace, security and stability in this region. But if India continues to support Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea, to give aid to Vietnam in order to reinforce and encourage Vietnam to consolidate its occupation of Kampuchea, and to launch activities in international arena on behalf of the Vietnamese aggressors' deceitful diplomacy, no matter how hard India will try to disseminate its propaganda and sweet words, nobody will believe it.

VODK NOTES REPORTS OF ARRESTS IN LAOS

[Text] According to reports from Vientiane, during the congress of the Vientiane puppet party, the puppets arrested and imprisoned dozens of Lao nationals in Vientiane, accusing them of attempting to sabotage the Vientiane puppet party's congress.

This attests to the chaotic and insecure situation in Vientiane city and elsewhere throughout the country since the Lao people oppose the yoke of domination imposed on them by the Hanoi Vietnamese.

FURTHER MATERIALS ON THIRD LPRP CONGRESS

Sisavat Keobounphan Speech

BK061041 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 6 May 82

[Speech by Gen Sisavat Keobounphan, member of the LPRP Central Committee Secretariat and chief of the LPLA General Staff, delivered at a session of the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- recorded; date not given]

[Text] Respected presidium, respected honorable comrade delegates: The delegation of the party committee of the armed forces and the people's security forces are completely unanimous in their support of the political report of the party Central Committee presented by the comrade general secretary. We would like to present a report on the armed forces and the people's security forces as follows:

1. After scoring a historic victory in 1975, thus fulfilling the political tasks adopted by the second congress, our armed forces and people have entertained no other aspirations except to build Laos into a peaceful and independent country advancing toward socialism. However, the reactionary elements in the Beijing ruling circles, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists, have ceaselessly implemented a hostile policy against the revolution in our country. They have carried out activities to sabotage and destroy our country in all fields.

On the military front, they have encroached upon our border areas and threaten to wage a war of aggression against our country. They continue to implement a strategic scheme aimed at weakening and undermining our country in all respects so as to subjugate and swallow it up in the end.

Faced with such a sinister enemy scheme, our armed forces and people have no other choice but to march forward to consolidate the aggregate strength necessary to defend our national independence and sovereignty and to rigorously shift to the grassroots level to attack the enemies, consolidate the system of proletarian dictatorship, develop production and improve the people's living conditions. We have managed to gradually stabilize and improve the internal situation, thus bringing peace and security to the country. The armed forces and the people's security forces have been constantly strengthened and consolidated. The position of the people's war in the countryside has been consolidated, and the strategic rear has been actively built. Our people's security forces have been strengthened in both quantity and quality and they have now become a part of the national army. [applause] Moreover, the people's armed forces have been extensively organized and maintain combat readiness to attack the enemies and to uphold security and peace at all times. [applause]

The aforementioned exploits have been scored thanks to the [word indistinct] perseverance of our armed forces and people, who have consistently maintained a high sense of combat readiness, standing ready with weapons in hand to smash all schemes of the enemies. Nevertheless, the factors deciding these victories are, first of all, the correct line and policies of the party, and the talented, clear-sighted, creative and appropriate leadership of the party Central Committee and the Political Bureau, headed by beloved and esteemed Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvinhan. Since the beginning, our party has correctly defined the relationship between the two strategic duties -- to defend and build the socialist country -- and has adhered to the firm stand of the socialist (?revolution). [applause] At the same time, it has promptly and clearly identified the new dangerous enemy of our country. It has provided fundamental (?contents) for the all-round building of foundations for the national defense and mass security work. That is why we have scored such great victories as we have. [applause]

The all-round militant alliance between our army and people, and the armies and peoples of Vietnam and Kampuchea, and the assistance rendered by the fraternal socialist countries, especially the great, timely and effective assistance in manpower, money and experience of the armies and peoples of Vietnam and the Soviet Union, also constitute one of the most important factors in our victories.

On this occasion, on behalf of our armed forces, I would like to express our sincere and profound gratitude to the armies and peoples of Vietnam, the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist countries for wholeheartedly rendering such assistance to us, imbued with the spirit of militant solidarity and socialism. [applause] In particular, we would like to hail, with overwhelming gratitude, the Vietnamese volunteer and construction forces contribution of labor and their sacrifice of their blood and lives to the struggle of the past several years to defend and build our socialist country. [applause]

2. Our socialist revolution has gotten underway in a new international situation. Our country has become an outpost of socialism in Southeast Asia. The Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, have implemented an overall scheme to sabotage our revolution in all fields, with the aim of weakening our country and then proceeding to invade and swallow it and the other Indochinese countries so that they will be able to further expand into Southeast Asia.

Therefore, in the immediate future, the fighting between us and our enemies and between the revolutionary forces and the counterrevolutionary forces will become even more complicated and crucial. Such development calls for us to heighten vigilance, and to stand ready to fight and to smash all schemes of the enemies. At the same time, we must be prepared to cope with all developments under every circumstance and to build mass foundations for the national defense and security work. Numerous noticeable problems remain which must be solved by our people.

Therefore, the delegation of the armed forces' party committee and that of the people's security forces wholeheartedly supports the political report, which has designated national defense and security work as one of the important and urgent tasks of the years ahead. But we still realize that the task of defending and building socialism is the most decisive fundamental task of all. However, if the national defense and security work is not effectively consolidated, numerous difficulties will be encountered in economic and cultural transformation and development.

3. To fulfill the national defense and security tasks outlined in the political report, we must concentrate our efforts on intensively [word indistinct] certain problems as follows:

First and foremost, we must strive to consolidate all-round security at the grassroots level, firmly grasp the overall direction of tasks, and organize close coordination of all services and branches so as to develop the armed forces and to extensively and firmly consolidate national defense and security in all localities, particularly in certain vital areas. It is of utmost importance that, while carrying out movements to attack the enemies, we must organize and foster a contingent of cadres to establish stationary grassroots bases and develop their roles to provide overall security for all hamlets and cantons.

The task of the national defense and security forces in the new stage is to ensure continued internal security for the country. At the same time, they must be ready to fight and must possess the strength and capabilities needed to coordinate with [words indistinct] to carry out people's war to triumphantly defend the country. To fulfill the objectives in the political report, there must be plans to build the consolidated armed forces with a combined strength, composed of the regular army and the people's security forces and with the clearly defined tasks [words indistinct] in accordance with their responsibilities so as to turn them into (?mobile regrouped forces). We must attach importance to the building of these two types of forces. At the same time, we must not cease efforts to build the regrouped mobile regular forces into a model modern army. We must continue to pay attention to regarding this as an important task in building the stationary forces; for example, by consolidating the existing guerrilla forces, organizing new guerrilla units in the tribal areas, and building self-defense forces in urban areas and in all state organizations, offices and factories. With regard to the building of the regular forces, considerable attention must be paid to resolving two issues -- their quality and size.

These two issues are interrelated. An improvement in quality is not only achieved by stepped up political study, but also by raising organizational quality and increasing the efficiency of weapons and war materiel so as to ensure that the army and the people's security forces are staffed with elements who have a highly developed sense of political wareness and who are provided with effective training so they may develop a sense of firm organization, strict discipline, and unified regulations. They should be armed with modern weapons and use modern methods so as to ensure that they will be able to fulfill the tasks of national defense and security.

We must apply the system of military obligations [as heard] among all the masses in order to encourage the people of all tribes to fulfill these obligations so that the army will be able to perform its duties in all circumstances.

We will strive to build the people's security forces into a pure entity which is firm in its organization and skillful in specialized work so that it will remain forever loyal to the country and capable of fulfilling its tasks to deserve the people's trust and affection.

While building the regular forces, we must pay attention to developing the people's security forces at the grassroots level. The regular forces and the people's security forces must closely unite and coordinate with each other in attacking the enemies and maintaining political peace and social order. The coordination of the economy with national defense and the local economy with the local military must be fully appreciated and fulfilled in the years to come. We must incorporate such coordination in the overall plans and in the plan to develop the economy and to build national defense throughout the country. At the same time, we must closely coordinate the plan to develop production and to improve the people's living conditions with the plan to consolidate national defense and security in each province and each district. To achieve this goal, we must completely understand the major plans and policies of the party, that is to actively build the district into a key unit, capable of defending its own achievements and of conducting self-criticism. Thus, we must regard the district as an important area in which coordination between the local economy and the regional forces must be effectively achieved.

We must strive to consolidate international solidarity, especially while the enemies are implementing a scheme of creating division and sabotage while spearheading their attack against Vietnam and the Soviet Union. We must continue to educate everyone to understand the true nature and the strategic significance of the militant alliance among the three Indochinese peoples, to develop all-round solidarity and cooperation with the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist countries, to expose all reactionary maneuvers of the enemies, to foster unanimous faith in the party's foreign policy, and [words indistinct] as the standard principle for all party cadres, members, combatants and other people.

Moreover, we must further enhance a sense of mastery and step up efforts to solicit and make good use of international assistance. At the same time, we must hold aloft a sense of responsibility by creating favorable conditions for the forces which are directly fulfilling international obligations in our country, so that they will be able to increase their combat effectiveness and work efficiency.

Respected presidium, delegates and distinguished guests, to translate the resolutions adopted at this congress into reality, all party members, cadres and combatants in the national defense forces and the people's security forces will strengthen our unity around the party Central Committee headed by esteemed and beloved Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan, who was the first commander in chief and has led and trained our armed forces since our inception. [applause]

We will use all our wisdom and efforts to consolidate and strengthen the national defense forces and the people's security forces in all respects, so as to fundamentally stabilize political peace and social order [applause] and to contribute to victoriously defending and building the socialist country. [applause]

In conclusion, I wish the congress a glorious success. Thank you.

Sisomphom Lovansai Speech

BK041040 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0555 GMT 28 Apr 82

[Speech by Sisomphon Lovansai, member of LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, on the amendment to the LPRP regulations to the 27 April afternoon session of the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- recorded]

[Text] Members of the presidium, distinguished guests, dear delegates: This nationwide congress of representatives is the third one since our party was established. The first congress marked a new, great victory of the revolution and the further growth and strength of our party. At a time when the party was just established in 1955, it led an armed struggle to defend two regrouped provinces [Sam Neua and Phong Saly Provinces, where former Pathet Lao forces regrouped to fight the Katai Government in Vientiane]. It also led a political struggle in 10 provinces in coordination with a struggle within the coalition government. The number of party members was just over 400, and the party bases were limited.

By 1972, when the second party congress was held, two-thirds of the territory and one-third of the population had been liberated. The number of party members had increased to 21,000.

This third congress is being held after the national-democratic revolution has been fulfilled across the country. Our people are now enthusiastically carrying out the socialist revolution. The number of party members has now increased to more than 35,000. The party has now taken over the administrative power throughout the country, and party organizations and state apparatuses have been consolidated and improved from the central down to the grassroots level. When the second congress and the one before that took place, most of the party organizations were operating secretly. The current congress is proceeding under conditions in which the party can function openly.

The party's prestige and influence have become apparent in all areas of social activity. The party has grown and become strong in all spheres -- political, ideological and organizational. It is a genuine Marxist-Leninist party. Our party's role in international relations has reached greater heights than ever before. In implementing the working class' basic principles on party building, we have achieved great successes in our party building work and have drawn many rich lessons. Nevertheless, taking into consideration the requirements of the revolution, we must continue in our persistent efforts to do away with various weaknesses and shortcomings, especially now that the revolution in our country has been turned into a socialist revolution, and our party has become the nucleus leading the system of the dictatorship of the proletariat, which has made the party building work more burdensome.

The party Central Committee's political report lays down the direction and tasks of the revolution in our country in the new period -- the period of transition to socialism -- and underlines party building tasks in this new period of the revolution. It is a firm basis for our party building work.

As for the party building work in the past years and in the years to come, we must continue to profoundly grasp the various basic Marxist-Leninist principles on party building and must effectively apply the various directions on party building stipulated in the political report.

In its capacity as the leader of the administration, our party must always firmly maintain the true nature of the party of the working class. It must always be loyal to Marxism-Leninism and use it as a basis for its ideological thinking and a compass for its activities.

The party has creatively applied Marxism-Leninism to the true situation of our revolution, accepted the good lessons offered by fraternal parties and has utilized the party's intelligence in formulating policies and the line for effectively leading our country's revolution to victory.

The party must be loyal to the interests of the working class and the country. It must correctly and skillfully coordinate genuine patriotism with clearsighted proletarian internationalism and must oppose narrow-minded nationalism and self-interest. The party must strictly implement the basic organizational principle of democratic centralism. It must adhere to collective leadership -- a principle which is closely coordinated with work distribution -- and it must do away with such phenomena as factionalism, localism, excessive exercise of freedom and arbitrariness.

The party must incessantly strengthen internal unity on the basis of the political line and the principles of democratic centralism so that it will be the nucleus for unity among the people of various tribes. It must combat individualism and any manifestation of division and factionalism.

The party must always keep in close touch with the masses, respect the people's rights to collective mastery, attend to the material and cultural life of the masses and get rid of bureaucratism, arrogance and acts of alienating the masses and violating their rights to mastery. The party must regard self-criticism and criticism as a rule of the party's development. Self-criticism must be frank and aimed at fulfilling the organizational building task, helping each other and making progress together. We must promote criticism from the higher level downwards to the lower level, and vice versa. We must combat arrogance, and refrain from carrying out criticism because of rivalry or envy, and avoid shifting blame to others, arrogance and self-complacency. We must not be arrogant nor fail to carry out self-criticism in a frank manner nor level criticism against others out of revenge.

The party must maintain strict discipline and instruct all party cadres and members to abide by it. Our party considers increasing the efficiency of the party building work in the political, ideological and organizational aspects and the incessant strengthening of combat forces and the party leadership capability to be a decisive duty in the revolutionary cause of the party and of the people of all tribes. The party must maintain and effectively implement correct guidelines and policies. The party must also maintain a tho ough revolutionary line of thought, pure revolutionary qualifications, a wholesome and strong organization, and a contingent of party cadres and members who are politically reliable and who possess adequate knowledge in the scientific and technological field, knowledge in managing the economy and society and expert skill in practical activities.

The party must [words indistinct] dependent on the consolidation and improvement of the party machinery, and on the mass organizations. Party building must be closely linked with the mass revolutionary movement and with the execution of the party's political tasks. Importance must be attached to the development of the party, and efforts must be made to oppose any tendency to attain only large numbers of party members. The party must admit only outstanding elements from the working class, the laboring peasants, the socialist intellectuals, and the laboring people of all strata who voluntarily join the party contingent to fulfill the party's objectives and ideal. At the same time, the party must immediately expel any opportunist elements who try to infiltrate the party and those persons who are unqualified for party membership.

The old regulations which were adopted at the second party congress reflected the party's loyalty to the basic principles of Marxism-Leninism regarding party building, and contained detailed plans suitable to the revolution in our country at that time. They were correct and served their own purposes during the national-democratic revolution. However, during the present stage of socialist revolution, to meet the requirements of party building the old regulations are amended as follows:

I. On party members: The party's political task in the new period has laid down more stringent objectives in the building of the contingent of party members.

In connection with the conditions for admitting party members, they are amended so that those who will be admitted into the party must pass through trials at production units, work units, and combat units, have clean records, possess good revolutionary nature, and command the trust of the people.

As for the duties of party members, they must take the initiative in implementing the line and policies of the party as well as the instructions and orders of the party and state to contribute to the tasks of defending the country and building socialism. They must engage in the study of the party's theoretical line and policies, culture, professional and technical subjects, science, technology, and the management of the state, economy and society. They must train themselves to develop a revolutionary nature and qualifications. They must be loyal to the party, the country and socialism, and always place public interests above their own, stand ready to make sacrifices in defending the country and executing the tasks of socialist transformation and construction. They must be diligent in working in the interests of society, defend the socialist gains, possess a sense of honesty, lead wholesome and simple lives, be thrifty, public-minded and disinterested, pay close attention to the work of party building, keep in close touch with the masses, respect and enhance the people's right to collective mastery, correctly implement the party policy in dealing with ethnic minority tribes, resolutely resist all enemy schemes to divide ethnic people, hold aloft the spirit of proletarian internationalism, correctly implement and fulfill the foreign policy tasks, make active contributions to strengthening the special solidarity, all-round cooperation and militant alliance with Vietnam and Kampuchea, as well as all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries, and render active support to the struggles of all nations in the world for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism.

With regard to their rights, party members have the right to propose their views to the party organizations if the later officially appraise or discuss certain issues relating to the operation of the party.

As for the regulation to admit outstanding persons as party members, the new regulation offers the following additional options:

1. Members of the Lao People's Revolutionary Youth Union who are nominated as party members by the youth union committee at the grassroots level must be endorsed by only one full party member.

2. A meeting of a party cell to consider the nomination of persons to become party members must be attended by at least two-thirds of the total number of full members of that party cell. A majority vote must be secured from that meeting to endorse such a nomination.

3. In an area where a party base has not yet been set up, a higher level leading organization may directly admit persons as party members. However, such a decision must be considered and approved by a work committee, and the regulation on admission of party members must be correctly implemented. Before the decision is made, several reviews must be conducted.

As for alternate party members, there are now two levels of them. The first level retains the alternate membership for 9 months. This level comes from the ranks of workers directly engaged in production, state cadres and employees, army cadres and combatants, and ordinary people who have performed their work for 5 consecutive years. As for others, they must remain for 12 months [as alternate party members].

With regard to the party's activities and the payment of fees for party maintenance by party members, the new regulation stipulates that any party members who fail to participate in the party's activities and fail to pay party maintenance fees for 3 consecutive months without due cause must be (?expelled) by their party cells. Their names will be removed from the cells' party membership rosters and they will not be eligible for renomination for party membership. However, this expulsion must be apporved by the party branches which are in charge of admitting outstanding persons as party members.

II. On the principle of organization and the network of party organizations:

1. With regard to the party organizations in the army and the people's security forces, because of the rising requirements in the building of the army and the people's security forces, it is necessary to consolidate and perfect the party organizations and the party's methods in leading the army and the people's security forces. The new regulation stipulates that the organization of leading party organizations in the army and the people's security forces is under the charge of the party Central Committee.

2. With regard to the principle of convening a congress of representatives and the election within the party, two more requirements have been added:

A. The party committee calling for the convening of a congress has no right to object to those representatives to the congress elected by the lower level, unless these representatives are reprimanded for any disciplinary action after they are elected as stipulated in the (?6-point) provisional party stipulation.

B. If a party branch committee is unable to select representatives to attend a congress convened by the higher party committee due to prevailing circumstances, the higher party committee organizing that congress is entitled to select representatives from the ranks of the party branch committee to attend the congress. However, it must secure support from the lower-level party branch committee for such a selection before it becomes effective.

3. Because the new regulation stipulates that a congress at the provincial and city level wll be convened every 5 years, in the interim period between the two congresses of representatives of the provincial and city party level, the party committee at this level must hold a conference of representatives to review the implementation of resolutions of the (?previous) congress at the provincial and city level and to appoint more members of the party committee if it deems it necessary. The number of representatives assigned to attend the congress of representatives will be determined by the party committee at the provincial and city level after they are selected by the lower-level party committee on the advice of the party Central Committee. The resolutions adopted at the congress of representatives at the provincial and city level and the names of additional party committee members selected must be approved by the party Central Committee.

4. With regard to the addition, (?replacement) and transfer of members of the party committee who have been elected at a congress, the new regulation stipulates that, if necessary, the party Central Committee is entitled to appoint more members of the party Central Committee; and the higher level party committee is entitled to transfer and appoint additional members of the party committee at the lower level.

However, the number of members transferred or new members must not exceed one-third of the total number of members of that party committee who are elected at the congress of representatives of party committees at that level.

III. On the organization of party bases:

1. In the countryside, at present the canton level is considered to be the basic party branch. However, because our country is vast, houses in each basic party branch are located far apart and communications services are ineffective, which makes canton zonal areas too large. As a result, a canton party committee is unable to keep in close touch with the hamlets and the people under its jurisdiction. In the meantime, the organizing of the people's daily life, the organizing of production, the shifting to agricultural collectivization, cultural and educational activities, and the maintenance of security and public order are all centered in each hamlet. Therefore, in order to firmly organize and manage the economy, society and national defense and public security work throughout the countryside, the hamlet level must be built into a basic party branch with the following organizations? The party branch organizations, the hamlet administrative committee, mass organizations, guerrilla elements, public security forces, and the peasants' collective production organization. As for those small hamlets which have inadequate resources to set up these organizations, such as the administrative committee and mass organizations, they should be grouped into a unit at this stage.

Under the present circumstances, district zonal areas remain too big. As a result, the districts are unable to provide adequate guidance directly to the hamlets. Therefore, in the immediate future, the canton level will be retained as the administrative power one step above the basic administration at the hamlet level. When the hamlet level is consolidated and perfected and the district level is capable of directly guiding all hamlets, the canton level will be dissolved.

The organizational tasks of the basic party branch are as follows:

1. To make decisions on the party's plans and policies as well as its methods in guiding the political tasks at the basic level, with the aim of consolidating the national defense and public security work, and economic, cultural and social construction and development.

2. To guarantee the people's right to collective mastery, enhancing the creativity and enthusiasm of the masses in defending the country and building socialism.

3. To pay close attention to party building. In addition to the content of the various tasks mentioned in the regulation, additional stipulations will be defined for fostering and tempering the true revolutionary nature and qualifications, studying Marxism-Leninism and the party's line and policies as well as the state's programs, and studying culture, science, technology, specialized and professional subjects and the management of the economy and society. As for the people of various tribes, the task of enhancing unity is defined separately for them.

4. To pay close attention to building the administrative power and mass organizations at the basic level. The new regulation stipulates that the duty of the party organizations at the basic level is to coordinate with the higher level in building the contingent of party cadres and heightening their true revolutionary nature, and gradually raising the standards of specialized subjects and capabilities in managing the state, the economy and society.

The (?province) must be responsible for the task of organizing party bases in the key revolutionary units.

The system of leadership. [as heard]

A. To promote and develop the system of leadership in production units, business enterprises and [word indistinct]. The application of the system of leadership in the new regulation is as follows:

1) The leader must prepare reports, map out plans [words indistinct] and views. He must report to the higher level on certain essential issues.

2) The leader must lead party members and masses in contributing views to the plans outlined by the unit leader himself. After the plans are approved by the higher level, he must guide the party members and masses to translate them into reality.

3) The leader must inspect and help with the activities (?of party members and masses), and [words indistinct] in conformity with the party's and state's plans and policies.

4) The basic party organizations have no right to make decisions on production plans [words indistinct]. But must contribute views to these plans by studying them and reporting their outcome to the higher level for consideration.

B. The tasks of the basic party organizations in offices are as follows:

1) To contribute views on the application of guidelines, plans and policies of the party and state. The offices must supervise party members, including their leaders, in implementing these guidelines, plans and policies.

2) To contribute views to improve the method of work of the offices and organizations and inform the leader of prevailing shortcomings. If some problems develop, the higher level must be informed.

3) To provide political ideological training to party members and masses, tighten discipline in their work, fight against the evil of bureaucratism and ensure the fulfillment of the political tasks of the offices.

4) The basic party organizations have no right to make decisions on professional issues, plans and policies or tasks of the offices.

IV. On the party organizations at the provincial, city, district and municipal levels. The new regulation stipulates the following:

A congress of representatives at the district and municipal level is convened every 1, 2 or 3 years, and every 5 years at the provincial and city level.

The tasks of the party committees at the provincial, city, district and municipal levels in the new regulation are amended as follows:

1. To guide the organizations in their localities to implement the party's line and policies and the state's plans and laws as well as all political tasks of the localities.

2. To actively build and strengthen their political, ideological and organizational qualifications: to raise the quality of leadership and strenghening the combat forces of all party organizations in the countryside: and to carry out self-criticism and criticism to consolidate the internal unity of the party committees so that it will become the pillar for the unity of all party organizations.

3. To present various problems relating to the line and policies of the party to the higher level.

The new regulation also increases the scope of responsibilities, rights and activities of the standing committee, and secretaries and deputy secretaries of the party committees at various levels.

V. On the organization of the party at the central level the new regulation stipulates that:

1. An ordinary nationwide congress of representatives will be convened every 5 years.

2. A member of the party Central Committee must have at least 5 years of service in the party and must have experience in carrying out activities as a member of a party committee at some level. The party Central Committee shall hold ordinary meetings twice a year.

VI. On the party control commission.

In the new situation, the control work must be stepped up so as to guarantee the correct and full implementation of the line, policies, rules and regulations of the party and of the plans and laws of the state. The control commission at various levels must be organizationally rehabilitated while their method of work and working procedures must be improved. The new regulation gives authority to the party Central Committee to establish organizational details and the limit of the rights and duties of the control commissions at various levels.

VII. On the organization of party leadership elements.

1. To promote and expand the responsibility and (?wisdom) of chiefs of various ministries and branches attached to the government and provincial departments. Effective now, the party leadership elements in the offices and organizations attached to those ministries and branches will be dissolved.

2. The party leadership elements attached to organizations (?set up) by the people, the people's councils at various levels and various mass organizations will continue to be retained. But, those party leadership elements attached to the Lao People's Revolutionary Youth Union committees will be terminated, because the youth union committees are directly attached to the party Central Committee.

VIII. On the party's regulations and discipline.

1. To encourage (?all) party members to maintain discipline and to persist in their endeavors to settle their shortcomings and errors, the new regulation lays down restrictions on the abrogation of cases in connection with the discipline party members.

2. To perfect the implementation of discipline in the ranks of the party and to enable the party organizations and party members to firmly grasp regulations on the use of discipline. The new regulation also stipulates the rights concerning the use of discipline.

Beloved comrades, the building of the party and the implementation of its rules and regulations are a duty of the entire party and each and every party member. Therefore, the party committees at all levels and all party members -- no matter what branch they are attached to nor what position they hold -- must consider the building of the party to be one of their basic tasks and responsibilities. To effectively perform this task, the party committees at all levels and all party members must heighten their sense of responsibility toward the party, pay attention to the study of various (?fundamental) principles of Marxism-Leninism on the building of party, in particular the principles, policies and methods regarding the implementation of each and every part of the party building work.

It is also necessary to study the history of our Lao revolutionary movements, as well as of the international communist-worker movements, in addition to studying the state, economic and social management. The party committees at various levels must positively consolidate and perfect their offices. The organizing committees, the propaganda and training committees, and the control committees (?of the party Central Committee) together with the comrade secretaries and deputy secretaries must devote a great deal of time in guiding the party building work and study various reports submitted to them by other party committees. Each party committee must improve its working procedures by closely combining them with political tasks.

To enable all party members and all party organizations to firmly grasp and fully implement the party's regulation, in 1982 the party units and party committees at all levels throughout the country must conduct campaigns to thoroughly study the party's new regulation in their daily lives. During the campaigns, each member must (?study) his strong and weak points in the implementing the party's regulation in the recent past, and must plan to do away with the shortcomings and plan to promote and expand his strong points. Each member must also strive to train and foster himself to become an ever more efficient and stronger party member so as to deserve to be called member of the glorious LPRP now and in the future. Thank you. [applause]

Cuban Delegate Speech

[Speech by Cuban Communist Party's representative, delivered at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane; speaker unidentified, but Lionel Prieto Soto was previously identified as the leader of the Cuban delegation; -- recorded in Spanish, fading into translation; date not given]

[Text] Dear comrades, together with you, we are elated to express salutations to the various comrades representing a genuine revolutionary party and nation which have heroically struggled for decades to liberate the country and build socialism. On this occasion, I ask you, comrades, to accept the fraternal solidarity and love of the Cuban people, the Cuban Communist Party members, and in particular of our general secretary, Comrade Fidel Castro.

The Lao people of various tribes have scored many historic achievements. The LPRP -- a strong fortress of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism -- is the correct leader of your destinies and it has maintained close relations with various revolutionary parties all over the world. In particular, it has maintained militant solidarity with Vietnam and Kampuchea, a solidarity which is considered to be a basic factor for the victories over the French and Japanese colonialists, the U.S. imperialists and the Chinese big-nation expansionists and hegemonists.

We can see that soon after its establishment, the LPDR scored outstanding achievements in the economic, public health, educational and cultural fronts. It has also defeated all stubborn, counterrevolutionary schemes of the enemies both in and out of the country. These achievements have constituted a vigorous encouragement for the revolutionary movements, progressive movements and movements for peace throughout the world.

Dear comrades, while our industrious people and all peace-loving nations are striving to preserve an atmosphere of detente and cooperation for our mutual interests, the ultra-reactionary forces of the world -- manipulated by the U.S. imperialists -- are preparing to start a war. These reactionary forces have tried in every way to gain the upper hand in the military field so as to demand concessions from the socialist community from a position of strength, and wish to revive the old-fashioned role of using international gendarmes to oppose the revolution. With regard to the arms race being conducted by the U.S. imperialists and other imperialists, from the material point of view, such a policy is an unforgiveable waste of the world's wealth and manpower. It has only worsened the already serious economic situation of the capitalist system, a situation in which various underdeveloped countries can no longer tolerate oppression, intimidation and poverty. The numerous vital problems facing hundreds of millions of people in various countries in this region can be solved only when some of the things which are presently used to produce weapons for oppression and destruction are taken away.

With their unchanged aggressive nature and with a sense of desperation as a result of their defeats, the imperialists have openly organized and supported various deranged forces. In the Middle East, their political and military support for the Israeli Jewish expansionists has resulted in the aggression in southern Lebanon, the occupation of the Golan Heights, the fighting against the Palestinian resistance, and the obstruction of the settlement of major differences in this region, namely the rights to self-mastery of the Palestinian people and the establishment of their state under the leadership of the Palestinian Liberation Organization -- their sole, legitimate representative. The imperialists have helped the monarchal regime of Morocco consolidate its military forces, with a view to sabotaging the triumphant struggle of the Saharan patriotic forces, and have stepped up hostile activities against Libya and all resolute movements and movements of the Arab People.

In Africa, they have offered sympathy to racism, apartheid and colonialism in Namibia; supported the South African aggression against Angola and Mozambique; and maintained an alliance with the Ethiopian aggressors. At the same time, they have totally opposed all efforts of the littoral states, whose desire is to turn the Indian Ocean into an ocean of peace.

In Asia, with the Chinese Government leaders as their ally, they have launched the counter-revolutionary movement against Afghanistan by giving more arms to Pakistan, and opposed the peaceful and independent reunification of Korea. In Southeast Asia, the Lao, Vietnamese and Kampuchean peoples have always been victims of the aggression, sabotage and threats of the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other regional reactionary forces.

The three Indochinese peoples, understanding the aforesaid aggressive policy, have made great efforts to create an atmosphere of peace and to solve regional disputes on the basis of correct and just principles. At the same time, they have established good relations and cooperation with the various neighboring countries. We would like to express our resolute support for these aspirations of the three Indochinese peoples.

The people of the Latin American and Caribbean region -- the region which was once regarded by the U.S. imperialists as their backyard -- have dared to fight and to win victories with each passing day. The Salvadorans -- who have vigorously opened their revolutionary path -- are being repressed by the collusion and even the intervention of the U.S. Government. Economic pressure and a military threats have also been applied to the revolutions in Nicaragua and Grenada. In addition, the U.S. imperialists have given assistance to the militarily criminal government of Guatemala with a view to obstructing the growth of the revolutionary movement in this country. Now more than ever, the liberation struggle of the El Salvador patriotic forces and the maintenance of Nicaraguan sovereignty requires a resolute and absolute unity.

As you, comrades, are aware, our country is being seriously threatened. Over the past 20 years or so, to oppose us, the imperialists have had to plan to directly launch military aggression and conduct air and sea blockades while striving to conduct economic, trade, and credit blockades against our country. But, facing these pressures, the Cuban people led by the Communist Party and Comrade Fidel Castro have upheld the slogan to defend their country and have resolutely warned the imperialist enemy that no threat, deception or ultimatum can force our Cuban people to surrender. Our people have, on several occasions, shown their determination to destroy each and every aggressor who has tried to trample our socialist country. Our people's determination has always gained resolute support from the Soviet Union, various countries in the socialist community and from all peace and justice-loving forces, including the solidarity of the fraternal Lao people and of your parties and states. We would like to express profound thanks for their support and solidarity.

Dear comrades, our militant solidarity and friendship have stemmed from the common struggle against enemies and from our purity in the cause of revolution which has covered a glorious path. On this special occasion, I would like to reiterate the wholehearted support of the Cuban people, Government and Communist Party to the cause that you, comrades, have adhered to and to your brilliant successes. We understand that following this Third Congress of the LPRP, you will have new economic and social development tasks to implement as well as those for the defense of your beloved and sacred country. We are firmly convinced that all those tasks will be enthusiastically welcomed by the heroic Lao people.

Long live the Third LPRP Congress!

Long live the durable spirit of friendship between Cuba and Laos!

Long live proletarian internationalism!

Long live socialism and communism!

We will certainly be triumphant, even though the country is perished. [sentenced as heard]

MATERIALS ON MAY DAY, LPRP SUPPORT RALLY

Heng Samrin Speech

BK030738 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0020 GMT 1 May 82

[KPRP General Secretary Heng Samrin's speech at the rally held in Vientiane to welcome the success of the Third LPRP Congress and to mark International Labor Day -- live in Cambodian with sentence by sentence translation]

[Text] My respects to the presidium members; my respects to the international delegations; my respects to all the comrades and friends: It is a great honor for the KPRP delegation to participate in the grand rally of the people in Vientiane to welcome the success of the glorious Third LPRP Congress.

On behalf of the entire party and people of Kampuchea, we would like to extend our sincere sentiments and best wishes to all comrades and friends and, through you, to the fraternal LPRP and Lao people, on the occasion of your congress which has just ended with brilliant success. The Kampuchean party and people are very elated to see that the Lao people and nationalities, under the leadership of the LPRP, have waged a protracted struggle full of difficulties, tests and trials, won brilliant victories over the French colonialist aggressors, defeated the U.S. neocolonialists, eliminated the outmoded feudalist regime and established the LPDR, thus opening a new brilliant era in which Laos has been reunified, enjoyed permanent independence and freedom and advanced firmly step by step toward socialism.

From the second congress to the present one, the Lao party and people have scored many great achievements in all fields: military, political, economic, cultural, social and foreign affairs. They have especially frustrated all of the sabotage and divisive schemes of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and their reactionary henchmen and firmly defended their country. The successes made in the past by the Lao party and people attested to the splendid progress of the Lao revolution and served as a firm foundation for successful socialist construction in Laos. The prestige and role of Laos in the international arena are soaring with every passing day.

This LPRP congress has united all the intellectual forces of the entire party and reflected the aspirations of all the Lao people. In a spirit of unity and responsibility, the congress systematically summed up all of the revolutionary achievements made in the past, thoroughly analyzed the actual situation in Laos, defined the strategic tasks of the Lao revolution in the new stage and elected a new party Central Committee with Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan as general secretary. This constitutes a new great success of the Lao party and people as a whole.

The LPRP is a true Marxist-Leninist party which has guided the Lao people toward successes, thus contributing to the victory of the revolution of the Indochinese countries and the revolutionary movements throughout the world. It is a fraternal party born from the Indochinese Communist Party, a comrade in arms in the struggle against the common enemy and a close neighbor in the special alliance and cooperation of the three Indochinese countries. The Kampuchean party and people are very proud of the fraternal Lao party and people, consider the victories of the Lao party and people as their own and are firmly convinced that in the light of the resolutions of this congress, the Lao party and people will score new, greater victories in their revolutionary cause.

Esteemed comrades and friends, like the Vietnamese and Lao peoples, our Kampuchean people have carried out the task of waging a revolutionary struggle against the French colonialists, U.S. imperialists, Beijing expansionists and hegemonists and their reactionary henchmen, regained national independence and built socialism step by step in their beloved country. In that arduous struggle, the Kampuchean people have experienced countless obstacles and difficulties but in the end they scored brilliant victories. On 7 January 1979, the Pol Pol-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique -- the lackey of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists -- was driven out of Kampuchea, resulting in the establishment of the PRK and the opening of a new chapter in the annals of the Kampuchean people's revolutionary struggle.

For more than 3 years under the leadership of the KPRP, the Kampuchean people have scored victories of great significance in all fields. The vestiges of the barbarous, genocidal regime -- left for our Kampuchean people by the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists and their lackeys -- have been and are being wiped out. The Kampuchean people have been and are leading a happy life with independence and freedom. Although there still exist many difficulties for the Kampuchean revolution caused by the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, the Kampuchean party and people -- with their tradition of revolutionary struggle -- are determined to eliminate all of those difficulties in order to make Kampuchea advance step by step toward socialism.

The Kampuchean party and people clearly understand that the successes of the Kampuchean revolution are inseparable from the immense international support and assistance they have received, including the spiritual and material support and assistance of the fraternal Lao party and people. We would like to express our sincere thanks to the Lao party and people for this valuable support and assistance.

On this occasion, we would also like to express our profound sentiments of revolutionary fraternity to the Vietnamese party, people and heroic army who have shouldered heavy sacrifices for the cause of the Kampuchean revolution as well as for the revolutionary cause of the three Indochinese countries. We would like to express our profound gratitude to the Soviet Union and all other socialist countries as well as all fraternal parties and friends everywhere in the world for giving active support and assistance to the Kampuchean revolution.

Esteemed and beloved comrades, together, Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea lean on the immense Truong Son Mountain Range, drink water from the wide Mekong River, struggle against the common enemies -- the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and their reactionary henchmen -- and strive together in order to advance toward realizing the goal of building socialism on their beloved fatherlands and contribute to the victories of the world's revolutionary movements. This is why the Third Congress of the LPRP, the Fourth Congress of the KPRP and the Fifth Congress of the VCP stressed that the militant solidarity and the special alliance and cooperation of the three Indochinese countries constitute the objective requirements of history, a decisive factor for the future destiny of the three countries and the strategic path of the three parties.

We are firmly convinced that the bonds of militant solidarity and the great friendship of our three parties and peoples of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos will always flourish as blossoming spring flowers and that this will be one of the decisive factors for the victories of the revolutionary cause of our three countries now and in the future.

Long live the LPRP!

A warm welcome to the success of the Third LPRP Congress!

Long live the bonds of militant solidarity and great friendship of the three parties and peoples of Kampuchea, Laos and Vietnam!

Long live the all-round relations and cooperation between the three Indochinese countries and the Soviet Union and the socialist community!

Long live the ever-victorious Marxism-Leninism!

My sincere thanks to all comrades and friends.

Truong Chinh Speech

[Speech by Truong Chinh, head of the VCP delegation to the Third LPRP Congress, at rally held in Vientiane to greet success of the LPRP Congress and to mark International Labor Day -- live in Vietnamese with sentence by sentence translation]

[Text] Respected and beloved Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomuihan, dear comrade Lao party and state leaders, comrade delegates of the fraternal parties, comrades and friends: Today in harmony with the buoyant spirit of the working people throughout the world on the historic May Day, the entire Lao people of all nationalities jubilantly welcome the brilliant success of the Third Congress of the glorious LPRP.

The VCP delegation, together with the delegations of the CPSU and KPRP and those of other fraternal parties, is very happy to share the great joy of the entire Lao party, people and army.

In an atmosphere permeated with enthusiasm of this grand meeting, the VCP delegation would like to convey to the LPRP Central Committee recently elected by the congress and headed by Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan, to all the LPRP members and the fraternal Lao people of various nationalities, and to the people of the Vientiane capital, a sister city of the Hanoi capital, the warmest greetings and deepest sentiments of the VCP and Vietnamese people.

We are extremely happy to note that, less than 4 years after its second congress, the LPRP led the Lao people of various nationalities in overcoming untold hardships and trials to fulfill completely the important tasks laid down by the congress: to defeat totally the U.S. imperialist war of aggression, to achieve the national democratic revolution, and to take Laos directly onto the bright path of socialism.

This was a miraculous success which reflected the skillful and creative leadership of the LPRP, the genuine Marxist-Leninist party of the Lao working class and people of various nationalities.

Shifting to the new stage of the revolution, the Lao people, fighting valiantly and working industriously, have gradually defeated the dark shemes and cruel acts of sabotage of the Beijing expanisonists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, thereby firmly defending their fatherland.

They have also restored and developed their economy and developed their culture, stabilized and initially improved the people's living conditions, strengthened the militant alliance among the three Indochinese countries, and made worthy contributions to the world people's struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism.

The Third LPRP Congress reviewed profoundly the Lao people's revolutionary work over the past 10 years and drew valuable lessons therefrom to illuminate the path of advance in the new stage. It set forth the line, orientation and tasks of the revolution in the period of transition to socialism, and the specific targets and tasks for the coming years, in order to firmly defend the fatherland and to continue national construction along the line of socialism.

The resolutions adopted by the congress are a concentrated symbol of the intellect and talents of the entire LPRP, of the unity and singlemindedness within the party, of the close relationship between the party and the popular masses, and of pure international relations. The Lao people of various nationalities can take legitimate pride in their glorious party, the steadfast and clear-sighted leader and the organizer of all victories of the Lao revolution.

The VCP and Vietnamese people are very enthusiastic over the glorious victories of the LPRP and heroic Lao people, their most intimate comrades in arms and brothers, and consider these victories as their own. We firmly believe that, in the light of the revolution unanimously adopted at this LPRP congress and with the vigorous emulation movement to implement this resolution, the Lao people will continue to score new and yet greater successes in the cause of defending and building a peaceful, independent, unified and socialist Laos.

Dear comrades and friends, the peoples of our two countries, Veitnam and Laos, are bound by an age-old tradition of solidarity and friendship. Especially, since the founding of the Indochinese Communist Party by great President Ho Chi Minh more than half of a century ago, this solidarity and friendship, built on the firm basis of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, has become a pure, loyal and exemplary relationship.

Through the various stages of the difficult and challenging struggle against their common enemies, the peoples of Vietnam and Laos have become increasingly attached to each other, sharing weal and woe and standing side by side though thick and thin. The blood and sweat shed by the peoples of the two countries together have resulted in the glorious victories of the two nations.

The militant solidarity and intimate and fraternal attachmemt between Vietnam and Laos are extremely deep and firm. The peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea live together on the Indochinese Peninsula, struggle against common enemies and strive for the common objectives of independence, freedon amd socialism.

The VCP and Vietnamese people deeply understand that the special relationship between Vietnam and Laos as well as the special relationship among Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea is a law of development of the revolutions in the three countries and is a matter of vital significance to the three nations.

Today, in the new stage of the revoltution in each country, with the development of the effects of the Vietnam-Laos treaty of friendship and cooperation, the relations between our two parties and peoples are being consolidated and developed in all respects: They are becoming deeper and have a new quality.

From one generation to another, our party and people pledge to do their best to preserve and cultivate these special relations to make them increasingly flourish and closer and unbreakable by any aggressive force.

In the past few years, despite their ignominious defeats, the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists have not yet abandoned their schemes aimed at weakening and then swallowing up the three Indochinese countries with a view to paving the way for them to expand their influence in Southeast Asia. They have stepped up collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary powers in striving to implement the schemes of sabotage, destruction, division and aggression against the three Indochinese countries. Now more than ever, it is necessary for our three peoples to enhance their militant solidarity, heighten their vigilance, maintain cooperation in all respects, and be determined to build socialism successfully and securely defend our respective countries.

For their part, the VCP and Vietnamese people are making every effort to bring into play the achievements already recorded and to overcome any difficulty and trial so as to fulfill successfully the weighty tasks laid down by the fifth congress of our party, namely, to build socialism successfully, to defend the socialist Vietnamese fatherland firmly and to discharge national and international obligations.

Dear comrades and friends, although our visit to beautiful Laos has been short, it has left many profound and indelible impressions on us. From the lively atmosphere of the congress and the kind statements about President Ho Chi Minh and the Vietnamese cadres, combatants and people, to our delegation's meetings with the comrade leaders as well as the cadres and people of Laos, in everything we felt the presence of overflowing militant friendship and extremely intimate and close fraternity.

Once again we would like to express our profound gratitude to the entire fraternal Lao party and people.

We wish the LPRP and Lao people of all nationalities success in implementing the various resolutions of the third party congress.

Long live the great friendship, the special militant solidarity and the all-round cooperation between the Vietnamese and Lao peoples as well as among the Vietnamese, Lao and Kampuchean peoples.

Long live ever-victorious Marxism-Leninism.

Unity, unity, great unity; success, success, great success.

Thank you, comrades and friends.

FOREIGN MINISTER SITTHI TO VISIT PRC 9-14 MAY

BK061413 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in English 1100 GMT 6 May 82

[Text] Today at a press conference at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the deputy director general of the Information Department, Mr Saowanit Khongsiri, in his capacity as the deputy spokesman of the Foreign Affairs Ministry, has disclosed that the foreign minister of the Kingdom of Thailand, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila, and his delegation are scheduled to pay an official visit to the PRC during 9 to 14 May 1982.

EEC OFFICE ISSUES PRESS RELEASE ON AID TO SRV

[Text] The European Economic Community said bluntly yesterday that it would refuse all development aid to Vietnam until Hanoi pulls its military forces out of Kampuchea. An unusually terse, two-paragraph statement in a press release by the Bangkok EEC office said the outright refusal to help Vietnam had already been made known to Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach.

"The EEC will not envisage to take up again its programme of development aid to Vietnam as long as this country does not comply with the resolution of the United Nations on the Kampuchean conflict," the European delegation said.

"This was the message which Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, who had asked for long-term cooperation with the community, received in Brussels where he met Mr Edgar Pisani, member of the European Commission responsible for development aid." The UN has called on Vietnam to withdraw its forces from Kampuchea.

The European Community, and most of its nine members, cut off all aid to Vietnam in 1979 following the fall of Phnom Penh to Hanoi forces and the first UN call for withdrawal. Thach, on a Western European tour last month, asked Pisani to consider resuming aid to his country. But according to the EEC's press office in Bangkok, Pisani turned him down flatly.

Thach himself, in an "interview" with the government-controlled VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY, stressed the successes of his four-nation and EEC European tour. "Many north and West European countries I have visited as well as the European Economic Community as a whole agreed to have regular exchanges of views with us on long-term cooperation in the economic, cultural, scientific and technical fields," Thach told VNA. But according to yesterday's press release, Thach made no such headway in his appeal for long-term economic cooperation.

Some of the EEC members, most notably the socialist government in France, have resumed small aid programmes in Vietnam, but the large aid programmes once envisaged by Hanoi and Europe went down the drain with the 1979 Kampuchean invasion.

Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon, who also toured Europe last month, appealed to the EEC and member countries to continue withholding aid to Vietnam until Hanoi agrees to withdraw its occupation troops from Kampuchea.

[Text] The Foreign Ministry instructed the director general of the Political Department to summon the Lao charge d'affaires for a meeting because the Lao ambassador was not here on 28 April. The Lao charge d'affaires was informed about Thailand's discontent over and primary attitude toward the incident as follows:

The Lao side is requested to cooperate with the Thai side in investigating the incident so that both sides can solve the problem through peaceful means. Thailand adheres to the principle endorsed by both sides on several occasions which requires meetings at the local level to seek solutions to mutual problems. Efforts are reportedly being made to arrage a consultative meeting between the Thai and Lao local officials. The outcome of this meeting will determine Thailand's further actions in this regard.

Meanwhile, the Foreign Ministry will closely coordinate and consult with the Thai Government agencies concerned to adopt the appropriate attitude and measures to safeguard Thailand's prestige and legitimate interests based on the Thai Government's policy of promoting neighborly relations with Laos and its people.

EFFECTS OF FIGHTING IN KAMPUCHEA REPORTED

BK270930 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 26 Apr 82

[Text] Captain Thanatchai Bamrungthian, representative of the Chanthaburi-Trat operational force, reporting on the situation in the area under his unit's responsibility said that since the middle of March, continued fighting between the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin forces and the Kampuchean resistance forces has had greater effects on the areas in Trat Province, than Pong Nam Ron District, Chanthaburi Province. During this period, several major incidents took place as follows:

Fighting between the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin forces and the Kampuchean resistance forces broke out repeatedly opposite Pong Nam Ron District. On 18 April, about 30 shells of heavy weapons fired by the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin soldiers at (Chalang) Mountain inside Kampuchea landed at Bung Chanang Lang village in Thai territory. Nobody was killed or wounded. A number of villagers fled to Bung Chanang Klang village during the incident and have now returned to their village. It was also reported that the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side intended to bring in more guns, rockets and aircraft in preparation for the suppression drive against the Democratic Kampuchean soldiers.

In Trat Province, the adversaries fired at the border patrol police base 203 at Khao Lan village on 5 and 8 April. The border police fired back. No casualties were reported on our side.

The Vietnamese-Heng Samrin soldiers on 7 April fired at border patrol police base 223 at Khao Wong pass in Khlong Yai District, wounding five Thai policemen. Casualties on the other side were not known.

During 25 March and 5 April, eight Vietnamese soldiers, all from southern Vietnam, were arrested by Thai authorities in Bo Rai and Khlong Yai districts, Trat Province. They disclosed during the primary interrrogation that they fled to Thailand because they could not tolerate hunger and pressure. They also said that they disliked the communist government in Vietnam.

It was also learned that the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin forces intends to launch hit-and-run operations against our forces between Khao Lan and Hat Lek villages. The Chanthaburi-Trat operational force has been placed on alert and all units under its command have been informed about these new tactics so they will be ready to defend themselves and work out countermeasures.

LAO, SRV TROOP MOVEMENT NOTED NEAR THAI BORDER

BK290850 Bangkok MATICHON in Thai 29 Apr 82 pp 1, 2

[Text] According to a report MATICHON got from the Interior Ministry on 28 April, the deputy governor of Ubon Ratchathani Province, Suphon Supphason, has sent an urgent report to the ministry on the movement of Lao and Vietnamese troops in Champassak Province of Laos opposite Khong Chiam District, Ubon Ratchathani. According to it, the units in this southern Lao province have been supplied with Russian-made (Stella 7) light antiaircraft guns with a firing range of 50 km. The number of weapons, however, is not known.

In early April, a company of Lao troops and four Vietnamese soldiers arrived for stationing in Sanasomboun, Champassak. They have set up permanent operational bases along the Thai-Lao border at Phou Lusi and Don Koum. It is believed their mission is to contain activities of Lao resistance forces as well as to collect information on movement in the Thai side.

GOVERNMENT WILL CLOSE MORE REFUGEE CAMPS

BK051215 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] The government has adopted a policy of closing more refugee holding centers under the Interior Ministry's jurisdiction. The policy stipulates that only 3 out of 13 refugee holding centers will remain in operation after 1982.

Deputy Interior Undersecretary of State Loet Hongphakdi disclosed that the ministry has already closed six holding centers at Huang District in Songkhla, Laem Sing District in Chanthaburi, Aranyaprathet District in Prachin Buri, Prasat District in Surin, Chiang Kham District in Phayao and Huang District in Nong Khai.

The holding center at Mae Charim District in Nan will be closed on 31 May and the three other at Chiang Khong District in Chiang Rai, Pua District in Nan and Huang District in Ubon Batchathani will be closed in December. The three holding centers which will remain open are located at Pak Chom District in Loei, Si Khiu District in Nakhon Ratchasima and Muang District in Nakhon Phanom. The Thai Government says that refugees will be allowed to live in these holding centers temporarily pending their departure to third countries or repatriation.

A total number of Vietnamese, Kampuchean and Lao refugees in these center as of 15 April was 89,178, and 558 of them are to leave for third countries.

A report from the Interior Ministry says that four third countries namely the United States, France, Australia and Canada are the major acceptors of refugees from Thailand. In 1981 some 96,000 refugees from the Interior Ministry's holding centers were sent to third countries. However, the number of refugees leaving for third countries has declined since the beginning of the 1982 fiscal year which started in October 1981 because the United States has reduced its intake quota which is calculated in proportion to the number of refugees entering Thailand.

SON SANN URGED TO COOPERATE IN KHMER COALITION

[Editorial: "For Country -- or Self?"]

[Text] Now that Son Sann, leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, has apparently relaxed his stance, the time has come for the leaders of the other two Khmer resistance factions to come together with him and strike a deal while the iron is hot. Son Sann, who has been the most adamant and unyielding of the three, causing all the delay to the formation of the proposed loose tripartite coalition government, must be seized by the shoulders and asked if he is a patriot, if he wants to save his country from the Vietnamese invaders, and if he believes in the right of his compatriots to freedom and to their own traditional way of life.

He may have to be shocked into putting the interests of his nation above the interests of his group or of himself. There is no excuse whatsoever for him to talk about walking into a tiger's cage because Khmer Rouge leaders like Pol Pot who have committed mayhem among the people could "consume" him. Anyway, as a result of pressure from ASEAN, Pol Pot has been removed from all political posts and the Khmer Rouge has even gone to the extent of denouncing communism. Whether all these measures were taken cynically with a view simply to improving the image the Khmer Rouge presents to the world, or were expressions of a sincere desire on their part to reform is immaterial. Enough that they have done it.

It is also enough that Khmer Rouge President Khieu Samphan has been reasonable in his dialogue with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, leader of the third Khmer resistance group comprising three other factions, to the extent of agreeing to equality of all participants and to each faction maintaining its ideals and institutions. This is important for the United Nations-supervised general elections to take place in Kampuchea if and when the Vietnamese forces leave Kampuchea.

The question that the ASEAN governments face as far as Son Sann is concerned is that: Is this old man willing to make a last sacrifice for his country before he passes from this life? He already has the assurance of the help of ASEAN, China, the United States and other countries which voted for the UN General Assembly Resolution calling for total Vietnamese withdrawal from Kampuchea and for self-determination for the Khmer people. Does Son Sann consider these objectives the most important in his whole career or does he think getting all the key positions in the coalition cabinet of greater consequence?

If he does not come up with answers which show that he is totally comitted to saving his country, ASEAN has to decide to have nothing more to do with him and to look for another, younger, more patriotic person to support in his place. Son Sann has to prove himself quickly so that a "summit" conference of the three major factions can take place in May or, at the latest, early June. For if nothing transpires before the June ministerial meeting of the ASEAN foreign ministers in Singapore, they must give up on Son Sann. The 3,000 or so armed followers he has can do nothing.

At the same time, we have to be wary of the Khmer Rouge, who are Chinese puppets and who in the past have sponsored subversive activities in those of our provinces bordering Kampuchea. The non-communist ASEAN and the communist Khmer Rouge are strange bed-fellows but we have a common objective -- to get the Vietnamese out of Kampuchea. Son Sann should keep this in mind.

SECURITY COMMAND INVOLVEMENT IN NEW PARTY DENIED

[Text] An office of the Internal Security Operation Command (ISOC) who led newly-registered party yesterday denied ISOC's involvement in his "Thai Mass Party." However, Capt Somwang Sarasat admitted that many members of the party had already been trained by the Security Agency.

In a news conference at Manhattan Hotel, the Thai mass leader also said that many party members including he, belong to the so-called "National Democracy Club" led by Maj Gen Rawi Phawilai. [surname as published]

Maj Gen Rawi is a leader of the so-called democratic soldier group which comprises army officers who believe that democratic rule would be the only effective weapon to repress communist insurgency.

Capt Somwang told the press conference that the party promoter envisaged that the party would one day take the reins of government to solve the problems facing the country. He said that the party now commands about 20,000 members nationwide.

THIRD ARMY REGION FORCES SEIZE 15 TONS OF ARMS

[Text] Nan -- Third Army Region forces seized about 15 tons of arms and ammunition from communist dumps during a heliborne operation in the rugged Phu Sang Mountain ranges last week, it was learned yesterday.

Maj-Gen Chaichana Tharichat, commander of the Civilian-Police-Military (por-tor-thor) 32 Command attributed the success of the six-day operation, which ended on Friday, to information provided by four captured communist insurgents. Maj-Gen Chaichana told the Bangkok POST that the insurgents had led the troops to 11 hiding places in the ranges in Thung Chang District. The four insurgents were captured in March during a suppression drive on Doi Pha Chi.

The operation began on April 25 when about 150 toops, border patrol police and volunteers from the Tenth Cavalry Battalion and the CPM 32 were ferried by five helicopters to the Phu Sang region, which is close to the border with Laos. The arms and ammunition were seized on Friday from dumps which were about two kilometres from the border. The seized material included several types of assault rifles and artillery, mortar and recoilless shells.

Maj-Gen Chaichana said that only the weapons would be taken to the CPM 32 Command. The ammunition would be blown up, he said. Maj-Gen Prayat Rotphothong, deputy commanding general of the Third Army Region, will today inspect the dumps before they are destroyed.

Maj-Gen Chaichana said the seizures would deal a devastating blow to the Communist Party of Thailand and could eliminate its influence throughout Chiang Rai and Nan Provinces. He said the dumps were being guarded by about 30 insurgents who offered token resistance before fleeing towards the Loatian border. "We don't intend to kill the insurgents because they are all Thais like us. But we want the land back in order to be allotted to landless farmers," an army officer told the POST.

POST: CPT TO ABANDON 'MAOIST WARFARE DOCTRINE'

BK250550 Bangkok POST in English 25 Apr 82 p 4

[By Thirapongse Bandharangshi]

[Text] The Communist Party of Thailand is to abandon the Maoist doctrine of conducting warfare and replace it with the Vietnamese one in the northeast alone, government intelligence sources reported yesterday.

The sources told the POST that at present the CPT fights under its traditional Maoist principles -- the jungle encircling the village, the village encircling the town and the town encircling the city -- but the "three strategic zones" policy used by the Vietnamese calls for the targetting of the jungles, the low lands and the cities, in that order.

According to the source, the CPT intends to merge its bases in the upper and lower parts of the northeast in a bid to dispatch armed guerillas and fronts to operate in the low lands.

The main bases in the upper northeast, camps 777 and 555, are to be merged with the main base camp 207 in the lower part, and the communist stronghold in Khao Khiu Mountain Range set up as the sub-headquarters of the CPT. The Khao Khiu Mountain Range goes through the Nong Bua Daeng District of Chaiyaphum Province and Wichian Buri District of Phetchabun Province.

Camp 207, the source said, has a force of about 200 guerrillas and is the largest base in the northeast. Its area of operation is concentrated in the Sathit District of Nakhon Ratchasima Province. Camps 777 and 555 cover the Phu Kradjeng Mountain Range in Si Bunruang and Phusang Districts in Loei Province respectively. Both have an estimated combined force of 300 guerrillas.

According to the source, camp 207 is being blocked by the second army in a bid to obstruct communist insurgents in the lower part of the northeast from joining forces with their colleagues in camps 77 and 555 in the upper part. He stressed that if these camps merge, the government would face difficulty in combatting the insurgents.

The source pointed out that sinceKhao Khiu was set up as a sub-headquarters of the CPT, the communists have found it easy to dispatch armed forces and fronts to operate in the central region particularly to Nakhon Sawan, Prachin Buri and Saraburi provinces.

The CPT had tried to leave the jungle to cooperate with the fronts in the cities after the split between several provincial committee members in the northeast and the defection of student activists who surrendered to the second army, said the source. He said the second army troops last month had laid siege to several camps in the north as part of a large scale operation in Doi Phaci Nan Province, coded name 'Suriyaphong'.

The CPT has therefore announced the change in its warfare doctrine in a bid to continue the fight against the government by joining its forces in the northeast. The new tactics were announced after CPT Politburo member Udom Sisuwan was elected acting secretary general of the party last month, the sources said.

NATION REVIEW ON STATUS OF COMMUNIST PARTY

BK260233 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 26 Apr 82 p 4

[By Somphong Kittinaradon]

[Text] Speculations over whether the Communist Party of Thailand has actually held its supposed "fourth congress" or not have drawn mixed reactions from senior government intelligence officers, both military and civilian, who have been monitoring the inner workings of the CPT for years.

The unconfirmed report that Udom Sisuwan had been picked as the CPT's new secretary general has even been controversial -- with some officals categorically dismissing it as a "wild rumour," while others insisted that Charoen Wangam, the man who was supposed to have held the post for years, had died in Beijing recently. "Mit samanan" remains the "official name" of any person holding that senior position of the CPT.

But while the speculations over the CPT's fourth congress are being discussed among political analysts within the government circles and political analysts, it has been generally agreed that the CPT, badly battered by a series of severe assault by government military forces in the northeast, north and south, has been thrown into disarray over ideological stances.

"I have no doubt that the fourth congress of the CPT could not have been held as had been speculated because the party leadership must have been very concerned about a possible open confrontation among the various factions should the congress be called now," said a senior government intelligence officer analyzing the CPT's moves.

But other political analysts believe that because -- and not despite of -- the internal bickering, the CPT would have to settle the problem through holding such a congress.

Official sources maintain that the government's "politics-before-bullet" policy launched by Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon had produced some positive results in driving a wedge in the CPT ranks.

The recent spate of defections of student and labour activists as well as politicians from the jungle has placed the CPT in an unprecedented dilemma. The cutoff in aid to a significant level from China as a result of the closer government-to-government relationship between Bangkok and Beijing has certainly put the CPT in a much more troublesome position.

Military intelligence sources said that the recent spate of insurgents' attacks on government outpost could be interpreted as retaliatory acts by the weakening insurgents. But a civilian intelligence source maintained in a recent briefing with the nation that the CPT had moved its headquarters from the original Phuphayak base in the northernmost Nan Province to Pua district southwards -- in the same province -- since 1980.

The move came in the wake of the CPT's conflict with neighbouring Laos and Vietnam which turned hostile following the invasion of Kampuchea by about 200,000 Vietnamese troops in 1979.

CPT, with clear Chinese leanings, broke ties soon afterwards with Vientiane and Hanoi which, at one point, reportedly offered to send in their troops to help "liberate" Thailand -- with strings attached.

According to the government intelligence sources, the Vietnamese laid down two conditions in return for the offer to help: CPT must pay "war reparation" in exchange for military assistance from the two countries and permission for Vietnamese refugees to stay on permanently in Thailand.

The CPT, according to the government intelligence sources, turned down the conditions as unacceptable. "The two conditions from Vietnam created apprehension within the CPT leadership. They were fearful that once Vietnamese and Lao troops come in for the mission, they may not withdraw," said the government intelligence sources basing their information on defectors and documents seized from various sources.

Hanoi and Vientiane had strongly critized the CPT, according to captured documents, for its leanings towards Beijing. They even urged the CPT to form a "front-organization" to lead its movement.

Intelligence reports show that the core of the CPT leadership began searching for a new location for its headquarters in 1979 because the Phuphayak headquarters then began to encounter difficulties. Phuphayak, an area jutting into the Lao territory, was considered ideal at the time for CPT since Laos had been the reliable rear support base for the headquarters. Logistic supply from China had earlier also been transported to the headquarters through Laos.

The CPT initially looked at its strongholds in Tak and in the south as likely choices for the new "headquarters," the sources said. However, it later opted for the Pua stronghold for various reasons.

The leadership decided not to move its headquarters to its stronghold in Tak, according to government intelligence sources, because it was not assured of the support from the "masses" in the areas there.

"That was the prime reason. They were not sure of the strength of the stronghold," the sources quoted another defector as saying. The sources added that CPT members in Tak recently had to move from their jungle bastion in Mae Sot District to Umphang because of the declining support from the people in Mai Sot.

Another reason which prompted the leadership not to choose Tak is that the Burmese communists opposite the areas did not prove strong enough to maintain the supply line from China to the Thai province, according to the intelligence sources.

The south was considered a good location for the CPT's new headquarters as far as "tactics" was concerned, but in strategic terms, it is vulnerable to government assaults, the government analysts added. "The southern strongholds are situated in heavily forested and rugged areas which could be natural fortifications against government military offensives. That was supposed to be their tactical merits," the source said.

However, as it transpired later, the geographic position of the south, flanked on both sides by seas, represents a strategic weakness for CPT strongholds, the government sources explained. The sources added that Damri Ruangsutham went to the south partly to survey the areas to decide whether the southern locations were suitable for a new headquarters Damril a member of the CPT Politburo, was arrested in Surat Thani late last year.

Finally, after a period of search, the CPT decided to move its headquarters to its stronghold in Pua District. "Economic and political reasons prompted the CPT leadersip to opt for the Pua stronghold," the sources said.

The government sources added that in economic terms, there are adequate plain areas suitable for cultivation in the vicinity of the stronghold. CPT needs to feed itself following the drastic drop in Chinese assistance, according to the source.

The government officials claimed that there is no material aid from China to the CPT now, but admitted that the non-material aid from China include training and financial support. In political terms, the government analysts said, the Pua base might be viewed as providing solid support from the "masses" infiltrated by the outlawed party years ago. But then, the retreat of the CPT might just be another temporary one while it is, as the government says, "on the run, breathing its last breath."

The intelligence officials, asked how certain they were about the report, expressed confidence of the accuracy of the fact, gleaned, they claimed, from a number of different defectors from the so-called "Pua headquarters" of the CPT. "These informants I'm talking about are no ordinary CPT members. The government, they said, had also double-checked the information with other usually reliable sources.

The clandestine CPT Politburo in August, 1963, reportedly instructed its members to set up strongholds in the rugged jungle areas to supported its "armed struggle." The first major stronghold detected by government officials was in the north in 1968 and the northeast saw its first communist jungle stronghold five years later, according to documents captured from insurgents.

Before the communists took over Kampuchea and Laos, in 1975-76, the CPT headquarters were believed to have been located at Phupan Range in the northeast, according to government officials working on the anticommunist programmes.

VNA CITES TASS ON VIETNAMESE WORKERS IN USSR

OW050735 Hanoi VNA in English 0714 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 5 -- Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation in the form of Soviet help in the training of qualified Vietnamese workers is effective and has fine prospects, said L. Kostin, first vice chairman of the State Committee of the U.S.S.R. for Labor and Social Questions. He was interviewed by TASS on the occasion of the first anniversary of the signing of the treaty between the two governments on sending Vietnamese citizens for job training and work in the Soviet Union.

Kostin continued: At Vietnam's proposal Vietnamese workers are mainly sent to work in the machine construction, chemical and textile industries as well as irrigation and soil improvement establishments.

All Soviet regulations regarding labour wages and bonuses are also applied to the Vietnamese workers in the Soviet Union. Besides, they enjoy a number of privileges. For instance, unlike Soviet apprentices they receive the full wage of first grade workers. Like Soviet citizens, they are entitled to annual paid leaves. In addition they are given a 15-day leave each year for theoretical studies. After three years working in the Soviet Union, the Vietnamese workers may return to their homeland on vacation with most of the travel fare defrayed by the Soviet Government. Besides Soviet holidays, they have two more holidays on the Vietnamese National Day and the traditional Vietnamese New Year Festival. Though they are not members of the Soviet trade unions, the Vietnamese are given precedence at rest homes and sanatoria and receive free medical care and social insurance allowances like their Soviet colleagues. The greater part of them have been sent to the south European part of the Soviet Union where the food and climate better suit them.

Kostin said that almost all the 7,000 Vietnamese workers in the Soviet Union have been assigned to work in joint Soviet-Vietnam production teams.

NHAN DAN VIEWS MIDEAST, SINAI WITHDRAWAL

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 7 -- Lasting peace cannot be achieved in the Middle East unless the Palestinian sacred national rights are respected, says NHAN DAN today in a commentary on Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai.

The paper notes that the United States and other Western countries have launched a noisy campaign on the withdrawal to cover up the U.S. and Israeli opposition to the Palestinian people's liberation cause and to the national independence, sovereignty and peace in the region, adding that this is the essence of the Camp David accord and the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty as initiated and guaranteed by the U.S. president.

It points out that the withdrawal is only part of the two separate agreements.

"To regain incomplete sovereignty over the Sinai Peninsula", the paper goes on, "The Sadat administration turned its back to the just cause of the Egyptian and other Arab peoples, thus dealing a telling blow at the Palestinian people's liberation struggle under the leadership of the PLO".

It is especially serious, it says, that Egypt has hastily increased military collusion with the United States in a perfidious plot to turn itself into a springboard for armed intervention in the Middle East and the Persian Gulf, and a regional gendarme in place of the overthrown Pahlavi regime in Iran.

Obviously the paper points out, the funamental objectives of the U.S. Zionist strategic collusion remain unchanged namely to isolate and eventually abolish the PLO and Palestinian resistance; to divide and weaken the Arab community, and to lure other pro-U.S. regimes into an effort to impose an overall solution on the Middle East in the interests of the United States and Israel.

"The practical, constructive way to a comprehensive and lasting peace solution to the Middle East, as charted by the 26th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, is to call an international conference with the participation of all concerned parties, including the PLO, NHAN DAN concludes.

XUAN KIEU ARTICLE ON ROLE OF ECONOMIC INTERESTS

BK291500 Hanoi TAP CHI CONG SAN in Vietnamese Mar 82 pp 30-35

[Article by Xuan Kieu: "The Role and Relationship of the Three Economic Interests in Socialism" -- capitalized passages were published in italics]

[Text] In studying the three economic interests, we see that they pose numerous problems, of which the one concerning the role and relationship of these interests assumes a very great theoretical and practical significance. An incorrect understanding of the role and the dialectical relationship of the three economic interests would result in deviation in their promotion, and in one of the interests being neglected or one-sidedly emphasized. Therefore, speaking of the role of each of the economic interests is to speak of the smooth and principled general relationship in the harmonious combination of all the three economic interests.

The three economic interests are an objective economic category of socialism and one of the most concrete and practical forms in which the working people's collective mastery is manifested.

The system of public ownership of the means of production constitutes an objective basis for fostering the three economic interests in socialism.

The relationship based on the all-people ownership of the principal means of production gives rise to the economic interests of all society. These interests in turn require that the means of production owned by the entire people be effectively used ceaselessly to develop and improve social production in order to satisfy the increasing needs of all members of society. As long as attention is not given to developing social production and importance is not attached to social labor productivity, the economic interests of society cannot be said to have been served. Lenin said: "Once the proletariat has seized state power, its most basic and vital interests require that it increases the quantity of products and develops the productive forces of society on a large scale." [Footnote -- V.I. Lenin: COMPLETE WORKS, Progress Publishing House, Moscow, 1978, Vol 44, p 422] In the initial stage of the period of transition to socialism, ensuring the increase of society's economic interests is a strategic problem to which the party and the state of proletarian dictatorship must pay utmost attention. Lenin clearly pointed out: "At present, our main policy is to build the country economically so as to accumulate more wheat, to produce more coal, and to use this wheat and coal more rationally to ensure that no one will have to go hungry. This is what our policy must be." [Footnote -- V.I. Lenin: COMPLETE WORKS, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1969, Vol 31, p 457]

Socialist production can be carried out only by state-run and collective socialist production units reorganized as required by the division of social labor and by cooperation in labor. The existence of these production units is an objective condition for the emergence of the collective economic interests of laborers of the same unit. It is precisely these collective economic interests which objectively require that production units (such as enterprises, cooperatives...) satisfactorily use the means of production allocated to or appropriated by them, increase their overall labor productivity and improve the quality of their products. Thus,the appearance of the collective economic interests is an objective necessity.

The promotion of these interests, however, depends mainly on how rationally and how effectively the means of production placed under the management of or appropriated by are used, that is, on the organizational and managerial capabilities of each enterprise, each cooperative... the collective economic interests can be fostered only when production units are capable of covering their production expenditures (including live labor and materialized labor) and creating a quantity of surplus products, thereby satisfying the need to expand the production of units and rapidly increasing the collective welfare, while contributing to the common process of reproduction of all society by fulfilling and overfulfilling the plan to turn over their products to the state.

In the conditions of socialism, laborers are the masters of their country and their production units. They have both the obligation and the right to work and are entitled to the fruits of their labor, depending on the extent of their contributions to the collective and society. Under the socialist system, therefore, aside from the economic interests of society and of the collective, there also are the interests of the individual laborer the objective basis of which is the material and spiritual needs of the laborer and his family which are essential for the reproduction of their labor strength. Under the socialist system, the labor strength of each individual is an integral part of the collective labor strength, and the fruits of labor which each person enjoys are also a common achievement of collective labor.

These three economic interests are bound together by a close relationship; we cannot cater to one without simultaneously promoting the other two. These interests, however, cannot blend with one another because each has its own role to play and is relatively independent from the other.

As stated earlier, defining the role of and relationship among the three economic interests is a problem of a profound theoretical and practical significance. As a matter of principle, we must affirm that THE ECONOMIC INTERESTS OF ALL SOCIETY ALWAYS PLAY THE LEADING ROLE; they decide the direction, the scale, the structure and the rate of development of the national economy. Lenin clearly pointed out: "The interests of the largest popular masses -- in fact, that means the interests of society as a whole — directly guide the worker-peasant administration." [Footnote -- V.I. Lenin: COMPLETE WORKS, Progress Publishing House, Moscow, 1978, Vol 44, p 232] under the socialist regime, the working people are the masters of the country and their collective mastery is exercised mainly through the state. The state of proletarian dictatorship is the representative of the most basic interests of the working people. "In exercising their mastery through the state, the working class as well as the laboring people in general holds in its hands all the social work forces, all the resources of the country, all the work tools, supplies, capital..." [Footnote — Le Duan: THE SOCIALIST REVOLUTION IN VIETNAM, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1980, Vol 3, p 623] seizing control of material and technical means as well as organizing their management and deploying them nationwide to create a high social labor productivity and large quantities of product is the highest expression of the working people's collective mastery throughout the country. For this reason, affirming the leading role of society's economic interests is a matter pertaining to the nature of socialism, of the system of socialist collective mastery, and of the state of proletarian dictatorship. President Ho taught us: "Under the socialist and communist regime, in which the working people are masters, each person is a member of the collective, plays a definite role in and contributes his labor to society. Therefore, the interests of each individual are included in and part and parcel of those of the collective. Only when the collective's common interests are catered to can conditions be created for promoting the private interests of the individual." [Footnote -- Ho Chi Minh: SELECTED WORKS, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1980, Vol 2, p 105]

The system of public ownership of the means of production constitutes an objective basis ensuring the right of all laborers to participate in the management and use of society's principal means of production as well as in the distribution of their products. This system is also an objective basis prompting each laborer to pay attention not only to the fruits of his own labor but also to the results of all social production activities. This is an obvious superior aspect of socialism over capitalism. Capitalism, because of its exploitative nature, cannot arouse the worker's zeal for labor; nor can it excite the concern of all laborers for the results of society's common production efforts. Under the capitalist system, each capitalist only concerns himself with catering to his personal and selfish interests, and constantly striving for surplus value and his own profits. He pays attention neither to the interests of laborers nor to those of other capitalist. The bitter competition among capitalists causes production in the capitalist society to develop chaotically. It is the contradiction between the organizational character of each separate enterprises and the state of anarchic production in all society which has plunged the capitalist economy into an unending crisis. The opposition between the interests of the bourgeoisie and those of the working class and laboring people is the root cause of the bitter class struggle in that society of exploitation of man by man.

On the contrary, socialism is primarily concerned with all the laboring people's interests and places the economic interests of the entire society above everything else, considering them simultaneously as an objective and a decisive factor in the development of the national economy. Without this development, it is impossible to talk about any interests, regardless of whether they are the interests of the entire society, production collectives or individual workers. It is obvious that under the socialist regime AND IN ANY SITUATION, THE INTERESTS OF COLLECTIVES AND INDIVIDUAL WORKERS ARE ALWAYS SUBJECT TO THE COMMON INTERESTS OF THE ENTIRE SOCIETY. This is an obvious truth, since this is in fact subjecting the immediate and partial interests to the fundamental and lasting interests of workers, the interests of small collectives to the interests of large ones (the entire society) and the personal interests of each worker to the interests of all the laboring people. Evidently, socialism is concerned not only with the interests of the entire society but also with the interests of small collectives and individual workers. Lenin indicated clearly: "Only socialism can create possibilities for expanding social production and the distribution of products, and subject them to scientific bases in order to make the laboring people's life the most comfortable and enable them to enjoy happiness." (Footnote -- V.I. Lenin: COMPLETE WORKS, Progress Publishing House, Moscow 1977, book 36, p 471)

Lenin further said: "The promotion of individual interests plays the role of increasing production." (Footnote -- V.I. Lenin: COMPLETE WORKS, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1970, book 33, p 74). Imbued with Lenin's teaching, we must simultaneously ensure the three economic interests in the most harmonious manner suitable to each step in the construction of a new society. In the initial stage of the present period of transition to socialism in our country, all the requirements of accumulating capital, stabilizing and improving the people's livelihood, and defending the country are raised imperatively. How are the relations among the three economic interests going to be settled? To resolve this problem correctly is actually not simple. Under the premise of respecting the leading position of social interests and of placing these interests above all else, we must pay the most attention to the economic interests of collectives and individual workers. The concern with the economic interests of collectives and individual workers is concentrated on the following points: First, by correctly applying the economic laws, the state of proletarian dictatorship must establish a system of policies capable of encouraging the collectives and individual workers to participate enthusiastically in productive labor.

Second, all measures must be taken to secure jobs for people fit for labor so that they can have the conditions to contribute their efforts and skills to society. When the social interests and the contributions of each worker to the common labor results increase, the benefits of all workers will also increase. Third, the implementation of economic interests of the collectives and individual workers must be oriented correctly toward the socialist orbit, considering the economic interests of the collectives and individual workers must be oriented correctly toward the socialist orbit, considering the economic interests of the society as an axis around which the economic interests of collectives and individual workers revolve. This means that the settlement of collective and individual interests must proceed from the economic interests of society. It is absolutely forbidden to infringe upon the interests of the entire society or to place the collective and individual interests above the social interests, and the sectarian and local interests above the national interests. This is a relatively complicated matter that calls for good leadership and managerial and organizational ability to detect and resolve promptly the new contradictions arising from the relations among economic interests.

As stated earlier, the three economic interests are closely related and part and parcel of a unity. Unity is a matter pertaining to the essence of things; the unity of the three economic interests is determined by the system of all-people ownership of the means of production. The laboring people are the collective masters of society's principal means of production. For this reason, every product turned out by the labor of the centrally run or the local economy, the state-managed or the collective economy...is, in the final analysis, a result of the efforts of both individuals and collectives (the big collective is society and the smaller ones are production units), and intended partly for society, partly for the collective, and partly for the individual laborer. All products, whether they are distributed directly or indirectly, are used to satisfy the immediate and long-term needs of laborers. Marx said: "...what the producer is deprived of individually, he will get back directly, or indirectly, as a member of society." (Footnote -- K. Marx and F. Engels: CRITICISM OF THE GOTHA AND ERFURT PROGRAMS, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1957, p 23)

The unity of the three economic interests is also reflected in the fact that the laborer is a representative of all these interests. Whether the needs of each individual are satisfied or not depends on the extent of his contributions and on the results of the common labor of each production collective and of society as a whole. This helps stimulate the concern and the sense of responsibility of each individual for the results of the business activities of factories, cooperatives and society.

The unity of the three economic interests is affirmed in the following statement by President Ho: "In our system, the interests of the state, the collective and the individual, are virtually identical." (Footnote -- Ho Chi Minh: ON SOCIALIST REVOLUTION AND THE BUILDING OF SOCIALISM, Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1976, p 69)

This affirmation of the unity of the three economic interests is by no means a denial of the contradictions among them. Affirming the objective existence of these contradictions is a methodological problem of enormous significance. Quickly detecting and promptly dealing with these contradictions is the basic condition for achieving a harmonious combination of the three economic interests.

The contradictions among the three economic interests in socialism have their objective basis in the division of social labor, the existence of different production units, the different needs and different economic and cultural interests of each locality, each enterprise, each cooperative...because of the difference in their specific interests, each production unit and locality usually pay more attention to their own interests than to those of other units and localities, and more broadly, of society as a whole. Similarly, each individual normally thinks more of his specific personal interests than of those of the entire collective of laborers and all society. This is the objective cause which often provokes contradictions among the three economic interests. Under the conditions of socialism, however, THESE CONTRADICTIONS ARE NOT ANTAGONISTIC, because on the basis of the system of public ownership of the principal means of production, the interests of the individual, the collective and all society are virtually identical.

These contradictions can be prevented and overcome by conscious efforts of people who respect and correctly apply the objective economic laws, by defining a system of rational economic policies and by appropriately settling the relationship among the three economic interests in conformity with the specific economic situation in each state of the period of socialist construction.

We must, however, realize that in reality, it is very difficult to prevent contradictions among the economic interests. This is because man's understanding and application of the objective economic laws can be improved only gradually; in other words, the economic laws cannot really be profoundly understood and correctly applied by man instantly. The problem is that man must quickly detect and promptly resolve these contradictions; only in this way can he achieve a harmonious combination of the three economic interests and create A STRONG MOVING FORCE for developing incessantly the socialist economy.

THE HARMONIOUS COMBINATION OF THE THREE ECONOMIC INTERESTS IS A PROBLEM OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE in economic leadership and management. Whether the general production machinery of society, as well as each production unit such as an enterprise, a cooperative...operates satisfactorily or not depends to a very large extent on whether the relationship among the three economic interests is settled correctly or not. Reality shows that enterprises, cooperatives...often work well because they have a correct viewpoint in settling the relationship among the three economic interests. In such production units, the economic interests of society are placed above the rest while those of the collective and the individual laborer receive utmost attention. These units also study and adopt appropriate measures to settle promptly any contradiction which crops up, to achieve a harmonious combination of the three interests, to ensure the overfulfillment of the plan for delivery of good quality products to the state, to increase the accumulation of capital of enterprises and cooperatives and to augment the income of individual laborers.

The harmonious combination of the three economic interests must be achieved in a flexible manner and according to the actual situation of the development of the production forces and the improvement of socialist production relations. Determining the portions of social products to be allocated to each group of interests as well as defining the relationship of proportion in the distribution of the national income among the three groups of interests is something that can be done. Reality has clearly shown that the division of the gross social product and the distribution of national income depend on the requirements of the task of building the economy and improving the people's living conditions in each stage. (This is to say nothing of the present very exacting requirements of the task of consolidating national defense and protecting the fatherland).

For example, in the present stage, the state may deem it necessary to allocate an adequate portion of the social product to the consumption fund for use in stabilizing and improving the people's living conditions so as to stimulate all people strongly to engage in productive labor zealously, thereby creating a large source of accumulation. In another stage, the state may consider it imperative to establish a higher ratio of accumulation in order to expand production and to create conditions for basically and steadily improving the people's standard of living. The important thing is that in each specific stage of development, the state of proletarian dictatorship must perceive the need to transfer a portion of the social product from one group of interests to another. The art of management organization and the adroitness in directing the national economy lie in the ability to determine reasonable limits for these adjustments, which must be carried out in such a way as to prevent a reduction or increase in the social product of one group of interests from adversely affecting the efforts to cater to the other groups, and to ensure that, basically, such adjustments are still consistent with the harmonious combination of the different economic interests.

In short, the harmonious combination of the three economic interests must be achieved in such a way as to ensure the leading role of the economic interests of all society, to place these interests above those of individual collectives and laborers, to see to it that what is beneficial to society is also beneficial to the collective and the individual, and vice versa. The interests of the collective and the individual laborer can be steadily ensured only if the common interests of society are respected. Increasing the economic interests of society is to provide a basis for ensuring the fullest satisfaction of the needs of all production collectives and all members of society.

[Text] Canberra, 7 May (AFP) -- Australia's coalition government was reconstructed today following the resignation several weeks ago of two ministers for misdemeanours.

The government-general, Sir Zelman Comen, took the oaths of allegiance for the ministeral changes today, including abolition of five government departments to be absorbed into four other departments -- known as aviation, defence support, employment and industrial relations, and transport and construction.

In his announcement, Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser said the changes would ensure greater efficiency and focus on areas of growing importance in the Australian community.

The former minister for defence, Jim Killen, becomes the vice-president of the executive council and leader of the house of representatives -- this means organising the business of the parliament. He exchanges with the deputy leader of the country party, Ian Sinclair, who is now minister for defence and ceases to have any control over the business of the parliament. The former minister for immigration, Ian Macphee, becomes minister for employment and industrial relations while the new minister for immigration, John Hodges, becomes the most junior minister in the government.

Mr. Sinclair's responsibility for communications has been taken over by Neil Brown, who as a former lawyer before entering politics, has been given the additional duty of minister assisting the attorney-general, who is still Senator Peter Duracy.

The former minister for industrial relations, Ian Viner, who was widely predicted to be dropped from Cabinet, has been appointed minister for defence support. In practice, he becomes the junior minister for defence.

The changes caused no surprises. It is not a new ministry, still being the fourth Fraser ministry (reconstructured) because the only ministers granted commission today were the new appointments and those who have changed jobs.

Opportunity to breathe life into the government had been ignored, the leader of the Labor opposition Bill Hayden said today. "Mr Fraser has simply rearranged the deck chairs on his sinking ship. The same tired, worn faces remain to administer the same tired and worn policies. The only two newcomers fill the vacancies caused by the forced resignations last month. Australia would have been better served if Mr. Fraser had dismissed the entire ministry and called an immediate general election," he said.

Fraser Comments

[Excerpts] The Australian prime minister, Mr Fraser, has reshuffled his Cabinet.

Mr Fraser says the new ministry represents very substantial changes. He said the changes would enable the government to focus on the needs and priorities relevant to Australia at the present time.

Mr Fraser defended the retention of the former minister for defense, Mr Killen, in Cabinet and his appointment as minister without portfolio. He said suggestions that Mr Killen was still in the Cabinet only because the government could not risk a by-election were ridiculous.

CHIEF JUSTICE, 11 OTHERS RESIGN OVER LAW SCANDAL

OW061313 Quezon City RPN Television Network in English 1100 GMT 6 May 82

Malacanang said the president received the resignations of all Supreme Court members, except two who are abroad. The president will meet with the 12 justices, who are here, tomorrow, morning at Malacanang.

Those who tendered their resignations were the Chief Justice Fernando, Associate Justice Claudio Teehankee, Associate Justice Antonio Barredo, Associate Justice Felix Makasiar, Associate Justice Ramon Aquino, Associate Justice Ramon Fernandez, Associate Justice Amuerfina Herrera, Associate Justice Jovenal Guerrero, Associate Justice Pacifico de Castro, Efren Plana, Venicio Escolin and Vicente Ericta.

Those who are still abroad are justices (Hermohenes Conception) and (Vicente Abadsantos).

The mass resignation of Supreme Court justices is unprecedented. Earlier, only the chief justice and four other justices linked to the 1981 bar scandal were reported to have indicated plans to resign. The scandal involved the decoding of the grade of Gustavo Ericta, son of Justice Ericta, before the Supreme Court decided on the passing grade and the release of all the results last March. The scandal broke when the bar exam chairman, Justice Herrera, resigned in a letter to the chief justice.

Editorial on Resignations

OW061319 Quezon City RPN Television Network in English 1100 GMT 6 May 82

[Newswatch editorial: "A Way of Honor"]

[Text] A fresh wind blows throughout the land today, and members of the bar and the bench have reason to walk with new hope, new pride.

By the not too simple expedient of tendering their resignations, from the highest tribunal of the land, 12 justices of the Fernando court, including the chief justice himself, have lifted the great burdens of doubt, shame and humiliation from the national consciousness.

It does not matter that, in the first wild, panicky moments of the Ericta scandal. as that affair has since come to be known, some pronouncements and actuations on the part of most of the principal characters left much to be desired. Neither does it matter any more that the media, and the public too, were perhaps themselves less than equal to the imperatives of the real issues in the controversy. What matters now is that 12 honorable men of the Supreme Court of the republic have looked deep into their souls and examined their roles as magistrates of the court of last resort, and, having seen the honorable way, as a body took that course.

The Fernando court may be faulted by legal historians for the way it decided some questions of law in its time, but it cannot be faulted for not recognizing that its members must judge themselves with loftier and stricter standards.

Surely these wise old men must find solace and comfort in that thought.

BANGKOK POST INTERVIEWS ROMULO ON KAMPUCHEA

BK050335 Bangkok POST in English 5 May 82 p 4

[Text] "The time may well come when Vietnam will finally perceive that its long-run interests rest on its restoring normal relations with all countries, particularly with its ASEAN neighbors, Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos Romulo said in an exclusive interview with the Bangkok POST.

He was answering a question submitted by editor-in-chief The Chongkhadikit on the problem of implementing the United Nations resolution on Kampuchea -- total withdrawal of Vietnamese forces and self-determination for the Khmer people.

"The declaration adopted by the international conference on Kampuchea," Gen Romulo said, "we believe, contains the necessary elements for a political settlement of the Kampuchean problem. It could serve as the starting point for negotiations should Vietnam and its friends ever agree to negotiate.

"That process could be moved along by making Vietnam pay the cost of keeping its forces in Kampuchea. The time may well come when Vietnam will finally perceive that its long-run interests rest on its restoring normal relations with all countries, particularly with its ASEAN neighbours.

"One must not forget that the Kampuchean issue is an issue essentially between the Kampuchean people and the Vietnamese. No people, no nation wishes to be occupied by foreign forces, and if given an opportunity, would certainly choose the freedom to exercise their right to self-determination. This is why we believe that Vietnamese withdrawal before election under supervision is essential. It is a position that ASEAN cannot afford to withdraw from, even if it may take time for Hanoi to realise that it is to its own interests to restore the Kampuchean people's inalienable right to sovereignty and territorial integrity."

The: Should we go ahead with the plan to help form a tripartite coalition government for Democratic Kampuchea? What are the obstacles and what can be done to expedite the process?

Romulo: "I believe we must go on supporting the formation of a tripartite coalition government for Democratic Kampuchea. A coalition of the three Kampuchean nationalist groups will strengthen anti-Vietnamese resistance in Kampuchea and make Vietnamese military occupation increasingly costly.

"But over and above this, the coalition government of Democratic Kampuchea will have an inestimable political value as it will symbolize the Kampuchean people's united opposition to Vietnamese military occupation of their country."

"I am more optimistic now that a coalition government will be formed. The three factions have signified their willingness to abandon hardline positions and their readiness to make concessions. Son Sann announced recently that he is ready to meet Prince Sihanouk and Khieu Samphan and it is possible that the summit will be held in Kuala Lumpur.

The: In what way will the deteriorating Sino-American relations affect ASEAN and the security of the Southeast Asian region, and will it push the Chinese toward friendlier ties with Soviet Russia?

Romulo: "Deteriorating Sino-American relations will affect Southeast Asian security in the sense that the Sino-American entente helps keep the balance of power in the region. This should be viewed within the context of increasing Soviet naval presence in the area and the establishment of a socialist outpost in the region, that is, Vietnam. While Sino-American relations are at a low ebb due to the impending U.S. arms sales to Taiwan, the strain in their relations will not necessarily bring about an improvement in Sino-Soviet relations. China has already rejected Brezhnev's peace feelers, stressing that Moscow must prove by deeds its desire to normalise relations with Beijing by removing its one million Soviet troops from the Sino-Soviet border. The Chinese view with increasing anxiety the marked growth in the strategic and military power of the Soviet Union. Sino-Soviet relations will remain strained and abnormal as long as the USSR occupies Afghanistan and as long as it supports the Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea."

GOVERNMENT WELCOMES REAGAN'S ARMS PROPOSAL

[Text] Tokyo, May 10, KYODO -- Japan Monday welcomed U.S. President Ronald Reagan's latest proposal that the United States and the Soviet Union start negotiations by the end of the next month to mutually reduce strategic arms. Japan's position was revealed in a statement issued in the name of acting Foreign Minister Kiichi Miyazawa.

The statement said the Japanese Government highly appreciated the Reagan proposal, calling it "constructive" for the promotion of nuclear disarmament. "Japan has been strongly calling on the United States, the Soviet Union and other countries possessing nuclear arms to make serious efforts for materializing nuclear disarmament," the statement said.

The statement expressed strong hopes that the Soviet Union start immediately negotiations with the United States in responding the U.S. proposal.

President Reagan, in a speech delivered at his alma mater Eureka College in Illinois Sunday, revealed that he has send a letter to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev to propose the negotiations for sharp reduction in strategic nuclear weapons.

SAKURAUCHI, KOMOTO IN PARIS FOR OECD MEETING

[Text] Paris, May 9, KYODO -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi and Toshio Komoto, head of the Economic Planning Agency, arrived here from Tokyo Sunday to attend a cabinet-level meeting of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) in Paris. The meeting will be held on Monday and Tuesday at OECD Headquarters in Paris.

Sakurauchi and Komoto will deliver speeches and confer privately with U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and West German Economics Minister Otto Lambsdorf on how to revive the world economy. They are scheduled to return home May 13.

OFFICIAL ON U.S. AGRICULTURAL IMPORT REQUEST

[Text] Tokyo, May 10, KYODO -- The United States will probably reiterate its request that Japan specify the time when it will remove import quotas on agricultural products during the next negotiations around May 20, a Japanese official at the Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries said Monday. Hiroya Sano, director general of the Ministry's Economic Affaris Bureau, made the remark when he reported to Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki on the working-level Japan-U.S. meeting in Geneva earlier this month. Sano said that at the Geneva talks, he repeated Japan can by no means clarify the time.

In replying to Sano, Suzuki showed dissatisfaction with the U.S. demands at the Geneva meeting which were larger than the earlier six-point request made by Donald Nelson, assistant U.S. trade representative in charge of agriculture, Sano said.

USSR ANNOUNCES NORTHERN ISLANDS FIRING PRACTICE

[Text] Sapporo, May 10, KYODO -- The Soviet Union will conduct firing practice in waters within some 80 kilometers northwest of Etorofu Island off eastern Hokkaido between Thursday and Saturday, the first regional Maritime Safety Headquarters in Otaru said Monday.

It said it was informed by the Maritime Safety Headquarters in Tokyo that the firing practice will be conducted four times -- between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Thursday, 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. and 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Friday and 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. on Saturday. The regional Maritime Safety Headquarters warned shipping in the area to take full precautionary measures during the three-day period. Etorofu is one of the four Japanese islands off Nemuro in eastern Hokkaido occupied by the Soviet Union.

JAPAN TO GIVE AID TO UN IN FALKLANDS CRISIS

[Text] Tokyo, May 8, KYODO -- Japan will extend financial and material assistance to the United Nations if the world body succeeds in defusing the Falklands crisis, government sources said Saturday. Japan will help the United Nations maintain peace on the southern Atlantic Islands group, the sources said.

The decision came amid calls for Japan to contribute to a peaceful settlement of the dispute, touched off last month by Argentina's armed seizure of the islands.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar has put forth a peace proposal which calls for an immediate ceasefire, the withdrawal of British and Argentine forces, and U.N. administration of the island chain. If the two countries accept the proposal, the sources said, Japan will provide financial assistance for the stationing of U.N. peace keeping forces and other personnel on the disputed islands.

However, Foreign Ministry officials said it still remains to be seen how the U.N. would rule the islands if the peace proposal is accepted. The sources said the government could send communications equipment, bulldozers and other construction machinery, as well as food and medical supplies. The government is not allowed to send troops overseas under the present constitution.

Japan, currently a member of the U.N. Security Council, is the third largest financial contributer to the 157-member U.N. behind only the United States and the Soviet Union.

Earlier this month, Japan declared it would urge domestic traders doing business with Argentina not to undercut economic sanctions taken by the European Community against Buenos Aires. However, the government says it still considers both Britain and Argentina to be friends.

DEFENSE OFFICIAL ON JAPAN, FALKLANDS SIMILARITIES

[Excerpts] Tokyo, May 7, KYODO -- The disabling of a British destroyer off the Falkland Islands by a single air-to-sea missile has sent shock waves through the world's navies, but a Japanese defense Agency official said Friday it wouldn't necessarily happen here. "We don't believe we'd be helpless in the face of missiles," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

He also questioned Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's statement Thursday that the Argentine missile attack proved there was no longer any need for "big ships and big guns," saying he thought the prime minister might be "jumping to conclusions."

The successful attack raised new fears about the vulnerability of surface ships in modern warfare, fears reinforced in Japan by photographs taken by scrambling Air Self-Defense Force fighters of Soviet aircraft equipped with sea-to-air missiles. The Japanese Maritime Self-Defense Force (MSDF) ranks among the world's top ten navies, but it has been criticized as poorly equipped to defend itself against air attack.

Only a handful of MSDF destroyers are armed with sea-to-air missiles, and the first to carry a U.S.-built CIWS anti-missile gun system will not enter service for several more years.

The Defense Agency official defended the survivability of MSDF vessels Friday, however, suggesting that carelessness played a large part in the loss of the Sheffield. He said the MSDF regularly trains against the possibility of a missile strike, adding that "we wouldn't have to throw in the towel if it happened."

The official also commented skeptically on Suzuki's statement that large warships are no longer needed, saying that ships have to be big enough to carry the weapons they need to defend themselves. "Warships should be neither too small nor too large," he observed. "They need to be big enough to accomodate weapons systems."

Comparing the Argentine defense of the Falklands with Japan's own defense policy, the official referred to government statements describing Japan as a "hedgehog." "The hedgehog (Argentina) has been successful so far, but he won't be able to go it alone if he is blockaded and his supply lines cut," the official said.

He said the British are at a disadvantage in the fighting due to deteriorating weather conditions, an overextended supply line and crew fatigue after a month at sea. While British options, from an intensified blockade to attacks on the Argentine mainland, all present numerous difficulties, Buenos Aires only has to sit back and wait for the British task force to weaken, he said. However, the official said Britain's three nuclear submarines in the area could prove a potent force if fighting for the isolated islands continues. If used aggressively, the hunter-killers could severely hamper Argentine fleet movements, he said.

LDP REJECTS JSP CALL FOR ITO RESIGNATION

[Text] Tokyo, May 10, KYODO -- The Liberal-Democratic Party Monday rejected a Japan Socialist Party demand that Defense Chief Soichiro Ito resign because of controversy over remarks he made last week about the Japanese people. Ito told a meeting of businessmen last Thursday that Japanese people regard the state and the cabinet as a target of extortion and backmail.

In a protest note presented to the LDP last Friday, the Socialist party asserted that Ito's remark justified his dismissal from the cabinet, but opted for his voluntary resignation.

The LDP reply only said that Ito had already reprimanded by the party. JSP, however, said this was an improper reply, and sought a proper response.

NODONG SINMUN: WALKER'S 'BABBLING' SIGN OF FEAR

SK100226 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2255 GMT 9 May 82

[NODONG SINMUN 10 May commentary: "Act of Those Who Are Seized With Fear"]

[Text] Today, anti-U.S. sentiment has increased as never before among the South Korean people, youths and students. Shouting, "The Yankees should withdraw" and "The United States is not our friend," they are struggling to oppose the U.S. imperialists' colonial domination and demand the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Korea. Various foreign countries have raised their voices to support the anti-U.S. struggle of the South Korean people.

Uneasy about this, the U.S. imperialists are cunningly maneuvering to thwart the South Korean people's anti-U.S. struggle, which has intensified with each passing day. This has been well proven by the babbling of Walker, U.S. ambassador to South Korea. Appearing at a 6 May seminar organized by the Kwanhun Club -- a friendship association of journalists -- Walker eagerly tried to depict as insignificant the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan and the South Korean people's anti-U.S. struggle staged in the wake of this incident.

As is known, the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan was set on fire on 18 March and anti-U.S. leaflets were scattered on the same day. The torch of the anti-U.S. struggle, which was lit in Pusan, has spread to the whole of South Korea. As a result, an anti-U.S. struggle has been staged in Seoul, Chunchon and Kangwon Province in South Korea.

The struggle of the South Korean people against the U.S. imperialists is the natural outcome of the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule -- the source of all the misfortunes and hardships suffered by the South Korean people. This struggle is the eruption of the pent-up resentment of the South Korean people against the U.S. imperialists.

Instigating traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the U.S. imperialists have committed the unprecedentedly barbarous act of suppressing the patriotic people, youths and students who have risen in the anti-U.S. struggle. Courageous youths, students, democrats and religious figures have been randomly arrested, imprisoned and wickedly punished on charges of participating in the anti-U.S. struggle.

The U.S. imperialists' instigation of traitor Chon Tu-hwan in wickedly suppressing the South Korean people's anti-U.S. struggle shows that they are extremely perplexed by the South Korean people's anti-U.S. struggle. Walker's depiction of the South Korean people's anti-U.S. struggle as insignificant resembles the act of those who, seized with fear, make utmost efforts by pretending to behave calmly.

On that day, Walker despicably attempted to make excuses about the insulting remarks which he made previously. This is a nasty act designed to mollify the South Korean people's fighting spirit. As already exposed, Walker abused South Korean democrats and student demonstrators, describing them as spoiled. Wickham, commander of the U.S. forces occupying South Korea, clamored that democracy is not suitable for the South Korean people. These arrogant, insolent remarks prove that the U.S. imperialists are racists who have been irredeemably caught up in the idea of despising other peoples.

The insulting remarks by Walker and Wickham have greatly enraged the South Korean people. Walker's sordid act of denying his previous remarks is a despicable act of soothing the South Korean people's resentment with a lie.

On that day, Walker clamored about someone's unpredictable, bellicose nature and about a vigilant posture against it. Needless to say, this is a petty guile designed to divert the attention of the South Korean people who have risen in the anti-U.S. struggle.

Facts show that the U.S. imperialists are eager to maintain their colonial rule in South Korea at any cost. However, this is a foolish attempt. No matter how eager the U.S. imperialists may be in their threatening maneuvers, fascist suppression and fraudulent placation, they will be unable to thwart the South Korean people's will to end the U.S. forces' occupation of South Korea -- the source of all misfortunes and sufferings.

VRPR SCORES AMBASSADOR WALKER'S SUPPORT FOR CHON

[Text] At a discussion meeting at the Koreana Hotel on 6 May, U.S. Ambassador Walker, on being asked about a remark he made in a press interview last February, said he did not describe demonstrating students and dissidents as "spoiled brats." How shameless he is! We have a proverb saying, "No smoke without a fire." This means no cause, no effect. It fits a shameless man like Walker.

As you know, Walker, discussing relations between South Korea and the United States in a press interview on 16 February, criticized patriotic students and dissidents struggling for social democracy and against the Chon Tu-hwan military dictatorship, branding them "spoiled brats."

The Korean Christian Action Organization strongly denounced his remark. So did Korean residents overseas, including those in Japan and Canada. With the voices denouncing his remark growing louder among people at home and abroad, calling it an insult to our nation, Walker became embarrassed. Taking advantage of this forum at the discussion meeting, he denied making such a statement. He can neither deceive our people nor justify what he said earlier.

To tell the truth, he did make the remark. Furthermore, he has more on his mind -- as evidence at the meeting when he said the expression "spoiled brats" might be a lukewarm term to describe students who set fire to the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan. This means that he regrets he failed to use a more insulting expression.

Though no one had expected that Walker, the messenger of aggression, would spit out nice words, we cannot tolerate his repeated insults.

The arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan was an eruption of our people's pent-up wrath and grievances against the U.S. aggressors. It was a very just, patriotic anti-U.S. struggle representing our people's will. Nevertheless, the U.S. aggressors slander our people's patriotic struggle. Far from atoning for their crimes and withdrawing from South Korea, the U.S. aggressors are brazen enough to try to justify their military occupation and colonial rule in South Korea. Walker depicted South Korean-U.S. relations as productive, broad and diverse. To the United States, the lords of this land, the relations could be called productive. However, to our people, under the U.S. reign, the relations are an intolerable shame, suffering and misfortune.

The world knows that the United States is lording over this land. U.S. ambassadors, including the incumbent Walker, are governor generals ruling colonial South Korea, and the U.S. troops -- murderous troops maintaining a colonial rule with military forces -- are the cause of our people's misfortune and suffering.

Successive regimes in South Korea since the nation's liberation persecuted the people and enforced a dictatorship. This was possible because there was always U.S. support. It is the United States which always stands behind the dictatorship that oppose people's freedom, democracy and reunification.

Not going too far back, the fact that the 12 December outrage and the massacre of the Kwangju citizens calling for democracy and reunification -- both of which were perpetrated by the Chon Tu-hwan clique after the 26 October incident -- were carried out with the support and consent of the United States is enough to prove that point.

Walker described as productive such criminal acts of the United States. This is an intolerable insult to our nation. Our people cannot tolerate the crimes of the U.S. aggressors. This is why our patriotic people are struggling against the U.S. aggressors who obstruct peace and peaceful reunification on the Korean Peninsula, trampling underfoot the independence of the people. Our people will not keep intact the U.S. aggressors who have insulted the patriotic anti-U.S. struggle and are embellishing their occupation of South Korea. The U.S. aggressors should immediately withdraw their troops from this land, as well as all lethal weapons and military hardware, to accord with our people's unanimous will and demand.

VRPR: ANTI-U.S. LEAFLETS SCATTERED IN SOUTH

[Text] Anti-U.S. leaflets entitled "We Demand the Withdrawal of the Yankees" have been scattered on the campus of Seoul University [SNU]. These leaflets read as follows:

Fellow students, look at the things offered in sacrifice by the government, which is thanking the United States for aid -- sumptuous fare at the sacrifice of the sovereignty and freedom of the people!

The aid obtained at the sacrifice of everything which should benefit the nation is the result of subjugation and usurpation. We reject U.S. aid. We are struggling to end the practice of offering sacrifices, which has continued for 37 years. This struggle -- the struggle to live independently -- is righteous. What do we fear? Let us all rise in the sacred anti-U.S., national saving struggle for a South Korea devoid of Yankees. The Yankees should withdraw. Let us overthrow the traitors!

REUNIFICATION GROUP DETAILS CAMPUS SUPPRESSION

[Text] Pyongyang, May 7 (KCNA) -- The Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland made public a memorandum on May 6 in denunciation of the brutal fascist suppression of the campus by the villainous Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique.

The memorandum says that after its usurpation of power the Chon Tu-hwan group took reactionary steps for the further fascistization of the campus to prevent the students' struggle against fascism and for democracy.

Noting that the notorious May 17 violation in 1980 through which the "emergency martial law" was expanded throughout South Korea and the campus was occupied and closed down by force of arms was a prelude to the campus suppression, the memorandum says:

The fascist clique which blocked the campus by force of arms enforced an "education reform" to institutionally prevent the students' patriotic action.

In accordance with this fascist "education reform" the so-called "graduation fixation system" has been introduced at all universities and colleges of South Korea. Under this "system" 30 percent more students than fixed number are enrolled into schools and "problematic" students expelled under the pretext of "poor school records."

Along with the "education reform," the Chon Tu-hwan group launched a "campus purification campaign" to "discipline" a large number of progressive students and professors.

As a result, many students were expelled from the campus and taken into the puppet army units to undergo various corporal punishments and forced labor under the name of the "brain-washing education."

The puppet rulers themselves admitted that the "campus purification campaign" was aimed to "ban violent and seditious circle activities of students and expel bad students" (South Korean "Christian radio," August 4, 1980).

The Chon Tu-hwan group dissolved all the students circles in the campus and trumped up anti-communist subsidized organizations and is conducting anti-communist education in greater earnest, clamouring about the so-called "ideological education."

Entering this year, it doubled the anti-communist lesson hours at schools of all levels and published in large copies anti-communist pamphlets and propaganda material for anti-communist education (South Korean "Munhwa radio," April 4, 1982).

The Chon Tu-hwan group has not only bound the students to the fascist discipline and anti-communist subsidized organizations but also turned the campus into a theatre of intelligence and surveilance.

Five times as many agents as at the time of the former "Yusin" fascist rule are now planted in the campus of South Korea and tv watchers and highly efficient tapping devices are installed at important points of the campus to watch and control every movement of students.

Due to the vicious repressive steps of the fascist clique today South Korean campus is bound up by visible and invisible chains and has turned into a prison "devoid of education" and "of human rights" where intelligence and surveillance are prevalent.

Referring to the suppression of students by the Chon Tu-hwan group since it grabbed power, the memorandum goes on:

Murderer and traitor Chon Tu-hwan, mobilizing paratroopers for a massacre operation, ordered them to "kill all the young people in Kwangju" and turned the city into a bloodbath all at once.

The bloody suppression of the campus was intensified again before and after the election of the puppet "president" in March 1981.

When more than 1,000 students of the Seoul University branded the "Fifth Republic" as a "fascist dictatorial regime" and staged a campus demonstration in demand of the resignation of traitor Chon Tu-hwan on March 19, 1981, the military fascist clique sent more than 1,200 riot police to brutally crack down upon them and arrested and detained 70 of them (South Korean "Munhwa radio Hanguk," March 19, 1981).

The military fascist clique intensified the suppression of students with greater frenzy on the occasion of the April 19 popular uprising and the Kwangju popular uprising in April and May 1981.

On April 14 the Chon Tu-hwan group harshly cracked down upon more than 1,000 students of the Seoul University who turned out to a demonstration and jailed many of them. On the same day, it sent heavily armed riot police to the Koryo University to brutally put down the students struggle (AP, April 14, 1981, from Seoul).

The campus suppression by the South Korean military fascist clique has been intensified as never before since the recent arson at the "American Cultural Center" in Pusan.

Frightened at the valiant struggle of students who came out pointblank against the U.S. imperialist aggressors, the Chon Tu-hwan group threw a strict cordon throughout South Korea and set up the "search guidance centers" and "search headquarters" in Seoul and provinces and started a wholesale round-up, issuing "directives" and "talks" almost every day.

In Seoul more than 5,700 people were rounded up on the evening of March 19 with the mobilization of search forces more than 10,000 strong, of which more than 1,400 were referred to "summary trial" and 199 to "judicial" organs (South Korean "Radio No. 1," March 20, 1982).

The Chon Tu-hwan group which had been conducting a frantic search committed the fascist outrage of arresting Mun Pu-sik, Kim Un-suk and other students on April 1, branding them as prime movers (South Korean "Radio No. 2" April 1, 1982).

The fascist clique's brutal suppression of students found salient expression in its shuddering crime -- illegally trying patriotic students, torturing and murdering them.

At the "capital army corps military tribunal" on August 20, 1980, the fascist butchers passed prison terms up to three years on charges of violation of various evil laws upon 36 students we fought in the van of the resistance struggle against fascism and for campus freedom and the democratization of society (South Korean "Munhwa radio Hanguk,"

The military gangsters who have not an oita of human conscience and reason applied indescriably brutal tortures, such as electric torture, water torture, airplane torture, taekwondo torture, freezing torture and glow lamp torture, treating arressted students like so many beasts.

According to the U.S. newspaper the New York TIMES September 20, 1981, and NEW KOREA TIMES, a newspaper of Koreans published in Canada, October 3, 1981, 15,000 people are now detained at the puppet army concentration camp of South Korea and over 3,000 of them are collegians or high school students arrested in Kwangju area. They are subjected to unbearable insults and tortures by soldiers almost every day and driven out to the construction of defence establishments on the frontline or the building of secret missile bases. No one knows how many of them died in this hard labour.

While trying, penalizing and murdering patriotic students, the Chon Tu-hwan group disciplines or expels them from the campus at will.

Having launched wholesale "campus disciplinary punishment", the South Korean rulers imposed illegal discipline, such as expulsion, staying back in the class and warning upon over 17,430 students at many universities and colleges in Seoul and local areas in 1981.

Entering this year, they disciplined en masse progressive students who went against the grain with them on the pretext of impairing the "atmosphere of study" or on the excuse of "poor school records."

Not only students but also progressive professors are expelled from the campus arbitrarily in South Korea.

Since the May 17 violation professors expelled from the campus had numbered 1,324 till the end of last year.

The memorandum denounces the Chon Tu-hwan group for resorting to deceptive, placatory tricks to appease students and prevent their patriotic action, while fascistising the campus and intensifying the bloody suppression.

In conclusion it stresses:

If the Chon Tu-hwan clique does not want to meet a more miserable end than that of its predecessor, they must stop the reckless suppression and deceptive placatory tricks, unconditionally and immediately release all the arrested and detained students, democratize the campus, apologize for its crimes against the nation and step down from power without delay.

We are convinced that the South Korean students who are always resolute for democracy and burning with patriotism, will raise more furiously the flames of the anti-U.S., anti-fascist resistance for democracy till they put an end to colonial and military fascist rule of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges Chon Tu-hwan group and realize campus freedom and democratisation of society and till they achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

KOREANS IN JAPAN URGE DISSIDENTS' RELEASE

OK071515 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 7 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 5 (KNS-KCNA) -- A joint meeting of Koreans under the influence of the "ROK Residents Association in Japan" ("Mindan") and Japanese people was held recently in Tokyo under the sponsorship of the Japan headquarters of the "National Congress for the Restoration of Democracy in South Korea and the Promotion of Unification" ("Hanmintong") and the "Korean Youth Union in Japan" against the new tieup between the Japanese reactionaries and the South Korean puppets and for the release of political prisoners in South Korea.

The meeting was addressed by Chong Chae-chun, vice-chairman of the Japan headquarters of "Hanmintong", on behalf of the sponsors.

Sumiko Tanaka, vice-chairman of the Japan Socialist Party, and other personages spoke next at the meeting.

They unanimously denounced the Chon Tu-hwan clique for its continued detention in prison and persecution of Kim Tae-chung and other political prisoners up to this day, two years after the Kwangju incident, and the Japanese Government for its unjust, zealous encouragement to this clique.

A report was made at the meeting on the successful conclusion of a signature campaign held in various parts of Japan from January 23 by "Mindan"-lining Korean residents and members of various democratic organisations of Japan to have Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners released and smash the "South Korea-Japan foreign ministers talks" and other criminal moves.

Kim Un-taek, director of the Propaganda Department of the Japan headquarters of "Hanmintong", made a keynote report.

Exposing the reactionary nature of the so-called "economic cooperation" of the Japanese Government with the Chon Tu-hwan clique, he said that its aim was to strengthen the military tieup between South Korea and Japan and perfect the South Korea-U.S.-Japan military alliance system in accordance with the U.S. strategy.

To remove the danger of war and ensure a genuine peace and security in Korea, he stressed, it is imperative to overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan dictatorial "regime", achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea and convert the Korean Peninsula into a neutral and nuclear-free zone.

Pointing out that anti-dictatorship struggle in South Korea is developing onto a new stage in combination with the anti-U.S., anti-Japanese slogans, he called for further developing the movement for solidarity between the South Korean and Japanese peoples.

A resolution was adopted at the meeting.

Prior to the meeting, Shigeru Yoshimatsu, general secretary of the "National Council of Societies for rescuing Japan-resident Korean political prisoners in South Korea," Hiromichi Umebayashi, representative of the "Liaison Council of Action for Solidarity between the Japanese and South Korean Peoples," Shigeki Miyazaki, professor of the Meiji University, and lawyer Hidenori Sasaki, called at the Japanese Prime Minister's residence and submitted a register of signatures collected through the signature campaign and strongly demanded an end to the Japanese Government's economic "aid" to South Korea and the realisation of the immediate release of Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners.

REUNIFICATION GROUPS SEEK KIM TAE-CHUNG'S RELEASE

[Text] Pyongyang, May 8 (KCNA) -- Foreign public organisations made public statements in demand of the release of South Korean democratic figure Kim Tae-chung, according to reports.

In its statement the Cuban committee for Supporting Korea's Reunification said that the South Korean fascist "regime" is scheming to destroy him physically, not heeding the just voice of the world public, and is hatching a plot to make it appear that he "died of illness."

Declaring that the committee will lift up louder voices of solidarity to rouse public opinion by informing the world of the danger to the life of Kim Tae-chung, the statement demanded his immediate release.

A statement published in joint name by the Guyana Committee for Support of Korea's Reunification, the Guyana-Korean Friendship Society and the Committee of Peace and Solidarity of Guyana said:

The brutal persecution of Kim Tae-chung by the South Korean fascist clique is an intolerable challenge to the entire Korean people and the world progressive people who are struggling vigorously in demand of an unconditional release of Kim Tae-chung and a most brutal and vicious scheme of murder.

We bitterly denounce the suppression of Kim Tae-chung by the South Korean military fascists.

The statement appealed to the governments and political parties, public organisations of various countries and international organisations and all the press circles and progressive people to actively launch a common struggle to drag out traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the fascist tyrant, to the international tribunal.

Saying that the Chon Tu-hwan clique are scheming to destroy democratic figure Kim Tae-chung by medieval tortures, the Pakistan-Korea Friendship Association demanded in its statement that the Chon Tu-hwan clique stop at once their fascist suppression of democratic figures and patriots of South Korea and immediately release Kim Tae-chung and other political prisoners.

It also demanded that the U.S. troops backing the Chon Tu-hwan clique immediately withdraw from South Korea. taking along all their lethal weapons.

The Rawalpindi, Pakistan, citizens committee in its statement demanded the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique to apologize for their crimes to the nation and step down from power at once and release Kim Tae-chung.

NODONG SINMUN SUPPORTS FATHER CHOE KI-SIK

SK100808 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0759 GMT 10 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 10 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN May 9 printed a signed article denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan group for arresting priest Choe Ki-sik on charges of protecting students who set fire to the "American Cultural Centre" and trying to harshly penalise him and for intensifying the suppression of conscientious religionists of South Korea.

The article says:

The arson at the "American Cultural Centre" was not motivated by temporary sentiments of a few persons or by any other impulse.

It was a logical result of the brutal colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists.

How can Koreans of national conscience remain a passive onlooker to the miserable reality of South Korea today? They cannot help turning out to the patriotic road, the road of struggle for regaining the lost national dignity and freedom of life.

The frantic suppression of South Korean students and conscientious religionists shows with increasing clarity that Chon Tu-hwan is a pro-American flunkeyist traitor.

It also shows that the puppets are actual oppressors of religion.

The Chon Tu-hwan groups bestial suppression of religionists will only result in giving further momentum to their struggle aginst fascism and for democracy, against imperialism and for national liberation, the article remarks.

SK092321 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2238 GMT 9 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 10 (KCNA) -- The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and President of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, arranged a banquet on the evening of May 9 at the Kumsusan Assembly Hall in honour of the party and government delegation of the Republic of Cape Verde headed by Comrade Aristides Pereira, general secretary of the African Party for Independence of Cape Verde and President of the Republic of Cape Verde, on a state visit to our country and made a speech.

Follows the full text of his speech:

Esteemed Your Excellency President Aristides Pereira, guests from Cape Verde, comrades and friends,

Today we are very glad to meet Your Excellency Aristides Pereira, general secretary of the African Party for Independence of Cape Verde and president of the Republic of Cape Verde, who came carrying deep feelings of friendship towards the Korean people.

On behalf of our party, government and people and on my own I would like first of all to warmly welcome the visit to our country of the party and government delegation of the Republic of Cape Verde headed by Comrade President Aristides Pereira, a staunch anti-imperialist fighter and our close friend.

The Korean and Cape Verde peoples are comrades-in-arms and brothers who have forged firm bonds of friendship on the road of the common struggle against imperialism and for independence.

The visit of comrade president to our country this time marks an important occasion in further developing the excellent relations of friendship between the two peoples.

Your visit to our country will also make a contribution to the international solidarity among the countries of the new-emerging forces and developing countries in Asia and Africa.

Today the new-emerging nations and developing countries are struggling shoulder to shoulder for the realisation of the common goal of liquidating the consequences of imperialist colonial rule as soon as possible and building a new independent life.

In a short period, less than ten years since their national independence, the people of Cape Verde under the correct guidance of their outstanding leader Comrade President Aristides Pereira have made a big stride forward in the struggle for doing away with the age-old backwardness and poverty and wuilding a new independent, democratic and prosperous Cape Verde.

We are pleased that the leading role of the party is enhanced and work is being successfully pushed forward in smashing the subversive manoeuvres and sabotages of the imperialists and colonialists, strengthening national unity and promoting national reconstruction in Cape Verde. We sincerely wish you greater victory in your future work.

We express solidarity with you for pursuing the non-aligned policy, for supporting the liberation struggle of the oppressed peoples and for making efforts for the unity and solidarity among the peoples of the new-emerging countries.

The independence of Cape Verde and her vigorous advance are a fruit of the historic struggle for the complete liberation of Africa, and this is a clear reflection of the trend of the present time aspiring after independence.

Though the colonialist and racist system still exists in some areas of southern Africa, the day is sure to come before long when its accursed old ruling system will be completely liquidated.

We bitterly denounce the racists for incessantly committing armed invasion, subversive manoeuvres and sabotages against the neighbouring countries, enforcing the barbaric apartheid and colonial rule in South Africa and Namibia with the support of the imperialist force. We express full support and firm solidarity for the struggle of the peoples in this area for freedom and liberation and for the struggle of the peoples of all the African countries for the complete liberation of Africa.

We firmly support the peoples of all countries of the world in the struggle for the defence of independence and for national liberation and the building of a new society.

Only by supporting and firmly uniting with each other, can the peoples of the new-emerging countries thwart the manoeuvres of the imperialists for aggression, division and alienation, defend peace and security, achieve the independent development of the country and build a new world free from all manner of domination and subjugation.

The friendship and solidarity between the peoples of Korea and Cape Verde excellently show the relations of fraternal friendship among the peoples of the new-emerging countries based on a revolutionary principle.

The Government of the Republic of Cape Verde sincerely supports and encourages our people in the struggle for forcing all foreign troops to withdraw from South Korea and achieving the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. We are grateful for it.

The present visit of comrade president to our country across a long distance more clearly shows the firm support of the people of Cape Verde to our people's revolutionary cause. This greatly encourages our people. The Korean people will wage a vigorous struggle as ever for the independence of the world in firm unity with the peoples of Cape Verde and all other new-emerging countries and non-aligned nations.

Your Excellency respected president,

Although we meet for the first time today, deep friendship has already been established between us through various channels. We greatly value this and are convinced that intimacy between us will further deepen through our present meeting. Once again warmly welcoming your visit to our country, I propose a toast to the fraternal friendship and solidarity between the Korean and Cape Verde peoples.

To the prosperity of the Republic of Cape Verde.

To the unity among the world's peoples defending independence.

To the health of respected Comrade President Aristides Pereira and madam.

To the health of the guests from Cape Verde, and to the health of comrades and friends present here.

Pereira Toast

SK092342 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2257 GMT 9 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 10 (KCNA) -- Leader of the party and government delegation of the Republic of Cape Verde Comrade Aristides Pereira, general secretary of the African Party for Independence of Cape Verde and president of the Republic of Cape Verde, made a speech at the banquet arranged by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on the evening of May 9 at the Kumsusan Assembly Hall in honor of the delegation on a state visit to our country.

Follows the full text of the speech of President Aristides Pereira:

Respected Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people, respected guests, Your Excellencies and mesdames, comrades,

Our visit to the country of chuche at the kind invitation of Comrade Kim Il-song is a great encouragement to us and offers an opportunity of learning from your precious experience.

The glorious and very warm welcome accorded us by you with the mobilization of enthusistic citizens of the capital showed the high prestige of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and a high and noble form of highly organised hospitality which can be seen only in a socialist society.

We received unforgettable, deep impressions from the warm welcome accorded us by tens of thousands of working people.

This welcome excellently expressing the rich feelings of the militant and valiant Korean people vividly showed how beautiful the bonds of unity linking our two parties and two peoples are.

Through you I extend the deepest thanks and greetings of myself and my wife and the members of the delegation to the citizens of Pyongyang.

Respected Comrade President Kim Il-song,

The Democratic People's Republic of Korea which had been lying on debris due to the war ravage and the division up until the mid 1950's has today become a developed socialist country where the people are living, enjoying boundless wellbeing.

Our visit to this country makes us see for ourselves how wisely a people with a history spanning thousands of years and a national pride and their peculiar culture could be led to turn their spiritual heritage into a great material and mental wealth.

From the moment of our setting foot on the soil of Korea we clearly realized the unbounded respect and reverence of our people for the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who has led the Korean people along the road of prosperity through thorny bushes and made them a shining model for all the Third World peoples today.

Some time ago the Korean people, together with many revolutionary leaders and friends and sympathizers of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea from all continents, celebrated the 70th birthday of Comrade Kim Il-song.

The celebrations demonstrated what a great creative power the chuche idea has and what a great hope and trust it arouses in a country where amazing successes have been registered in the domain of science and technology and her people are aspiring after independence, collectivist spirit and great idea of harmony and unity.

The chuche idea is not an idea limited within the bounds of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea but an idea synthesizing the principle of universal significance for the peoples of all countries who want to live in a society where independence is defended and man is made the most valuable being.

How can a society free from exploitation of man by man be built without the creative application of the principle of independence in thinking and practice, the principle of raising the value of man to the highest plane and creating a spiritual and material wealth with the mobilization of collective strength of the people? How can a free society be built without the masses becoming master? Our African Party for Independence of Cape Verde, the party inheriting the most glorious traditions of the revolutionary struggle organized and led by the great Amilcar Cabral, our respected, immortal leader, is thoroughly embodying in its domestic and foreign spheres the principle of independence in thinking and practice, the principle of organizing and mobilizing the masses, first of all, for the implementation of the programme of progressive and fundamental transformation of the society of Cape Verde, the principle of arousing the spiritual and moral enthusiasm of the Cape Verde people through labor and the principle of ardently loving and defending the heritage, the cornerstone of the country, and the country.

The first and foremost task facing our party members selected on our strict principle is to actively mobilize with their example the broad popular masses for the state management and the carrying out of tasks for its reconstruction.

In our revolutionary national democratic state built in Cape Verde under the guidance of our party, the masses are embraced in public mass organizations and widely participate in the discussions for deciding on the vast national tasks, with the result that the proportion of their direct participation in the exercise of power is growing day by day.

Our party, the guiding force of social liberation, is exercising power given by the people and testifying to the correctness of its activities through the trust of the masses.

Over the past seven years since independence the Cape Verde people, under the guidance of the party, their vanguard, have effected fundamental and decisive revolutionary changes in economic and social spheres, particularly in enhancing the consciousness of the masses, strengthening unity and raising their position as an independent people externally.

Living in a small country consisting of scattered and arid islands, our people had been subjected to poverty and benightedness under the rule of the Portuguese colonialists for centuries and ceaselessly struggled for existence. Although the colonial occupationists tried to exterminate us, our strength increased. Today we are confronted with a task to lay a solid foundation of the country.

The future republic of Cape Verde we desire should be built by our own efforts by making a correct and effective use of means of production of our people and the aid of solidarity given by the international community helpful to us.

Comrade Kim Il-song,

What is particularly inspiring and moving for us is that though the DPRK and the Republic of Cape Verde are separated by a distance of thousands of kilometres from each other and are differing in history, society and culture, we find the similarity of revolutionary changes effected in the two countries in their guiding principles.

Respected Comrade Kim Il-song,

Though we are far away from your country, we have followed with great interest and sympathy the development of the Korean revolution made under your wise guidance and the historic steps taken by the leading organs of your country.

The decision of the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea on the peaceful reunification is widely known to the whole world, Africa in particular. This is another proof of the judiciousness and vitality of the chuche idea and a priceless contribution to peace.

We hope that the division of Korea, the most barbaric crime against the Korean people, will be peacefully brought to an end through mutual concord on the basis of a deep love for the entire mankind and in the direction of wisely and actively removing the new root cause of the tension over the past ten years.

We believe that those who still think they can sacrifice mankind for their ambition for domination will face a powerful resistance of the people and yield without fail to the desire of the Korean people, thousands of times stronger than them, who want peace, material, spiritual and moral progress and the equitable and just relations among the peoples and countries.

By expressing their determination to achieve the peaceful reunification of the country, the Workers Party of Korea and the Korean people under your wise guidance once again demonstrated that they have a noble humanitarian spirit.

Respected Comrade Kim Il-song,

We are convinced that through the current visit the solidarity between the DPRK and the Republic of Cape Verde, between the Cape Verde and Korean people and between their revolutionary vanguards is a very precious one which the peoples, governments and parties of our two countries would defend and safeguard.

Therefore, I propose a toast to the steady strengthening of solidarity between the two countries.

To the development and efflorescence of the chuche idea, to the peaceful reunification of Korea,

To the great Korean people guided by Your Excellency and

To the good health and long life of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people.

Thank you.

The protestant pastor, known for his fluency in the Khmer language, was accused of "activities infringing on order and social security." The statement pointed out that his visa expired on April 30. Mr. Clavaud had operated as a relief worker in Phnom Penh since the Khmer Rouge leadership was ousted by Vietnamese-led forces in January 1979.

ARMY PAPER ASSAILS TOXIC CHEMICALS CHARGE

BK071006 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 5 May 82

[REVOLUTIONARY ARMY commentary: "U.S. Imperialism Is the One Which Uses Toxic Chemical Weapons Against Mankind -- date not given]

[Text] Recently, the U.S. administration continued its threats and slanders against the Soviet Union and Vietnam, accusing them of using toxic chemical weapons in Kampuchea, Laos and Afghanistan. We can say at the outset that this is a lie of the U.S. imperialists. This charge is ridiculous, for the peoples of the three Indochinese countries as well as the peoples of various countries in the world still remember that not long ago the three Indochinese countries were the victims of toxic chemical weapons used by the U.S. imperialists in their war of aggression.

In fact, during their war of aggression against the three countries of Indochina, the U.S. imperialists dumped more than 100,000 tons of toxic chemicals to massacre hundreds of thousands of people, devastate hundreds of thousands of hectares of cultivable land and destroy millions of hectares of forest in Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos. These toxic chemicals not only affected the people of Indochina, but also caused death to many U.S. soldiers. Those who survived returned to America following the end of the war with a chronic illness which is manifested in a haggard and emaciated look, general weakness and paralysis caused by these toxic chemicals.

In their wandering state of mind which resulted from their heinous crimes, Washington and Beijing are now supporting, feeding and maintaining the international reactionaries such as Thailand and a number of antinational and counterrevolutionary Khmer groups so that they can return to Kampuchea and sabotage the growth of our Kampuchean revolution.

It is irrefutably proven that on 1 April 1982 Thailand fired many mortar shells containing toxic chemicals into the area west of Soad, 2 km inside Kampuchean territory, and has ordered its aircraft and warships to strafe and bombard innocent Kampuchean people living peacefully in various villages and communes close to the border in Siem Reap, Preah Vihear, Battambang, Pursat and Koh Kong Provinces.

Their present campaign of vicious propaganda is aimed at misleading world public opinion in an attempt to cover up the savage and ugly crimes they have perpetrated and at diverting opinion from the fact that they are continuing to produce toxic chemical weapons in preparation for an assault against world peace.

Their acts not only constitute a blatant violation against the peoples of Indochina, but are also an encroachment on the 1925 Geneva Convention banning the use of toxic chemical weapons. This is glaring proof showing that U.S. imperialism itself is the one who uses toxic chemical weapons against mankind while blaming our friends the Soviet Union and Vietnam.

PEN NAVOUTH SPEAKS AT SOVIET FRIENDSHIP MEETING

BK230805 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1441 GMT 22 Apr 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 22 Apr (SPK) -- The Kampucheans and the other progressive peoples in the world will be grateful forever to the socialism pioneered by Marx-Engel and put into implementation thanks to the talent of great Lenin, declared Minister Pen Navouth, vice chairman of the Kampuchean-USSR Friendship Association.

During a meeting held on 21 April in Phnom Penh under the sponsorship of the KUFNCD National Council and the Kampuchea-USSR Friendship Association, Minister Pen Navouth went on to say: Thanks to the Marxist-Leninist path, the Soviet Union has become the most developed country in the world and this ideology is winning increasingly more adherence by leading the people onto the path of socialism.

The speaker recalled the life, courage and sacrifices of great Lenin, thinker of the working class, founder of the Russian and international workers movement and defender of proletarian internationalism.

Pen Navouth stressed: Great Lenin's initiative is a beacon guiding the movement of revolutionary struggle in Kampuchea as well as in Vietnam and Laos toward victory over colonialism, the U.S. imperialists, Beijing expansionists and their lackeys and it is this beacon which guides the Kampuchean revolution in socialist construction.

On this occasion, O.V. Bostorin, USSR ambassador to Kampuchea, talked about the life and work of the great revolutionary, of his ideas in national liberation, socialist construction and the struggle for world peace. The progress of the Soviet Union, the ambassador affirmed, is due to the implementation of Marxism-Leninism by the CPSU.

He noted that the rapid advance of the Kampuchean revolution clearly shows that the Kampuchean people are firmly following Marxism-Leninism in national defense and reconstruction.

MEETING 9 MAY MARKS RED ARMY'S 1945 VICTORY

BK100940 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0357 GMT 9 May 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 9 May (SPK) -- The secretary general of the Kampuchea-- USSR Friendship Association, Min Khin, said that the victory of the Red Army over the Hitlerites in May 1945 created favorable conditions for the progress of the revolution of the three Indochinese countries, who struggled against the Japanese fascists and the French colonialists.

At a meeting organized in Phnom Penh on Saturday, 8 May, under the auspices of the Kampuchea-USSR Friendship Association and its Soviet counterpart to commemorate the 37th anniversary of the Soviet Armed Forces' victory over Hitlerite fascism in May 1945, Min Khin stressed that this victory confirms the heroism and tireless efforts of the Soviet people and the Red Army in struggling not only to defend their country but also to liberate mankind from Hitler's yoke.

A representative of the Soviet Embassy, (Andreychuk) stressed that the Red Army, under the CPSU's leadership, defended the country firmly and, with an international proletarian spirit, came to the aid of other European countries in order to liberate them from the clutches of Hitlerite Naziism. The USSR, he said, is coordinating action with other socialist countries and progressive peoples in the world to fight U.S. imperialism.

Attending the meeting were Yos Por, secretary general of the KUFNCD and chairman of the Kampuchea-USSE Friendship Association; Yit Kim Seng, minister of health and chairman of the Kampuchea Committee for the Defense of Peace; and Phlek Phirun, vice chairman of the National Assembly and chairman of the Kampuchean Red Cross. Also present were R.D. Dolgopiatov, counsellor, and Aleksandr Bursov, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy and permanent representative of the USSR-Kampuchea Friendship Association.

HEALTH MINISTER PROTESTS DK ROLE IN WHO MEETING

[Text] Phnom Penh, 2 May (SPK) -- Minister of Health Yit Kim Seng recently sent a cable to the 35th WHO plenary meeting claiming the PRK is the legal representative of the Kampuchean people and should be present at the meeting.

Minister Yit Kim Seng demanded that the Pol Pot clique be ousted from this international organization and stressed that only the Kampuchean Government is competent and capable of fulfilling all the obligations assigned to it. The message said in part:

At present, the Kampuchean people are being reborn from the ashes of the genocidal Pol Pot regime and have scored the remarkable achievements in all domains over the past 3 years. Rice production in 1980 reached about 1.6 million tons, a threefold increase over 1979. Hundreds of industrial enterprises have been put back into operation. During the 1981-82 school year, schools have opened their doors to 1.5 million students. Notable progress has been made in the public health domain. We operate eight central-level hospitals, and there are hospitals in 98 percent of districts and 93 percent of communes. The medicine and pharmacy facility has been reopened, as has the secondary school of medicine.

Born of the one-man one-vote democratic general elections and enjoying the people's support, the PRK Government is the only legal and authentic Kampuchean people. The so-called Democratic Kampuchea has no longer existed since its overthrow by the Kampuchean people on 7 January 1979, and its representatives are nothing more than genocidal criminals, such as Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan. Their participation in the current general assembly is illegal and prejudicial to the WHO's prestige and is an insult to the souls of millions of Kampuchean killed by Pol Pot.

PRK DELEGATE SPEAKS AT INDIAN OCEAN CONFERENCE

[Text] Phnom Penh, 7 May (SPK) -- The secretary general of the Kampuchea Committee for the Defense of Peace, Sieng Saran, demanded that Washington dismantle its military bases in the Indian Ocean and return Diego Garcia to Mauritius. Mr Sieng Saran believed that the transformation of the Indian Ocean into a zone of peace will allow for the establishment of cooperation between the riparian countries.

Speaking at the international conference on the Indian Ocean held in April in the Indian capital, the head of the Kampuchean delegation said that the question of peace is urgent and important and that the U.S. imperialists are pushing mankind to the brink of a thermonuclear war, practicing a policy of intervention and blockade vis-a-vis independent countries, intending to launch again the cold war and accelerating the arms race.

In the Indian Ocean region, the U.S. imperialists, under the pretext of protecting their so-called "vital interests" and of the alleged "Soviet threat," are strengthening their massive military penetration that seriously threatens the independence and sovereignty of the riparian countries.

The U.S. imperialists have made Diego Garcia an aeronaval base for bombers carrying nuclear bombs. This island, however, is not enough for them. They have installed bases in Kenya, Somalia, Oman and Egypt for their naval and "Rapid Deployment Forces."

These U.S. bases and naval forces -- as well as those of great Britain and France -- in the Indian Ocean represent a grave danger to peace not only in the region but also the rest of the world.

The Kampuchean delegate stated: We vigorously condemn the increased U.S. military presence in the Indian Ocean, a presence which constitutes a seed of war and aggression against the peoples in this region and which is aimed at undermining their independence, submitting them to neocolonialism and maintaining the misery there so as to control and exploit their raw materials and their energy for the benefit of transnational societies.

We think that the expansion of the U.S. military bases in this region, which is a flagrant violation of the UN resolutions on the Indian Ocean -- a zone of peace -- constitutes a major defiance to the world public.

We vehemently condemn the maneuvers of U.S. imperialism which have prevented a UN-sponsored world conference on the Indian Ocean -- a zone of peace -- from being held in Sri Lanka in 1981.

We firmly support the proposal made by the president of the Democratic Republic of Madagascar, Mr Didier Ratsiraka, for holding [words indistinct] in 1982 a summit conference to materialize the transformation of the Indian Ocean into a zone of peace and international economic cooperation.

We support the proposals made by the Soviet Union for engaging in talks with the United States in order to reduce the military presence in the Indian Ocean.

The Kampuchean delegate stressed: The struggle for peace in the Indian Ocean region is inseparable from that in other regions such as Central America, the Caribbean, Europe, Middle East, southern Africa, Southeast Asia and so forth because the U.S. imperialists and their allies have established a worldwide system of strategic and offensive bases.

Southeast Asia is currently one of the hot spots in the world. The main cause of the threat to peace in this region is the expansionist and hegemonist policy of the Beijing ruling circles in collusion with the U.S. imperialists.

To sidetrack public opinion, the Beijing reactionary circles and those of Washington as well as other international reactionaries have raised the so-called "Kampuchean problem" and brought it to various international conferences and the UN organization. But it is a matter of common knowledge that the rebirth of the Kampuchean people from the danger of genocide by the Pol Pot clique cannot be considered as a problem to be solved.

The presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea is in conformity with the aspirations of the Kampuchean people under the treaty of peace, friendship and cooperation between Kampuchea and Vietnam. It is motivated by the Chinese threat and is not directed against any third country.

There is no "Kampuchean problem," but there exist the problem of the Chinese threat to the Indochinese countries and other countries in the region, and the problem of insecurity caused by the Bangkok reactionary circles at the Kampuchea-Thailand border.

To resolve these problems in order to make Southeast Asia a zone of peace, stability and cooperation, the three Indochinese countries have successively advanced reasonable and realistic proposals for a dialogue between the ASEAN states and the Indochinese countries, for signing a treaty of peaceful coexistence with China and for reducing the tension along the Thailand-Kampuchea border.

These proposals, imbued with goodwill and reiterated in all the statements of the conferences of the ministers of foreign affairs of the three Indochinese countries and in the seven-point statement by Lao Foreign Affairs Minister Phoun Sipaseut at the 36th UN General Assembly, have always been rejected by the ASEAN countries and China.

The Kampuchean delegate affirmed: The Kampuchean people, in concert with the Vietnamese and Lao peoples -- their longstanding comrades in arms -- always maintain their firm position of struggling to make Southeast Asia, adjacent to the Indian Ocean, a zone of peace, stability and cooperation, thereby contributing to world peace.

We renew our total support for all the Soviet peace initiatives and for the proposal of Comrade Tsedenbal, secretary general of the People's Revolutionary Party and chairman of the People's Great Hural of the Mongolian People's Republic, for the signing of a treaty on the nonuse of force in the relations between the countries in Asia and the Pacific.

We express our profound thanks to all peace- and justice-loving forces in the world for their firm support for the Kampuchean people's just struggle to defend and rebuild their country and build socialism in their country.

Finally, we assure you that the Kampuchea Committee for the Defense of Peace will make every effort, together with the World Peace Council and its homologues, to intensify its activities in order to restore peace, ward off the risks of war and contribute to the creation of favorable bases for the progress and happiness of the whole of mankind.

GDR EDUCATION MINISTER HEADS VISITING DELEGATION

Call on Chan Si

[Text] Phnom Penh, 1 May (SPK) -- Chan Si, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers, on Friday [30 April] received in audience in Phnom Penh the GDR education delegation led by Gunter Bernhardt, secretary of state for superior and technical education.

Chan Si deeply thanked the party and government of the GDR for their devoted aid to the building of Kampuchea and expressed joy over the development of cooperation in all domains -- especially on the cultural plane -- between Kampuchea and the GDR. The bonds of friendship and solidarity among Kampuchea and Vietnam, Laos, the Soviet Union, the GDR and other countries of the socialist community constitute a decisive factor for the progress of the Kampuchean revolution.

Gunter Bernhardt affirmed the GDR's support for the Kampuchean people in their national defense and construction tasks and, in particular, in the restoration of national education. He condemned the gross interference of the U.S. warmongers and Beijing expansionists in Kampuchea's internal affairs. He said he was satisfied with the development of bilateral cultural cooperation. Kampuchean Minister of Education Pen Navouth and GDR Ambassador to Kampuchea Rolf Dach were present at the meeting.

SPK COMMENTARY SCORES DPRK GREETINGS TO POL POT

[SPK commentary: "Praising the Traitors and Criminals Is a Challenge to the Common Cause of the Kampuchean and Korean Peoples"]

[Text] Phnom Penh, 26 Apr (SPK) — Seven years ago, on 17 April 1975, the peoples of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos as well as the progressive forces the world over enthusiastically greeted the liberation of our country from the claws of U.S. neocolonialism.

They saluted the militant fraternity of the Indochinese peoples supported by the socialist countries -- including the DPRK and other forces of peace and justice in the world -- as one of the factors contributing to this historic victory. They bowed to the memory of thousands and thousands of our compatriots and of their Vietnamese and Lao brothers who had laid down their lives for this supreme cause: national liberation and the right to build a free, independent and happy life.

This joy, however, was betrayed. For the Kampuchean peoples, the date of 17 April 1975 also marked the beginning of a monstrous martyrdom which was unprecedented in the world's history and which would eventually last 3 years, 8 months and 20 days. It marked the Pol Pot clique's betrayal to the ideals for which our compatriots had fought. It marked the debut of the archcriminal policy inspired by Maoism and characterized by the systemic massacre of city dwellers, skilled workers, intellectuals, religious people, and so on and their families, and the abolition of all social and religious structures, including trade, public health service, education and others. Kampuchea was nothing more than a vast concentration camp.

What would Kampuchea be today if Pol Pot and his clique had continued to reign? All mankind, except masters in Beijing, have rejected these traitors to the nation, the people and the socialist ideal.

It was astonishing then that on the occasion of the 17 April anniversary the leader of the DPRK sent a congratulatory message to Pol Pot and Khieu Samphan, implying that this band of criminals -- who can barely manage to keep body and soul together at the Thai border in the hope of returning some day to reimpose their yoke on Kampuchea with the backing of the Chinese expansionists, U.S. imperialists and other reactionaires -- are patriots.

It was astonishing because U.S. imperialism, who supports the Pol Pot clique, is precisely the one who has perpetrated so many crimes against the Korean people and who continues to occupy the southern part of Korea and to support the partition of the country. U.S. imperialism is the common enemy of the Kampuchean and Korean peoples. How could the DPRK leaders have praised these proteges of their declared adversary who are guilty of genocide and an instrument of the U.S. aggressive and neocolonialist policy? This attitude can only harm the interests of the Korean people.

Anyway, it is certain that the Korean people know how to distinguish friend from foe and that they are on our side in the struggle against the common enemy of national independence and socialism.

BANGKOK NATION: SON SANN SOFTENING ON COALITION

[Text] A joint tripartite committee will run the proposed Khmer resistance coalition's military affairs and foreign policy, according to a draft agreement being considered by Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan and Son Sann.

Diplomatic sources closely monitoring the developments in the Son Sann-Khieu Samphan talks told the NATION yesterday that Son Sann, leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, appeared to have softened his stand in his discussions with the Khmer Rouge over the general principles of the proposed coalition.

Son Sann had proposed that former Kampuchean head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk be named head of the state in the coalition while he himself be made prime minister and Khieu Samphan deputy premier. There will be no foreign minister in the new set-up so that foreign policy would come under a joint committee, according to the sources.

Son Sann, according to the sources had agreed to the basic "principles" proposed by the Khmer Rouge including three-party consensus on major issues, equality of representation, tripartite consultations and non-preponderance among the three parties involved. "Son Sann and Khieu Samphan appear to have come closer to an agreement during the latest round of talks," the sources said. The two continue to talk over details of their remaining differences, they said.

Son Sann would insist that all aid received by a coalition would be divided equally among the KPNLF, the Khmer Rouge and the Moulinaka movement of Prince Sihanouk, the sources said.

Meanwhile, in Beijing, Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Qian Qichen told a group of Thai reporters that China was optimistic over the ongoing efforts to get the three Khmer factions to form a coalition government. "The concept of a coalition government is likely to materialize," the newly-appointed deputy foreign minister said at the international club yesterday.

He said that the Chinese assessment was based on the rationale that the three Khmer resistance groups shared a common cause to drive the Vietnamese troops out of Kampuchea. However, he said that the negotiations among the three groups to form a coalition government could face difficulties if any of them wanted to join the coalition just to gain an edge over the others. He did name names [as published], but observers believed that he was referring to KPNLF leader Son San who had called for supremacy in the coalition movement.

Qian Qichen also refused to predict as to when the three Khmer resistance factions would agree to form the coalition government, saying that it depended on the three groupings. The deputy foreign minister also said that a coalition government should be based on the principles that it would proceed within the framework of Democratic Kampuchea, the three parties should have equal say and be allowed to retain their respective identities.

VODK ASSAILS FRENCH INDOCHINESE POLICY

[Unattributed commentary: "If the French Government Sincerely Wants Peace To Be Restored in Southeast Asia, It Should Tell Vietnam To Abide by the UN Resolutions"]

[Text] At a time when the Le Duan Vietnamese aggressors are at a complete and total impasse on the Kampuchean battlefield where they have committed aggression and genocide against the

Kampuchean race, and when they are facing unprecedented, extreme isolation in the international arena and suffering most serious difficulties at home due to economic bankruptcy and serious internal rifts, the French Government has taken a stand and attitude which consist of supporting, assisting and aiding Vietnam.

In December 1981, France decided to provide the Hanoi authorities with economic aid worth 200 million French francs. This decision to aid Vietnam was strongly opposed and protested by ASEAN and other peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world, because the French attitude runs counter to the resolutions of the UN General Assembly, the statement of the international conference on Kampuchea and the efforts of ASEAN and other peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world, which are pressing Vietnam to withdraw all of its aggressor troops from Kampuchea.

In February and March 1982, France sent high-ranking officials, together with an advisor to the president and a minister, to visit the Southeast Asian countries and Hanoi in order to discuss additional aid to Vietnam and to act as a defense lawyer and a spokesman for the Le Duan Vietnamese aggressors in an attempt to persuade the ASEAN countries to abandon their current just stand on the Kampuchean question. In April, France welcomed Nguyen Co Thach's visit to Paris and provided an additional 6,000 tons of food aid to Vietnam. The people of the world, including the French people, and a large number of peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world are enraged by and have strongly protested these actions.

The Le Duan Vietnamese aggressors have suffered serious military defeats during the 1981-82 dry season. The Le Duan Vietnamese enemy's dry-season offensive has been totally smashed by the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas. Moreover, since April the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas have smashed, wiped out and taken control of various Vietnamese positions in the enemy zone, particularly on the Koh Kong Leu battlefield where our national army and guerrillas wiped the enemy out bit by bit.

At a time when the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy is suffering strategic defeats and heading toward total defeat, the French Government has called upon Thailand to hold high-level negotiations with the Hanoi authorities in order to solve the Kampuchean problem. What is France's attitude in making this proposal? It is:

1. To save the Le Duan Vietnamese clique from total collapse in the near future; and

2. To help Vietnam bury the resolutions of the 34th, 35th and 36th UN General Assemblies and the statement of the international conference on Kampuchea held in July 1981, all of which demand that Vietnam withdraw all of its aggressor troops from Kampuchea and respect the Kampuchean people's right to self-determination free from outside interference.

It is not as if the French Government does not realize the root cause of the Kampuchean problem. The Kampuchean problem arises from the Vietnamese aggression and occupation of Kampuchea -- an independent and sovereign state and a member of the United Nations -- in defiance of the principles of the UN Charter and international laws.

Thus, the Kampuchean problem, which is causing serious tension in Southeast Asia, was not caused by Thailand or any other country, but Vietnam. Thailand does not have any problem with Kampuchea or Vietnam. Thus, France should not turn the Kampuchean problem -- which was caused by the Vietnamese aggression -- into a question between Thailand and Vietnam.

If the French Government wants to help solve the Kampuchean problem, to enable Kampuchea to again enjoy peace and remain an independent, sovereign, neutral and nonaligned state and to restore peace and stability in Southeast Asia, it should not call on Thailand to negotiate with the Vietnamese aggressors. Rather, it should tell Vietnam to withdraw all of its aggressor troops from Kampuchea in accordance with the resolutions of the UN General Assemblies and the statement of the international conference on Kampuchea, which were also approved by France's vote.

We call on the French Government to reconsider its political attitude concerning the problem of Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea. The Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean Government take note of the true attitude of the French Government toward them at this time when they are temporarily facing difficulties. A Kampuchean proverb says: "A friend in need is a friend indeed."

The Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean Government appeal to all countries and peoples throughout the world who cherish peace and justice, including the French people who love justice and uphold international principles and norms, to continue to support and assist the just struggle of the Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean Government and further put pressure -- politically, diplomatically, economically and financially -- on the Le Duan Vietnamese aggressors in order to force them to withdraw all their troops from Kampuchea in accordance with the resolutions of the UN General Assemblies and the international conference on Kampuchea so that the Kampuchean people can decide their own destiny without any outside interference.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL ON THIRD LPRP CONGRESS

Maisouk Saisompheng Speech

[Speech by Maisouk Saisompheng, minister of industry and trade and member of LPRP Central Committee, at Third LPRP Congress -- date not given, recorded]

[Text] Your Excellencies, respected delegates to the congress: I am very proud to represent the industrial and trade branches throughout the country to deliver a speech at this Third LPRP Congress. First of all, I would like to express my complete unanimity with the political report proposed to the congress by Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the LPRP Central Committee, and other reports submitted to the congress. I would now like to express my views on the industrial and trade work.

Industry is a branch which is assuming a leading role in the national economic domain. Any country in the world which desires to advance to socialism must include the building of advanced industrial bases in its economic structure in a correct and appropriate manner. Given the conditions prevailing in our country and the world at present, the industrial construction task in our country must be carried out with intensity prior to firmly advancing forward step by step. We should first build and develop the various industrial branches which we have the capability of building and which conform to domestic and export requirements. Those industrial branches which we do not have the capabilities to build and which require international cooperation or imported goods should be based on the true situation in our country.

In the development of industrial construction and development, we must go from small to big, apply advanced technology and make use of our handicraft potentials and develop them step by step. Greater importance must be attached to building and developing state industries, particularly the key industrial branches, and to basic production establishments of various cooperative units. We should promote private investment in order to build basic small industrial and handicraft production establishments, with a view to increasing the gross national product each day.

During the past 6 years, under the clear-sighted leadership of the party, industrial branches in our country have achieved some results -- the value of industrial products in 1981 increased by 250 percent as compared with that in 1974. Despite the positive note, we still have weaknesses in some respects; that is, we are not yet able to ensure normal production in some factories and have not paid attention to reprocessing industry and various handicraft factories -- two of the industrial branches in which conditions are favorable.

To implement the line of the third congress, in the next few years our industrial branches will perform some of the following tasks:

1. Ensure normal production and make full use of the efficiency of factories and their machines;

2. Install [word indistinct] at the Nam Ngeum hydroelectric dam site, expand small hydroelectric networks, make efforts to use electric power in agricultural production, and conduct a survey and formulate plans in preparation for constructing a hydroelectric power station at (Nam Theun) in Khammouane Province;

3. Pay attention to restoring the production of (?fertilizer) in Khammouane Province, effectively organize the production of gypsum, and make perparations for the construction of a Lao-Soviet cement factory;

4. Develop the reprocessing industry at the central and provincial levels to meet domestic consumption and export;

5. Develop foodstuff production industry and rice mills and produce confectionaries, salt, sauces and salted fish;

6. Prepare for the production of construction equipment and materials, and develop other industrial enterprises for which local raw materials are available;

7. Extensively develop handicrafts such as weaving in order to serve domestic requirements and exports.

Comrades, the political report of the party Central Committee indicates that trade is a common link for all basic economic establishments in our country at present. During the past 6 years, the domestic commercial branch has taken new steps for development. The value of goods exported in 1981 increased by 550 percent as compared with that in 1976. State-run trade networks and purchasing and selling cooperatives have been enlarged from the central down to the provincial, district and canton levels. The internal trade branch has not yet taken the initiative in its past activities to boost production. Many trading firms have only paid attention to export. Less attention is being paid to signing cooperation contracts and to purchasing products from various industrial, handicraft and farming establishments.

There has been progress in the task of purchasing forest products over the past 2 years, but the state objective has yet to be met. In the years ahead, we will carry out the following tasks in our internal trade:

1. Step up the delivery of goods, supplying raw material and purchasing products from various industrial and handicraft production establishments;

2. Step up the task of purchasing forest products from the people and supply essential goods to them and, particularly, pay attention to purchasing rice, coffee and other goods for export: ensure the supply of foodstuff and some essential goods to the various areas growing coffee and cardamon only to enable the people in such areas to attentively engage in production for sale to the state.

Under the current prevailing conditions, we should exchange abundant state goods for products from the peasants and sell essential goods to cadres, workers, combatants and policemen. Other goods and those produced locally should be widely circulated throughout the society in order to increase state income. We must attentively consolidate state trade networks at the provincial and district levels and increase trade networks in various agricultural cooperatives, cantons and villages.

We must continue to use private traders to purchase and sell goods with their own funds to state establishments and must adopt a correct and appropriate policy toward them. Organizational and guiding work must be studied to guide the private citizens in their business and trade activities which are beneficial to the socialist system. Based on the conditions prevailing in our country, it can be said that without foreign trade we cannot build material and technical bases for socialist production. Our foreign trade has achieved some basic gains over the past few years -- the export value in 1981 increased by 300 percent as compared with that in 1976, excluding the sale of electric power.

We have signed agreements on trade cooperation with many countries. Our weakness in this regard is that we have not yet attentively invested in building various bases producing goods for export. Therefore, there is still a wide gap between export and import requirements. For this reason, our foreign trade branch will carry out the following tasks in the years to come:

1. Pay special attention to investing in building bases for producing exported goods and encourage the people to produce goods for export;

2. Ensure close coordination among the sectors concerned to supply raw material, fuel, equipment, spare parts to various handicraft and weaving factories and enterprises;

3. Increase economic and trade cooperation with the Soviet Union, Vietnam, Kampuchea and other fraternal socialist countries;

4. Organize trade exchange between Laos and Thailand and other countries;

5. Continue obtaining and utilizing assistance from the various friendly countries and international organizations, and strictly implement the various cooperation agreements between us and other countries.

Under the current situation in our country, special attention must be paid to building up foreign trade at the central and local levels in accordance with the framework already clearly stipulated.

We are convinced that under the beacon of the resolution of the third congress, with our people's positive efforts and with the cooperation with the various socialist and friendly countries and international organizations, our country's industry and trade branch will achieve a new and more splended development, thereby contributing to the cause of socialist glorious success. [applause]

Sanan Southichak Speech

[Speech by Sanan Southichak, member of LPRP Central Committee, at Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- no date given, recorded]

[Text] Respected members of the presidium, respected delegates and guests: First of all, on behalf of the cadres, workers and state employees attached to the Communications, Public Works and Transportation Branch throughout the country, I wholeheartedly salute and hail the third congress of the party. [applause]

I hail and express complete agreement with Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan's political report. I express complete agreement with the report on the orientations and tasks during the first 5-year state plan from 1981 to 1985, submitted by Comrade Nouhak Phoumsavan, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, and the report on an amendment to the party regulations submitted by Comrade Sisomphon Lovansai, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau. [applause]

Comrades, after seizing the administrative power, the party Central Committee has adopted a line for carrying out socialist transformation and construction in our country, in which the role of the Communications, Public Works and Transportation Branch has been upgraded as a spearhead for national economic development and as an important branch serving production, national defense and the improvement of living conditions.

All resolutions adopted by the party Central Committee have clearly set forth the task of expanding land and waterway communication and transport lines across the country. First of all, attention must be paid to building Highway 9 toward the sea and improving Highway 13 and various strategic roads spreading throughout the country from the north to the south.

Profoundly grasping the general line and policies of the party -- particularly the various policies regarding our Communications, Public Works and Transportation Branch -- and based on the special conditions prevailing in our country in which material and technical bases remain weak in all respects, during the implementation of the 30 year plan ending in 1980 as well as the initial period of the first 5-year state plan, we have striven to ensure coordination between the central and local communications, public works and transportation branches and among the sectors concerned and have concentrated on fulfilling the objectives contained in the annual plans, thus achieving some successes.

For example, we have repaired, restored and built more than 3,000 km or roads, repaired and built 450 bridges, surveyed and dredged canals for waterway transportation and built and improved many airports. This success has been achieved thanks to the great assistance of the SRV, the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries. With regard to improving and widening Highway 9, we are now able to ensure a minimum level of transportation year round. We are currently cooperating with Soviet experts to conduct a survey on paving highways. All this is aimed at gradually interlinking land and waterway communication and transport networks across the country and further broadening our relations with various fraternal socialist countries.

Regarding transportation, we have built and strengthened state transportation forces so that they can assume a leading role, guided various localities to make use of native transportation, improved and expanded transportation by using modern transportation, mobilized the collectivization of private transportation forces, and implemented the policy of using while gradually tranforming private transportation.

The transportation of goods in 1981 increased by 154 percent as compared with that in 1976. The transportation of passengers also increased at the same level, thus meeting to some extent the requirements for boosting production and improving conditions.

Regarding construction work, we have achieved some successes in building living quarters and industrial enterprises, supplying material and technology and building many new offices, warehouses, schools and hospitals. We have rebuilt some small towns and municipal areas destroyed during the war. Moreover, we have completed the construction of some enterprises with the cooperation of various socialist countries, such as four large-scale workshops for repairing vehicles and mechanized agricultural implements, which constitute an important industrial sector of the communications, public works and transportation branch as well as agriculture. We have installed temporary oil pipelines and several oil depots, completed the construction of some cultural and social establishments and various waterworks plants in Vientiane and Savannakhet, and trained 1,400 basic and intermediate technical cadres and so forth. These achievements place us in a new position and supply strength for our advance to triumphantly fulfill the tasks in the years to come.

On behalf of the cadres, workers and state employees attached to the Communications, Public Works and Transportation Branch, I would like to take this opportunity to express gratitude to the party Central Committee led by respected and beloved Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan. I would like to thank the various fraternal socialist countries and others for their precious assistance and support for our communications and transportation branch. [applause]

Comrades, along with the above-mentioned successes, our Communications, Public Works and Transportation Branch continues to be beset with many difficulaties. For example, the material and technical bases we have built and consolidated are unable to ensure that they can meet the requirements for boosting production, distributing and circulating goods and improving living conditions. Generally speaking, our Communications, Public Works and Transportation Branch has not yet fully grasped the party line and policies and has not yet effectively shifted to the grassroots level to consolidate its work in all respects at the central and local levels. The level of our knowledge on state and economic management has not been raised. The transformation of some transportation and construction firms into state enterprises has been resolute and is not consistent with the principle of planned, balanced and profitable economic management. The coordination among the basic (?three) interests in production is not yet effective. Therefore, to triumphantly implement and fulfill the resolutions of the third party congress and the first 5-year state plan, we will concentrate on carrying out the following main tasks:

1. Ensure that the construction of highway 9 will be completed as expected;

2. Improve Highway 13 and other strategic roads and ensure year-round transportation;

3. Ensure that the construction of permanent oil pipelines with Soviet assistance will be completed as scheduled;

4. Pay attention to thoroughly expanding communication networks in the countryside by coordinating state forces with those of the people;

5. Continue studying, surveying and planning the construction of railways to the sea in accordance with the agreement between Laos and Vietnam and in conformity with the direction set forth by the third party congress;

6. Attentively mobilize and organize the use of native transportation which has tremendous potential, while utilizing modern transportation;

7. Start building the Keng Kabao wharf and rapidly complete the installation of navigational aids along the Mekong River in order to increase the volume of waterway transport;

8. Survey and plan the construction of wharves in (Veun Kham) along the Mekong River connecting it with the PRK territory, with a view to opening another door to fraternal socialist countries.

In addition, the maintenance and repair of means of transportation and the supply of material, equipment and fuel to ensure production plans is important. The urgent task is to completely separate state enterprises from the administration, bring into full play the quality of the system of [word indistinct] regarding economic management. Meanwhile, attention must be paid to training more commanding and managing cadres and technical workers.

Comrades, based on the direction set forth by the congress on the use of the strength of the cooperatives with that of the entire society for building and developing the economy and culture in the period of transition to socialism in our country, we will concentrate on fulfilling communications and transportation tasks and on building basic establishments in order to honorably contribute to the task of defending and building our beloved socialist fatherland.

In conclusion, I wish the third party congress success. Thank you. [applause]

Provincial Delegates Speak

BK100800 [Editorial Report] Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao at 0000 GMT on 30 April broadcast a 12-minute recorded speech by Khamvong, secretary of the Luang Namtha Provincial Party Committee, delivered at a session -- date not given -- of the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane.

First, the delegate expressed the "full support" of the province for the political report of the party Central Committee presented by General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan to the congress on 27 April.

Describing the significant position of Luang Namtha Province, he said: "The orientation and plans and policies contained in the political report will illuminate our path in marching forward to strengthen our position in all respects, making us determined to overcome all difficulties in steadfastly and vigorously defending and building the province into a strong entity deserving the honor of being a frontline province sharing common borders with several countries, including a 140-km border with China. Our compatriots of various ethnic tribes inhabit this province. This province is also confronted by the new enemy of our country."

He notes: "The enemy has tried to take advantage of the province's prevailing difficulties to launch a scheme of pressuring us militarily, for example by nibbling at our territory, provoking and threatening our people, attacking and killing our cadres, smuggling commando and spy elements into the province to wage psychological warfare tactics, to create internal conflicts among our people of various ethnic tribes and to destroy the unity between the army and the people."

Touching on the achievements scored by the inhabitants of Luang Namtha province, the delegate described how they have now come to understand the fact that the "Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists" are the direct enemy of the Lao people. He pointed out that in the past 2 years "several districts, especially those along the Lao-Sino border, have deployed local guerrillas to coordinate efforts with the regular army, the regional forces and the Vietnamese volunteer forces to attack the enemy, to promote production to improve the people's lives, and to build political bases."

He noted: "Generally speaking, the overall situation in the province is peaceful to a certain extent and the people of all tribes are energetically and confidently carrying out production and building a new life."

He then continued to discuss the party's policy of promoting unity among the people of all tribes in the province. He said that progressive tribal chiefs in the province have been mobilized to join in the revolution and to implement the party's line and policies. He said: "After meeting with Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan and visiting Vientiane City and other southern provinces recently, these tribal chiers have now actively educated and encouraged the people to take part in the building of the armed forces, attacking the enemy and participating in other activities."

In conclusion, he said that all party cadres and members and people in Luang Namtha Province pledge to translate into reality the resolution adopted by the congress.

Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao at 1200 GMT on 4 May broadcasts a 13-minute recorded speech by an unidentified delegate from Champassak Province at a session -- date not given -- of the LPRP congress in Vientiane.

The delegate said that the delegation of the province fully supports the political report presented by Kaysone Phomvihan to the congress on 27 April. He then went on to describe the significance of this southern province bordering Kampuchea and Thailand as a "militarily strategic area" and a mountainous region rich in natural resources which are vital to the Lao economy.

The delegate reviewed the struggle carried out by the people in the province against the "Boun-Oum feudalest reactionary clique" under the old regime. He noted that the province is "the center for the reactionary forces in opposing the revolution in the southern region. Due to the position and special characteristics of the province, the enemies have carefully attempted to implement a scheme of creating unrest and disturbances, sabotaging peace and order among the people, and destroying our socialist construction. They have set up underground forces to carry out protracted resistance against our revolution. Realizing our strategic position we have educated the people of various tribes to heighten their vigilance, to strive to build the revolutionary forces in all respects, and to stand ready to smash all schemes and maneuvers of the enemies. We have sent our forces to the grassroots level to coordinate with mass mobilizing units to consolidate political foundations, and to coordinate with local guerrillas in attacking the enemies.

He pointed out that the government and province have awarded victory medals to "33 army units and 25 hamlets in which the enemies have continuously carried out sabotage maneuvers" against the revolution. "These hamlets have resolutely fought against the defeated the enemies on several occasions."

He added: He said that outstanding achievements in this regard have been scored by the people in Bakiang Chaleunsouk, Champassak and Phonthong Districts. He added that "in 1981, a considerable number of enemy troops were put out of action -- 75 percent of whom were annihilated by our guerrillas."

On party building, he noted that the number of party members in the province has increased by six times compared with the post-liberation period in 1975. With regard to crop harvests in the past 2 years, he said that each year over 150,000 tons of paddy were produced -- an average of 414 kilos per person -- and 2,000 tons of coffee beans were collected from 11,000 hectares of coffee plantations. He attributed the glorious achievements scored by the province in various fields to the leadership of the party Central Committee.

He noted: "We have wholeheartedly established mutual cooperation and assistance with the Vietnamese province of (?Hoa Binh) and the Kampuchean province of Stung Treng."

He pledged to fulfill the economic and social development tasks contained in Kaysonne's political report, saying" "We are firmly convinced that the resolution adopted by the third party congress will give a new light and strength to our people to build Champassak province into a politically stable, militarily strong, economically prosperous, and culturally and socially progressive area, thereby making noble contributions to the Lao revolution."

He concludes his speech by wishing the congress "a glorious success."

Vientiane Domestic Service at 0000 GMT on 5 May broadcasts a 15-minute recorded speech by Oudom Khatti-gna, secretary of the Xieng Khouang provincial party committee, delivered at a session -- date not given -- of the LPRP congress. Oudom Khatti-gna first extended the best wishes and ardent faith of the provincial party committee and people to the congress, and expressed "complete support" for the political report presented by Kaysone Phomvihan to the congress.

He emphasized that Xieng Khouang was "the center of struggle and the bastion of the revolution" in the past and "a province of militarily, economically and politically strategic significance" during the two period of ferocious war of aggression waged by foreign aggressors so that it has now been bestowed the honor of being "a heroic province." He recalled that because of several decades of the war of aggression waged by the "U.S. imperialists and their henchmen," the provincial people at first suffered shocking hardships and became extremely poor.

He notes, however, that "thanks to the talented and clear-sighted leadership of the party Central Committee and the Political Bureau headed by Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan, Kaysone Phomvihan, with the resolve of the party committees at various levels, with the oneness in mind of the people of all nationalities, and with the assistance rendered by neighboring provinces -- particularly the sincere assistance from the Vietnamese provinces of (?Son La) and Nghe Tinh -- and the Vietnamese volunteer units, we have reclaimed over 10,000 hectares of farmland without any loss of lives, and restored and repaired several hundred irrigation projects destroyed during the war." He pointed out that in the past 2 years the province has managed to become self-sufficient in rice consumption. He noted the significant progress made in efforts to set up agricultural cooperatives throughout the province.

Concerning the educational sector, he said that illiteracy was stamped out in the province by 1980. Additionally, a model secondary school was set up in Pek District.

With regard to the tribal minority people, he said that there are several ethnic tribal groups, such as Mong, living in the province. "In the past year, no matter how hard the U.S. imperialists and the Chinese reactionary clique have tried to implement all kinds of sinister schemes to divide and buy off our people, they have failed to undermine the unity of the people of various ethnic groups in this province."

At the end of his speech, the delegate said that to translate the resolution of this congress into reality and to deserve the honor of being a heroic province and a revolutionary bastion, the province pledges to strive to increase production in all fields -- such as increasing livestock by three times in the next 10 years -- to strengthen further the unity among the people of all ethnic tribes, to train more specialized and technical cadres, and to provide more educational opportunities for the people. He ended his speech by wishing the congress a brilliant success.

Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao at 1000 GMT on 5 May broadcasts a 10-minute recorded speech by an unidentified representative of Nongbok District in Khammouane Province, and an 11-minute recorded speech by an unidentified female representative of the Ministry of Education, Sports and Religious Affairs at sessions of LPRP Congress -- dates not given.

The Nongbok District delegate hailed the political report presented by Kaysone Phomvihan to the congress. He noted that after liberation, the people in this district -- which borders Thailand -- have had an opportunity to develop a new life. "The reactionary elements crossing from Thailand, however, have constantly carried out sabotage maneuvers against the people."

He went on to discuss party building and the training of party cadres and members in the district, particularly in Song Muang Canton. He pointed out statistics in agricultural production, educational development, and public health services in the district in the past 2 years. Finally, he pledged to fulfill the resolution of the congress by stepping up efforts to increase production in all fields.

The female delegate of the Ministry of Education, Sports and Religious Affairs also hailed the brilliant political report presented by Kaysone Phomvihan to the congress, and then went on to discuss the achievements scored by the ministry in the past 6 years, such as in the literacy campaign, the training of school teachers and the building of more schools. She noted that the people in 10 out of the 13 provinces in Laos have managed to stamp out illiteracy completely, and that the number of students at various levels has increased by 10 times and that of school teachers by 6 times in the 1981-82 school year compared with the 1975-76 period. She attributed these successes to the talented leadership of the party Central Committee. She discussed measures to improve the educational standard and political awareness of teachers, to build more schools and acquire more resources from all sources to invest in educational development.

Finally, she pledged to coordinate with all services to fulfill the task of advancing educational work one step further in order to build new socialist men and to contribute to national defense and socialist construction.

Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao at 1000 GMT on 9 May broadcast a 10-minute recorded speech by an unidentified delegate from Oudomsai Province delivered at a session of the LPRP congress -- date not given.

The Oudomsai Province delegate extended "wholehearted salutations" to the congress, and expressed "complete support" for the political report presented to the congress by Kaysone Phomvihan. He noted that his province is very important in the political and military aspects of the strategy for the northern region, a frontline area directly confronting the new enemy of the country, and is composed of various ethnic minority tribes with underdeveloped economic and cultural standards. "However, the people have complete faith in our party and state," he stressed.

On the task of national defense and security, he pointed out that the people and armed forces in the province have now realized that "the Chinese reactionary is their new direct and dangerous enemy. We are striving to build foundations, consoldiate the position of the people's war and encourage the masses to fulfill the task of national defense and security."

He continued go say that "the spy and commando elements sneaking into our province have been promptly annihilated or driven back to their country. The (?Maoists) and the Chinese reactionary troops who had intruded into our province were also completely and shamefully driven out of the province at 1800 on 4 April 1979. Then, peace and security returned to the province."

Regarding food production, he said that more tribal people have now come down to the lowlands to grow rice, that the acreage of ricefields has increased to 6,631 hectares, and that paddy production per head has increased to 345 kilos this year. "We are now self-sufficient in rice consumption, and can even give food assistance to some neighboring provinces."

He also discussed party building activities in the province, such as the training of new party cadres and the urging of senior party members and retired state employees to take part in implementation of the party's line and policies.

He concluded his speech by pledging to further strengthen the position of the people's war, to strive to become self-sufficient in food stuffs, and to victoriously fulfill the resolution adopted by the congress.

Angolan Delegate Speech

BK080420 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1200 GMT 4 May 82

[Speech by delegate of the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola-Party of Labor at the Third KPRP Congress in Vientiane -- read by announcer; date not given]

[Summary] "Respected and beloved Comrade General Secretary of the LPRP, respected comrades, respected guests: It is our great honor to receive an invitation from the LPRP for the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola-Party of Labor [MPLA-PT] to attend your third congress, comrades, in this beautiful capital, Vientiane. On this occasion, on behalf of Comrade Jose Eduardo dos Santos, chairman of the MPLA-PT, president of the People's Republic of Angola and commander in chief of the Angolan People's Liberation Armed Forces, we extend our warmest friendship, love and solidarity from the Angolan people to the fraternal Lao people under the leadership of the vanguard party -- the LPRP. We once again reiterate that our two parties, governments and peoples have maintained relations for a long time since we have struggled against colonialism, and these relations have developed daily in the cause of the common struggle against imperialism and various reactionary powers. From this rostrum of the presidium, we would like to reiterate that the MPLA-PT highly appreciates the efforts of the Indochinese countries to reach a correct and lasting solution to the dispute with the ASEAN countries so as to maintain stability in this region. We are of the opinion that the ASEAN countries should not have rejected or continued to sabotage these efforts, which are intended to ease the tense situation and to settle the obstacles in the relations among the countries in Southeast Asia."

At present, the People's Republic of Angola has become a victim of the schemes of the international imperialists and the domestic reactionaries whose aim is to destroy our country. Thousands of South African troops and mercenaries of the United States, Britain and Portugal have massed along the border areas of Namibia. Certain groups of reactionaries have infiltrated into our territory and committed crimes against our innocent Angolan people. In this way they hope to obstruct the unconditional assistance given by the MPLA-PT and the People's Republic of Angola to the South West African People's Organization [SWAPO] and the African National Congress in their just struggle for the independence of Namibia and the elimination of apartheid in southern Africa. In his new year greetings message, Comrade President Jose Eduardo dos Santos pointed out that the armed provocations and aggression conducted by the Pretoria racial clique against our country have destroyed many basic economic structures of the People's Republic of Angola. It is clear that as long as Namibia has not gained independence, the Namibian people, under SWAPO's leadership and with the support of the international community, will continue with their struggle against the South African racist regime. It is necessary for us to depend on international aid and solidarity in further consolidating and strengthening our military forces. We regard the strengthening of national defense forces, the setting up of economic establishments and the heightening of vigilance as our main tasks.

"We are aware that all incidents in Southeast Asia, South Africa, Latin America, the Middle East and the Indian Ocean have been created by imperialism, and that without the efforts of the various peace-loving forces, including the forces of the socialist community with the Soviet Union as the leader, the whole world would suffer a dreadful disaster.

"Comrades, distinguished guests: We are convinced that the various objectives of the LPRP will be pursued by the third congress, with the wisdom of the party leaders combined with the determination of the party members. We sincerely wish the fraternal Lao people, under the leadership of the LPRP -- their vanguard unit -- several successes in the agricultural and industrial production and in improving their living standards in the economic, social and cultural fields following the implementation of the first 5-year plan.

In conclusion, we would like to express our deep thanks to the LPDR leaders and the Lao people for the warm welcome accorded to us. "Our struggle is still continuing. We will certainly win victory."

Afghan Delegate Speech

BK080950 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1200 GMT 4 May 82

[Speech by Niaz Mohammed, secretary of the PDPA Central Committee and Afghan delegate to the Third LPRP Congress in Vietniane -- read by announcer; date not given]

[Summary] "Dear comrades: The Central Committee of the People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan [PDPA] would like to extend fraternal salutations and greetings to all the delegates to the third LPRP congress and to all communists in your revolutionary land. We also wholeheartedly wish you, comrades, successes in your cause of labor and revolutionary struggle. We are elated to convey to the fraternal LPRP and Lao people the salutations, greetings and best wishes for great success in their creative labor from Comrade Babrak Karmal, secretary general of the PDPA Central Committee and head of the Revolutionary Council of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan."

Your congress is being held amid a complex international situation, fraught with the dangerous schemes of the U.S. imperialists and their allies who oppose peace, detente and peaceful coexistence. The basic aim of the imperialists is to obstruct the advance of national liberation movements. We are convinced that we will attain final victory in our common struggle against the imperialists.

"The PDPA highly appreciates the positive role and responsibility undertaken by your party in consolidating world peace, particularly in consolidating stability and peace in Southeast Asia and establishing fraternal relations among the various nations in this region. Our party has supported the joint proposals of the SRV, LPDR and PRK, which seek to turn Southwest Asia and the Indian Ocean into a zone of peace." We have supported the peace proposals put forward by the Soviet Union and believe that these proposals and the other initiatives of the revolutionary forces in Southeast Asia represent a firm and correct line tat can be accepted by all in order to settle the tense international situation.

"Dear comrades, the LPRP has always maintained its revolutionary and creative role and upheld its obligations in pursuing the road of socialist construction in Laos. With its victories, your party stands as an example for other nations seeking to liberate their countries and societies and to attain greater prosperity. We have clearly understood the serious vestiges left behind for you, comrades, by colonialism and various imperialist schemes. We are convinced that, under the party's leadership, you, comrades, will be able to overcome those obstacles successfully and that the Lao people will achieve success in building a society free from the exploitation of man by man."

Dear comrades, we have the honor of attending your historic congress at a time when we ourselves are implementing the various decisions and resolutions passed by the recent PDPA congress. Our congress convened at a time when the country has become a target of aggression and intervention by the imperialists, the Chinese big-nation expansionists and hegemonists and the other reactionaries in the region. The convening of our congress demonstrated the development of the revolutionary process in our country and the unanimity in the ranks of our party.

Our national democratic revolution has been confronted with an undeclared war by the imperialists and their international allies who have lost their interests in our country. This war has totally destroyed the economic and cultural establishments in our country. Through the war, the imperialists and the reactionary powers have exposed their true aggressive nature to mankind.

To retaliate against this sinister intervention and to defend our territorial integrity and sovereignty, and in carrying out the natinal democratic revolution, we have resorted to our just, revolutionary rights to accept military assistance from our true friend -- the Soviet Union -- when necessary. The Soviet Union has sent a limited contingent of troops to help us. It has not left us in isolation. In light of the collusion between the imperialists and the Chinese big-nation expansionists and hegemonists and the other reactionary powers, we have also received fraternal support from various revolutionary forces throughtout the world, in particular the concrete, effective assistance from the fraternal Soviet Union.

"We would like to express our gratitude to you, Comrades, for your assistance to our revolutionary cause. This assistance is mentioned in the political report presented by Comrade Kaysone Phonvihan.

"Dear comrades, the basic causeof tension and conflict in this region is the policy of aggression and intervention of the imperialists and the Chinese expansionists. This policy has caused losses not only to our country but also to other countries in the world."

The democratic Republic of Afghanistan advanced creative proposals aimed at normalizing the situation in this region on 14 May 1980. We believe that the proposals of our government and party constitute a correct, concrete basis for the maintenance of peace and tranquillity in the region. It is regretable that our neighboring countries have not yet accepted our proposals on this issue. We pledge to you that we will continue to follow this line. Our revolution has daily promoted and expanded its fruits and established a broad basis for the building of a democratic society in our land. Our revolution is marching forward toward an irreversible goal.

One again we wish your congress success. Our revolutions will continue in unity against the aggression of the imperialists and the Chinese big-nation expanisonists and hegemonists.

"Long live the fraternal friendship between the parties and two peoples of Afghanistan and Laos."

[Speech by Haj Talal, member of the Fatah Revolutionary Council and head of the PLO delegation, at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- no date given, read by announcer]

[Summary] Comrades in the presidium, comrade delegates, fraternal heads and members of various delegations. I have the honor to lead a PLO delegation to participate in the Third Congress of the great LPRP. I am pleased to extend to you the salutations and warm greetings of Chairman 'Arafat and the Palestinian people who are struggling against the Zionist occupation which is supported by various imperialist and reactionary forces.

"We would like to wholeheartedly support the Lao people under the leadership of the LPRP, who have waged a protracted struggle for more than 30 years and have fulfilled the national-democratic revolution. This success was marked by the establishment of the LPDR on 2 December 1975. During the past 6 years, the party has united the Lao people of various ethnic tribes to carry out socialist transformation and construction and has achieved many historic successes, thus firmly safeguarding the gains of the revolution."

Dear comrades, we are currently in a very difficult positon. Tens of thousands of the Palestinian people are being arrested, imprisoned and brutally tortured in Zionist prisons.

Hundreds of thousands of Palestinians in Jerusalem and other areas are demonstrating against the Zionist occupation. Our people persist in the struggle against the Zionist imperialists with firm confidence in our final victory and future independence, since we have enjoyed "the support of a true friend -- the LPRP -- and of various socialist countries led by the Soviet Union and the peace-and freedom-loving people in every corner of the world." The heroic resistance of our people in the occupied areas has caused setbacks to the Camp David agreement. These people have closely united with the PLO -- their sole genuine representative following a policy of independence.

The recent development of the world situation, particularly in our region, shows that the imperialists led by U.S. imperialism cannot check or limit the rapid growth and development of our struggle, nor can they implement their policy of aggression and intervention. We "solemnly condemn U.S. policies threatening peace and security in the world and the struggles being waged by the people in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

Dear comrades and friends, we express our militant solidarity with the heroic Lao people in your cause of national defense and construction, in your socialist transformation and construction and in leading the country to progress and prosperity. We express our resolute militant solidarity with and highly value the all-round achievements recorded by our friends in Indochina."

Dear comrades, "we highly value the LPDR's policy of supporting the Palestinian people in their struggles in the international arena. We would like to express deep thanks and gratitude to the LPRP leaders for their progressive stand in supporting the rights of the Palestinian people, which are clearly stipulated in the Palestine-Laos joint communique signed on 3 April 1982 on the occasion of the anniversary of the founding of the democratic Palestinian state. This constitutes an encouragement for us in our further determination to struggle until final victory."

"In conclusion, I wish the Third LPRP Congress glorious success. I wish you, comrades, good health and happiness.

Long live the LPRP! Long live the PLO! Long live the militant solidarity between the two nations and revolutions! Let us carry on the revolutions until complete victory'"

Mongolian Delegate Speech

BK081244 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 8 May 82

["Greetings speech" by R. Altangerel, member of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party Central Committee Political Bureau, secretary of the Ulaanbaatar Party committee and head of the Mongolian party delegation, delivered at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- read by announcer; date not given]

[Summary] "Comrade delegates to the congress: "On behalf of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party [MPRP] Central Committee, Comrade General Secretary Yumjaagyn Tsedenbal and all Mongolian communists and laboring people, I would like to convey warm greetings and best wishes to you, comrades, and, through you, to all Lao communists and laboring people.

"Under the LPRP's leadership and with vigorous support from various fraternal socialist countries and progressive forces throughout the world, the freedom-loving Lao people of various nationalities have gained freedom and national independence and are now actively implementing the urgent tasks of maintaining their revolutionary accomplishments and the creating the necessary conditions for an advance to socialism while bypassing the period of captialist development. I am elated to note that in implementing the first 5-year plan, the laboring people in your country have scored many new achievements in perfecting various significant tasks in the economic and social fields."

It has been proved through the historical experiences of certain countries that the path of advancing to socialism while bypassing the period of capitalist development which you, comrades, have chosen to follow is a correct path.

We have attentively followed the report of the LPRP Central Committee as presented to the congress by Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan, the talented leader of the Lao people. The report has reviewed the difficult but honorable and glorious path that your party and people have followed. It has also created a bright hope for the Lao nation.

"We are pleased with the efforts for peace undertaken by the young LPDR — which is marching forward side by side with various socialist countries, first and foremost with its comrades in arms, namely the SRV and the PRK -- in making a significant contribution to the cause of maintaining peace and socialism and guaranteeing stability in Southeast Asia. Your party and nation are also making a positive contribution to the struggle for peace and international tranquillity in opposition to the danger of nuclear weapons which are being openly prepared by aggressive imperialist circles throughout the world.

"Comrades, the relations between our two parties and peoples are being consolidated and developed in the interests of the peoples of Mongolia and Laos on the basis of solidarity and mututal understanding. These have been clearly demonstrated in the friendship and cooperation treaty and in various official documents signed between our party and state leaders. They have been also demonstrated in the cooperation between our two countries which is growing daily."

At present, the Mongolian laboring people are striving to realize the resolutions of the MPRP 18th Congress with a view to broadening the cause of socialist construction and consolidating peace in Asia and the world. We are concerned by the tense situation in Asia which is the product of the warlike policy of the Washington and Beijing powerholders and other ruling circles.

The correct path leading to the achievement of a lasting peace and saving the people in various countries from the danger of world war has been set forth in the peace program of the 26th CPSU Congress and in the peace initiatives put forth by other fraternal parties and socialist countries. Our entire Mongolian party and people fully support the initiatives proposed by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev in his speeches at the congress of Soviet Trade unions and the celebration festival in Tashkent. These initiatives by the Soviet Union conform with the proposals adopted by our country in signing the charter on nonaggression and the nonuse of force in international relations in Asia and the Pacific.

Another significant point is that your congress has convened on the eve of 1 May, which is the international solidarity day of the laboring people in their struggle against imperialism and for peace, democracy and socialism. We express our best wishes to you, comrades, on the occasion of this grand festival of the laboring people throughout the world.

"In conclusion, we wish you, comrades, and all the fraternal Lao communists and people, new, still greater achievements in implementing the resolution of this congress and in struggling for peace and tranquillity.

"Long live the heroic Lao people and their vanguard unit -- the LPRP!

"May the fraternal friendship and cooperation between our parties and peoples be incessantly developed and consolidated with each passing day!

"Long live Marxism-Leninism -- revolutionary theory!

"Long live world peace!"

Polish Delegate Speech

[Speech by "delegation of Polish United Workers' Party" at Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- date not given, read by announcer]

[Summary] Dear comrades and friends, we would like to express deep thanks for the invitation extended to us to attend the third congress of your party -- the first congress since the success of the national liberation struggle and the establishment of the LPDR. We extend sincere fraternal salutations from the Central Committee of the Polish United Workers' Party [PZPR] to all Lao communists and entire people. "We highly value the successes and achievements recorded by the Lao communists in their struggle to unify the country, in leading Laos to embark on the path of socialist development and in eliminating the backwardness left over from the feudalist and capitalist government."

In the national history of struggle for independence, the Lao people's children will always remember Father Kaduat, Ong Keo, Ong Kommadam and Chao Fa Patchai, who carried out the national liberation struggle against the French colonialists. The cause of these revolutionaries has been taken over by the LPRP and has now achieved final success. "This demonstrates that only the party that firmly adheres to Marxism-Leninism can meet the Lao people's aspirations."

"The PZPR and the Polish people have continuously supported and assisted the Lao people's progressive revolutionary forces. We are proud of your successes and of the independence you have won. We will continue to develop the fraternal friendly relations between our countries and the peoples led by our parties. We will persist in the principles of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism. We are convinced that the fraternal friendship between the Polish and Lao peoples, based on our two parties' corresponding ideals, will develop splendidly in the interest of our peoples and the socialist community and in the interest of progress, peace and socialism in the world."

Socialism guarantees the sovereignty and inviolable territory of Poland, its economic development and prestige and the role of Poland in the international arena. "We are currently struggling to surmount the consequences of a socio-political crisis caused by many objective conditions and by subjective mistakes in party and state leadership. The antisocialist forces, supported by the imperialists' sabotage center, are making use of the situation in Poland to sabotage the socialist system."

To safeguard internal peace and the fundamental interests of peace and security in Europe and the world, it has been necessary to declare a state of emergency in Poland. Our self-determination, which completely conforms with the constitution of the Polish People's Republic, has been approved by our parliament and the majority of the Polish people. The situation in Poland is returning to normal, for the economic, social and political spheres are stable and public order has been restored.

"Let beloved comrades be confident that Poland was, has been and will continue to be a permanent and solid link in the socialist community and a member of the Warsaw Pact and the CEMA. Our friendship and alliance with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries, based on the principle of proletarian internationalism, will be the cornerstone of the foreign policy of Poland. In time of serious difficulty, our country and party continue to enjoy the support, assistance, sympathy and trust of the fraternal parties. We would like to express our overwhelming gratitude for this, particularly to the CPSU for its tremendous assistance. We would like to express thanks to the Lao party."

Poland has become a target of propaganda campaigns launched by the imperialists and of economic sanctions imposed by the United States and some of its allies. We firmly believe that the efforts to overthrow the socialist system in Poland and sabotage a peace structure of international relations and the security of Europe and the world will be inevitably defeated.

Dear comrades, the Third LPRP Congress "has set forth the objectives of socialist development for the future of Laos in the resolutions of the congress." "We wish you, comrades, as well as our Lao friends, new success in your persistent struggle to translate into practice the resolutions of the congress."

GOVERNMENT FORCES CLASH WITH SHAN REBELS

[Text] Mae Chan, Chiang Rai -- Border patrol police, supported by aircraft, yesterday clashed with Shan rebels as government combined forces were deployed along the border area here to flush out Shan rebel troops who have fled from Burma, military sources reported.

Three helicopters loaded with government troopers were shot and badly damaged by members of the Shan State Army (SSA) at Ban Ponghai village, about 8 km from Ban Hin Taek here yesterday afternoon. The damaged choppers were among the five police and military helicopters trying to transported government troopers assigned to repel the Shan rebels. The number of the San rebels who resisted the landing of the choppers was not known. Two of the damaged helicopters managed to return to Air Base 41 in the provincial site while the other was forced to make an emergency landing at Ban Hin Taek.

The result of the fighting and casualties on both sides were not immediately known, but a military source said a number of injured government troopers were airlifted to the military hospital in Mengrai garrison during the clash. An unknown number of the Shan rebels, including members of the Shan United Army (SUA) led by drug warlord Khun Sa have fled from Burma after being chased by the Burmese troops into this northernmost province.

However, military officers said that four companies of border patrol police from Hua Hin and Chiang Mai, about 300 rangers from Korat and a number of soldiers backed by armoured personnel carriers from the Lopburi based special warfare centre were despatched to reinforce the security forces here yesterday. About 15 helicopters and four porter planes also flew here to join a large-scale operation to flush out the Shan rebels. The operation was commanded by assistant police director general in charge of special affairs Pol Lt Gen Pranet Ritruchai.

The clash came after Khun Sa had attempted to negotiate with the Thai Government for its permission to allow his Shan rebels to use Ban Hin Taek as his springboard to launch attacks against the Burmese troops. A large number of government troops early this year mounted an operation to recapture Ban Hin Taek from Khun Sa and flush his troops out of the Thai soil.

BK100803 Bangkok WORLD in English 10 May 82 p 3

[Text] Deputy Prime Minister Prachuap Suntharangkun said this morning that yesterday's clash near the Burmese border occurred during a routine military exercise and a force of only 40 followers of opium warlord Khun Sa were involved.

Gen Prachuap said the San United Army (SUA) troops clashed with government forces in Mae Chan District of Chiang Rai Province and that three of the rebels were killed in the battle. The deputy prime minister also said that in the clash, two helicopter gunships used in the exercise were slightly damaged by gunfire and one border patrol policeman was killed while two others were wounded.

Gen Prachuap said that about 40 followers of Khun Sa were involved. He discounted reports in some newspapers that hundreds of foreign troops had tried to recapture Ban Thoet Thai (formerly Ban Hin Taek). He said the 40 men had come to seek food from villagers when they encountered the exercise which was due to end in 10 days time.

The deputy prime minister explained that the military and border patrol forces had introduced the joint armed exercises in the area after capturing Ban Hin Taek and destroying Khun Sa's influence in January.

Yesterday, government forces with air support from helicopter gunships overpowered Khun Sa's men and completely brought the situation completely under control, Gen Prachuap said. He said reports reaching him this morning said the situation there was quiet last night "with not a single shot fired." He also said that government troops had captured the three bodies of Khun Sa's men in their custody. However, he said, Khun Sa still has about 1,000 armed men, but most of them were now "outside Thai soil."

SITTHI: 'NO OBJECTION' TO SIHANOUK BORDER VISIT

[Excerpts] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila said yeterday that former Kampuchean head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk will be allowed to visit his supporters at the Thai border if and when a coalition government of the three Kampuchean resistance factions is established.

Speaking at Don Muang airport before leaving for Beijing yesterday, the Thai foreign minister said he was confident that talks on the formation of a coalition government will be successful.

ACM Sitthi together with undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, M.R. Kasemsamoson Kasemsi, Director-General of the POlitical Department Asa Sarasin and his secretary, Sakthip Krairoek, are paying a five-day visit to China as guests of the Chinese Government.

Asked about a recent report from Beijing that Prince Sihanouk, the leader of the Moulinaka faction, planned to visit his supporters along the border to Thailand by the end of this month, ACM Sitthi said that the prince had asked the Thai Government's permission some time ago. "We will have no objection if the prince visits his supporters after establishment of a coalition government," he added.

FOREIGN MINISTER REJECTS THACH ON UN SEAT

"The Vietnamese want the Kampuchean seat, now occupied by the representative of the Democratic Kamphchea Government, to be left empny so that they can later propose that it be filed by a representative of Heng Samrin regime," Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said.

The foreign minister, in his response to the "empty seat" proposal outlined by his Vietnamese counterpart Nguyen Co Thach on Thursday, said he was certain that there would be no change in the seating position this year.

In fact, he added, if the three Kampuchean resistance factions can form their coalition government in time, they will pick up more support for their continued representation in the General assembly.

"The Association of Southeast Asian Nations prefers that the legitimate government of Kampuchea retain its seat," ACM Sitthi said.

Mr Thach, in his interview, had said that the UN could help bring about a negotiated settlement in Kampuchea if it acted as an "honest broker" and stopped backing the Democratic Kampuchea Government.

ACM Sitthi said the Vietnamese repeat the same call every year but Democratic Kampuchea has also seen a steady increase in its support at the UN.

He denied Thach's claim that Thai leaders had proposed a meeting with him and then changed their minds after he agreed to the meeting.

ACM Sitthi said he had never sought a meeting with Thach after two earlier meetings when "I realised that there was nothing to be discussed.

"I wanted to talk to him about the implementation of the UN resolution on Kampuchea but he kep insisting that there was no problem in Kampuchea to be discussed."

Instead, ACM Sitthi said, it is Thach who has tried through various channels, including Democrat Party leader Bhichai Rattakul, to convey the idea that he would like to hold talks with Thailand to settle the border problems.

He said that though Thailand and its ASEAN partners were agreed that Vietnam's proposals for meetings were nothing new, Thailand was still keeping the door open for discussion of any new idea.

But the foreign minister said that any future contacts should be at lower levels first.

RECENT CHINESE BORDER INCIDENTS DETAILED

BK071527 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 7 May 82

[Text] In April, the Chinese side repeatedly sent border guards, militia, commandos and scouts to carry out armed provocation and intrude into our territory to sabotage production and disrupt the normal activities of our people in the border area.

In Ha Tuyen Province, on 5, 8, 16, 17, 22, 24 and 25 April, Chinese troops repeatedly fired AK's, machine guns and 82 mm mortars into many populated areas in Xin Man, Dong Van, Meo Vac and Vi Xuyen Districts, destroying houses and crops and wounding a number of our people engaged in production work.

On 10 April, in Cao Bang province, a platoon of Chinese troops intruded into the area of Border Post 92 in Tra Linh and fired on various villages and hamlets, killing or wounding two of our people.

On 19 and 28 April, in Hoang Lien Son, Chinese troops fired machineguns and 82 mm mortars into Lao Cai City, damaging many houses and wounding a number of old people and children.

On 21 April, Chinese troops fired tens of 120 mm mortar shells on our border defense post at Trinh Tuong and on 28 April they fired 82 mm mortar shells on our border defense post at (Mut Sang) in Bat Xat District, wounding five of our combatants.

On 29 April, they opened fire on the populated area in Bat Xat district, setting a house on fire and wounding three of our people.

Along with their acts of armed provocation, the Chinese side sent many teams of militia, scouts and commandos to intrude into our border area to carry out reconnaissance and sabotage missions.

On 16 and 19 April, many groups of scouts intruded into the border villages of Bao Lac and Trung Khanh Districts, Cao Bang Province. A number of these scouts were captured.

On 24 April more than 30 Chinese militiamen intruded into the border area of Bat Xat District. On the same day, more than 40 other Chinese militiamen crossed the border at Border Marker 74 in Trung Khanh district, Cao Bang Province, and penetrated 1 km deep into our territory. Detected by the people in the two localities, they ran away. The next day, 25 April, a group of Chinese commandos sneaked into the area of Border Marker 74 in Trung Khanh District, Cao Bang Province and used dynamite to destroy our people's dam in the area.

During the past month, armed Chinese boats and ships intruded into our territorial waters on several occasions from Bach Long Vy Island to the Deo Ngang area in Binh Tri Thien Province. Chinese aircraft also violated our airspace in Trung Khanh district, Cao Bang province.

To cover up these criminal acts, the Chinese side has resorted to its familiar trick of a thief crying stop thief, slanderously accusing us of committing armed provocations at the Chinese border. But they have not been able to deceive anyone.

These acts were part of the Chinese side's calculated scheme aimed at creating tension at the border area between the two countries and continuing its hostile policy against Vietnam.

Constantly upholding vigilance, our armed forces and people at the border area have resolutely punished the criminal actions of the Chinese troops.

U.S. EFFORTS TO BLOCK UN AID TO SRV SCORED

Hanoi Radio Comment

BK061247 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 7 May 82

[Text] The Washington authorities have made another hostile action against Vietnam. They pressured certain members of the World Food Program to disapprove an aid bill worth $5 million for the building of an irrigation project in Dau Tieng, southern Vietnam.

This was the third time the aid project was rejected by Washington, though it was slashed from $27 to 4 million. Like the previous occasions, at a meeting in Rome in late April, Washington's representative again rejected the project for technical reasons.

Many members of the World Food Program pointed out that Washington intended to camouflage its political move. In fact, following its withdrawal from Vietnam, the U.S. sought every means to weaken Vietnam in all fields — military, political, diplomatic and economic. It not only encouraged and supported China's invasion of Vietnam, but also slandered and tried to isolate Vietnam in the international arena. It not only refused to contribute to healing the wounds of war in Vietnam but also blocked the economic aid to Vietnam. The ultimate aim is to bleed Vietnam white.

It should be recalled that the Dau Tieng irrigation project was carefully considered by various U.S. organizations and many members of the World Food Program a marvelous draft in the technical and economic respect [sentence as heard]. The project is also designed to help Vietnam to water 170,000 hectares of land, to expand the cultivated area and to improve the environment of Tay Ninh Province, northeastern Ho Chi Minh city, which was heavily destroyed by U.S. bombs and toxic chemicals.

By rejecting this aid project, the Washington authorities have exposed their inhuman nature. Formerly, they wrought havoc on Vietnam; now they continue to prevent the Vietnamese from healing the wounds of war and rebuilding their country.

David Monroe, a British cameraman who visited Vietnam late last year, had this remark: The sequels of war have become more serious than the U.S. policy of encirclement and economic blockade against Vietnam.

David Monroe said that thousands of Vietnamese children have been affected by Agent Orange and hydrocephalic disease.

By rejecting humanitarian aid of international organizations, including the World Food Program, for Vietnam, the Washington authorities also intended to prevent them from helping the underdeveloped countries, regardless of political system, resource and religion. But the use of humanitarian aid as a political weapon will certainly be condemned by progressive public opinion in the world.

VNA Reaction

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 9 -- The World Food Programme (W.F.P.), under the pressure of the United States and some other western countries, on April 29 cancelled a 5.3-million-dollar bill to help finance the building of the Dau Tieng Irrigation Project in the southern Vietnam province of Tay Ninh. The bill was proposed by the W.F.P.'s managerial board. This is also the first time since 1963 when the W.F.P. was formed that such a bill was rejected.

The first W.F.P. bill for the Dau Tieng project, 27 million dollars in value, was proposed at a session in April 1980 of the Food Programme Committee (F.P.C.). This bill was favoured by the general-director of the Food and Agriculture Organiztion (F.A.O.) and a number of international banks as well as by representatives of Sweden, Holland, Norway, France, India, Angola, Cuba and Hungary, etc. Nevertheless, it was suspended because the U.S. and a number of allied countries insisted that the bill be further considered and that Vietnam had received a lot of other aid.

The second bill, five times less in value than the first, was put under a W.F.P. discussion in October 1981, and was persistently rejected by the U.S. delegate. This rejection is another proof of Washington's obstinate hostile policy towards Vietnam in the matter of economic aid.

The U.S. obstructs plans of humanitarian aid to Vietnam in order to bring pressure to bear on the Vietnamese state.

Honest people in many countries have on many occasions pointed out that the U.S. and its allies have the bounden duty to give Vietnam aid to heal the wounds of war and rebuild the country, because they had committed untolerable crimes against the Vietnamese people.

Vietnam resolutely rejects all forms of pressure and will not accept any kind of aid with a political condition attached. Many international organizations have also criticised the United States' wicked moves and have pointed out that humanitarian aid is aimed at improving the living standards of the people of the recipient countries without any political condition attached and without discrimination.

NHAN DAN 9 May Comment

BK100455 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 0400 GMT 9 May 82

[Text] Under the pressure of the United States an some pro-U.S. Western countries, the World Food Program [WFP] on 29 April was compelled to cancel an aid bill worth $5.3 million for the building of the Dau Tieng Irrigation Project in Tay Ninh Province. The bill was proposed by the WFP's managerial board and the Food Program Committee [FPC]. This is also the first time since 1963, when the WFP was formed, that such a bill was rejected.

Condemning this ignominious act by the United States, the paper NHAN DAN today says: The U.S. move to obstruct humanitarian aid to Vietnam is aimed at bringing pressure to bear on our state. Washington is still trying to seek every available means to oppose and undermine the relations of friendship and cooperation between Vietnam and the PRK, as well as to interfere in Kampuchea's internal affairs.

This act has been carried out by the United States in coordination with Beijing's policy against Vietnam. While trying to retain the UN seat for the genocidal clique which has slaughtered 3 million innocent Kampucheans, the United States continues to grossly distort and slander our government and people's correct policy toward Kampuchea.

Our stand, however, is to reject resolutely any pressure and turn down any aid with political conditions attached. Many international organiztions have also criticized the wicked moves of the United States and pointed out that humanitarian aid is aimed at improving the living standards of the people of the recipient countries without any political conditions attached and without discrimination.

EFFORTS TO FORM KAMPUCHEAN COALITION DERIDED

[Vuong Thinh Commentary]

[Excerpts] Recently the reactionary Khmer leaders have been working feverishly for the formation of a loose coalition government composed of three rebel factions headed by Son Sann, Pol Pot and Sihanouk. [passage ommitted reviewing recent activities of the three Khmer facitions and the crimes and overthrow of the Pol Pot regime]

The three factions are now preparing for a new meeting in Kuala Lumpur in an effort to set up a loose coalition government to suit the will of Beijing, Washington and followers among the ASEAN countries. Of course, the Pol Pot remnant forces will play the predominant role in this government.

The actual objective of Beijing and its accomplices is nothing but to embellish the face of the genocidal Khmer Rouge and maintain the label of Democratic Kampuchea and its illegal seat at the United Nations so as to legalize their overall assistance to the Khmer Rouge, including their arms supply, and to subsequently carry out Beijing's plan to restore the genocidal Pol Pot regime in Kampuchea and engage in annexation and expansion in all of Indochina and even Southeast Asia. But Beijing's scheme is one thing; whether it will succeed is another.

Today the People's Republic of Kampuchea, a legitimate and developed country, has scored remarkable achievements in every field and is advancing steadily. This is a fact. The Kampuchean people's revival has been truly wonderful. Although they still have to overcome many difficulties, the Kampuchean situation is fine and irreversible.

In fact of this situation, Beijing's efforts to set up a loose coalition government with a view to locking up three wild horses together in a single stable will obviously be futile and will reveal only its ignominious nature. As for those who advertise this strange government, including the leaders of a number of ASEAN countries, especially Singapore and Thailand, represented by Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon and Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila, they are only playing the role of horse handlers hired by Beijing.

Broad public opinion and also the Thai people have shown dissatisfaction with Prem for repeating Beijing's allegations on his recent West European tour, for publicly slandering Vietnam and inciting his host countries not to cooperate with Vietnam. As for Mr Sitthi Sawetsila, it has been reported that he will go to Beijing on 9 May to coordinate with Zhongnanhai in arranging a new meeting of the Khmer rebels to find a so-called solution to the Kampuchean issue. This is nothing but an act of collusion with Beijing and Washington to abet the Khmer reactionaries, sabotage the revival of the Kampuchean people and oppose the peoples of the three Indochinese countries, running counter to the trend of dialogue and undermining peace and stability in Southeast Asia. This vile action will surely be cursed by public opinion and will only result in isolation and failure.

NHAN DAN HITS SALVADORAN PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 8 -- NHAN DAN today describes Alvaro Magana's election as interim president of El Salvador to succeed N. Durate as a demagogic ploy to continue the U.S. intervention in that country.

"Following the farcical elections to the constituent assembly", the paper points out, "the election of a 'civilian president' was another move to deceive the Salvadoran people and world public opinion, who had strongly condemned the reactionary Duarte-Gutierrez junta, and to legalize a U.S.-sponsored regime with sham democracy".

The paper points out that the ultra-rightist forces which form the overwhelming majority of the new assembly are planning to increase suppression of patriotic, democratic forces while strongly opposing all economic and social reforms.

"Disregarding the genuine aspirations of the Salvadoran and other Latin American peoples and criticism by American public opinion", NHAN DAN says, "the Reagan administration is increasing intervention in El Salvador to prolong the U.S. rule and to use that country as a springboard against revolutionary movements in Central America and the Caribbean."

ELECTION INSTITUTE REPORTS VOTING FIGURES

BK080913 Jakarta ANTARA in English 0736 GMT 8 May 82

[Text] Jakarta, 7 May (ANTARA) -- With 74,842,257 votes (91.11 percent of the total 82,132,293 registered voters) counted by 2048 [1348 GMT] Friday, the positions of the three election contestants -- the Moslem PPP, the Golkar Functional Group and the Indonesian Democratic Party PDI remained almost unchanged.

Provisional results of the May 4 polling released by the General Election Institute Friday night indicated that Golkar's victories in all the provinces except Aceh have been strengthened by 381,263 votes to make the total 74,842,357 compared with 74,361,096 the preceding night (Thursday). That represented 58.39 percent of the total number of registered voters (82 million plus) which would mean that Golkar would share more than 64 percent of the 364 parliamentary seats at stake.

PPP's total votes Friday increased slightly to 20,947,831 and PDI's 5,941,731 Friday night as against the previous 20,802,415 and 5,924,372 respectively. Percentagewise the figures were 25.5 percent (25.32 percent) and 7.23 percent (7.21 percent) in that order.

With only less than 9 percent of the total votes (assuming 100 percent of the registered voters cast valid ballots) still being awaited it is almost certain that Golkar will win majority votes in 26 provinces except Aceh and that both PPP and PDI would both suffer setbacks compared with the results of the 1977 general election.

The following table shows the standings of the three contestants at 2048 Friday:

SUDOMO COMMENTS ON EAST TIMOR SITUATION

BK271246 Hong Kong AFP in English 1056 GMT 27 Apr 82

[Text] Jakarta, 27 Apr (AFP) -- There are still between 100 and 200 left-wing Fretilin men opposing Indonesian rule in the former Portuguese colony of East Timor, National Security Chief Admiral Sudomo said today. Talking to foreign newsmen he said the security situation in East Timor had been improving considerably. "There are still Fretilin remnants deep in the interior numbering between 100 and 200," he said. They posed no threat at all, he added.

Asked if foreign journalists were allowed to go to East Timor, he replied, "They are. Anyone wishing to go there, many go because there is no ban." He looked surprised when told that the Information Ministry, which is in charge of press activities, had not given the green light to foreign correspondents wishing to go to Timor. "Basically there is no restriction," he said.

KOMOTO ON WORLD ECONOMIC ISSUES AT OECD MEETING

[Text] Paris, May 10, KYODO -- Toshio Komoto, head of Japan's Economic Planning Agency, Monday criticized high interest rates in the United States at a ministerial council session here of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). Though conceding that high interest rates represented U.S. efforts to control inflation, Komoto nevertheless stressed that they were "reducing policy options open to OECD member countries and are having serious effects on their economic activities." He voiced the criticism after describing high interest rates prevailing worldwide as a great obstacle to increased private investment, which he noted as one of the necessary conditions for pulling the world economy out of current stagnation. Komoto also called for maintaining and strengthening the free trading system and promoting industrial cooperation and technological exchanges among nations.

The Japanese minister also emphasized the need to press forward with measures to ensure stable supplies of energy. "Now, when the world is enjoying a slight respite with regard to oil supply," he said, "we must push forward, in international cooperation, with policy measures such as ensuring stable oil supply, energy conservation, development of alternative energy sources and building up oil stocks." All of these measures are necessary to revitalize economic activity, he said.

Touching on the management of the Japanese economy, Kmoto said Tokyo intended to "bring about economic growth sustained by domestic demand." In this context, he referred to Japan's interest rates, which are lower than those of other countries. He said that although Japan's nominal interest rates were low, its real interest rates were considered rather high as Japan's inflation rate was the lowest among the OECD nations.

"In this respect," he said, "the appropriate environment should be created for the use of flexible monetary policies to promote the domestic demand-sector investment and expanding equilibrium of trade." This was taken here as indicating that there was a possibility of reducing the Bank of Japan's official discount rate further.

Komoto also referred to Tokyo's current effort to open the Japanese market wider to foreign products -- an apparent attempt to allay persistent dissatisfaction in the U.S. and Western Europe with their massive trade deficits with Japan.

The Japanese Government, he said, has decided not only to carry out an across-the-board reduction of tariff rates two years ahead of the schedule agreed upon in the Tokyo round of multilateral trade talks, but to take such steps as improvement of Japan's import inspection procedures. "We will further endeavor to make our market more open from a long-term and overall point of view and, to this end, intend to make a decision soon on the second series of external economic measures (for increasing access to the Japanese market)," he said.

MITI MINISTER ABE LEAVES FOR PARIS TRADE TALKS

[Text] Tokyo, May 11, KYODO -- Shintaro Abe, minister of international trade and industry, left for Paris Monday night to attend the second trilateral trade conference to be held near the French capital Wednesday and Thursday. At the meeting, Abe will exchange views on trade problems with U.S. Trade Representative William Brock; Canadian Minister of State for Trade Ed Lumley; and Wilhelm Haferkamp, vice president of the European Community Commission.

Ministry of International Trade and Industry officials said discussions at the conference, regarded as a warm-up for the Versailles summit of seven industrial democracies, will also cover ways to revitalize the sluggish economy. Abe is expected to explain Japan's new package of measures to open its market wider to foreign goods, now in the making, at the meeting, they said. He will also confer separately with Brock and Haferkamp on bilateral trade problems, they added.

FINANCE MINISTRY MISSION LEAVES FOR U.S., EUROPE

[Text] Tokyo, May 10, KYODO -- Japan sent a mission Monday to Europe and the United States to explain that its financial market is as open to foreign interests as those of the U.S. and European countries. The mission, made up of representatives of the finance ministry, banks and securities companies, is to visit Brussels on the first leg of a 12-day trip.

The mission is expected to visit West Germany, Britain and the U.S. later for direct talks with financial authorities, bankers and journalists to give such an explanation. The mission is led by Toshio Nagaoka, deputy director general of the Finance Ministry's Bureau of International Finance.

A bureau official said the mission would stress that the yen's internationalization has made rapid progress, and that the Japanese financial market is as open to foreign interests as those of European countries and the U.S. The mission is expected to return to Tokyo May 23.

OFFICIAL ON SOUTH KOREAN AID COMPROMISE PLAN

[Text] Tokyo, May 11, KYODO -- The government is asking South Korea to produce a new compromise position on the deadlocked bilateral negotiations on its dollar 6 billion loans request from Japan. This was disclosed Tuesday by Akitane Kiuchi, director general of the Asian Affairs Bureau of the Foreign Ministry, in his reply to opposition questioners at an upper house committee concerning Korea's aid request for its current five-year social and economic development program. Kiuchi admitted that he was not necessarily optimistic about a quick solution to the stalled negotiations.

In its latest effort, Japan sent Masasuke Yanagiya, deputy foreign minister, to Seoul late last month to seek a compromise by offering some dollar 4 billion loans, including about dollar 1.5 billion in governmental yen loans.

Despite two rounds of talks between Yanagiya and Korean Foreign Minister No Sin-yong, however, the two countries failed to narrow the gap, forcing the Tokyo government to give up a plan for compromise solution to it with a Seoul visit by Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi earlier this month. The negotiators in the Seoul talks only agreed to continue the talks.

During Tuesday's house committee meeting, Kiuchi said the dollar 4 billion Japan proposed to Seoul last month is the highest Japan now could offer to help the Korean Government for the five-year program.

Also appearing before the house meeting, Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa said he understood that the Korean side had shown its understanding of the Japanese Government's efforts and sincerity in seeking accord on the problem.

[Text] Nagoya, May 10, KYODO -- A total of some 455 business leaders from 22 countries opened a four-day conference here Monday morning to discuss ways to promote economic cooperation in the Pacific Basin region.

At the 15th general meeting of the Pacific Basin Economic Council (PBEC), the participants will also exchange views on such matters as international trade friction, North-South economic cooperation and the possibility of forming a Pacific economic bloc like the European common market.

Substantial discussions on these matters will begin at a plenary session to be held Tuesday with Noboru Goto, vice president of the Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry, and James D. Hodson, former U.S. ambassador to Japan and vice chairman of the U.S. PBEC National Committee, serving as co-chairman.

The PEC concept, proposed by Goto in 1979, calls for establishment of an economic cooperation organization like the European Common Market for the two ultimate purposes of achieving balanced economic growth in Pacific Basin countries and establishing an international economic order through promotion of free international trade and investment activities.

NODONG SINMUN HITS U.S. CENTRAL AMERICAN POLICY

SK101548 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1527 GMT 10 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 10 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today carries an article titled "U.S. Imperialists Must Withdraw Their Hands of Interference From Central American Region," which says:

Letting out the outburst that only "A prompt and decisive action can prevent the appearance of a new Cuba or a new Nicaragua, the United States is now staging a large-scale war exercise called "Ocean Venture 82" in the Caribbean region and earlier, in March, they held the first large-scale NATO military rehearsal in the Gulf of Mexico, since the NATO was formed, the article notes, and adds:

This indicates that the United States renders a zealous backing, economic and military, to the pro-U.S. reactionary regimes in that region, while driving them into the suppression of people and fascistization, in order to block the trend towards independence, the paper says:

The high-handed armed intervention of the U.S. imperialists and their plots to overthrow others governments are an anachronistic act. With no desperate attempt can they bar the righteous struggle of the Central American peoples for independence and liberation. The U.S. imperialists must discontinue their criminal acts going against the will and desire and the peoples in this region and withdraw their hands of interference from there.

EX-ROK OFFICIAL PRAISES KIM IL-SONG, KIM CHONG-IL

[Statement issued at Pyongyang press conference on 7 May by Choe Tok-sin, former South Korean foreign minister, former commander of South Korean Army Corps and former president of the Central Headquarters of Chondoism -- read by announcer]

[Text] A U.S.-resident Korean compatriot Mr Choe Tok-sin, former South Korean foreign minister, former commander of a South Korean Army Corps as a lieutenant general and former president of the Central Headquarters of Chondoism, who was visiting the homeland to congratulate the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on his 70th birthday, was interviewed by reporters on 7 May before leaving Pyongyang.

Placed on the front wall of the news conference room was a portrait of the great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song. Present at the news conference were reporters working for newspaper, broadcast and news agency media in Pyongyang. At the news conference, Mr Choe Tok-sin issued a statement on his departure.

The statement reads: I visited the northern half of the republic -- my homeland -- for the second time to offer congratulations to the great leader President Kim Il-song on his 70th birthday. The president's birthday is not only a national festivity of all Koreans loving the country and the nation, irrespective of their ideology and system, but a common holiday of the world's people aspiring to live in a new independent world.

When I visited the homeland for the first time last year, I was impressed by the great achievements the great president had made for the country and the nation. Since then I have confirmed that the president is the great leader all Koreans loving the country and the nation -- be they communists or nationalists -- should admire and uphold. For this reason, I have resolutely come to the road to the liberation of the fatherland, believing that greeting the president on his 70th birthday is an obligation as a member of the nation.

While in the fatherland, I had the opportunity to participate in celebrations marking the president's 70th birthday with compatriots, brothers and sisters and high-ranking officials from the five continents of the world and to tour various places of the fatherland. I had the highest honor and joy of being received and invited to a luncheon by the president on 3 May.

Leaving my fatherland, the country of the great President Kim Il-song and the bosom of the dear leader Mr Kim Chong-il with such supreme honor, I intend to briefly tell the people at home and abroad my impression of the 15 April festivities and of various places of the northern half of the republic.

1. On the worldwide grand political festival.

The 70th birthday of President Kim Il-song was not only the grand festival of Korea but also a grand festival of the Third World and a great jubilee of the world. This was proved by the fact that congratulatory delegations consisting of heads of state and high-ranking leaders of governments, political parties and organizations and congratulatory troupes of noted artists came to Pyongyang from a hundred and scores of countries, representing all races and classes in all continents of the globe. Furthermore, congratulatory delegations offered greetings to the president on his 70th birthday, unanimously extolling the greatness of the president and his achievements, transcending differences in their customs, country, continent, ideology and system. Artists at home and aborad dedicated to the president a hymn of best wishes, singing "The Sun of Mankind" unanimously in Korean. At an evening party, hosts and guests joyfully danced together.

When I met and conversed with foreign guests, I discovered that their words and deeds came from the heart. For this reason, I cannot but say the president's 70th birthday was a world-wide fete. When did we have this grand fete in the history of our nation? When was this kind of grand political event held in the world? Only our fellow countrymen, who uphold the sun of mankind, could receive the glory of celebrating this kind of grand fete.

In other words, this unheard-of festive event was a natural outcome of the greatness of the president and a proof of the tremendous might of this greatness.

If it were not the 70th birthday of a world-famous, great man respected by mankind and worshipped by all people, how could so long a procession of congratulatory delegations come to the East from all parts of the globe and how could the voices of congratulations from the bottom of hearts of all people at home and abroad be so loud?

I definitely state that throughout history there has not been so extraordinary and outstanding leader of all people in the East or West as our president.

I think that the greatness of the president lies in the greatness of thought and theory, the greatness of the exploits of leadership and nobleness of personality and virtue.

The great leader [yongsu] President Kim Il-song, whom the people heartily respect, is the man who has opened up the genuine ideological history for human beings in the long ideological history of mankind by discovering and creating the chuche idea, giving the water of life to mankind and indicating the course of history in which all the world people believe; who has built a paradise for people in the northern half of the fatherland by putting the great chuche idea into practice; who has ushered in a new historical era in which the independence of mankind is glorified, the independence of the nation is respected and the world is made independent on the globe; and who has devoted himself to life for people by always serving the masses, regarding them as his teachers, and sharing their joys and sorrows.

The president is the great man of outstanding great men and a mythological, illustrious hero who enjoys the reverence of all sensible figures and whom even obstinate followers of hostile ideology cannot but respect.

It is only too natural, therefore, that the 70th birthday of the president was declared as a worldwide holiday.

It was, I think, also a fruition of the outstanding leadership [yongdoryok] of the dear leader Mr Kim Chong-il that the 70th birthday of the president could be adorned as the greatest jubilee ever in history.

It is not likely at all that the functions marking the 70th birthday of the president had been organized by the president himself. The compatriots of the fatherland have said that the outstanding dear leader Mr Kim Chong-il who personally designs, plans and administers all state affairs in the northern half of the fatherland directly initiated, organized and guided all the celebrations.

All the world people, awed, have marveled at the high-level technology, content and art of the grand mass gymnastic display of school children and students in Pyongyang, the grand festive performance of a total of 5,000 artists, the grand soiree of the working people in the city and all the other colorful and gigantic events. And all foreigners have been unsparing in their unanimous praise of the outstanding organizational skill and leadership over these events.

Moreover, because of their magnificance and size, and the modern, long-range architectural art and wholeheartedness dwelling in them, the Tower of the Chuche Idea and the Arch of Triumph which were built on the eve of the president's birthday are great monuments -- unprecedented in the world -- and masterpieces of world's highest grade.

Along with these, the Kim Il-song Stadium, the Land People's Study House, the Munsu Street resembling a city, the Chongryu Restaurant, the ice rink, the department store and many other buildings which have sprung up like so many mushrooms after a rain are wonderous creations -- unprecedented in the world's architectural history.

The construction of all these buildings had been just begun or had not been begun yet when I arrived here in July last year. However, I was really surprised at the fact that their construction was completed in only a few months.

Underlying these mysterious miracles are the extraordinary intelligence and matchless leadership of Mr Kim Chong-il, a sagacious great master of guidance. [yongmyonghasin hyangdoui kojang]

Meeting up with such facts which deserve congratulations, I had no choice but to express my highest accolades to the dear leader and praise his greatness. He is, indeed, a great man of versatile talents and accomplishments, who is possessed of the intelligence of foresight and the secret of the marvelous art of leadership.

He who created a stir in the history of world philosophy by making public the immortal classic treatise on the chuche idea on the occasion of the 70th birthday of the president is a great sage who will represent the future of the nation and mankind, appearing ahead of time with the ability of a flawless man to lead the highly developed society of thousands of years ahead.

I confess that I could understand at last the true reason why many public figures of all circles the world over come to Pyongyang.

For this reason, it is by no means an accident that many foreign delegations have come to offer congratulations. This is our nation's pride and glory in the highest form. How can anyone with human conscience and national soul fail to derive national dignity from the fact that we uphold two great leaders?

In the past, our nation had been dominated by other countries. Therefore, flunkeysts crowded this country and our nation had to suffer the tragedy of wailing and lamenting loudly on the loss of the nation. Our nation, with its sovereignty lost, which once had to beg for independence from other countries and cried out for national independence by committing suicide by disembowelment at the international peace conference, has now emerged as a great nation in the spotlight of the times, envied by the world. Is it not because we uphold the great leader?

It is natural for all Korean compatriots living abroad to praise the great national leader President Kim Il-song as the sun and to celebrate his birthday. I think it is natural for them to admire the dear comrade leader Mr Kim Chong-il who is further more shining national dignity by inheriting the cause of President Kim Il-song.

2. About the national strength of the northern half of the fatherland:

When I visited here in 1981, I was surprised at the entirely changed aspect of the fatherland and endlessly admired it. Now, this time, I came to have an understanding of the true aspect of my fatherland in principle and came to have new conviction. That is, the northern half of my fatherland is a great nation possessing world-renowned, great national strength.

When we talk about the national strength, we often refer to economic strength. But I think we should not look at it that way. The essence of national strength is the leader and people. In other words, what leader the nation upholds and what people it populates, what kind of relations it has between the leader and the people and what mutual relations the people have among themselves are the basis of national strength; then come economic and military strength.

In view of this, the republic is guided by the great President Kim Il-song revered by the world people and the dear leader Mr Kim Chong-il who has inherited all his distinguished personality, intelligence and ability.

And under the leadership of these are the great, educated people. The greatness of the compatriots living in the fatherland is proved by all the surprising reality constructed and created in the land of the fatherland. As commented unanimously by the foreigners upon the celebration functions, the greatness is also displayed in the fact that the people are organized and united.

All compatriots in the homeland are one in body and spirit, armed and guided by the chuche idea. In particular, the leader loves the people and the people love the leader with high esteem -- this is a common sense of duty here, the superior and the inferior forming one flesh. Everyone admits that no other such people, united as firm as rock, can be seen in any other part of the world.

The power of such a people is stronger than that of atomic or nuclear bombs. Physical force can destroy buildings but not the people's spiritual power.

It is my conviction that the fact that the homeland is achieving such surprising development and daily creating miracles originate from this. Great, likewise, is the economic potential.

On the occasion of the great holiday of April, all the aforesaid monumental edifices built within a few months or a year and all the children and families received precious presents all at once. This is unthinkable without mighty economic power. Therefore, all people here are leading a happy life.

Here one does not find the unfortunate life which is seen everywhere in South Korea. People here are equal and in harmony with bright faces and their chests out.

Even though there are no privileged class or places where they seek pleasure, there are places offering pleasures for the masses. There are no private swimming pools, but there are public swimming pools and public bathrooms. Even though there is no system under which only the haves can study, in this society there is a study system by which all the people can learn and study until they are old and die. This is the reality of the northern half of the homeland.

This is why I said that this is the earthly paradise desired in our chondoism. What I have understood here this time is that everybody in the homeland, because he is free from the worries of eating, shelter, educating the children, getting medical treatment and taxes and because he is living well and working happily free from all worry, lives to an advanced age.

In the northern half of the fatherland, people sing about being young in the 60's and celebrating birthdays in their 90's, but I want to say that they are still young in their 70's and celebrate their 100th birthdays.

What makes me most happy is that the great president is still an active man in his 70's. Good health and long life of the president is what is most desired by the people. That is what gives them the greatest pleasure.

Looking up to the respected president, I want to sing to the joy of being young in the 70's and celebrating a 100th birthday, hoping that he will not grow any older.

Of course, the people in the northern half of the homeland are wishing the same thing. I believe that to be young in the 70's and to celebrate a 100th birthday reflect the reality of the homeland. Not only humans live a long life in this paradise but also the mountains, rivers, grass and trees, and birds of all kinds. Even the fish, free from the damages caused by human beings and pollution, live and grow.

It is a land utterly different from what I had been told in the south and abroad. The reality is quite different, indeed.

What does this peaceful paradise have to do with the threat of southward invasion clamored about by the authorities in the south? The Grand People's Study Hall in which the people learn or great resort places where the working people rest and seek pleasure cannot pose the threat of southward invasion. It is undeniable clear that the stadium where the students perform mass gymnastic exercises or the department stores crowded by the customers cannot be bullets and cannon shells threatening them. Presenting my impressions of the celebrations for the great world-renowned holiday and some of what I believe, I am convinced that the compatriots in the south and abroad will trust me.

Of course, I understand that a few who have not seen the reality will harbor misgivings. That is because I had once been in such a whirlwind in the past. Nevertheless, truth is always exposed to the light. Those who only heard anticommunist propaganda in the south and abroad will one day come to see justice and truth. This is my firm belief.

Looking forward to such a day, I will devote myself to the social democratization of the south and the cause of national reunification to make all the compatriots in the south and abroad understand the reality of the northern half of the republic, and all the compatriots at home and abroad will live harmoniously and happily in the land of the fatherland.

In conclusion, I wholeheartedly wish good health and long life to the great President Kim Il-song and the dear leader Mr Kim Chong-il.

At the same time, I express my gratitude to the compatriots in the northern half of the republic who accorded me such hospitality during my visit.

NODONG SINMUN: PARTY GUIDES REUNIFICATION EFFORT

SK080210 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2225 GMT 7 May 82

[NODONG SINMUN 8 May special article: "The KWP is a Guide Which Leads the Cause of the Fatherland's Reunification to Victory"]

[Text] The Korean revolution has advanced far since the time when the chuche revolutionary cause began to develop in the forest of Mt Paektu. During a period of more than half a century, under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our people have achieved the liberation of the fatherland, successfully carried out a two-stage social revolution and changed our country, which once was backward, into a most powerful socialist industrial country by vigorously accelerating construction. However, our chuche cause has not been completed. Our people still have to travel a long and grim road. While expediting the complete victory of socialism in the northern half of the republic, we should achieve the country's independent and peaceful reunification -- a unanimous and ardent desire of all the people -- by smashing the maneuvers of the splittists at home and abroad to fabricate two Koreas. Thus, we should cement the severed lifeline of the people and build an independent, prosperous, powerful and wealthy unified country in the 3,000-li land.

Our glorious party is leading the struggle to accomplish the sacred cause of the fatherland's reunification. The KWP -- the organizer and encourager of all victories of our people -- is a guiding force which, taking responsibility for the destiny of all the people, is making every effort to achieve the cause of reunification. Through their experiences, our people firmly believe that they can achieve the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification only under the leadership of the party. Just as our people greeted the historic great event of the liberation of the fatherland as a great victory by loyally holding in high esteem the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, all party members and workers are now firmly determined to achieve the cause of the fatherland's reunification without fail by following the brilliant guidance of the glorious party center.

1. The KWP is the party which, regarding the cause of the fatherland's reunification as the most important revolutionary task, actively struggles to achieve this cause. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Reunifying the divided fatherland is the supreme national duty and the most important revolutionary task assigned our party and people.

Whether or not the party correctly sets forth the revolutionary task poses a basic question which influences the leading position and role of the party. Only a party which sets forth a correct revolutionary task can correctly organize and mobilize the people in the struggle to accomplish this task. However, correctly setting forth the revolutionary task is not easy. Only a party which resolutely struggles to meet the desire of the people and which has insight into the lawful rule of the development of history, and into the trend of the contemporary era based on a correct guiding idea, can set forth a most correct revolutionary task.

The KWP is an advance unit which completely takes responsibility for the destiny of our people and leads the work of pioneering this destiny. The duty of our party is to provide the people with an independent and creative life and to achieve the endless prosperity of the people. Without the struggle to achieve the freedom, happiness, prosperity and bright future of our peoples, we cannot imagine the struggle of our party. To achieve the freedom and happiness of all the people, our party, while resolutely protecting the sovereignty of the country and the people and while leading the people, has established the most advanced socialist system and built on a wasteland a powerful socialist country which has the solid foundation of a self-reliant national economy and a brilliant national culture. To help our people enjoy a better life, our party has set forth a new, magnificent plan for socialist construction and has led the struggle to implement this plan.

Indeed, there is no more precious thing for our party than the interests of the country and the people. There is no more sacred thing for it than to fulfill the will and desire of the people. Today, the unanimous desire of the Korean people is to end the division of the people at the earliest possible date and achieve the country's reunification. The Korean people have suffered the tragedy of division of the people for nearly 40 years. The division of the national territory and the people, which has been forced by foreign forces, has not only hindered the uniform development of the country, but also brought greater misfortune and suffering to our people with each passing day. In particular, national division has brought immeasurable disaster to the South Korean people. If we fail to achieve the fatherland's reunification and make division lasting, the Korean people will remain divided forever and the South Korean people will be unable to extricate themselves from the yoke of slavery. Indeed, ending the tragedy of the division of the people and reunifying the fatherland is the supreme, long-cherished desire of the Korean people, the implementation of which should not be delayed even a moment. This is a vital issue which influences the destiny of the people.

Without fulfilling such an ardent desire of the people, no one can accomplish his duty before history and the contemporary era and struggle to protect the interests of the people and to achieve their prosperity and development.

While struggling to achieve the prosperity of the country, completely taking responsibility for the destiny of the people, our party has regarded the fatherland's reunification as the most urgent revolutionary task to prevent the division of the people and end the misfortunes and disasters suffered by the South Korean people.

Regarding the immortal chuche idea invented by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as a guideline, the KWP is struggling to embody this idea. Because of this, regarding sovereignty as the lifeline of the country and the people, our party is struggling to resolutely protect and safeguard it. By struggling under the banner of the chuche idea, our party has built a self-reliant, independent and powerful socialist country capable of self-defense in the northern half of the republic and helped the people become the masters of the country, society and their own destiny. This is a great victory and a brilliant result which our party has achieved in the struggle to embody the chuche idea. Because of the division of the national territory and the people, however, our people have failed to achieve sovereignty on a nationwide scale and their dignity and honor have been cruelly trampled underfoot in the half of the country. The half of the national territory has been trampled underfoot by foreign aggressors and two-thirds of the people are still bound to the iron shackle of oppression. This is the greatest tragedy suffered by our country and people.

Unless this tragedy is ended, we cannot achieve the sovereignty of the people. Nor can we help all the people become the true masters of their own destiny. Because of this, our party has regarded the task of achieving nationwide sovereignty by reunifying the country to achieve the pan-national victory of the chuche idea as the most important revolutionary task.

There is no more painful thing for our party than to see the division of the people continue. There is no more urgent task for it than to reunify the fatherland. It is the firm will and stand of our party that we cannot bequeath a divided fatherland to our next generation and that we should reunify the country without fail in our generation. Proceeding from this, all the activities of our party have been directed and devoted to the sacred cause of the fatherland's reunification -- a joint cause of the people. In formulating policy or even setting forth a plan, our party has always placed first priority on the cause of reunification. While building a new plant or while erecting a monumental object, it has carried out these projects with a single desire for reunification. This eloquently shows how dearly our party values the interests and destiny of the people. Indeed, there is no other such party as our party which values the destiny of the people and which ardently desires the country's reunification. This shows that our party is a patriotic party which truly loves the country and the people and which makes every effort to achieve the cause of the fatherland's reunification.

2. The KWP is a great party which leads to victory, the struggle of our people to achieve the fatherland's reunification. To lead the people along the straight road of victory, the party should always set forth a correct goal and method and skillfully lead the struggle to achieve this goal. Thus, it can tell the people which road they should traverse in their advance, help them entertain firm confidence in victory and an indomitable fighting spirit and victoriously pioneer the road of arduous and complicated struggle by organizing and mobilizing the people, overcoming difficulties and trials.

Just as it did in carrying out all other work, our party has always set forth the most correct policy in dealing with the question of the fatherland's reunification. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The basic policy which our party has consistently pursued in the struggle to achieve the fatherland's reunification is to achieve the country's reunification by the Korean people themselves, independently and peacefully based on the principle of democracy, without the interference of any foreign force.

As clarified by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, independent and peaceful reunification is a basic policy firmly followed by our party. In light of the essence and nature of the reunification question, of the will and desire of the people and of the situation in the country, the policy of our party for reunification is totally just. This policy intensively reflects our party's independent, peace-loving and patriotic stand for preventing foreign forces making a mockery of the country and the people and benefiting by randomly interfering in the internal affairs of the people and achieving the contry's reunification without the destruction of the national territory and without the sacrifice of the people.

This is why our party has been consistently maintaining this policy since the country was divided. Based on this policy, our party has sought ways to achieve national reunification, suggested reasonable proposals one after another and taken initiatives to relieve the compatriot's suffering.

Noted in our reunification proposal are such questions as doing away with military confrontation and easing tension in Korea, replacing mistrust and misunderstanding between the North and South with trust and harmony, and realizing exchange and collaboration between the North and South, tearing down barriers between them.

The reunification proposal advanced by our party suggests in detail what would be the form, title, composition and agenda of dialogue and negotiation -- if ever undertaken -- and what would be the contents, means and object and scale of exchange and collaboration between the North and South. Clearly stated in our party's reunification proposal are all the questions related to the country's reunification, such as humanitarism issues designed to ease the suffering of the dispersed families and relatives, convocation of a pannational congress, the quesion of how to guarantee peace in Korea and establishment of a united government by opening the North and South to each other and promoting collaboration and unity between them.

The history of our people's struggle for national reunification is a glorious history in which our party set forth a correct reunification policy and has incited the people to attain it. The 1970's in particular was a proud decade during which our party achieved a great advance in the struggle for the country's independent and peaceful reunification. The 1970's -- when the maneuvers of the splittists at home and abroad for two Koreas were more undisguised than ever before and a serious struggle was waged between national and foreign aggressive forces and between patriotic and nation-selling forces -- was a historic period during which our party took the initiative to overcome obstacles to national reunification by acting energetically.

In the early 1970's when there were dark clouds of permanent national division, our party, proceeding from the desire to advance the dawn of reunification, set forth a new policy for broad dialogue which provided a breakthrough for North-South relations, which had been closed, and opened the door for dialogue. This policy manifested the three principles for national unity, pointing the way for our people and paving the road to reunification.

The three principles -- which, through the historic North-South joint statement, were declared at home and abroad as a joint national program for national salvation and reunification -- were a driving force that propelled the nation's movement for national reunification. That our party laid down the three principles is a great achievement of our party in the struggle for reunification and a shining exploit on behalf of the fatherland and the people.

When the South Korean puppets, in an effort to create two Koreas, adhered to anticommunist rackets and fascist rule at home and worked hard abroad for the simultaneous entry into the United Nations of both North and South Korea to get the nation's division internationally legalized, our party laid down the five-point policy for national reunification, disrupting the puppets' two Koreas plot and dealing a severe blow to their splittist line.

Through this struggle, our party exposed the splittist nature of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets, precipitated their isolation and rallied patriotic forces in South Korea desiring reunification and democracy.

Even at a critical time when fascist attacks against patriotic democratic forces were intensified in South Korea, our party delcared the policy against fascism and for democracy, pointing out the road to democracy and social progress and encouraging the people in their struggle against fascist dictatorship and for democracy and reunification.

Since the former dictator was eliminated, the U.S. imperialists and their stooges have been intensifying the anticommunist policy for confrontation, spreading a rumor about a southward invasion by the North. However, our party has taken a series of initiatives to overcome difficulties with the united strength of the North and South, clarifying its principled stand to find a way out for the nation through collaboration, unity and reunification.

Our party, which leads the van of the nationwide struggle for reunification, has greatly contributed to advancing the reunification movement of our fellow countrymen, displaying the superiority of the line of unity, collaboration and reunification over the line of confronatation, competition and division. As a result, our party has added a new page to the history of the struggle for reunification and national salvation by tearing down the anticommunist bulwark of the imperialists and South Korean reactionaries and vigorously waging a movement for reunification and national salvation at home and abroad. In the magnificent course of democracy and reunification, the South Korean people's struggle for national salvation, thwarting last-ditch efforts by fascists, has developed into the Pusan and Masan resistance for democracy and the Kwangju popular uprising, plunging splittist forces into a predicament and disturbing their colonial and fascist ruling system.

Because of its justness, our party's struggle for the independent reunification of the country in the 1970's found favorable response in the international arena. Just resolutions supporting our party's proposal for the independent reunification and calling for the withdrawal of the U.S. troops from South Korea were adopted at the General Assembly of the United Nations and meetings of the heads of nonaligned countries. Furthermore, committees supporting Korean reunification have been organized in five continents, and movements of solidarity with the Korean people's struggle for the reunification of the fatherland have been vigorously staged on a worldwide scale.

The United Nations, which connived in the occupation by U.S. troops in South Korea for a long time under U.S. influence, adopted a just resolution on Korean affairs. Movements of solidarity with our country's efforts to realize the independent reunification have been strongly staged. This shows that supporting our people's reunification cause is the trend of the times.

The fighting course of our people for national reunification in the 1970's was a proud one along which our party rallied all the patriotic forces under the banner of reunification, thwarted the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets for division and war and put them irretrievably on the defensive. Our party, which had torn down the wall of division and advanced along the road of reunification, put forward a new proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] and its 10-point policy in the 1980's on the basis of successes already attained and is wisely leading our people's struggle for the realization of the new proposal.

The new proposal for realizing the reunification of the country by founding the DCRK is the most reasonable nation-loving and patriotic one demanding that all Koreans who love the country and the nation, placing first priority on the settlement of problems faced by the nation, unite with each other to restore national sovereignty, transcending differences in their ideology, system and faction. The proposal is also the most realistic one which enables the reunification question to be resolved at the earliest date in accord with the interest of the nation and reflecting the present situation in and around the country.

On the basis of our party's correct proposal, the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland in February proposed to convene a joint conference of politicians in the North, South and abroad as a consultative body for reunification. This proposal is a new proposal to open the road to reunification, removing obstacles on the path of reunification. Because of its correctness and realistic nature, the reunification proposal of our party is enjoying broader support and sympathy of the compatriots at home and abroad and the peace-loving people of the world with each passing day.

Overseas Korean compatriots are vigorously staging a movement to hold a dialogue for reunification and raising voices appealing to all patriotic forces to unite together in realizing the reunification cause.

A great response to the new proposal for national reunification at home and abroad is a powerful demonstration of the justness and vitality of our party's proposal for reunification. Our party is vigorously encouraging all patriotic forces at home and abroad to achieve the sacred cause of founding a new independent fatherland, rallying them on the road to reunification.

3. The KWP is a great party which is able to brilliantly realize the historic cause of the reunification of the fatherland by rallying the nation under the banner of reunification.

To lead the popular masses to victory, the party should have high leadership prestige and invincible might. Only when the party upholds the great leader can it have high leadership prestige and invincible might.

Because our party upholds the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader, it can guide the struggle for national reunification to victory. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is the matchless patriot and the sun of the nation our people have for the first time in our history. Since he embarked on the road of revolution, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, holding aloft the banner of the immortal Chuche idea, has pioneered the destiny of the country and nation, led our people to happiness, illuminated the road to national reunification and devoted all his efforts to realize it. As they had the great leader, our people could end the long history of ordeals and usher in a new hopeful era and stoutly struggle full of confidence and fighting spirit, looking forward to the bright future of reunification.

The people in the North and South and overseas compatriots are admiring the great leader as the sun of the nation and savior of reunification, firmly believing that when they follow the road indicated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song they can realize the sacred cause of national reunification. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's high leadership prestige becomes our party's. Our party's leadership prestige helps it become the centripetal force rallying all fellow countrymen under the banner of the reunification of the fatherland and the force to lead the nation to reunification. Our party's high prestige and might also come from its extraordinary intelligence and tested leadership. Our party has displayed clairvoyant insight into today's realities and the future, clearly seeing the essence of complicated problems. It has also shown skill in solving all problems, including minor ones. It has shown the revolutionary ability to overcome difficulties, fearing no ordeals. These are our party's traits. Thanks to these traits, our party has put forward a scientific and correct way to resolve the reunification question and wisely led the people to achieve reunification.

No matter what complicated problems may arise and what ordeals and difficulties may crop up on the road to reunification due to the criminal maneuvers of splittists at home and abroad, our party will brightly indicate and successfully pave the road to reunification with extraordinary intelligence and tested leadership.

The struggle to reunify the country is an earnest one which nationalist and patriotic forces should stage, taking foreign aggressive and treacherous forces as their enemies. To reunify the fatherland, all nationalist and patriotic forces should unite. Our party, which defends and speaks for the interests of the nation, is the representative of the nationalist and patriotic forces and the core to unite them.

Our party's might is being strengthened with each passing day. Basing itself on a unitary ideology, our party is firmly united and absolutely trusted and supported by the people because of immortal achievements before the times and the revolution.

Our people endlessly love our party and entirely entrust their destiny to the party center. They are firmly united as one with the party center. All party members and workers, in any place, always breathe, think and act with the party center. They are unconditionally and thoroughly implementing the party's order and directives.

The patriotic people in South Korea, struggling for the democratization of society and the nation's reunification, and overseas compatriots with national conscience boundlessly trust our party and are ardently sympathizing with the party's reunification policy.

The might of our party lies in that it makes all the nation's chuche forces and patriotic forces demanding the nation's reunification firmly unite with one another and it embraces the entire people in the bosom of the party.

Our party, not questioning their past, consistently calls on the people who treasure the nation's reunification and the future of the people to advance hand in hand on the road to the reunification of the fatherland. We will crush the two-Koreas plot of the splittists at home and abroad and vigorously open up the road for the independent and peaceful reunification in firm unity with democratic forces of all political parties, all factions and the people from all walks of life in South Korea -- as well as all overseas compatriots -- who aspire for the reunification.

Never before has the party had such a combat capability as is being endlessly strengthened or has there been such glory or such a future as our fatherland is exhibiting and brightening, as today, when our party center is leading our people at the forefront with an iron will and tireless energy.

Through actual experience the Korean people firmly believe that the KWP is the only guide which thoroughly safeguards and represents the interests of the fatherland and the people. They confidently foresee a bright prospect for the fatherland's reunification and the bright future of a reunified Korea through the party's invincible might and wise leadership.

It is a basic guarantee in achieving the nation's independent and peaceful reunification to further strengthen the might of the party.

Our party is the heart of the Korean nation and the lodestar of the cause of chuche.

Only under the leadership of the party can our people accomplish the cause of national reunification and achieve the eternal development of the nation and the prosperity of generations to come.

The prospect of reunification and the future of the fatherland are entirely dependent on the fact that all the people remain endlessly loyal to the party and uphold the party's leadership. All party members and workers should hold the respected leader in high esteem forever and uphold the glorious party center with a spotless and pure heart, without wavering in any storm, by taking the boundless loyalty to the party and the leader as their revolutionary faith and principle, just as the young Korean Communits upheld the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song with loyalty under all arduous trials and adversities during the anti-Japanese revolutionary period.

In order to achieve the independent reunification of the fatherland, all compatriots in the North and South and abroad should firmly unite with each other in a grand united national front under the banner of the fatherland's reunification raised high by our party.

The KWP -- our people's guiding force -- has been strengthened and developed into a party with a bright future which has a solid ideological and organizational foundation capable of carrying out the chuche cause to the end and into a party with lofty leadership authority which can win 100 victories in 100 battles.

Thus, the basic question deciding the destiny of the chuche cause is being brilliantly resolved in our country and the firm guarantee for achieving the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and for national prosperity and development is being provided.

This gives endless joy and conviction to all fellow countrymen who are struggling to smash the maneuvers for permanent national division of the splittists at home and abroad and to achieve the nation's reunification cause.

We should continuously and persistently carry out and accomplish the work of further consolidating the party's organizational and ideological foundation and should more highly enhance the strength and leading role of the party in the struggle for national reunification.

Only victory and glory are before the Korean people, who are vigorously struggling for their just cause by upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and following the guidance of the glorious party center.

Let us all fight more vigorously for the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and the final victory of the chuche cause in firm unity around the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party center.

SK100932 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 10 May 82 p 2

[Article from column "Central Tower"]

[Text] On 9 May the Civil Party issued a statement demanding that Richard Walker, U.S. ambassador to Korea, explain his remarks at a regular meeting of the Kwanhun Club, a senior Korean journalists' organization.

Asking why Ambassador Walker believes Korea has an auxiliary role in its relations with the United States and Japan, Yi Yong-kwon, spokesman for the Civil Rights Party, said Ambassador Walker's support for the commander of the United Nations Command, Wickham, who compared the Korean people to lemmings, arouses indignation.

MINISTERS TESTIFY IN SHOOTING INVESTIGATION

[Text] Minister of Home Affairs No Tae-u said yesterday the government plans to create two air-borne combat police companies to fight emergencies and contingencies in remote areas effectively.

In testimony before the National Assembly Home Affairs Committee, No said ten helicopters used in air force operatons will be purchased for multilateral training of the police force.

The Home Affairs Committee was one of the five assembly committees convened to continue the probe into the recent shooting incident in Uiryong, Kyongsang Namdo.

No said communications networks for "vulnerable districts" will be augmented by 1984, and that as part of this program 4,464 radio telephones will be established at 1,488 police boxes in remote areas. He said 19 combat police task teams will be deployed in as many vulnerable districts on a permanent basis. The government plans to impose educational restrictions on police recruits, enabling only high school graduates or those with higher educational backgrounds to apply, he said. No said what he called a switch service system will be introduced to improve police administration.

Minister of National Defense Chu Yong-pok said there is no loophole whatsoever in the nation's defense conditions. Answering lawmakers' queries at the Defense Committee, Chu said there is no problem in the "defense callup" and the Mobilization of Homeland Reserve Forces System. The government will step up control on the management of HRF weaponry to preclude incidents similar to the policeman's shooting spree in Uiryong, he said.

Vice Minister of Health and Social Affairs Kim Pyong-su said eight children whose parents were killed in the shooting incident will be assured of livelihood in accordance with the pertinent law. The government will appoint guardians for the children who were orphaned by the shooting incident, he said.

Rival political camps wrangled at the steering committee over the drafting of a recommendation to the government to be adopted in a plenary assembly session today.

After hours of wrangling, rival political camps agreed to drop the call for the en masse resignation of the cabinet and instead urge the government to realize the "responsible administration" to create a just welfare society.

LIBERIA'S DOE HOLD TALKS WITH CHON TU-HWAN

SK100219 Seoul YONHAP in English 0203 GMT 10 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 10 (YONHAP) -- South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan and Samuel K. Doe, visiting head of state and chairman of the People's Redemption Council of Liberia, held a summit meeting in Seoul Monday and pledged to pursue a bilateral cooperation in various fields.

During the 50-minute meeting at the Korean Presidential Mansion Chongwadae, the two leaders exchanged views on the international situation, discussed the promotion of mutual cooperation, and reconfirmed their existing friendly ties.

Chon explained Seoul's peace formula for the unification of the Korean Peninsula to the head of the West African country, and Doe expressed his support of Chon's plan. Doe, who came to power in 1980 after engineering a military coup, requested that South Korea participate in Liberia's national reconstruction projects. The Liberian head of state arrived in Seoul Sunday afternoon with a 46-member entourage for a five-day visit at the invitation of Chon.

Doe, the fifth leader of an African nation to visit Korea, said in an arrival statement that "We express the hope that our visit here will be memorialized in a concrete manner and serve to further cement the already harmonious relations between our two countries and people."

He maintained that "We are certain this visit will afford us the opportunity to observe the Korean experience in national reconstruction. Doe praised the remarkable rise of the Korean nation from the Korean war period to a modern industrialized country in the short span of 25 years. Earlier Monday, the Liberian leader was received by South Korean Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and visited the national cemetry in southern Seoul. Liberia, with a population of about two million, maintains diplomatic ties both South and North Korea.

Liberia Seeks Aid

[Text] Liberia, whose head of state is currently on an official visit here, has called on Korea to provide a total of $3.5 million in technical and financial assistance for the west African country's agricultural and fisheries projects.

The request was made yesterday when Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Economic Planning Kim Chung-song met with Byron Tarr, Liberian minister of planning and economic affairs. Tarr came to Seoul Sunday accompanying Samuel Kanyon Doe, Liberia's chairman of the People's Redemption Council.

In a meeting, held at the Economic Planning Board (EPB), the Liberian minister said that his country seeks the assistance for three specific projects. The three projects are dairy development, palm oil development and an inland fisheries project. Besides, cooperation on the part of Korea was asked in the field of manpower development, especially in agricultural and telecommunications sectors. In reply, the deputy prime minister said that the two countries "need not limit the mutual economic cooperation to the three projects (the proposed aid package name)." He noted that the two-way cooperation should be based upon a permanent and wide-ranging aspect and that the two nations have to work together in that direction.

In the approach, Kim remarked that Korea will send its economic survey team to Liberia within this year. The joint team between the government and the private sector will seek concrete ways with particular emphasis on the private-level cooperation.

PRK SCORES UK ACTIONS AGAINST ARGENTINA

["Statement of the PRK Foreign Ministry's spokesman"]

[Text] Recently, the British Government sent its aircraft carrier to launch attacks on Argentina's military bases on the Malvinas Islands and imposed a naval blockade of 12 nautical miles on Argentina's coast. This is a shameful armed aggression committed against the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Argentina Republic in an attempt to revive the British colonialist regime on the Malvinas Islands.

This policy of using force, as they did in the past, clearly reflects the colonialist and warlike nature of the London powerholders. Concurrently, it constitutes a serious threat to peace and security in the south Atlantic region and the world.

Moreover, it is necessary to note that the British Government has expanded this war after the United States took off its mask as a mediator and openly declared its support for Britain's aggression against Argentina. Thus, it is clear that the U.S. imperialists have used this opportunity to serve their own interests and to oppose the independence and sovereignty of the people in Latin America and the world.

The PRK Foreign Ministry strongly condemns this aggression of the British Government. It also strongly condemns the U.S. collusion against the Argentina Republic.

The PRK Foreign Ministry demands that the British and U.S. Governments immediately put an end to this military adventure and respect Argentina's independence and territorial integrity.

SITTHI'S CHINA VISIT SEEN AS ANTI-PRK COLLUSION

BK101021 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 9 May 82

[Unattributed commentary: "The Objectives of Sitthi Sawetsila's Visit to China"]

[Text] According to Western reports, on 9 May, Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila led a delegation on an official visit to China and he will stay in Beijing until 14 May in order to meet and consult with Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua and other Chinese personalities on the ASEAN countries' plan to create by all means a loose-alliance coalition government of the three exiled reactionary Khmer groups in opposition to the PRK and SRV. Sitthi Sawetsila's objectives are obvious. This is added proof of the collusion between the Thai and Chinese authorities in opposing the PRK. They are becoming increasingly open in their arrogance and impudence. World public opinion is also increasingly aware of the dark schemes and ambitions of the Beijing clique which continues to use Thai territory as a training base and transportation route for the supply of logistics and arms to the bloodthirsty genocidal Pol Pot gang and the Son Sann group. At the same time, Thai forces have conducted constant provocations and intrusions which violate the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Kampuchea in the air, ground and water. In so doing, they are openly supporting the remnants of the Pol Pot gang in their attempts to infiltrate Kampuchea and commit sabotage, loot property and undermine the peaceful life of the Kampuchean people. Moreover, the Thai forces have even fired chemical shells into our territory. This has been repeatedly reported on by our SPK news agency, which vehemently condemned the hostile activities of the Thai authorities.

In the political field, the Thai authorities have been very active in collaborating with the Beijing clique so as to realize their plan of establishing a loose coalition government. In the past, under the instigation of Beijing, Bangkok and other ASEAN countries, Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan were forced to meet on many occasions in Singapore, Bangkok and Phatthaya. However, all of these meetings have failed most shamefully. Furthermore, the dispute among the three exiled reactionary Khmer groups is becoming more serious with each passing day. No magician can help settle it, for it is a conflict resulting from the difference of personal interests in the power struggle. Each of them refuses to be subordinate to the others, each wanting to have the lion's share of this loose shadow coalition government. So far, they have failed to establish this loose coalition government. Such a protracted failure has caused acute dissatisfaction in Beijing, Thailand and other ASEAN countries. The desire of their bosses is to create a coalition government as soon as possible to be used as a political tool for the continuation of their interference in our PRK's internal affairs.

It is widely known that next September, at the opening of the UN General Assembly, the question of the seat illegally occupied by the blood-thirsty genocidal Pol Pot gang with the all-out support of its bosses will be submitted to the session for rediscussion. Moreover, at present the stink of the genocidal Pol Pot political corpse, which has followed the Beijing expansionist ambitions, has brought it resounding condemnation by world public opinion, which has led to intense maneuvering by Beijing and ASEAN. One can bet that despite all their money and efforts, the votes for the so-called Democratic Kampuchea's Pol Pot clique will surely decrease.

It can be noted that Sitthi Sawetsila's 9 May visit to China is for no other purpose than to strengthen cooperation with the Beijing authorities to rally all these three exiled reactionary Khmer groups. The use of Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan as components in the loose coalition government is no surprise as they are the creations of the Beijing, Thai and ASEAN authorities. These enemies have never been agreeable to the peaceful, happy and prosperous life of our Kampuchean people. They deeply resent the rebirth of the Kampuchean people, who, under the KPRP leadership, are determined to strengthen the militant solidarity among the three Indochinese peoples of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos and the solidarity with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries and the progressive peoples throughout the world for the sake of national independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity -- our most precious revolutionary gains -- and pledge to unite as one by exerting every effort to overcome all obstacles in order to engage in production and to stabilize our lives, and by always heightening revolutionary vigilance in foiling and defeating all sabotage acts of the enemy of all stripes.

The wanton and unreasonable endeavor of the Beijing, Thai and ASEAN ruling circles which are enticing the exiled, power-hungry reactionary Khmer groups of Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan at present is tantamount to the senseless act of knocking their heads against a brick wall. Their scheme will automatically fail.

THAILAND ACCUSED OF INTRUSIONS 23-30 APRIL

BK060459 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1437 GMT 5 May 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 5 May (SPK) -- It has been learned from military sources that during the last week of April, Thai aircraft overflew Kampuchean territory 23 times about 2.5 km from the border.

On 30 April, two Thai T-28 aircraft made reconnaissance flights over the region southwest of Keo Malai, Route 5 and Sisophon.

On 22 April, a Thai C-130 made a reconnaissance flight east of the border intersection and fired for half an hour into the regions about 5 km from the border with its 20-mm guns. On 23, 24, 26 and 27 April, many Thai reconnaissance and combat flights were reported over the provincial city of Koh Kong.

Ninety-one Thai armed vessels and boats -- four of them warships -- entered Kampuchean territorial waters along the region between west of Khlong Yai and west of Hill 172.

Thai artillery fire supported the infiltrations by Pol Pot's men into the vicinity of the Preah Vihear ruins and Ampil Lake and into Romiet, Svay Dangkum, Kamrieng, western Smat Deng, Hill 336 and at wat [as received: name not given] some 2 to 5 km from the border.

WEEKLY ROUNDUP OF KPRAF ACTIVITIES REPORTED

["Weekly Roundup of KPRAF Activities"]

[Excerpts] The 1981-82 dry season is not yet over, and we have therefore not yet completed our drive to punish the Pol Pot remnants. The past few days, we can say, were a time when the Pol Pot remnants and the Son Sann Sereika elements received lightning and earth-shaking blows as they attempted to grab territory. Both the Pol Pot group and Son Sann Sereika elements suffered similar heavy defeats whether at the northwestern, northeastern or southwestern borders.

In particular, hundreds of Son Sann elements were killed and hundreds of others fled for their lives leaving behind hundreds of tons of arms, rice and medicine at Toek Sok southwest of Ta Sanh -- the enclave they tried to capture. The same fate befell the Pol Pot remnants; after our forces had stormed their lairs at Soda and O Da, they also fled in all directions. The Thai reactionaries sent helicopters, OV-10's and L-19's to locate the fleeing remnants and lead them back to safety.

In the week from 16 to 22 April the Pol Pot remnants fired more than 100 barrages -- on some days more than 500 rounds were fired -- at hills in the border region of our country.

In the same week our units and people continued to conduct sweep operations against the Pol Pot remnants. According to a number of reports from various areas, the militia forces successfully took part in the operations. On 20 April the militia unit of commune "Kar" in Kampot Province surrounded and killed six Pol Pot elements and seized three weapons when they were on the point of raiding hamlet "Khar." On 12 April a group of remnants sneaked into the area west of Kampot. Our militia there killed two of them and seized two weapons. On 15 April at a point south of Pich Nil an isolated group of Pol Pot remnants tried to ambush a truck convoy transporting goods. Our militia killed two of them. On 15 April at a point southeast of Moung, a group of 15 infiltrators under the leadership of (Saroeun) was engaged by our militia as they were preparing to destroy a bridge in the area. Following 30 minutes of fighting, the militia of hamlet "Sar" killed 10 enemy elements and seized an AK, an SK-54, 8 hammocks and 500 sticks of dynamite. In Bavel, a regular unit of Battambang Province, after being tipped by the militia of the presence of a group of enemy saboteurs, launched a raid and captured 26 enemy elements.

In Sum, last week our KPRAF units killed 47 enemy elements, took prisoner 48 others, accepted surrender from 35 and seized 41 assorted weapons, 38 mines and some ammunition. In particular, a young boy in Bar Keo, Ratanakiri Province, persuaded three enemy remnants to surrender to the revolution, bringing with them two AK's.

In addition, in Kien Svay District, Kandal Province, as a result of the mass persuasion campaign, last week 168 persons surrendered and admitted their crimes to the revolution. They also submitted 16 weapons. In Veal Renh, the inhabitants led the militia to unearth enemy arms caches. We found a 60-mm mortar, 61 shells and 21 K-63's.

Afterward, a representative of the trainees pledged they would always heighten their revolutionary vigilance and spare no efforts in applying the knowledge acquired during their study for the good of their units. The ceremony ended in an atmosphere of joy, intimacy and victory.

POLICY OF RECLAIMING FALLOW LAND EXPLAINED

BK101234 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 4 May 82

["Article on Policy of Reclaiming Fallow Land and Expanding Production"]

[Summary] "Before the war, the amount of land available for growing crops in Kampuchea was 2.8 million hectares. Of this, 2.5 million hectares were set aside for planting rice. In the 10 years of war, especially in the 4 years under the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary regime, our agriculture was seriously ruined. Farmlands were deserted, two-thirds of the draft animals were lost and all the agricultural machines were totally damaged. Only a few farm tools were left. Healthy and experienced workers died in the millions while the survivors were in poor condition, ill and weak."

After the liberation of the fatherland, the Kampuchean people who escaped from genocide by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique returned home to build their hometowns and earn their living and contribute to building the country. The KPRP has advised them to set up production solidarity teams to assist each other in overcoming obstacles, improving their livelihood and reclaiming millions of hectares of farmlands for use in production.

"In 1979, we reclaimed almost 80,000 hectares of croplands throughout the country. Of this, 60,000 hectares were planted with rice. In 1980, we planted almost 160,000 hectares of crops, including 140,000 hectares of rice. The rice acreage in 1980 was 2.5 times more than that in 1979. This is why we have been able to greatly reduce the extent of the people's famine. However, we have so far restored only 1.6 million hectares of rice and other crops.

Compared with the prewar area of 2.8 million hectares of rice, in 1980 the restored rice acreage was just over half the total amount of cultivable land available. The remaining approximately 1.2 million hectares of land has been left untilled. Generally speaking, there are hundreds of hectares of fallow land in every commune, thousands of hectares of fallow land in every district and tens of thousands of hectares of fallow land in every province. The largest amount of fallow land, almost 260,000 hectares, is in Battambang Province. Next is Kompong Chhnang Province, where there are 100,000 hectares of fallow land. Other provinces have from 50,000 to 60,000 hectares of untilled land." There is also fallow land in various other areas, such as in the districts and communes bordering Vietnam where we have not yet cleared punji stakes, landmines and bombs planted by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique. The people still dare not proceed with farming in these areas. Moreover, the people who have returned to the municipalities and provinces following the liberation do not have enough land for farming, although they have sufficient labor forces. Unequal distribution of farmland in the countryside may have a bad effect on the expansion of the planting area of stabilization of production.

In the years to come, the reclamation of farmland is an important task. In the restoration of agriculture, our people are facing a number of difficulties, such as a serious shortage of draft power, since two-thirds of our draft animals were destroyed and the 3,000 to 5,000 agricultural machines were damaged beyond repair by the Pol Pot clique.

At present, a large number of people use hoes to till land. There are now only 800,000 hoes while there are 1.3 million families. Aside from this, some areas are suffering from shortages of foodstuffs, seed and capital for procuring farm tools and draft animals or for building living quarters if they have to farm in far away places. Thus, the authorities have set forth a policy on the expansion of the production area.

The objectives of reclaiming all the existing cultivable lands are as follows:

1. To accelerate the restoration of agriculture, particularly the production of consumer goods so as to reach self-sufficiency within a few years, and increase the food supply to industry in the next few years. "Generally speaking, we must restore 2.5 million hectares of the overall cultivable land within the next 5 years."

2. Together with reclaiming the overall cultivable land and relocating the population from the cities and provincial towns to the countryside, we must expand production by encouraging the local people or amending the land-distribution projects both in the densely populated and less populated areas so as to ensure sufficient land for each person and stabilize the production.

3. To reclaim the overall cultivable land by expanding the production solidarity teams and encouraging the expansion of family-run economy.

4. In reclaiming the overall cultivable land, we must make appeals for tillers to launch production permanently in the designated areas and not to desert these lands after a few production seasons.

5. While upholding the people's spirit of self-help, the authorities must provide assistance in order to gradually reclaim the cultivable land, arrange agricultural apparatus and direct all sectors to fulfill tasks more effectively.

Directives for the reclamation of the overall cultivable land:

1. Reclamation of farmland in communes and villages: The provincial authorities should advise the people to reclaim all fallow farmlands in their communes and villages. Commune and village authorities must distribute all farmlands to the production solidarity groups for management, which might be in the form of a cooperative or a loan to member families. The production solidarity groups and families of peasants who lack draft power and oxcarts may ask for loans from the authorities so as to purchase them. This loan must be repaid without interest in 5 to 7 years. For each hectares tilled for the first time, the authorities will lend 80 kilograms of rice seed. This amount of rice seed must be repaid to the authorities after the harvest. The authorities will also provide a hoe, plowshares and a plow per each hectare of land prepared for production.

2. The reclamation of farmland far away from the residential areas of communes and villages:

The communes and villages which lack farmlands must arrange lands for farming far away from the residential areas but not beyond the boundary limits of the communes and villages. Farming in these areas may be in the form of a cooperative or family-run farm.

3. Gradually reduce the number of people in densely populated areas where farmland is scarce and relocate them to less populated areas where land is in abundance. This is in order to expand the overall crop area. Provincial and district authorities must send the people to settle down in those communes, villages or localities which have a large amount of farmland.

Any municipality, provincial town or district town where the people are under employed must encourage the people to settle in the countryside in order to reclaim the cultivable land and proceed with production. The production solidarity groups, families of the peasants and the people in municipalities, provincial towns and district towns who lack draft power and oxcarts for use in farming may ask for interest-free loans from the authorities, which are repayable within 5 to 7 years. They will also be provided with a loan of 80 kilograms of rice seed per hectare to be repaid in full after harvest. They will also be provided with a hoe, plowshare, plow and 70 kilograms of foodstuffs per hectare. Each of the newly relocated families will be provided with 200 riels for travel expenses and for building temporary shelters and each is entitled to purchase 13 to 15 kilograms of foodstuffs from the state for a period of 6 months before harvest.

In the areas where the people have settled into new communes and villages in order to reclaim the fertile lands for a living, the authorities will provide an amount of money not exceeding 20,000 riels for each unit to build a school, hospital, commune office and so forth. An amount of not more than 2,000 riels will be provided for building a communal well for use by 5 to 10 families in each area.

4. The reclamation of the overall cultivable land in other cases: "In the areas where the enemy creates insecurity and the people still dare not go back to reclaim lands and build a stable life, the military forces must conduct sweep operations and provide protection for the people so that they can go back to reclaim the fertile lands and make a living."

The loans of money and rice seed and the assistance in terms of farm tools and foodstuffs are provided in accordance with the above mentioned conditions.

In the areas strewn with punji stakes, landmines and bombs, the military forces and guerrillas must clear them in order to create favorable conditions for the people to reclaim fertile lands and to prevent any untoward incidents. The state will assist any family which suffers casualties during the reclamation of these fertile lands.

"In each area under the reclamation program, the authorities will set aside funds for building communication routes and irrigation systems in order to create facilities for the reclamation work. However, projects in each area must first be approved by the provincial and district authorities.

"The reclaimed lands can be used only by those collective groups or peasants who actually worked to reclaim them."

Reclaiming fallow land from now to 1985 is an urgent matter. The implementation of the plan should be as follows:

1. The reclamation of overall cultivable land should be gradual until 1985, when the plan will be fulfilled, if it has not been fulfilled previously.

2. According to the provincial reclamation program, each province should draw up an annual expenditure report to be approved by local authorities and forwarded to the higher authorities for decision.

3. Production solidarity groups should be divided into smaller groups of 3-4 families to facilitate mutual aid. Forces should be organized properly to take care of land reclamation efforts.

4. In building living quarters, all concerned are responsible for providing any assistance available. The state will provide funds while the masses provide manpower in reclaiming overall cultivable land.

5. A committee is to be set up in each locality to permanently direct and settle problems relating to land reforms. The agricultural department and people's revolutionary committee also have their share of responsibility for this work. The agricultural department must increase the number of technical cadres available for this task.

6. The campaign to disseminate the plan for a general land reclamation effort should be launched.

French Delegate Speaks

BK101548 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0430 GMT 10 May 82

[Speech by an unidentified representative of the French Communist Party, delivered at a session of the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- date not given; read by announcer]

[Summary] "Esteemed and respected Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, beloved comrades: On behalf of the French Communist Party [PCF] I am very pleased to attend this congress. I wish, comrades, that all the objectives of the congress aimed at developing socialism in Laos will be fulfilled."

The Lao people, like their neighbors, have suffered severe hardships as a result of the U.S. war of aggression. However, they have now wrested back the fight to live in independence, peace and freedom, and have become the masters of their own destiny.

The French Communists always stood side by side with their Lao comrades in fighting against colonialism in the past. Now, with Laos following the path of socialist construction, the PCF has developed ever more profound ties with the LPRP and the Lao people.

"On behalf of the PCF I would like to stress here that we have full confidence in your revolutionary struggle to enable Laos to set forth on the path you have chosen. We have always realized the significance of your country -- a socialist country with full independence and peace and which is capable of ensuring its own security and playing an active role in maintaining peace and in the Nonaligned Movement in this part of the world."

The PCF recently convened its 24th congress under new political conditions in which the leftist bloc won the presidential and general elections in May and June 1981. At the congress, we outlined a fundamental basis for the French foreign policy of independence to contribute to building a new international economic and political order. We have actively carried out movements to promote peace and reduction. The arms race carried out by the imperialists constitutes a serious danger to mankind.

"Beloved comrades, in conclusion, I hope that the relations and cooperation between our two parties will be further strengthened, for we are sincere and faithful to our tradition and we base our relationship on the spirit of epochal friendship. I am fully convinced that this is also your aspiration, which conforms to the interests of our two countries and peace.

Long live the LPRP!

Long live the LPDR!

Long live the friendship between the LPRP and the PCF!

Long live the friendship between the LPDR and France!"

[Unattributed editorial: "Everything for the National Defense and Socialism, and for the Plentiful and Happy Life of the Entire People"]

[Text] The Third Congress of the LPRP has been majestically opened in the capital of Vientiane. Outstanding delegates representing party members from all provinces and army units throughout the country are attending this congress to make decisions on important issues along our nation's path of advancement in the 1980's. This historical and epochal congress has been convened while our nation enjoys peace in national construction and is resisting the all-round destructive war being waged by the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists. At the same time, we have to be prepared to resist any war of aggression which may be launched by them.

Under the slogan "everything for the national defense and socialism, and for the plentiful and happy life of all the people," the congress has displayed the ardent and gallant determination of the entire party, army and people to overcome all trials in building Laos into a strong, and rich socialist country.

A number of delegations of the fraternal communist parties, workers parties and outstanding combatants of the international workers movements are also here to attend this glorious and historical congress. The presence of the fraternal parties' delegations at this congress has brought us a great encouragement from the three epochal revolutionary currents, indicates the great sympathy and support for our people from the revolutionary people throughout the world, and shows the close ties between the Lao revolution and the world revolution in the struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism.

During the period since the second party congress, our country has passed through numerous great and serious trials. Our country has just emerged from the protracted war of aggression which has been waged for some 30 years by the French colonialists and U.S. imperialists. Our country is now faced with the war of aggression being waged by the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists. Our people are also striving to fulfill the tasks of defending and building the country and developing the backward economy into a more advanced one under the beacon of the various resolutions adopted by our party. We have endeavered to overcome all trials, thus scoring numerous great victories of historical significance, bringing unity to the entire country, and establishing revolutionary administrations and the system of proletarian dictatorship throughout the country. The strength of the people's collective mastery has now been further consolidated.

With this strength, we have managed to gradually smash the sucessive schemes of the Beijing big-nation expansionists hegemonists and the U.S. imperialists, as well as other international reactionaries, in trying to sabotage our democratic republic, thereby securely defending our country and brilliantly fulfilling our national and international obligations.

We are determined to overcome all serious vestiges of the protracted war against the U.S. imperialists, to increase our production capacity and to promote and build foundations for the socialist economy in our country. We are striving to develop educational, cultural and public health work and to rapidly promote science and technology, thereby effectively meeting the requirements for economic construction and national defense. Over the past 6 years, our people have traveled a glorious path marked by great victories of our country's revolution. They have created a new unprecedentedly strong and glorious revolutionary position, drawn many new experiences, and created great potentials for the national defense and socialist construction. These great and glorious victories have been scored thanks to the clear-sighted and talented leadership of our party, which is boundlessly loyal to Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism. These victories reflect the victory of the resolute, clear cut and appropriate strategy, guidelines and policies as well as the correct resolutions of the party Central Committee headed by Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan in leading our revolution to overcome all difficulties and hardships, to pass along a tortuous path in always marching forward. They also reflect the victory of the esteemed tradition of heroism, determined perseverance and uncomparable strength of our people. The armed forces as one to carry out the two strategic duties entrusted by the party, that is, to defend and to build our socialist country, that is, to defend and to build our socialist country.

All the victories scored by our people in the tasks of defending and building the country are closely linked to the great and precious support and sympathy of all fraternal parties, the alliance and special cooperation between the Lao revolution and the Vietnamese and Kampuchean revolutions, the great and effective assistance of the Soviet Union, and the assistance of the other fraternal socialist countries and progressive people throughout the world.

Our position and forces are strong and constitute a tremendously favorable basic condition for our revolution. We have tremendous and rich potential, yet our country is now faced with numerous difficulties and trials. The Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists, are endeavoring to sabotage our revolutionary struggle in various fields with the hope of weakening, invading and swallowing up our country in the end. The objectives for the improvement of the people's living conditions, the national defense and the maintenance of political stability and public order, and the building of material and technical foundations for socialism in our country are urgent and enormous. The new tasks of our entire party, army and people in the new stage of the revolution remain heavy.

Holding aloft the glorious and majestic party banner, the third congress will discuss in detail all the developments in our country, appraise the strong and weak points as well as the current social and economic situations in our country, review the implementation of the guidelines adopted at the second congress, analyze the root causes of all victories and prevailing difficulties, and define the strategic tasks of the revolution in the new stage as well as the orientations and objectives of the plans between 1981 and 1985 and in the 1980's. This is a period of great significance for it is the first phase of the evolution of our entire country's advance toward socialism, and our people are changing the national economy in a new and fundamental manner creating a new position for advancement and favorable conditions for rapid development of socialist industrialization in our country.

All the efforts of our entire party, army and people in national construction are directed at fulfilling the basic objectives of the plans during the 1980's, that is to bring general political stability to the country, to vigoriously promote production, to stabilize and improve the people's living conditions to a certain extent, to build material foundations for socialism, to further promote socialist transformation and construction, and to guarantee and effectively meet all the requirements for national defense and the maintenance of security. In connection with these basic issues, the congress will adopt the main plans, policies and measures which reflect the path for advancement by our country in the new stage along the correct common cause of the socialist revolution defined in the various resolutions adopted by the party Central Committee in the past.

Our party is now in power. It has no other interest except to fight for the interests of the country, the working class and the laboring people. Our party is the decisive factor in the victory of our revolution. The congress will make important deliberations on various factors, so as to adopt resolutions to further strengthen the building of our party, and will elect a new party Central Committee. This is a task of great significance, for this new party Central Committee will ensure the continuation of the glorious revolutionary tradition of the party, the continual steadfastness of the party leadership, and the correct and through implementation of orientations, plans and policies adopted by the congress.

All the outstanding delegates of the people gathering at the congress will begin performing their heavy but noble tasks. In response to the aspirations of the entire party, army and people, each delegate will wholeheartedly carry out his work with a sence of great perseverance and endurance in the communist party and a sense of responsibility with a view to becoming the highest leading organization of the party in order to contribute to a glorious success of the congress.

Now only now, but since the party Central Committee issued a communique on the convening of the third congress of the party, our entire army -- with great pride in the event -- has launched a series of energetic emulation campaigns to score achievements to welcome the congress. All army divisions, brigades, units and organizations and offices throughout the country have stepped up efforts to emulate one another in fulfilling their duties for combat readiness, studying and training to raise their fine nature and combat strength, increasing production, contributing to the building of the national economy, mobilizing the masses and building foundations. All cadres and combatants have persisted in working and gloriously fulfilled their respective tasks to welcome the congress. Our cadres and combatants profoundly understand, are fully aware and are in close tough with the party. They are determined to contribute to the glorious success of the third congress of our party.

[Unattributed editorial: "Let the Whole Country Unite as one and March Forward To Implement Triumphantly the Resolution of the Third Party Congress"]

[Text] Our compatriots and combatants throughout the country are elated to welcome the brilliant success of the third congress of the honorable, glorious LPRP.

Over the past few days, our entire country has turned to the congress and strived to emulate outstanding achievements to welcome the party congress and its notable resolution.

Responding to the trust and aspiration of all our people, the congress has strived to achieve an appropriate solution to various strategic problems in the initial steps of the path of socialism in our country. The congress has unanimously approved the political report of the party Central Committee on the evaluation of the victories and achievements scored by our entire party, army and people in the political, military, economic, cultural and foreign affairs field over the past 10 years. The congress has reviewed strong and weak points that must be settled and perfected. It has affirmed a determination to continuously pursue the socialist revolution line and the line on socialist economic construction which were proposed by the second party congress. Actual practice has proved these lines to be very appropriate. The party has applied its lines to the practical conditions by adopting various strategic tasks of the Lao revolution in the new circumstances. It has put forth the direction, tasks and objectives of the Lao revolution for 1981-85 in particular. It has also adopted various plans, policies and measures for implementation, with a view to leading the revolutionary cause of our working class and people to continuously march forward.

The congress has unanimously approved the direction, tasks and basic objectives for economic and social development, as stipulated in the political report of the party Central Committee, and regards them as the resolution of the congress. This resolution is intended to introduce the implementation of the 1981-85 5-year plan and to make preparations for the plan in later years. The congress has unanimously approved the report on the party building work and various concrete proposals of the party Central Committee on the amendment to the party's regulations regarding various tasks, plans and policies on the strengthening and building of the party in the ideological and organizational field, with a view to raising the standards of the working class and the leading roles of the party on the basis of Marxism-Leninism, increasingly enhancing the combat strength and leadership capability of the party, strengthening the unique solidarity and promoting the fine traditions of the party so as to guarantee the successful implementation of the various revolutionary tasks as proposed by the congress.

The congress has highly appreciated the correct activities of the second party Central Committee, and voting to elect the new party Central Committee with respected and beloved Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan as general secretary to make arrangements for the successful implementation of the various tasks adopted by the congress. The party Central Committee is regarded as the general staff unit of the revolution. It represents the party's traditions of unique solidarity and its collective intelligence, and it firmly guarantees the success of the Lao revolution in overcoming all trials on the path of advance to socialism.

The Third congress of our party has come to a glorious conclusion. It serves as a bright torch to lead our entire party, army and people forward to fulfill the tasks of the new stage of the socialist revolution in our country. The successful conclusion of the congress is a defeat for the dark schemes of the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary powers who aim to sabotage, destroy and obstruct the steps of advance of our socialist revolution.

Therefore, from now on, putting the congress resolution into actual practice throughout the country will be a tremendous, heavy task which is vital to our entire party, army and people. Our party has said that determination can only be accomplished through 10 measures. Now more than ever, we must find the best measures to effectively and successfully implement the resolution of the congress, first and foremost, it is necessary for our cadres, party members and entire people to accept, understand and grasp the essence of the congress resolution, and to unite as one to consciously endeavor to begin putting it into actual practice.

A study to profoundly understand the resolution must be closely combined with the arrangements for its concrete implementation. This must be considered to be a decisive factor.

In organizing to implement the resolution, it is necessary to have a plan effectively mapped out and to prepare the necessary conditions and tools. Measures must be intellectually combined with the ideological and organizational system. A close coordination must be made between the party committees at various levels and various state and mass organizations. The revolution is regarded as a great festival of the masses. All revolutionary tasks must be carried out through profound, regular and effective revolutionary movements of the masses. Everyone must be mobilized to promote and expand a role of collective mastery, to do his utmost in the cause of national defense and building, and to guarantee a successful implementation of the masses' tasks.

All of us are aware that the revolution's forward path is still full of complexities and difficulties. But, we continue to have the necessary strength to overcome all difficulties and to lead the revolution forward. Our people's material and spiritual strength has now been incessantly enhanced. We have developed ourselves to another higher step, and have learned additional precious lessons. The future of the revolution is glorious. Our entire party, army and people are full of confidence and elation. We are determined to raise to an ever higher level the spirit of revolutionary heroism, and majestically march forward to triumphantly implement the two strategic tasks of the revolution, accomplish the great revolutionary cause of the nation, and fulfill their glorious international obligation.

Our cadres and combatants are happy to be praised and hailed by the third party congress. In the past, our cadres and combatants, together with the people of all ethnic tribes, the public security forces, guerrilla militia and self-defense forces, have united as one and heroically fought and won glorious victories in the national liberation war and in the cause of national defense and construction. As a result, the history of the nation has become even brighter.

Clearly understanding their heavy tasks and responsibilities in the next stage of revolution, our various people's armed forces must continue to strive in emulating to help all cadres, party members and combatants maintain a new revolutionary nature and a new way of earning a living in accordance with the standard of new, socialist men, and to maintain their knowledge and abilities so as to make skillful use of scientific and technical tools. This will enable us to genuinely turn our army into a new type of army of the proletarian class and into a well-organized and modern army sufficiently capable of fulfilling all the tasks entrusted to it by the party.

The resolution of the congress is our program of activities. Let all of us raise the spirit of responsibility and the sense of collective mastery, engage in labor to boost production, be prepared to fight and to do so heriocally, and be creatively determined to make vigorous changes in all work sectors in order to successfully build the country in advance to socialism and to securely defend the gains of socialist revolution forever.

6 May Radio Editorial

[Unattributed editorial: "Profoundly Appreciate the Resolution of the Third Party Congress"]

[Text] With the great perservance of all delegates in executing their work, the third congress of our party gloriously ended with the unanimous endorsement of the political report of the Party Central Committee, the orientations, tasks and fundamental objectives of the social and economic development in the 5-year plan between 1981 and 1985 and during the 1980's and the report on party building and the amendment of the LPRP regulations.

This is another transitional step in the overall correct direction of the socialist revolution. The resolution adopted by the party Central Committee is the guideline for a unified movement of our nation and the basis for fulfilling the unified aspirations of all our people, thus creating a new impetus for taking our revolution into a new stage.

Henceforth, it is the most important and urgent duty of our entire party, army and people to organize a thorough and extensive implementation of the resolution of the Third LPRP Congress and to mobilize a massive revolutionary movement so as to fulfill this resolution with readily apparent actual deeds throughout the country.

To victoriously implement the resolution of our party congress, we must first profoundly appreciate the content of this resolution, for this is the basis for our understanding of the tasks which must be urgently and carefully executed so as to ensure concrete and effective results. The resolution must be profoundly appreciated by our entire party, army and people. All of us must thoroughly understand the situation and our duties, and firmly grasp the revolutionary guideline, the strategic plans and policies, and the targets adopted at the third party congress.

The objectives for appreciating the resolution of the congress are as follows: To firmly grasp the overall scope of the entire revolutionary work and the path which will guide it to fulfill its targets, and to thoroughly grasp the orientations and tasks of each locality, each work branch, each unit and each person. To profoundly appreciate the resolution is to allow everyone to think with a singleness of mind so that they will develop a unified line of thought, thus advancing to carry out unified movements in their work. On this basis, each locality, each foundation and each individual must develop their own plan to carry out activity to translate the resolution of the congress into reality.

As for our army, aside from appreciating the overall scope of the work we must urge all cadres and combatants to understand clearly the duties of our army in the new stage of the revolution, and to study and appreciate the content of his resolution. However, they must not restrict this study only to paper, but must pay attention to carrying out actual revolutionary movements. This is to display the level of their understanding and appreciation in the resolution. At the same time, they must understand the prevailing favorable and unfavorable conditions and difficulties, and the path which will lead to the attainment of the targets set forth in the resolution. Each unit and person must closely link this study with self-criticism and criticism, strictly maintain their line of thinking and a sense of responsibility in fulfilling their tasks, correctly appraise the tasks which can and cannot be fulfilled or which have yet to be effectively executed, identify strong points which must be further strengthened and weak points which must be overcome, find out objective and subjective causes (?of the study), and draw valuable lessons from the study with a view to heightening one's faith and line of thinking, as well as one's capabilities to carry out activities in fulfilling the resolution.

The appreciation of the resolution cannot be attained in a session or two of study, but only through a continued and protracted process closely linked with actual deeds which must be repeatedly carried out in accordance with a principled procedure, in the struggle to learn what is right and what is wrong, and by firmly grasping and creatively and effectively implementing this resolution.

To fulfill this goal, the commanding and leading level, party members, cadres and combatants in our army must resolutely organize a study with a view to profunding appreciating the resolution of the third party congress, creating a oneness of mind within our army, and allowing ourselves to clearly understand the strategic direction and fundamental objectives of the congress and the path for advancing the revolution.

They must also aim to understand the duty and responsibility of each unit and each person, and strive to gloriously and successfully implement the resolution through actual deeds in building the army and in fostering and tempering one's determination to contribute to executing the two strategic tasks of the revolution, that is, to defend and build our socialist country.

MORE ON GOVERNMENT CLASH WITH SHAN FORCES

BK110117 Bangkok POST in English 11 May 82 pp 1, 3

[Text] Chiangrai -- At least eight guerrillas, believed to belong to opium warlord Khun Sa's Shan United Army, were killed in a two-day battle with Thai forces near Ban Thoet Thai (formerly Ban Hin Taek), the army said yesterday.

Government forces comprising border patrol police, soldiers and rangers also seized a rebel camp at Ban Laolue yesterday morning and confiscated a large number of war weapons and food supplies.

The fighting broke out near the Burmese border during government forces' exercises on Sunday. It ended yesterday afternoon with the guerrillas being forced to flee from Thai territory.

Military and police helicopters, and C-47 "Spooky" gunships and OV-10 planes were flown from their base at Chiang Mai yesterday to support the ground forces.

Assistant Army Commander in Chief General Athit Kamlangek travelled to the province in the morning and was briefed at the military command in Chiang Rai along with First Army Division Commander Maj Gen Phichit Kunlawanit and Army Operation Department Director Maj Gen Chaowalit Yongchaiyut. Later Gen Athit travelled to Ban Thoet Thai to personally take charge of the operation.

The government forces reported that one soldier was killed and two injured during the battle which started when a band of about 40 Shan rebels opened fire on helicopters as they were airlifting troops near Ban Laolue. [Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English on 11 May also carries a similar report which adds: "Other sources at the scene -- Ban Laolu and Ban Ponghai -- of Amphoe Mae Chan in Chiang Rai Province said that the government side suffered 16 dead while at least 9 Shans were killed in the series of clashes"]

The helicopters at that time were beginning a reconnaissance mission to detect foreign forces in the area following the discovery from aerial photographs that a band of unidentified foreign guerrillas, believed to be Shans, had built a camp north of Ban Thoet Thai, Gen Athit said. Military authorities earlier discovered that the camp comprised more than 100 buildings with military shelters and a factory.

The general said that one government soldier was killed while two others were wounded during the battle. Several helicopters were also slightly damaged by ground fire.

Gen Arthit said the government forces seized the guerrillas' camp yesterday morning and discovered eight bodies at the site. The main guerrilla force comprising about 600 men were all flushed out from Thai territory in the afternoon, he added.

Helicopters equipped with loudspeakers were used yesterday to persuade the Shan rebels hiding in Thailand to surrender to the government troops.

Gen Athit said that authorities in several areas near the battle zone had been on alert to prevent any possible attempt by the guerrillas to mount a revenge attack. The areas, according to Chiang Rai Governor Sakda O-phong, included Mae Chan, Mae Sai, Chiang Saen and Muang Districts.

Food and necessary supplies were distributed to villagers near the battle zone yesterday, officials said. Most of the seized arms and food supplies from the rebels' camp were later transported to the military command headquarters at Chiang Mai airbase.

Chiang Rai MP Songtham Panyadi yesterday said that the military operation along the Burmese border was "the right thing for the government to do", but he urged that it stop hiding information about the battle from the public.

Deputy Prime Minister Gen Prachuap Suntharangkun yesterday described reports by some local newspapers about the battle as exaggerated. He said that the guerrilla force numbered only about 40 men and not as many as 20,000 as some newspapers reported.

He said the clash occurred during a joint training exercise which was part of the government operation related to the main drive against Khun Sa's men at Ban Thoet Thai last January.

NATION Editorial

[Editorial: "Khun Sa Didn't Catch Thai Forces Napping"]

[Text] When there was a full scale military operation by Thailand's armed forces against the Shan United Army [SUA] -- actually a hotch-potch of irregulars more interested in narcotics traffic than in anything political -- our forces captured their camps without difficulty and had the SUA on the run. But there has always been a ticklish problem with this kind of military action, because the SUA crosses the border into Burma leaving our forces high and dry. From Rangoon's point of view, the importance is not narcotics but rather that the Shans, the Karens, etc are challenging the Burmese Government's suzerainty over all of Burma. But the objectives of the governments in Bangkok and Rangoon are the same -- these private armies have to be liquidated.

We had speculated that when the might of the Thai Armed Forces pushed the SUA back into Burma, the Burmese Army would be ready to retaliate when the irregular Shan Army crossed into Burma. The main thrust of the Thai forces was in January and we think now that the SUA, headed by the notorious drug kingpin Khun Sa, is feeling the pinch because the Burmese Army has been moving in on them. The SUA obviously had no choice but to try and cross the border into Thailand and we are happy to note that they did not catch our soldiers 'sleeping on the job'.

At the moment it appears that the engagement between our armed forces and the SUA is quite serious. At least 15 Thai soldiers have been killed and nine bodies of SUA soldiers have been recovered indicated that the casualties on the other side have been far heavier. Reinforcements have been sent in by the Thai military and there is no question that a showdown is looming. We strongly back our government's policy that isolated forces of irregulars whether they deal in narcotics or whether they are trying to fight the Burmese troops, should not find sanctuary in Thailand or find opportunity to conduct their nefarious trade.

We are particularly anxious for our military to succeed in this effort for two reasons -- the first is of course that there should be no armed bands in Thailand corroding the sovereignty of the land nor should there be bands of drug-traffickers who are smudging the fair face of our country. Warlord Khun Sa is no ordinary man since he has openly defied two governments and has, until now at least, got off with his booty. Although it has not been publicized, possibly because of the policy in Rangoon, we strongly suspect that both Burma and Thailand are acting in tandem as they should be.

We do not want to tie up with the fighting, another narcotics case which occurred in Chicago only last week when one of the Thai diplomats was found and charged with running a drug ring but there is a tenuous connection. We complimented the Foreign Ministry on waiving diplomatic privilege and let the law take its course, but what we are trying to say is that, in the final analysis, the Thai diplomat in Chicago was only a pawn in the hands of such people like Khun Sa who have the ability and the money to subvert those who would have otherwise not been caught doing something culpable.

The January move against the SUA and its leader Khun Sa and what is going on in north Thailand just now, throw the policy of the government in the best light possible. This is not the time for wishful thinking but it is the time to believe that the SUA and Khun Sa are caught in the nutcracker, right between the armed forces of Burma and Thailand.

NHAN DAN WRITES ON PRC SCHEMES AGAINST SRV

BK110434 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 9 May 82

[From the review of NHAN DAN for 10 May]

[Text] NHAN DAN today carries an article by Hong Lan entitled "Smash All the Poisonous Arrows." After exposing the various dark schemes of the Beijing reactionaries, who have conducted psychological warfare against the SRV, the article says:

The Beijing reactionaries have combined their psychological warfare with espionage activities and smuggling operations. These are some of their harmful activities in their multifaceted war of sabotage against Vietnam at the border area. They have consistently built up their manpower and financial support and expanded their operational facilities in order to oppose and undermine our nation. They are striving to carry out the so-called February 1980 motion porposed by (Nie Rongzhen), vice chairman of the CCP Central Military Commission, to incite Vietnamese to fight against Vietnamese and to use the Hoang Van Hoan card more effectively.

In carrying out this plan and their various dark schemes in their multifaceted war of sabotage against Vietnam, the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists are following in the old tracks of the collapsed chariots of the former colonialists and imperialists who experienced bitter defeats in our heroic land.

NHAN DAN MARKS USSR VICTORY IN WORLD WAR II

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 9 -- NHAN DAN today runs an article marking the 37th anniversary of the Soviet victory over German fascism, saying that this event will forever be a great encouragement to progressive mankind and a stern warning to all war-mongering and aggressive forces.

The paper says: "It is undeniable that over the past 37 years mankind has avoided the disaster of a third world war thanks to the existence of the powerful Soviet Union and of the other socialist countries. Realities have more and more clearly proved that the protection of world peace against the dangerous plots and actions of U.S. imperialism and company now and in the future is made possible by the strong growth in all fields and the correct foreign policy of the Soviet Union and the socialist community, which are the firm mainstay of the three revolutionary currents of the world people struggling for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism."

Referring to the Vietnamese situation, the paper says: "Under the leadership of the Communist Party, the Vietnamese people, grasping the favourable opportunity created by the Soviet victory in 1945, successfully carried out their August revolution and finally defeated the French colonialists. Their recent victory over the U.S. aggressors contributed considerably to tilting the balance of forces in favor of the irresistible offensive of the peace and revolutionary forces in the world.

"At present the U.S. imperialists and the reactionary circles in the Chinese leadership are colluding in a vain attempt to reverse this situation. By defeating the aggressive war involving 600,000 Chinese troops on their northern border and smashing the attacks conducted by China's henchmen on their southwestern border, the Vietnamese people, with the assistance and support of the Soviet Union and progressive mankind as a whole, have inflicted initial setbacks on the Sino-American alliance. In Southeast Asia socialism, far from being repelled, stands firmly in the three Indochinese countries."

The paper quotes the political report of the recent Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam as saying that the Vietnamese people, loyal to their internationalist duties, are always united with the other revolutionary and progressive forces in the world and strongly supporting the firm struggle of other peoples against the warlike and aggressive policy of U.S.-led imperialism and for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism.

SHORTCOMINGS OF PRODUCT-CONTACT SYSTEM NOTED

[NHAN DAN 10 May editorial: "Develop Strong Points and Remedy Shortcomings To Perfect the Product-Contract System in Agriculture"]

[Text] The expanded application of product contracts to groups of laborers and individual laborers has the vigorous impact of a new economic policy and a new method of management in agriculture. It has also generated a seething impetus among the masses for boosting production and consolidating production relations. This new method of management, which has drawn a favorable response from numerous production establishments and laborers, has not only been broadly applied in the production of rice and subsidiary food crops but it is also being applied in the production of other crops such as tea, resin, sugarcanes, vegetables and short-term industrial crops, and in livestock breeding and the various handicrafts. Coupled with other economic incentive policies, the application of product emulation movement for production in the countryside, enabling the people to make full use of labor and lands, apply technical innovations, practice intensive cultivation, increase crop yields and improve economic results.

Through the application of the contract system and on the basis of developed production, management has been improved in the cooperatives. The continual consolidation of the broad response from the masses, the results of production and relations, and the drawing of individual peasants to the road of collectivized work constitute an important yardstick for measuring the effectiveness of an economic management method.

Since the product-contract system is a complicated method of management and its application has been expanded rapidly, it is unavoidable that in addition to the units that have applied this system satisfactorily, more than a few others have failed to do so and that some units have succeeded in some aspects but failed in others. Because of an incomplete and rather simplistic understanding of the issue, the inappropriateness of various work methods, the shortage of both material-technical facilities and trained cadres, the impact caused by the application of a number of unsuitable policies and so forth, a number of establishments had shortcomings or made mistakes. Some cooperatives have failed to carry out production and profit-and-loss accounting, distribute plans satisfactorily, determine recipients of contract quotas judiciously and set economic-technical norms realistically. Consequently, they have contracted out ricefields on an averaging basis or in a fragmented manner.

Control over the use of material-technical facilities and supervision over production activities have been unsatisfactory. Some tasks that should have been done by the cooperative have been assigned instead to cooperative members. This practice has led to a situation in which some cooperatives have dissolved very essential specialized units, such as those responsible for farmland water conservancy, seed culture, crop protection and so forth. Strictness and timeliness have not been ensured in settling contract quotas and in the procurement of products, resulting in product delivery shortfalls that affect the general distribution plan. In the field of distribution, the three interests have not been properly reconciling to the inclination to lean heavily toward the interests of the laborers while neglecting the interests of the collective.

These are the shortcomings that have been observed in some localities. Generally speaking, many cooperatives have been doing fairly well with the contract system and some of them have displayed only one or two such shortcomings. Others, however, are guilty of a fairly large number of shortcomings. At those establishments that carry out the contract system satisfactorily, production has picked up and production relations have been consolidated. Meanwhile, at the establishments where many shortcomings are observed, negative phenomena have emerged in the economic and social fields.

Some of the above-mentioned shortcomings stem from the failure of the higher echelons to provide the needed technical materials on schedule and to promptly issue specific regulations for guiding managerial work in the new situation. Other shortcomings are the result of sloppiness in organizing the implementations of the contract system at the district and village levels.

The reality of the movement to apply product contracts in rice cultivation is posing new problems for organization and management, the consolidation of agricultural cooperatives, specialized and intensive cultivation, and material and technical facilities. These problems must be studied and resolved in order to perfect the new management stystem. the fifth party congress asserted in its resolution that the practice of contracting out product quotas to groups of laborers and individual laborers is becoming a driving force in promoting the movement to emulate in developing production and improving economic results in agriculture. At the same time, the congress called on all grassroots units and the various responsible echelons and sectors to draw upon their experience, examine their strengths and weaknesses, develop their strong points, resolutely and promptly remedy shortcomings and proceed toward establishing a managerial system and internal regulations for the operation of agricultural cooperatives to cover all activities -- from the formulation of production plans to the organization of labor and the establishment of the system of norms, policies for distribution, the system for rewards and penalties and so forth.

It has not been long since we started the movement to change the system for organizing the management of cooperatives. In reviewing practical experience to improve guidance and supervision, we must, along with implementing the resolutions of the fifth party congress, push ahead the broad movement for revolutionary actions by millions of peasants and gradually advance our agriculture to large-scale production with the short-term goal of meeting at all costs the demands for food and clothing of the entire society.

MINISTRIES DISCUSS MANPOWER USE IN COASTAL AREAS

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 11 -- To make the best use of manpower in the coastal areas was the topic of a seminar held recently in Danang City (central Vietnam) by the Ministry of Labour and the Ministry of Marine Products. Vietnam has more than 3,000 kilometers of coastline with 1.67 million hectares of cultivated land and abundant resources of marine products. The coastal population is about 13 millions, 5 millions of whom are in the working age, accounting for one fifth of the country's workforce. In the north most of the coastal inhabitants have joined state enterprises, fishing and salt-making cooperatives, or agricultural, forestry and handicraft cooperatives. In the south, however, a large proportion of the workforce are still working in private undertakings.

In many localities the main orientation for better use of manpower is to build coastal dikes to check salt water in order to broaden the cultivated land. Haiphong City has used millions of workdays to open 3,000 hectares of agricultural land, 1,000 hectares of ponds for fish and shrimp raising and has transferred 2,000 persons from the city to the newly opened areas. 5,000 people from the city have also moved to Cat Ba Island to build fishing cooperatives. Thai Binh Province has built embankments to prevent salt water and put 2,500 hectares of formerly waste land under rush cultivation. The coastal districts of Trieu Hai (Binh Tri Thien) and Thang Binh (Quang Nam-Danang) have built many irrigation works and planted trees to protect the area from winds and sand encroachment.

The seminar, however, noted that the use of manpower in many coastal areas still is not rational. Working efficiency is lost and the local economy is developing too slowly. The seminar suggested many measures for the re-organization of production along the line of combining fishery, agriculture and industry.

YOUTH UNION PLENUM ELECTS NEW FIRST SECRETARY

BK110550 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 10 May 82

[Text] The Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union Central Committee, fourth tenure, held its fourth plenary plenum in Hanoi from 7 to 10 May to review the 1981 youth movement and to set forth a program of revolutionary activities for the implementation of the fifth party congress resolutions. The plenum was attended and addressed by Comrade Le Quang Dao, secretary of the party Central Committee.

In 1981, while the country was facing countless difficulties, the Youth Union quickly managed to direct its activities toward motivating youths to make vigorous advances on the economic front through the production of grain and food. The Youth Union made every effort to implement the state plan, further increased union-building and organizational activities and effected a change in the youth movement at the grassroots level. Many progressive models and new factors emerged in various domains: industrial, handicraft and agricultural production; science and technology; economization; combat; the safeguarding of national security; and the maintenance of public order.

The plenum vigorously discussed and unanimously adopted orientations and tasks and a revolutionary activity program for youths for 1982. This program gives top priority to the task of widely propagating and educating Youth Union members and youth who are not members on the resolutions of the fifth party congress in order to make them fully aware of the national situation as well as the 2 strategic tasks, 4 targets and 19 major measures laid down at the congress. It is also designed to encourage youths to take the lead in making wholehearted contributions to national construction and defense. Grain production is regarded as an essential task in this activity program.

At the plenum the Youth Union Central Committee elected Comrade Vu Mao, member of the party Central Committee, as the first secretary of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union in place of Comrade Dang Quoc Bao, who had been sent by the party Central Committee for a new assignment.

[Text] The minister for foreign affairs, Mr Street, says the recent pro-Solidarity demonstrations in Warsaw emphasize the continuing gulf between the Polish people and the martial law regime. In Parliament, Mr Street said this was despite some relaxation of the restrictions. He said the government welcomed any betterment of the lot of the Polish people. However, martial law remained in force, thousands of people were still interned and many factories were still subject to military discipline. Mr Street repeated the government's call for lifting of martial law, the release of people detained and an early return to the circumstances that would allow Poles to decide their own future.

MOKHTAR HAILS SUCCESS OF SEA LAW CONFERENCE

[Text] Jakarta, 4 May (ANTARA) -- The decision of the United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea to pass the sea law convention is a historic and very important event for Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said here Monday.

In an airport statement on his return from attending the conference in New York, he said the passage of the convention ensures that the Indonesian archepelagic state concept (wawasan nusantar) is elevated into a new international law, thus bringing the wawasan nusantara campaign on the international forum to a very satisfactory stage.

The convention, Mokhtar said, also guarantees Indonesia's interest with regard to international traffic in its straits, the exclusive economic zone, the continental shelf and the extaction of mineral wealth on the international seabed. The acceptance of the archipelagic state concept in the sea law convention extends Indonesia's maritime territory by more than three million square kilometres, comprising an economic zone of 200 miles and 800,000 square kilometers of continental shelf, Mokhtar noted.

The conference, according to Mokhtar, proceeded as scheduled but had to take a decision, not by consensus, but by vote as proposed by the United States, with 130 countries in favor, four against and 17 abstentions.

He regretted the non-participation of the United States in the convention, which he said actually would benefit United States interests, particularly in the military field. He, however, expressed confidence that in due time the United States would join the convention.

The shining success of the conference, Mokhtar said, also pointed up the determination and goodwill of developing nations to cooperate with advanced countries for the establisment of the ideal of all mankind, international peace and welfare.

The Conference on the Law of the Sea was started in 1973. Mokhtar hopes that the convention which has been welcomed by many as a comprehensive and detailed regulation of how to use the seas and the natural resources therein, would be signed and ratified soon by the participating countries in order for the convention to come into force.

Asked for his views on the British-Argentinian conflict over the Malvinas Islands (Falkland Islands) Mokhtar said he continued to hope that the problem would be settled by negotiations.

OW101225 Quezon City RPN Television Network in English 1100 GMT 10 May 82

[By Jose Carlos]

[Excerpts] The president today settled the long-drawn controversy over the bar examinations scandal by accepting the resignations of all members of the Supreme Court. In his letter to Chief Justice Enrique Fernando, the president said he was accepting the resignations of the members of the present Supreme Court in order to create a new Supreme Court; and this he would fill up as soon as possible, perhaps in a day or two. The chief executive said he may reappoint some members of the present Supreme Court in the new Supreme Court.

The president's letter came following his meeting with the present and former members of the Supreme Court, the academic circles and members of the bench and bar during the last 3 days in Malacanang. He told the Supreme Court members that the steps taken were in accordance with their agreement to restore the prestige, integrity and good name of the Supreme Court.

The bar examinations incident has cast a cloud of doubt over the integrity of the Supreme Court. The president therefore has decided that, instead of merely accepting the resignations of certain members of the Supreme Court, he must accept the resignations of all the 14 incumbent members of the Supreme Court in order to terminate the present court.

At the same time the president said the barangay elections will be held in southern Mindanao despite the reported clashes of lawless elements and military troopers in the area. HK100119 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 9 May 82

[Excerpts] In Mindanao, the Kilusang Bagong Lipunan [KBL] has chosen its candidates for the June 7 regional assembly elections in regions 9 and 12. The selections of the 34 candidates were made during conventions at Zamboanga and Cotabato. Deputy Prime Minister Jose Rono, who is also the KBL secretary-general, was guest at both conventions.

In his address, Deputy Prime Minister Rono reiterated the president's call for wider participation in the elections. [begin Rono recording] It has always been the policy of the president, I think the prime minister agrees with him, it is the president's desire and of course it is also the decision of the KBL and the government that the MNLF should be given a chance to participate in this affair of running their own autonomous regions. And as a matter of fact we would like to reiterate again, once again, that even up to this very moment the president would welcome the participation of the people outside the fold of the law, headed by Misuari and all of those people who are still with him. They are welcome to come back, and return to the fold of the law, and I think the president can even assure them of participation in the running of their own autonomous government. I say all this to them. [end Rono recording].

There are 34 KBL candidates. May 20 will be the start of a 15-day campaign period.

OFFICIALS MENTION TRADE PROPOSALS AT OECD

Sakurauchi on Credits to USSR

[Text] Paris, May 11, KYODO -- Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi Tuesday said that Japan is ready to accept a proposal to raise interest rates on export credits extended to the Soviet Union. Sakurauchi made the disclosure in his contribution to the second-day session of the ministerial meeting here of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).

He said that the compromise proposal, which was worked out last week at the OECD's export credit meeting, does not satisfy Japan, but added: "Our country expresses its readiness to accept it from the broader point of view, taking into consideration the positions of other nations." In his speech, titled "Trade Problems and Agricultural Trade Problems in the 1980's," Sakurauchi stressed the need for tightened economic and political solidarity among the Western nations to overcome the present stagnant situation in world trade. He said that increasing unemployment in industrialized nations is leading to strengthened pressure for protectionism. In this context, he emphasized that the nations concerned have to make efforts to revitalize the world economy and liberalize trade further.

The Japanese minister explained recent steps taken by Tokyo to open its market wider for foreign goods, including cuts in customs duties on 1,653 items two years ahead of the original schedule. He also said that a second package of market-opening measures is under preparation for announcement at an early date.

Earlier in the day, Sakurauchi and Toshio Komoto, state minister and head of the Economic Planning Agency, met with the American delegation to the OECD conference. Secretary of Commerce John Baldrige, U.S. Trade Representative William Brock and other officials attended the one-hour breakfast meeting, according to Japanese officials. Japanese sources quoted the Americans as saying that they would be seriously disappointed if the package of market-opening measures did not meet U.S. expectations. Komoto told the Americans that Japan and the United States have important roles to play in revitalizing the world economy and that Japan is considering market-opening measures which will lead to expansion of domestic demand, the sources said.

Komoto on Opening Markets

[Text] Paris, May 11, KYODO -- The modification of the U.S. high-interest policy is a prerequisite the revitalization of the global economy, Japan's top economic policy planner said here Tuesday. Toshio Komoto, director general of the Economic Planning Agency made the statement when he met the press after the end the same day of a two-day ministerial meeting of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). Komoto represented Japan at the meeting along with Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi.

At the meeting, delegates of many OECD member nations harshly criticized the high interest policy of the United States, Komoto said. The United States should modify the policy as soon as possible to revitalize the sluggish global economy, he said.

Komoto also said it is necessary for Japan to respond favorably to the foreign demand that it open its doemstic market wider to foreign imports. Komoto said Japan should adopt a new package of market-opening measures by the end of this month in connection with the seven-nation economic summit to be held in Versailles next month.

Foreign Minister Sakurauchi said in this connection that other OECD nations showed great interest in speeches he and Komoto delivered at the OECD meeting.

Komoto disclosed that he exchanged views with Sakuracuhi and Shintaro Abe, minister of international trade and industry, on the new market-opening package. Abe is also in Paris to attend a trilateral trade conference to be held near here Wednesday and Thursday. He also indicated that the government is considering lowering the Bank of Japan's official discount rate to prop up the sluggish Japanese economy. But, he said, the government will determine the timing of the discount rate cut after closely watching both domestic and foreign conditions for some time.

Abe on Lower Tariffs

[Excerpts] Paris, May 11, KYODO --Japan Tuesday notified the United States of its readiness to drastically lower its import tariff rates on machine tools, computers and automobile parts as part of effort to open its market wider to foreign imports.

In a meeting with U.S. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, Shintaro Abe, minister of international trade and industry, said the tariff on boring machines will be eliminated, while rates on computers and auto parts will be cut as much as possible. Japanese tariffs on these items currently range from 4 to 7.5 percent. After the meeting with Baldrige, Abe told reporters the U.S. official had highly appreciated the Japanese action.

Abe said he also told the U.S. commerce secretary it would prove difficult for the Japanese Government to include measures to liberalize imports of agricultural products into a new package of measures to give foreign goods a greater access to the Japanese market. Baldrige understood the Japanese position. He added.

ANOTHER SOVIET FIRING PRACTICE ANNOUNCED

[Text] Tokyo, May 11, KYODO -- The Soviet Union will conduct another firing practice in the sea off northern Japan this month, Japan's Maritime Safety Agency said Tuesday. Quoting a Soviet warning heard here, the agency said the practice will be carried out in the Sea of Japan northwest of Hokkaido between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. for four days, beginning next Tudsday. The agency said Monday the Soviet Union will also conduct firing practice in the sea off Etorofu Island, east of Hokkaido, Thursday through Saturday this week.

ITO ON FISCAL 1983 DEFENSE PROGRAM GUIDELINES

[Text] Tokyo, May 11, KYODO -- Defense Agency Chief Soichiro Ito Tuesday instructed defense leaders to take into account modernization of Japan's Air defense missile system and improvement of other defense capabilities in working out a defense program for fiscal 1983.

Ito issued the instructions to Adm. Tsugio Yata, chairman of the Joint Staff Council, the chiefs of staffs of the Ground, Maritime and Air Self-Defense Forces, and the head of the agency's Technical Research and Development Institute.

In setting forth guidelines for the fiscal 1983 program, Ito told the defense leaders to plan in conformity with a mid-term program estimate being worked out by the agency to cover the five years starting in fiscal 1983.

He also called for a balanced buildup of combat equipment and logistics support equipment and for efforts to rationalize the nation's defense capabilities and make them more efficient.

In concrete terms, Ito asked for improvement of the firepower of 203-millimeter self-propelled howitzers and other artillery, of the firepower and mobility of antitank weapons, and of the general capabilities of armored transportation for the GSDF.

He also called for a buildup of destroyers and anti-submarine P-3C patrol planes for the MSDF so as to improve its antisubmarine and air-defense capabilities and for initiation of work on a new generation BADGE (base air defense ground environment) system for the ASDF.

Ito also asked for increased reserves for the three self-defense forces.

In the sphere of technical research and development, Ito called for promotion of studies on utilization of optical fiber and other advanced technologies for defense equipment and for efforts to standardize fuel and ammunition between Japan and the United States.

Dealing with modernization of the air defense missile system, Ito called for a start on studies to select missiles to succeed the present Nike and Hawk missiles in fiscal 1983. In light of these requests, the agency is expected to demand greater budgetary appropriation for fiscal 1983 than it has been granted for the current fiscal year. The fiscal 1983 program will be decided at the end of August.

LDP REPORT CRITICAL OF ANTINUCLEAR MOVEMENT

[Text] Tokyo, May 8, KYODO -- A paper critical of the Japanese anti-nuclear movement as supporting Soviet global strategy is being circulated among members of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP), it was learned here Saturday.

The paper, titled "Baring the Lies of the Anti-Nuclear and Peace Movements," was prepared by the party's investigation department. Its conclusions directly contradict the LDP's official position calling on the U.S. and the Soviet Union to abolish nuclear weapons. The report describes local anti-nuclear drives as part of an international communist propaganda campaign. It also characterizes them as "offensive" in character, saying they have the purpose of breaking Japan's ties with the West while securing Soviet nuclear superiority.

The paper further asserts that it is not possible to eliminate nuclear arms, maintaining that a system of nuclear deterrence is the only way to achieve security. It argues that the arms race can only be ended if the Free World is united, because the West's combined economic power, some four times that of the Soviet Union, would ensure its victory in any [illegible] competition.

The report also advocates U.S. President Ronald Reagan's strategy of building up U.S. nuclear forces before meeting with the Soviets at the conference table for disarmament talks.

OVERSEAS KOREAN PAPER DEMANDS U.S. POLICY CHANGE

[Text] Pyongyang, May 11 (KCNA) -- The May 1 issue of NEW KOREA TIMES, a newspaper of Koreans published in Canada, carried an editorial titled "We Demand Change in U.S. Policy Towards South Korea" according to a report.

The editorial says that with the arson at the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan on March 18 as an occasion the anti-American sentiments of the South Korean people are spreading to the whole area like prairie fire. It cites as an instance the fact that the "Korea Christian Action Organization," a joint organization of Catholicism and Protestantism of South Korea, recently made public a statement condemning the U.S. policy towards South Korea and demanding the recall home of the U.S. ambassador in Seoul and the commander of the U.S. forces occupying South Korea and that students of the South Korean Kangwon University burned the U.S. flag.

Saying that such anti-American sentiments are expected to run higher in the future, the editorial recalls the inequal interchange between South Korea and the United States in the last one century. Atrocities committed by the Japanese imperialists at the connivance or with the encouragement of the United States and the occupation policy pursued by the United States towards South Korea since the end of the Second World War and expresses indignation at the U.S. action in encouraging and supporting the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique's massacre of peaceful students and citizens of Kwangju who rose in demand of democracy.

Noting that in the Kwangju massacre instigated and supported by the United States and its open double same, the people clearly realized who is obstructing the democratization of South Korea, the editorial says: It can be said that now the movement for democracy is gradually turning into an anti-U.S. movement and it is a logical result. This is proved by the fact that a number of anti-"government" fighting slogans put up by students continuously after the burning of the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan began to assume anti-U.S., anti-dictatorial character.

The commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea, the master of Chon Tu-hwan, likened the South Korean people to "rats" and U.S. Ambassador Walker called anti-institutional activists "rude fellows." This is a humiliation and insult to our nation.

We believe that the statement of the Christian Action Organization of South Korea represented the conscience, self-respect and rights of our nation.

Stressing that the United States continually supporting the Chon Tu-hwan "regime," a target of the people's hatred, must reflect on the mistakes committed by it so far, it says: "We demand a total change in the U.S. policy towards South Korea."

ORGANIZATIONS CITED ON KOREAN REUNIFICATION

[Text] Pyongyang, May 11 (KCNA) -- Letters of solidarity came from an international organisation and foreign public organisations in support of the struggle of the Korean people to achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

In his letter to the Central Committee of the General Federation of Trade Unions of Korea, General Secretary of the World Federation of Trade Unions Ibrahim Zakaria says that the proposal of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland to convene a joint meeting of 100 Korean politicians in the North, South and abroad and discuss the proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and other reunification proposals that might be raised is one more constructive and sincere initiative taken by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for the reunification of the country.

The WFTU fully supports the new proposal of the DPRK to convene a joint meeting of 100 Korean politicians and declares that it will always stand firm on the side of the Korean workers and people who are struggling for the reunification of the country, says the letter.

In its letter of solidarity to the Central Committee of the League of Socialist Working Youth of Korea, the Central Committee of the Free German Youth says that it protests against the manoeuvres of the U.S. administration and the South Korean rulers in keeping South Korea as a military strategic base of imperialism and gravely menacing peace in Asia and the rest of the world.

In the letter of solidarity to the Central Committee of the General Federation of Trade Unions of Korea, General Secretary of the National Workers Union of Dominica Josephine Dublin strongly denounces the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique for intensifying their machinations to lead the situation of the Korean Peninsula to the brink of war, infringe upon the democratic rights of the South Korean working people and obstruct the reunification of Korea.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who was taking a walk at [word indistinct], studied the sky and, predicting frost, asked the dear comrade Leader Kim Chong-il to send coats to members of the Sea of Blood Art Troupe, who were performing abroad.

The dear comrade leader instantly summoned a cadre concerned and said to him that coats should be sent to them in a hurry. The cadre was puzzled because it was not the season for coats. To the puzzled cadre, the dear comrade leader said that he must act promptly, expressing concern that the actors could catch a cold if the weather in the country where they were performing dropped suddenly. The dear comrade leader instructed him what he should do to make coats that day.

Accordingly, laundry cars rushed to the actors' houses and with their coats as samples, new coats were made. The next day a special plane provided by the dear comrade leader left for the actors. Receiving the coasts, the actors embraced each other weeping, for they were so moved by the love the great leader and the dear comrade leader accorded them.

Likewise, the dear comrade Leader Kim Chong-il showed his love to students studying abroad. The dear comrade leader had gifts sent to those who had nothing to worry about, since all the expenses are paid by the state. NODONG SINMUN ON STRUGGLE AGAINST EXPLOITATION

[Text] Pyongyang, May 11 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today carries an article on the struggle of non-aligned countries to eradicate the root cause of international exploitation. It says: To eradicate the root cause of international exploitation poses as a very important problem in the non-aligned and developing countries, because, with this root cause such as the old international economic order left intact, these countries cannot successfully build an independent new society or free themselves from the imperialists exploitation and plunder.

What makes the backbone of the old international economic order is the old international monetary system. By forcing inequality in the monetary field, the imperialists are reaping colossal profits and, at the same time, creating grave obstacles to the economy of the developing countries. Taking advantage of their monopolistic position on the market, the imperialists freely cut the prices of raw materials of developing countries and export their finished goods at high prices.

The non-aligned and developing countries are actively striving to abolish the inequitable old order in the international monetary field and establish a new fair one. These countries nationalize imperialists banking companies and restrict their interests while establishing progressive state financial systems in keeping with the demand of the building of a new society and issuing new national currencies. These steps destroy the foothold of the imperialists exploitation and plunder in non-aligned countries and create favorable conditions for economic development there.

The non-aligned and developing countries are jointly countering the price manipulation of the imperialists, having formed organizations of those countries which produce and export raw materials to get fair prices for their exported raw materials. They repeal unequal agreements concluded with big powers in the past and reexamine and reform economic relations.

The non-aligned and developing countries are making efforts to lay the foundation of the national economiy and build an independent economy. Many of them establish industrial domains depending on their domestic raw materials and restrict import of some kinds of goods with the increase of their own industrial production.

The non-aligned and developing countries are joining efforts in the struggle to destroy the old international economic order and establish a new one.

The question of setting up a new international economic order was discussed and practical measures were taken at many conferences including the foreign ministers conference of non-aligned countries and the symposium of the non-aligned and other developing countries on increasing food and agricultural production which was held in our country last year.

The fourth meeting of all coordinating countries of the action program for economic cooperations among non-aligned countries held in March this year discussed the question of establishing a fairer international economic order and other important problems.

The paper stresses in conclusion: If the non-aligned countries jointly struggle in firm unity under the banner of independence, it is possible to solve all problems in conformity with the demand of the developing countries and deal a heavy blow at the imperialists. The strenuous and vigorous struggle of the non-aligned and developing countries will certainly lead to the establishment of a new international economic order.

NONALIGNED NEWS AGENCY CONFERENCE OPENS

Yi Chong-ok Speaks

SK120502 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0445 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 12 (KCNA) -- The seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries opened in Pyongyang today.

The meeting is attended by delegations and delegates of member nations of the coordinating committee and of interested news agencies of nonaligned countries and regional and international organisations. The meeting will discuss practical measures for strengthening the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries and expanding the exchange of information among the nonaligned countries.

Yi Chong-ok, premier of the Administration Council of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, made a congratulatory speech for the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries.

Newspapers here today run editorials warmly hailing the meeting. The seventh meeting, says NODONG SINMUN in its editorial, will mark an excellent occasion for the nonaligned countries to share the successes and experiences gained in the field of information and communications, an important occasion in encouraging and propelling the struggle of the peoples in these countries for a new progress in information activities and strengthening and developing the cooperative relations and friendship and solidarity among them.

The present meeting will take a new stride forward in the solution of this question by seeking practical steps so that the pool may fully play its role in helping the nonaligned countries maintain their anti-imperialist, independent stand, checking the distorted reports of the news agencies of imperialist countries and ensuring the rapidness and correctness of information. The meeting will continue till May 14.

NODONG SINMUN Editorial

[Text] Pyongyang, May 12 (KCNA) -- Papers here today dedicate editorials to the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries opening here today.

In an editorial headlined "Warm Welcome to the Seventh Meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries" NODONG SINMUN notes that the meeting carries weighty significance in improving and strengthening the work of the pool. It says:

The seventh meeting of the pool coordinating committee is convened at a time when it stands out as a Nonaligned Movement. It will be greatly conducive to increasing the might of the Nonaligned Movement as a whole for officials of nonaligned news agencies to sit together and discuss practical ways for strengthening and developing the pool and for enhancing its role.

The seventh meeting will mark an excellent occasion for the nonaligned countries to share the successes and experiences gained in the field of information and communications, an important occasion in encouraging and propelling the struggle of the peoples in these countries for a new progress in information activities and strengthening and developing the cooperative relations and friendship and solidarity among them.

It will also be conducive to dealing a telling blow at the imperialists' arbitrariness and monopoly in the field of information and communications and to hastening the establishment of a new fair international order of information and communications.

The nonaligned countries held a series of general meetings and coordinating committee meetings of the pool to take measures for improving and strengthening press activities in keeping with the mission and purpose of the Nonaligned Movement and opposing the imperialists monopoly and domination in this field, and are actively striving for their implementation.

Thanks to the activities of the pool and the struggle of the nonaligned countries, foundations have been laid to destroy the outdated international order of information and communications and establish a new one on an overall scale.

But the pool has a lot of things to do to fully fulfill its mission and attain its purpose for the expansion and development of the Nonaligned Movement. The pool is faced with a task to do away with the imperialist pressure and splitting and alienating manoeuvres and extensively conduct press activities for the further strengthening and development of the Nonaligned Movement and thereby actively contribute to accelerating the people's cause of anti-imperialism and independence and defending world peace and security.

For the news agencies of the nonaligned countries to maintain an independent stand and develop exchange and cooperation among them is an effective way for a successful fulfillment of this task.

They should strengthen the nonaligned character of pool reports and closely cooperate with one another in the field of information and communications on the principle of independence, equality, mutual benefit, non-interference in others' internal affairs and on the principle of opposing all outside interference. They should also thwart and frustrate the imperialist policy of aggression and war, actively support the people's struggle against imperialism and for independence and further intensify the press activities for world peace and security.

What is important in strengthening and developing the press activities of the nonaligned countries is to remove the old international order of information and communications and establish a new one.

The nonaligned countries must fight with concerted efforts to destroy the old order and establish a new fair one in the interests of the countries of the new-emerging forces in the field of international information and communications.

At present measures are taken in nonaligned countries to develop press activities, strengthen collaboration and establish a new international order of information and communications. The quesiton depends on how the nonaligned countries are active to effect them.

The present meeting will take a new stride forward in the solution of this question by seeking practical steps so that the pool may fully play its role in helping the nonaligned countries maintain their anti-imperialist,independent stand, checking the distorted reports of the news agencies of imperialist countries and ensuring the rapidness and correctness of information.

KCNA Comment

[Text] Pyongyang, May 11 (KCNA) -- The non-aligned countries today confronted with an urgent task to put an end to the imperialist monopoly and arbitrariness in the field of information and communication and establish a new fair international order of information and communications in their interests.

To establish this new international order constitutes an important aspect of the struggle of the non-aligned countries to do away with the imperialist's privileges and arbitrariness in the international political relations.

The imperialists news agencies that monopolize a majority of the reports circulated in the world have installed thousands of their branch offices everywhere in the world to distribute reports speaking for the interests of the bourgeoisie. Their coverage of the developing countries is no more than 20 percent of their total, and that is mostly a distortion of facts at that.

Holding 90 per cent of the world's resources of frequencies, the imperialists slight or exclude the non-aligned countries in their distribution. They worked out the rules of the use of satellite communications in their favor to face the non-aligned and developing countries with threats and difficulties in the use of space. Besides, the existing international order of information and communications serves as inequality by which the imperialists rake in a colossal amount of profits through unreasonable and unequal news fees.

Under such situation, the non-aligned countries refuse to allow the outdated international order of information and communications any longer. They demand the independent development of the information system in each country based on non-interference in others internal affairs, respect of international law, the maintenance of their national independence and proper cultural traditions and the guarantee of peoples rights to freely make use of mass media. In the final analysis, they demand the estabishment of a new international order under which the international exchange of information would be based on the principle of equality, justice and mutual benefit. And they raised it as their important task to eliminate imbalance and inequality in the domain of information and communications and remove obstacles in the way of free exchange and dissemination of reports.

Under the slogan "Let us establish a new international order of information and communications" they are waging a vigorous common struggle to realize their demands and tasks.

What is noteworthy here is that all the non-aligned countries are taking a common stand to destroy the old order, while maintianing the anti-imperialist stand. Many non-aligned countries take stringent sanctions, closing branch offices of imperialists news agencies or expelling correspondents who impair their naional independence and sovereignty and distribute unrealistic, false reports to exercise negative influence upon the peoples who set about the building of a new soceity.

The struggle of the non-aligned countries for the establishmemt of a new international order of information and communications is gaining in scope and developing, becoming organized by degrees on the global scale. After putting up the slogan of establishing a new order, the non-aligned countries founded many information and communications organizaitons such as the Inter-Governmental Council for Coordination of Information Among Non-Aligned countries, The Committee of Radio and TV Cooperation of Non-Aligned Journalists Organizations and the Postal and Telecommunication Coordinating Bureau of the Non-Aligned Countries. They are strengthening unity and collaboration among the organizations while gradually expanding their ranks.

The pool urges the non-aligned countries without news agencies to found them and makes some news agencies play the role of regional redistribution centres to widely disseminate news of the non-aligned countries. Now the volume of news exchanged among non-aligned countries totals 40,000 words a day, an increase of 5 times.

The Committee of Radio and TV Cooperation of Non-Aligned Countries is instituting regional guide officer of radio and TV programs for the purpose of strengthening the exchange of broadcasting programs among non-aligned countries.

At the first session of the Postal and Telecommunications Coordinating Bureau of the non-aligned countries held in December last year, it was decided to set up a center for implementing the action program for cooperation among the non-aligned countries in this field.

The non-aligned countries are also strengthening cooperation in training journalists and technical personnel of the press.

Thanks to their united efforts for the establishment of a new international order of information and communications a new development is being made in the field of information and communications in these countries and a wide coverage is given to accounts of the people's struggle against imperialism and for independence and for building of a new life.

The struggle of the peoples of the non-aligned countries to destroy the anachronistic old order and establish an international order of information and communications conforming to the new situation today and international balance of forces will surely end in victory as part of their sacred cause of making the whole world independent.

REPORTAGE, REACTION IN LOAN SCANDAL'S WAKE

Couple Accused of Fraud

SK120204 Seoul YONHAP in English 0139 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 12 (YONHAP) -- South Korea's prosecutor-general's office Tuesday charged former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha with fraud for circulating bills worth hundreds of billions of won without the consent of their issuers.

Announcing the results of its investigation of the recent curb loan scandal, the office revealed that Yi and Chang had obtained promissory notes with a total face value of 262.4 billion won (364.4 million U.S. dollars) from Kongyung Construction Co. and five other major industrial companies since February 1981 after lending them only 57.6 billion won. One U.S. dollar is worth about 720 won.

They induced the firms to issue the promissory notes in excess of the actual amounts of the loans by saying they would keep them as collateral. They then cashed the bills in the curb money market without the consent of the issuers, according to the prosecution announcement.

Kongyung and Ilshin Steel Co., two of the six affected firms, were declared bankrupt Tuesday and have been placed in legal management. The other firms also face serious financial trouble.

The announcement said that Mrs. Chang allegedly started a money-lending business in 1978 with 4.5 billion won, including 500 million won she had received from her two ex-husbands as alimony.

Yi, 59, former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Mrs. Chang, 38, were arrested May 5 on charges of violating the foreign exchange control law by illegally taking 400,000 dollars to the United States and hiding another 400,000 dollars and eight million Japanese yen at their home.

The prosecution investigation found that the couple had attempted to send an additional 250,000 dollars overseas. The prosecution said they acted as if they were in close association with Yi Kyu-kwang, president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corp., and the husband of Mrs. Chang's elder sister.

By pretending to be in a close relationship with Yi, Mrs. Chang earned the trust of business circles and was able to procure the huge promissory notes from financially unstable firms after making cash loans to them.

The couple even managed to obtain mortgage-free bank loans worth 35 billion won. Two bank presidents have tendered their resignations as a result.

The prosecution investigation confirmed, however, that neither Yi Kyu-kwang nor any government official had actually assisted the couple.

The personal property of the couple, estimated at over 30 billion won, has been seized by the authorities to repay the losses they inflicted on a number of business firms, the announcement said.

Chon Tu-hwan Comments

[Text] Seoul, May 11 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan, commenting on last week's foreign exchange scandal involving a retired Korean Army general, instructed the Justice Ministry and other law enforcement authorities Tuesday to make a "thorough and public" probe of the case, presidential spokesman Yi Ung-hui said Tuesday.

Deploring the apparent lack of order in the country's banking community which said allowed such an impropriety to happen, Chon also ordered the authorities to castigate everyone involved, regardless of their social rank or status.

Yi Chol-hui, a former Korean Army major general and his wife, Chang Yong-cha, were arrested May 7 on charges of violating Korea's foreign exchange law by illegally diverting 400,000 U.S. dollars to the United States as well as illegally possessing large sums in foreign currencies.

Chon Tu-hwan Relative Resigns

[Text] Seoul, May 12 (YONHAP) -- President Yi Kyu-kwang of the state-run Korea Mining Promotion Corp. tendered his resignation Wednesday in connection with the recent curb loan scandal involving former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and his wife Mrs. Chang Yong-cha. Energy-Resources Minister Yi Sun-ki accepted the resignation, a ministry official said. Yi Kyu-kwang is the husband of Mrs Chang's elder sister and assumed the state post in May 1980. He resigns one year before the expiration of his tenure of office. Yi is the younger brother of Yi Ku-tong, who is the father-in-law of President Chon Tu-hwan.

While defrauding a number of businessmen of some 260 billion won (some 361.1 million U.S. dollars) by cashing commercial bills at discount rate prior to their due dates in the curb market, Chang pretended to be under the special patronage of Yi. Yi was a 1947 classmate of the Korean Military Academy and became a provost masdhal, retiring from active service as a major general in 1961. The official said a successor will be named in a couple of days.

Bank Officials Dismissed

[Text] Seoul, May 12 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Government relieved four top bank officials of their posts Wednesday, holding them responsible for their banks' involvement in the recent curb loan scandal.

The dismissed officials are President Yim Chae-su, Executive Director Sin Yong-chol, and auditor Pak Kwang-chong of the Cho-Hung Bank, and President Kong Tok-chong of the Commercial Bank of Korea.

A high ranking government official said that no further personnel changes will take place in financial circles in connection with the scandal so that the paralyzed functions of the banking institutions can return to normal as soon as possible.

The vice presidents or senior directors of the two affected institutions will head the banks for the time being, the official said.

Major Bankruptcies Reported

SK110951 Seoul YONHAP in English 0922 GMT 11 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 11 (YONHAP) -- Two of South Korea's leading companies, Kongyung Construction and Ilishin Steel, were declared bankrupt Tuesday as the government decided to suspend financial support which would have saved them from the aftershocks of the recent curb money market scandal.

Earlier both Kongyung and Ilshin had filed petitions to the Seoul District Civil Court for Legal Management, and the government had sought a third party to run the companies' affairs, including a Kongyung overseas construction project.

Kongyung, Ilshin and four other large companies were victimized by one-time Korean National Assemblyman Yi Chul-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha, who were big curb loan dealers and speculative stock investors.

Yi and Chang allegedly defrauded the six companies of an undetermined amount of money by cashing the companies' commercial bills of more than 260 billion won (roughly 360 million U.S. dollars) at a discount rate prior to their due dates. The four other companies affected are Taeyang Metal, Samick Housing, Haitai Confectionery and Life Housing.

The couple were arrested last Friday on charges of illegally taking 400,000 dollars to the United States, and hiding another 400,000 dollars plus eight million in Japanese yen at their home in violation of the foreign exchange control law.

In view of the greater than expected impact the incident is having on the Korean economy and banking circles, the government has instructed banks to extend a line of credit to help affected companies cope with the aftershocks. Kongyung and Ilshin, however, were excluded from this financial help.

With a chronic fund shortage, Korean enterprises often meet a great part of their financial requirements with widespread curb loans. According to a report from Citizens National Bank, the country's 28,725 small and medium-sized firms whose employees number between five and 300 borrowed a total of 325 billion won (451.4 million U.S. dollars) from the curb money market last year at a monthly interest rate of 3.2-3.3 percent. The figure averages 11.3 million won (15,700 dollars).

ASSEMBLY HEARS DEBATE ON UIRYONG MASSACRE

SK120202 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 10 May 82 p 2

[Article by reporters Hwang Chae-hong and Yi Nak-yon]

[Excerpts] For 2 days, from 7 May, the National Assembly plenary session has dealt with the Uiryong massacre in South Kyongsang province. Noteworthy in the debates were the opposition offensive against the present power system, approaching the issue from a viewpoint, and the ruling party's countering the opposition by striking some opposition remarks from the stenographic records.

The ruling party's ill feelings aroused by the opposition offensive against the present power system are still smouldering, and will likely be a factor in future relations between the ruling and opposition parties.

The parliamentary interpellation of the government at the extraordinary National Assembly session on 7 and 8 May was entirely different, in terms of depth and perspective, from the Home Affairs Committee session, which dealt with the Uiryong incident on 30 April.

National Assemblymen Yu Sang-ho, Cho Chong-chae and Mun Pyong-yang stressed follow-up measures to deal with the incident rather than referring to the nature of the case. They presented some working-level measures to the government, such as the reform of police administration, compensation for damages, and improvement of the firearms control system.

Opposition lawmakers, such as National Assemblymen Han Yong-su, and Ko Yong-ku of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP], Cho Il-che of the Korea National Party]KNP] and Yi Su-chong of the parliamentary friendship group, on the other hand, urged the government to take some steps toward a political settlement.

They defined the incident not as an accidental criminal offense, but as a manifestation of a social, pathological phenomenon. They called for the resignation of the Cabinet en bloc, for political development, and for rallying popular opinion.

In particular, the speech by Assemblyman Han Yong-su was the center of the story, as expected. As the first speaker of the seven other assemblymen, he, without a prepared manuscript, continued his criticism of the present government system, which has been regarded as "sacred," thus keying up people both within and outside the National Assembly.

While mentioning the characteristics and background of the Uiryong incident, Assemblyman Han maintained that "all responsibility rests with this 'national crisis,'; the government should take some measures to rejuvenate politics; and the National Assembly should break itself of the 'habit of keeping silent.'" He also urged the government to alter the present method of running the state. Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, who demonstrated his "mild attitude," reacted stoutly against Han's remarks. "There are some factors which need to be considered carefully for the future of our nation, but I think that there is too severe a difference in opinion on one single condition and fact. "I disagree with Assemblyman Han as to what is in our national interests in settling the question," Prime Minister Yu said. His attitude in answering the questions showed sincerity. Yet, regarding the question about the absence of newspaper reporters assigned to provincial cities, his reply was evaluated as either lacking truth in itself or lacking a proper grasp of what actually happened at that time. He said, "It was originally what the newspaper association decided upon autonomously."

The DJP, regarding Assemblyman Han's question partly as a direct challenge to the present government, took the relatively mild step of "deleting his remarks from the stenographic records" by virtue of the authority of the speaker and of "arousing his general attention".

The DJP self-complacently called it a step "demonstrating the party's matured political influence." Some observers said that the DJP learned a lesson from the stiff attitude of the ruling party under the Yusin system. At that time, the inflexibility of the former ruling party led to unfortunate catastrophe.

The DKP's reaction to Assemblyman Han's speech were a little more complicated. The reactions were mixed, with calls of praise of "well done," and disapproving voices of, "What's the use of it?" Floor leader Yim Chong-ki defended Han, saying, "The Uiryong incident itself was a shock to the world." But he could scarcely hide the "embarrassment" which showed on his face. Probably, it was because of his sense of responsbility since he promised the ruling party "self-restraint on political attack." DKP Vice President Yu Ok-u said that "such radical remarks are of no help for the nation."

However, Assemblyman O Hong-sok, chairman of the Central Standing Committee and Assemblyman Kim Hyon-kyu, chairman of the Policy Examination Committee, said that they "highly rate him for making such remarks under the present circumstances."

MINISTER DISCUSSES REGIONAL EMERGENCY MEASURES

SK120232 Seoul YONHAP in English 0217 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 12 (YONHAP) -- South Korean Home Minister No Tae-u called on provincial governors Wednesday to establish regional emergency measures and conduct regular checkups of vulnerable areas to prevent incidents such as the recent killing rampage by a policeman at Uiryong, 200 miles south of Seoul.

Patrolman U Pom-kon, 27, shot 55 people to death and wounded 36 in an eight-hour carnage through five villages April 26 before blowing himself up with a hand grenade.

At the first provincial governors' meeting since No replaced So Chong-hwa, who resigned after the bloody outburst, No emphasized that effective measures should be set up for speedy and complete control of such situations.

No also urged the governors to stress the understanding, sympathy, and credence of local inhabitants in maintaining regional stability. He said government officials should rectify bureaucratic attitudes which dominate the general public as well as administrative services that lack responsibility and vitality. For vulnerable areas where administrative influences remain distant, No said local office heads should go to the scene and learn the problems of the inhabitants in order to provide desirable polices for them.

The minister and provincial governors also discussed the emergency mobilization of the Civil Defense Corps, continued promotion of Saemaul (New Community) movement activities, and efficient management of local finances.

Second chapter: Remarks of the Supreme Command of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and Guerrillas

During the past 1981-82 dry season, the Supreme Command of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas noted a number of new concrete facts on the Kampuchean battlefields as follows:

I. The Vietnamese enemy plan of operations for the 1981-82 dry season has been completely defeated since:

A. Strategically the Vietnamese enemy is completely bogged down on the Kampuchean battlefields because they lack troops to resist the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas who have waged guerrilla war to destroy their forces all over the country.

B. Tactically, during this 1981-82 dry season the Vietnamese enemy tried to concentrate their available forces on the Kampuchean battlefields and brought more recruits from Vietnam and carried out operations aimed at taking over and occupying some battlefields from the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas in order to serve their diplomatic maneuvers. However they were completely defeated.

It is necessary to note that there were more than 10,000 new recruits brought from Vietnam during the 1981-82 dry season. They were composed of two types of persons: The first type of recruits were youths from south Vietnam between 14 and 18 years old; the second type were former soldiers and employees of the Thieu-Ky period.

These new reinforcements of more than 10,000 troops were used only as aides for the Vietnamese enemy's operational forces. These new troops frequently deserted from the battlefields.

II. During the 1980-81 dry season the Vietnamese enemy used their brigades, regiments, battalions and companies to carry out their operations in the eastern and central region battlefields which include Ratanakiri, Stung Treng, Mondolkiri and Kratie Provinces; south preah Vihear, Kompong Cham, Svay Rieng, Prey Veng, Kandal, Takeo, Kampot, Kompong Speu and Kompong Chhnang Provinces and eastern Kompong Thom, and eastern Pursat. In the 1981-82 dry season the Vietnamese enemy used their companies to carry out their large-scale operations. These companies were mostly composed of troops gathered from various units, not whole platoons. There were few operations. This showed the deterioration of the Vietnamese enemy's situation on the eastern and central region battlefields compared to the 1980-81 dry season.

III. The Vietnamese enemy's larger operations during the 1981-82 dry season were waged in the western regions of Kampuchea and only on four battlefields:

1. The Chhep-Thalabarivat battlefield;
2. The Siem Reap-Route 6 battlefield;
3. The Koh Kong Leu Battlefield; and
4. The Sisophon-south of Route 5 battlefield.

These four operations, using forces of from 7,000 to more than 10,000 troops, were subdued and completely defeated by our Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas. They suffered numerous casualties among their troops and a large quantity of their military materiel was destroyed. In order to serve their diplomatic trick the Vietnamese enemy tried to carry out these operations by concentrating their forces available on the Kampuchean battlefields and by bringing in some more reinforcements from Vietnam.

The Vietnamese enemy hoped that, if they could defeat the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas on these four battlefields, they would be able to use their propaganda to dupe the international opinion by saying that they are powerful on the Kampuchean battlefields, they have the forces to sweep away the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas, they have the forces to occupy all of Kampuchea, they have enough forces to grab Kampuchea, and it is irreversible. The Le Duan Vietnamese enemy hoped that through this diplomatic maneuver, they would restore their situation on the Kampuchean battlefields, which is completely bogged down, and could change this situation to gain advantages and score victories over the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas until they could smash them and occupy Kampuchea forever.

The concrete struggle during the whole 1981-82 dry season showed clearly that the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy's operations plan and maneuvers were completely defeated.

IV. During the 1981-82 dry season, we noted more confusion among the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy as follows:

1. There was greater confusion in the military commands of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy on the Kampuchean battlefields.

2. There was confusion and loss of control in using the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy troops on the Kampuchean battlefields.

3. There was low morale among the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy which caused more desertions and mutinies on the Kampuchean battlefields.

4. There were shortages of food, clothes and medicines for their troops on the Kampuchean battlefields. There were more casualties from malaria and other diseases. Conditions are deteriorating.

5. More Khmer militiamen and soldiers who were forced by the Vietnamese enemy to serve them deserted and mutinied and fired on the Vietnamese enemy.

6. There were more difficulties in Vietnam in all fields -- political, economic, financial and security. Particularly worth noting is the big rift inside the Vietnamese political party, Central Committee and state. This big split in the Vietnamese political party and in its Central Committee is a clear sign of the big defeat of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy's policy of aggression in Kampuchea.

7. In these circumstances -- in which their condition is deteriorating in all fields and they are completely bogged down -- during the entire past 1981-82 dry season the Vietnamese enemy systematically increased their use of toxic chemical weapons to kill innocent Kampuchean people and against the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas. They have increased their massacres of our Kampuchean people. They have expanded the famine to kill our people in conformity with heir policy of starvation and starvation and genocide of our Kampuchean race.

During the entire 1981-82 dry season, we also noted the development of the struggling forces of the Kampuchean people, the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas under the leadership of the Democratic Kampuchean Government and the Patriotic and Democratic Front of Great National Union of Kampuchea [PDFGNUK] with Mr Khieu Samphan as chairman as follows:

1. Our Kampuchean people of all strata all over the country who are suffering more from the untold disasters caused by the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy over the past more than 3 years are angrier at them. They are opposing the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy more. They are more united and assist and support in all ways the Democratic Kampuchea National Army and guerrillas and our Democratic Kampuchean Government who are sharing weal and woe with the nation. The people are firmly determined to fight the Vietnamese enemy on the battlefields for the survival of the Kampuchean nation and race.

2. Our Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas have taken an important step in implementing the guerrilla war and tactics over the whole last 1981-82 dry season. They increased in numbers and ability to wage guerrilla activities in groups. They smashed the Vietnamese troops. They cut the Vietnamese enemy's transport lines -- small and big. They established and expanded their networks to ambush the Vietnamese enemy's operational forces. They can defend themselves to the maximum. They also conserved ammunition better than before.

On this occasion, the Supreme Command of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas appeals to the entire Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas all over the country to:

1. Grasp the results on the military battlefields during the 1981-82 dry season.

2. Note that we have advanced another step but the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy and their company have many more tricky maneuvers -- military, political and diplomatic.

3. Always heighten vigilance.

4. Continue to uphold the banner of struggle against the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors, expansionists, swallowers of territory and exterminators of our Kampuchean race. This must be carried on more actively and efficiently in conformity with our guerrilla warfare guidelines and tactics especially guerrilla activities waged by small groups aimed especially at the attrition and destruction of the Vietnamese enemy troops. This can facilitate the conservation of ammunition.

5. Unite with each other and live closely with our entire Kampuchean people in conformity with the political line of our PDFGNUK.

6. Continue to implement the slogan tha Khmers do not fight Khmers with respect to Khmer soldiers and militiamen who are forced by the Vietnamese enemy to serve them, and ask them to desert the Vietnamese enemy and more actively oppose them.

7. Continue to try to build our Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas all over the country and in each unit, in particular small groups on the frontline and rear battlefields. Our Democratic Kampuchean forces must have quality in all fields in order to struggle against the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors and to defeat them in the 1982 rainy season and in the future until we score the final victory to liberate our Kampuchean nation for the defense and survival of our Kampuchean people and race forever.

Beloved fellow compatriots, beloved comrades in arms, our present war against the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors for the defense of our Kampuchean nation, people and race has advanced during three rainy seasons and four dry seasons. The Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors are more bogged down and cannot improve their situation. Therefore, it is clear that they are surely defeated on the Kampuchean battlefields. Further rainy and dry seasons will not ameliorate the Vietnamese enemy's condition. On the contrary, they will be defeated further. We must realize, however, that our struggle against the Vietnamese enemy and their company has to pass through many more difficulties, twists and turns, and complications in the military, political and diplomatic fields. Therefore we have to continue our struggle against the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors, expansionists, territory swallowers and exterminators of our Kampuchean race by standing on the strategic principles for the prolonged struggle and the tactical principles for active offensives with mastery and initiative.

Although our struggle has more difficulties, hardships, twists and turns, and complications, it is a just struggle of a nation and people who are rising up against the aggression of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy for the survival of their nation and race. We have the entire heroic Kampuchean people who are uniting with each other and waging the struggle against the Vietnamese enemy aggressors. We have the heroic Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas who are waging the struggle against the Vietnamese enemy aggressors in accordance with guerrilla warfare tactics all over the country. We have the assistance and support of peace- and justice-loving countries all over the world. Our struggle will undoubtedly win at the end. Our Kampuchean nation and race will surely survive and be intact forever.

VODK BLASTS HANOI'S 'VACANT SEAT' PROPOSAL

[Unattributed commentary: "Foil the Le Duan Vietnamese Enemy Aggressors' Maneuver To Rob Democratic Kampuchea of Its UN Seat"]

[Text] On 4 May Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach told the French news agency AFP in Hanoi that if the United Nations wanted to take part in settling the Kampuchean question it should stop supporting Democratic Kampuchea by leaving Democratic Kampuchea's seat at the United Nations vacant.

This is an odious, despicable and misleading diplomatic maneuver launched by the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors in order to rob the state of Democratic Kampuchea of its legitimate presence in the United Nations. Through their so-called policy of keeping the Democratic Kampuchean seat empty, the Hanoi authorities are attempting to drive Democratic Kampuchea out of the United Nations in order to replace it with the Vietnamese enemy aggressors' administration in Phnom Penh and to isolate Democratic Kampuchea on the international stage. Also through this tactic, the Vietnamese would disperse the forces of Democratic Kampuchea on the battlefield and swallow up Kampuchea once and for all, something they have failed to accomplish militarily for the past 3 years.

This is the true aim of the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors. Despite all their efforts for the past 3 years to realize this odious, despicable scheme, the Vietnamese have consistently failed. The world continues to oppose them because they have invaded and occupied Kampuchea in violation of the fundamental principles of the UN Charter and international law and practice. Likewise, the world supports Democratic Kampuchea, which is the victim. With each passing year, UN member countries have increasingly voted in support of the Democratic Kampuchean seat at the United Nations, thus repeatedly bringing a shameful defeat to the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors in their maneuver to steal the Democratic Kampuchean seat.

Now that they are losing on the military front where they are fully and completely backed into a corner, the Hanoi authorities are frantically resorting to maneuvers in the international arena in order to bury the resolution of the UN General Assembly demanding that they withdraw their troops from Kampuchea and to have Democratic Kampuchea evicted from the United Nations at the forthcoming 37th UN General Assembly.

However, if in 1979 when they were riding the crest of their offensive the Vietnamese failed to fool public opinion and to rob Democratic Kampuchea of its legitimacy, and if in 1980 and 1981 they again failed to do so, how can they hope to succeed in 1982 when they are inextricably bogged down on the Kampuchean battlefield and when the world is well aware of the roots of the Kampuchean question which is caused by Vietnamese aggression?

Everyone is well acquainted with the ugly features of the Hanoi authorities, who are the expansionists and aggressors and thus responsible for sabotaging peace, security and stability in Southeast Asia. It is Hanoi who wants to rule the roost in Southeast Asia and who is serving as the cat's-paw of the Soviets in implementing the latter's expansionist strategy in Southeast Asia and the Asia-Pacific region.

The Vietnamese enemy aggressors will not succeed in misleading anybody, for the question of Democratic Kampuchea's UN seat as well as the Kampuchean question in general is the result of the act of aggression perpetrated by the Le Duan Vietnamese against Democratic Kampuchea, an independent, sovereign state and a member of the United Nations. Therefore, if the United Nations were to leave Democratic Kampuchea's seat vacant, as proposed by the Vietnamese aggressors, it would be tantamount to punishing a victim and rewarding the aggressor in violation of the principles of international law and practice. This would be a most dangerous precedent, threatening the existence of the many small and weak nations around the world.

For this reason, not only is the support given to Democratic Kampuchea at the United Nations by many countries an act of justice benefiting the Kampuchean nation and people, but it is also necessary in order to defend the principles of the UN Charter and international law and preserve peace and order in the world. Moreover, this support is necessary in order to defend the very existence of the small countries themselves.

The Kampuchean people and the Government of Democratic Kampuchea would like to appeal to all peace- and justice-loving countries the world over to continue more vigorously to oppose the scheme concocted by the Le Duan Vietnamese enemy aggressors of leaving the Democratic Kampuchean seat empty at the forthcoming 37th UN General Assembly by continuing to support Democratic Kampuchea's seat at the United Nations, demanding more categorically that the Le Duan authorities pull out all of their aggressor troops out of Kampuchea and giving Democratic Kampuchea more votes than in previous years.

SOVIET DELEGATE ROMANOV'S MAY DAY RALLY SPEECH

BK111427 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 2345 GMT 30 Apr 82

[Speech by Grigoriy Vasilyevich Romanov, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo, secretary of the Leningrad Party Committee and head of the CPSU delegation, delivered at the rally held in Vientiane on 1 May -- live in Russian with sentence by sentence translation into Lao]

[Text] Dear comrades: We, representatives of the CPSU, are very happy to be with you, comrades, on this significant day -- 1 May. On behalf of the Soviet people, we would like to convey warm and sincere greetings to you, comrades, on this, the international solidarity festival of the laboring people. [applause] We wish all communists and people of Laos new labor successes, peace and prosperity. [applause] We sincerely salute and greet the representatives of all countries present at this rally. [applause] The celebration of May Day in Laos this year coincides with the Third LPRP Congress, which has concluded with glorious success. [applause] The work of the congress and its resolution have clearly proved the firm and vigorous perseverance of the Lao communists, who are determined to build a new, socialist Laos. [applause] It is readily apparent that your congress is of more than national significance and that it has become a renowned event of international significance. [applause]

The congress has firmly shown that your party's policies are gaining increasing broad support from the laboring people. It has once again shown clearly that you, dear comrades, have trustworthy friends, including the Soviet Union -- the country of Lenin. [applause] In his recent meeting with Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, Comrade Leonid Brezhnev said: We are living in a stormy but very interesting era. We can see for ourselves that the noble socialist ideals have no bounds and that these socialist ideas are helping to draw the various nations closer together. [applause]

What I have said fully applies to the Soviet-Lao relations, which are growing every year. [applause] Our two parties have maintained the close relations of friendship. Economic cooperation has been broadened while the relations which link the two peoples together have been further strengthened. In short, we have reached complete unanimity in all spheres of work. [applause] We are inspired by noble common ideals, namely the ideals of Marxism-Leninism. [applause]

A large number of Soviet nationals, together with the various Lao comrades, are carrying out tasks in Vientiane as well as in other towns of the LPDR at present. They are engaged in carrying out projects in various spheres of the economy, supplementary education and public health. The concrete fruits of our friendship include major highways, a satellite communications station, an oil base, and many other installations. [applause] We have been very pleased to hear fine words highly appreciating the work of our Soviet specialists. We are firmly convinced that you will achieve ever greater successes in implementing the First 5-Year Plan. [applause]

Dear comrades, The socialist countries are resolving large-scale creative tasks. As you know, comrades, in the Soviet Union, we are positively striving to implement the plans for Communist building outlined by the 26th CPSU Congress. Each and every republic, province or region of our multinational state is preparing a worthy task to salute and greet the 60th founding anniversary of the USSR. [applause]

Our two countries have maintained a common domestic orientation -- an orientation for the happiness and prosperity of the people. Our only goal in the international affairs is to maintain a lasting peace in the world.

At present, the world is being threatened by many dangers. These dangers have been created by an aggressive policy of the imperialists in collusion with the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists. The imperialists are continuously stepping up the arms race.

As a result, crisis situations continue in various regions in the world, including here in Southeast Asia. But, with the current balance of forces, the activity of the mighty socialist community in the international arena will limit to the imperialist and expansionist and hegemonist policy. Our country continues to believe that all nations have sacred rights to free and independent development. The implementation of these rights can be clearly seen in Laos.

The people of your country have overcome various grim trials. Over the past years, you, comrades, together with your close friends -- Vietnam and Kampuchea -- have fought for your independence. History attests that no hostile forces can sabotage or destroy the revolutionary gains of the Indochinese nations. [applause]

The Soviet Union fully supports the various initiatives in the foreign policies of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea, whose aim is to bring peace to the whole Southeast Asia region. Would the ASEAN countries lose anything if they established stable relations and cooperation in peace with the people of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea? [applause] Of course not. And if these relations still leave something to be desired today, then the reason for this must not be sought in Southeast Asia itself. The ones who have caused the tense and uneasy situation in this region are the imperialist and the expansionist forces. But the last word does not belong to them. The process of social development was, is and will be determined by the wills of the various nations. [applause]

In the united family of socialist countries, to which Laos also belongs, all complex problems can be settled effectively, because the fraternal relations based on genuine equality have united us together. [applause] We believe that our common activities and our broad cooperation with all present-day progressive and democratic forces will lead to new victories in the struggle to assert peace in the world. [applause]

Dear comrades, once again, on the occasion of the May Day festival, we wish you, comrades, successes in implementing the resolution of the Third LPRP Congress. [applause]

Long live the unique solidarity and close cooperation between the Soviet and the Lao peoples and among the fraternal socialist countries! [applause]

Long live the solidarity of the laboring people throughout the world! [applause]

The cause for freedom, national independence, social progress and peace in the world is bound to win. [applause]

OFFICIALS COMMENT ON RAIDS ON KHUN SA FORCES

BK111000 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 11 May 82

[Statements by government spokesman Trairong Suwankhiri and Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, National Security Council secretary general, at a press briefing at Government House on 11 May -- recorded]

[Text] [Trairong] Government intelligence shows that certain individuals or groups of people have informed Khun Sa's force that the Thai Government would permit it to reestablish its headquarters in Thai territory. This has resulted in the return of Khun Sa's force to Thai territory, according to government intelligence. The prime minister stated at a recent Cabinet meeting that the government has never given such permission to the Khun Sa group, and he emphasized that the government has never had such a policy. It has no policy to allow Khun Sa's force to reestablish operational bases for political reasons, heroin production or heroin trafficking in Thai territory. We will definitely push the force out.

I now invite Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, National Security Council secretary general, to describe our actions:

[Prasong] The current opreration is the result of the government's realization that it must undertake continued action to push every foreign force out of the kingdom, because the presence of such a force affects national security and creates many other problems. these problems include the implications posed by the presence of illegal force and the violation of the authorities' orders and the law prohibiting production and trafficking of narcotics.

Our intelligence, particularly aerial photographs, shows that a foreign force has reestablished its presence in Thai territory. In order to verify this information, a government force comprising members of the air force, the army, the border patrol police and ranger volunteers launched a combined exercise on the banks of the Kham and Yuak Rivers near Ban Lao Lu, Mae Chan District of Chiang Rai. The area is about 6 km northwest of Thai territory. [sentence as heard] The government force began reconnaissance patrols on 9 May at 1100. It discovered a 40-man Khun Sa Force at Ban Lao Lu. The police helicopters patrolling the area were hit by groundfire and damaged, but all returned safely to their base. Because of this hostile fire, we used air force planes to attack ground targets in Ban Lao Lu to protect our men on the ground and the patrolling police helicopters.

At 1500 on 9 May, our ground force was able to reach and gain control of the target villages. Units from our force were able to search and inspect the target area, where they discoverd the bodies of eight Khun Sa men and arrested two others who were injured. They also seized many items such as M-16 rifles and other types of weapons, 10 kgs of cooked and raw opium, about 100 bottles of saline solution, about 300 blankets, 2 carts of rice and medical equipment and medicines.

One of our ranger volunteers was killed and two others were slightly injured. The situation since 9 May [as heard] has returned to normal. There has been no fighting. All of our officials are able to control the target areas, conduct patrols, search and inspect the target area and expel Khun Sa's force from the target area.

SIHANOUK DESCRIBES TALKS IN BEIJING WITH SITTHI

OW111424 Hong Kong AFP in English 1406 GMT 11 May 82

[Text] Beijing, 11 May (AFP) -- Thailand has submitted to the three Cambodian resistance groups a draft joint statement under which they form an anti-Vietnamese coalition that would retain institutions of the deposed Khmer Rouge government but would be headed by its two anti-communist leaders.

Former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk made the disclosure to AFP following his talks here with Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila.

He said the Thai plan probably had the support of Bangkok's partners in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) -- Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines and Singapore [as received]. Under the plan, Prince Sihanouk would become head of Democratic Kampuchea (the Khmer Rouge administration) -- replacing Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan. Son Sann, head of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), would be made premier and Mr Khieu Samphan vice-premier.

"My talks with Mr Sitthi Sawesila went very well, but I'm afraid the formation of the coalition is not for tomorrow," said Prince Sihanouk.

He added that (?he had) endorsed the Thai draft statement but indicated that the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge had conveyed what, in his view, was a negative response while Mr Son Sann's consent was with reservations. He said that the Khmer Rouge had sent a memorandum to the Thais that did specify why they objected to the draft statement but in which they said they were unclear about some of the goals pursued by the two other resistance groups: Prince Sihanouk's Moulinaka faction and Mr Son Sann's KPNLF. The prince said the Khmer Rouge feared that the two other groups may try to "strip them of their powers".

The Khmer Rouge, ousted by a Vietnamese military intervention in 1979, still hold the Cambodian seat at the United Nations.

The Thai plan attempts to combine points made by the various resistance factions such as the retention of Democratic Kampuchea, demanded by the Khmer Rouge, and Mr Son Sann's call for broad autonomy for each of the three factions.

Prince Sihanouk said that under the Thai proposal, the Khmer Rouge would not even enjoy control of defence or foreign affairs, which would be the responsibility of a joint committee comprising representatives of the three groups.

Thai sources indicated that Mr. Sitthi Sawesila, who arrived here on Sunday for a five-day visit, also met Premier Zhao Ziyang today.

Yesterday he had six hours of talks with his opposite number Huang Hua and on Thursday he is to meet powerful Communist Party Vice-Chairman Deng Xiaoping. So far there has been no word on what Mr Sitthi Sawesila discussed with Chinese leaders.

DEPUTY COMMERCE MINISTER SEES SOVIET COUNTERPART

BK120431 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Visiting Soviet Deputy Foreign Trade and Industry Minister Gordeyev met with his Thai counterpart yesterday to jointly set a trade target between the two countries during the next 4 years. Thai Deputy Commerce Minister Praphet Limpraphan says that trade value between Thailand and the Soviet Union totalled 10.5 billion baht last year. The Soviet Union faces a trade deficit of 10.2 billion baht with Thailand.

Thai major export items to the Soviet Union include rice, tapioca, maize, sorghum, raw sugar and minerals. The Soviet Union's exports to Thailand are mostly chemical products.

The deputy commerce minister adds that Thailand has so far exported 1.2 million tons of rice. He expects that the amounts will increase to 1.5 million tons at the end of this month.

BANGKOK POST DISCUSSES REFUGEE PROBLEM

[Chadin Thepphawan article: "The Refugee Crisis Has Passed -- But the Problem Still Remains"]

[Text] Although the crisis period of the Indochinese refugee problem is over the recent American announcement of a stricter resettlement policy should serve as a reminder that a complete solution has not yet been found.

The final result of this human dilemma is still pretty much in the air, and the parties to the problem -- the refugees, the third countries, the countries of first asylum (such as Thailand), the countries of origin (sich as Kampuchea and Vietnam), and the UNHCR -- have different ideas and priorities in tackling the problem.

The secretary-general of the National Security Council, Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, commended the stricter American resettlement policy as a move closer to the Thai position of eliminating "pull factors" -- anything which may draw refugees into Thailand particularly liberal criteria for resettlement in third countries.

But this does not mean that the United States' reduction of its yearly quota for taking refugees will please Prasong or the government.

The U.S. is the largest recipient country for Indochinese refugees, having taken some 260,000 since 1975. But it has also made the most significant cut in lowering its intake quota from 168,000 last year to 100,000 for this year. Indications also point to a further reduction next year.

Richard Vine, director of the State Department's Bureau for Refugee Programmes, told the foreign Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives last March that the administration was cutting its international refugee programmes budget by 17 percent -- from $503 million to $419 million.

The U.S. Embassy's Refugee Affairs Officer Col Mike Eiland also said that the State Department will be consulting congress in September about the quota for 1982. The result of the consultation will not be revealed until October this year.

The scaling-down of refugee assistance programs by the U.S. and other third countries is causing some anxiety to the government. On his recent trip to Europe, Gen Prem took pains to push for an increase in refugee aid from the EEC countries.

But, pressed by their own economic and social problems, together with a more refugee-weary public attitude, the European countries declined to commit themselves to any increase in aid. They promised only "continued assistance" for the refugees. The United Nations High Commission for Refugees reaffirmed, however, that Thailand will not be left to shoulder the refugee burden alone in the long run.

Jacques Terlin, the new UNHCR representative in Bangkok, said: "It won't be a Palestinian situation. It's true that we have scaled down our operations but this is because of the much smaller number of refugees that's now here." At present there are some 184,000 refugees in Thailand compared with about 500,000 at the height of the refugee influx in 1979.

Nevertheless, the UNHCR would like to see third countries increase their quotas. Last month they held a resettlement meeting in Geneva calling for higher quotas from the third countries, apparently without success. Terlin believes that this is no reason for great concern, however.

"Barring a new crisis, the trend is for a decline in the total number of refugees. Since mid-1980, the average new arrival figures have never been above 1,000 a month. And more refugees are being taken out (about 8,500 per month in 1981) than are coming in...so the lower ceilings of third countries will not have a dramatic effect on the refugee problem."

Thai officials are not entirely convinced by that assurance. A Thai voluntary agency officer at one of the refugee camps said that most Supreme Command and Interior Ministry refugee officials are afraid that one day the supporting international funds will run out.

"Even now voluntary agencies do not get all their funds from the UN. We get about 70 to 80 per cent from the UN; the rest we have to find ourselves," he said.

"The soldiers are also particularly concerned about the security problem that the refugees pose. High-ranking officers have said that arms and communication equipment have been found on some of the refugees."

With these concerns in mind, the government still hasn't given up hope of persuading third countries to take refugees out at a faster rate.

A senior refugee official told the Bangkok POST that the Foreign Ministry is planning a meeting this month with all refugee officers attached to the various third countries embassies. The aim of the meeting, according to the source, is to persuade third countries to accept more refugees from Thailand. Unlike the UNHCR, however, the government attaches less importance to resettlement than to repatriation. The source also said that the Interior Ministry will be starting a campaign to repatriate Khmer refugees from the Ban Na Pho "humane deterence" camp in Nakhon Pranom.

Ban Na Pho is one of two such camps, the other being Sikhiu in Korat, where Khmer refugees who arrived after the beginning of last year have been held in less than comfortable surroundings so that they may become easier to persuade to go home. Refugees in these camps also have no resettlement rights.

Khmer refugees are now the main concern of the Thai authorities as the tides of Vietnamese boat people have greatly subsided.

The ministry has long been trying to persuade the Khmers to go home, and have asked the voluntary agencies in the various camps to help them convince the refugees.

But the fighting and the uncertain political situation in Kampuchea hardly provide convincing arguments for the refugees, and even some of the voluntary agencies' officials.

Many Thai voluntary agencies' officials have said that some of their Western colleagues only half-heartedly attempt to convince the refugees to go home. A few, they claimed, have even advised the refugees not to return in spite of reassurances from the government and the UNHCR that the Khmers will not be repatriated to areas where fighting is going on.

A solution to the problem is still far off. And if a new crisis develops in Kampuchea then the 200,000 Khmers strung out along the border with Thailand could rush in for refuge.

"I sympathise with them and I don't blame them because they haven't created the upheaval in their country," said the Thai voluntary agency officer. "But they do present a great problem for Thailand."

And what of their future? "Well..." he said, "the only real solution to the problem is peace in Kampuchea."

NATION REVIEW DISPLEASED BY LAW OF SEA TREATY

[Editorial: "Thailand Must Counter Law of the Sea Curbs"]

[Text] There has been eight years of wrangling over the Law of the Sea and it finally came to a vote and was passed by a thumping majority. However, it is passing strange that one superpower, the United States, voted against it while the other superpower, the Soviet Union, abstained. Thailand, for abstaining, could be accused of being in the shady company of Belorussia and Ukraine, but looking at it from another point of view, Thailand is in good company with Britannia who once ruled the waves and is now ruling the South Atlantic. No, we do not want to appear supercilious but Thailand's objections to the Law of the Sea in its present form has nothing to do with the objections of the United Kingdom or the Soviet Union.

It is not within the scope of this space to analyse the Law of the Sea which contains 320 articles covering a whole range of the rights of nations to exploitation of the sea and the seabed and even landlocked countries like Laos, Afghanistan, Czechoslovakia, Austria, etc, had a say in the matter. The primary question is that the exploitation of the resources of the seabed require high technology and only a few countries like the U.S., Western Europe and Japan fall into that category. The U.S. did not agree because she wanted her superior technology to rule. Japan agreed because she saw quick profit by cooperating with underdeveloped countries. The Soviet Union abstained because she does not have the technology but at the same time did not want to go along with the U.S.

Thailand's problem has nothing to do with all this. According to the Law of the Sea every nation claims 12 miles of territorial waters and 200 miles as economic zone. Thailand can make no such claim because Burma, Malaysia and Kampuchea, making equal claims, can make this country as good as landlocked and that is why this newspaper had to indulge in the neologism of "sealocked." It is not necessary here to recapitulate the problems our fishermen have had with Burma, Malaysia, Bangladesh, India, Vietnam, etc. But the problem is Thailand, once the fifth largest fishing nation in the world, is deeply hurt by the Law of the Sea. As a matter of fact we still haven't proclaimed the 200 mile economic zone because such a move may hurt us more.

Thailand has an opening to the east into the Pacific Ocean and an opening to the west to the Indian Ocean. In this part of the world, we have the finest fishing fleet and the most experienced and aggressive fishermen. But if they are to be hamstrung by international conventions, the government has to find some sort of an escape for them. Thailand cannot fish in international waters as easily as the Japanese or Soviet fishing fleet which are accompanied by factory ships which process the fish as soon as they are caught. But the government must also recognize that the high expertise of our fishermen should not be lost. They should not be reduced to poaching, exposing themselves to the gunboats of neighboring countries and frequently languishing in foreign prisons.

Now that we have the Law of the Sea and there is nothing we can do about it, it is high time that our government worked out a strategy which conforms with the regulations set forth therein. Possibly the spadework has already been done since Thailand had expected an unfavourable conclusion some year ago. And if there is a plan -- we have every reason to think there is -- we do not see any point in putting it off.

PRC REPORT ON SRV LABOR EXPORT TO CEMA DENIED

OW112351 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 11 May 82

[Talk by Dao Nguyen: "Beijing Canard"]

[Text] While continuing the campaign to distort Vietnam's diplomacy, the messieurs in Zhongnanhai are fussing about the export of Vietnamese labor and have cooked up many stories in this connection in order to speak ill of Vietnam, the Soviet Union and the CEMA countries.

As soon as these people in the Zhongnanhai palace began spreading this canard, a number of personalities in the capital cities of the Western NATO bloc responded by using it in a campaign of slander, saying that Vietnam has engaged in trading labor to reap profits in a dishonest way and so forth.

Vietnam's cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries in the process of labor distribution and their mutual assistance in training technical cadres and skilled workers are indeed necessary good deeds which any economist must recognize. It is not surprising that only Beijing and its NATO allies have shown their displeasure because they are conducting a campaign of distortion with a view to blockading Vietnam economically.

We should rather refrain from mentioning this story. However, since Beijing and its Western NATO allies have raised a ballyhoo about it, some people have revealed that Beijing, and no one else, has been dishonestly trading labor at dirt cheap prices.

The FRG paper DIE WELT reported on 28 February that China had put out to lease in Western Europe and in the Near and Middle East countries, including Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, labor teams comprised of hundreds to thousands of people from 15 to 35 years of age for a 2-year period. The lease has brought China profits amounting to millions of dollars. Beijing's HONGQI carried an article on this question in its April issue of 1982, revealing that China leased out some 170,000 more laborers in 1981 alone and complaining that this number was too small because a large crowd is still available in China.

It is crystal clear that only Beijing has been a contractor engaged in this vile trade business that has been deliberately attributed to Vietnam.

NHAN DAN HITS REAGAN ARMS REDUCTION PROPOSALS

OW120809 Hanoi VNA in English 0706 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 12 -- NHAN DAN today says that U.S. President Reagan's new arms reduction proposals are a ploy to deceive the world and achieve military supremacy. The paper recalls that in his speech at Eureka College, Illinois, Reagan proposed that ballistic missile warheads be reduced at least to one-third below current levels and no more than half of those warheads be land-based, while saying nothing about a reduction of strategic bombers. "Reagan was only seeking superiority in strategic nuclear arms," the paper says.

"Reagan promised to negotiate in good faith while rejecting the SALT II agreement signed while Jimmy Carter was in office," NHAN DAN notes. It continues: "The Eureka College speech was obviously aimed at coping with President Brezhnev's disarmament proposals, which are warmly received in the United States and other parts of the world, and at soothing the mounting disarmament movement. Reagan also had in mind the second ad hoc session on disarmament of the U.N. General Assembly to open in New York in June and sought to reconcile Western allies for the summit in Versailles and the NATO meeting in Bonn," NHAN DAN adds.

Further Report

[From Review of NHAN DAN for 12 May]

[Text] The paper also carried on page 4 a commentary by Le Ba Thuyen on a new deception by Mr Reagan. The commentary said:

The propaganda machineries of the United States and the West are noisily fussing over a speech delivered by the U.S. President at Eureka College, Illinois on 9 May 1982, which they bill as Reagan's most important speech on foreign policy since his investiture into the White House, and as an action program for ensuring peace.

What, in reality, is the nature of the proposals put forth by President Reagan in the aforementioned speech? In his actual program for reducing strategic arms in stages, Reagan proposed that in the first stage, the Soviet Union and the United States would simultaneously reduce the existing number of nuclear warheads by one-third and proceed toward reaching a point where both sides would have the same number of warheads in missile silos and aboard submarines.

The commentary stresses: What prompted the U.S. President to make his speech at Eureka College? Obviously, this was an act to counter Chairman Brezhnev's proposals on disarmment which have made a broad and deep impact on the American public and the peoples of the world. This is also a scheme to deceive the movement against the arms race which is vigorously developing throughout the United States and Western Europe, and at the same time, to cope with the second special session on disarmament to be held by the UN General Assembly in New York in June 1982. The Reagan administration also wants to heal the rift among the Western countries in view of the economic summit in Versailles, France, and the NATO meeting to be held in Bonn, FRG, next June, which Reagan will attend.

TRUONG CHINH PAYS VISIT TO TRUNG MAU VILLAGE

BK111412 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 10 May 82

[Text] During the days of the historical month of May, the party organization and people of Trung Mau Village -- a revolutionary base area in Hanoi's suburban district of Gia Lam -- had the great honor of welcoming Comrade Truong Chinh, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of State, who paid a visit to the village and attended the inaugural ceremony of its revolutionary heritage house. Accompanying Comrade Truong Chinh on this visit was Comrade Hoang Quoc Viet, chairman of the VFF Central Committee Presidium.

The two comrades were given a warm welcome at the headquarters of the Trung Mau village people's committee by Comrade Tran Vy, member of the party Central Committee, deputy secretary of the Hanoi Municipal Party Committee and chairman of the Hanoi Municipal People's Committee; Comrade Vu Ngoc Linh, secretary of the Bac Thai Provincial Party Committee; Comrade Vu Tho, secretary of the Ha Bac Provincial Party Committee; Comrade Vu Tho, secretary of the Ha Bac Provincial Party Committee; Comrade (Hoang Vu), secretary of the Gia Lam District Party Committee; and several other comrades who had participated in revolutionary activities in Trung Mau village during the clandestine period, as well as by many local cadres and people.

Chairman Truong Chinh appeared so happy when he saw his old comrades and friends again. These are the people who have always been loyal to the party, who have wholeheartedly assisted and protected our party cadres on secret assignments in the village in the past and who are now old but still active in encouraging their children to work and study hard in order to help build a prosperous and beautiful country.

Comrade (Nguyen Xuan Truong), secretary of the Trung Mau village party committee, briefed Chairman Truong Chinh of the outstanding achievements recorded by the village in the field of production and in establishing cooperatives and improving the people's livelihood; on the contributions of the village to the common revolutionary cause of the country; and on the specific measures aimed at motivating the people to accelerate the emulation movement to implement the resolutions of the fifth party congress successfully. He then invited the comrade chairman to cut the ribbon marking the inauguration of the village's revolutionary heritage house.

While examining the artifacts on display at the heritage house, Chairman Truong Chinh, filled with emotion, stopped for a while before the portraits of the first party members of Trung Mau village -- the stalwart and valiant communist fighters who had struggled and sacrificed their lives for the cause of national liberation and the noble and fine ideal of communism. Some of these comrades had actually helped Comrade Truong Ching and many other party cadres when they were on secret missions in the village in the 1940's.

Chairman Truong Chinh was given a warm welcome when he attended a friendly get-together with leading cadres and more than 600 representatives of the local people. Addressing the representatives, the comrade chairman recalled the profound memories of the time when the party was operating clandestinely in Trung Mau village in the past.

Praising the cadres and people in the village, Chairman Truong Ching said: Trung Mau is a locality which became infused with the light of revolution at an early date. As a result, its people are exceptionally loyal to our party. They are also known to have wholeheartedly assisted and protected our revolutionary cadres and satisfactorily kept concealed nd preserved many valuable documents of our party Central Committee.

During the war of resistance against the French, because Trung Mau was a temporarily held area deep behind the enemy lines, its people had to fight stalwartly and steadfastly to defend their hamlets and village. In the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation, these people had to build and develop their village in the advance toward socialism while sending their children to join the people's armed forces to help liberate the country.

Today, the party organization and people of Trung Mau should develop that glorious tradition in the struggle to score many more achievements in their productive labor and work related to the development of cooperatives, as well as fulfill all their obligations to the state.

Commenting on current duties and tasks, Chairman Truong Chinh said: The fine success of the VCP's Fifth National Congress of delegates is an important event in the political life of our people. The congress has set forth the guidelines and tasks for our entire party and people in the new revolutionary stage.

Chairman Truong Chinh expressed the hope that the party organization and people of Trung Mau would not be satisfied with the achievements they have recorded, but would try to make their cooperatives firm and strong in accordance with the party's line on agricultural cooperativization. In the immediate future, Trung Mau should satisfactorily expand the application of product contracts to laborers, ensure application of all principles of socialist management and develop production in order to further increase the material wealth of society and the cooperatives. It should also carry out distribution according to labor, improve the people's livelihood and absolutely refrain from giving contracts without specifying quotas.

In agriculture, the village has reorganized its ricefields which were stricken by drought during the 5th-month crop season and flooded during the 10th-month crop season. It is now capable of ensuring double cropping on the entire area and triple cropping on one-third of it, and can use its open lands more rationally. However, this is merely an initial achievement. Trung Mau should strive to increase its crop yields further and develop livestock breeding comprehensively.

In the field of handicrafts, the village now has 300 workers producing woolen carpets, embroidery work and bricks. A study must be made locally to develop other branches and trades that are necessary for the new division of labor in the cooperative and, at the same time, enable it to turn out new products to meet domestic demands and for export so as to increase the income of both the cooperative and its members and serve the interests of the state realistically.

Chairman Truong Chinh urged the local leading cadres to continue perfecting and preserving the objects placed on display at the local revolutionary heritage house and satisfactorily organize visits to the house by the people, troops and students.

On this occasion, Chairman Truong Chinh conveyed the warm greetings of the party Central Committee and the Council of State to the families of fallen heroes, war invalids, elderly persons, teenagers and children, as well as to all the cadres and people in the locality. Chairman Truong Chinh presented the party organization and people of Trung Mau village with a color portrait of President Ho Chi Minh done on silk.

On behalf of the party organization and people of Trung Mau village, Comrade (Nguyen Xuan Truong) wished Chairman Truong Chinh good health and pledged to strictly carry out the instructions the chairman had given the locality and to strive to constantly fulfill all tasks so as to be always worthy of the glorious revolutionary tradition of his native land.

Chairman Truong Chinh and Comrade Hoang Quoc Viet planted souvenir trees in front of the village's revolutionary heritage house. While at Trung Mau village, Chairman Truong Chinh and Comrade Hoang Quoc Viet held a cordial meeting with representatives of families that have rendered meritorious services to the revolution and visited the village's embroidery factory, woolen carpet factory and nursery.

NEW ECONOMIC ZONE TAKING SHAPE NEAR LAO BORDER

OW120825 Hanoi VNA in English 0719 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 12 -- A new economic zone is taking shape in Nam Dong, a hilly area west of Hue City, in the central Vietnam province of Binh Tri Thien close to the border with Laos. This is a former anti-U.S. resistance base which was heavily devastated by bombs, shells and toxic chemicals and where intensive reforestation has been undertaken since liberation. The local population, mostly of the Ca-Tu ethnic minority, was either driven into the deep jungle by famine and U.S.-puppet terror or concentrated in "strategic hamlets".

Since 1975 local units of the Vietnam People's Army have been clearing virgin land to build a state farm, and jobless inhabitants in Hue City have also moved there to establish new hamlets alongside new settlements of the Ca-Tu returning from "strategic hamlets" or the jungle.

Today Nam Dong is a thriving economic centre. The local state farm is growing 1,200 hectares of rice, maize, cassava, coffee, pepper, banana, pineapple and other fruit trees. The Nam Dong township has a department store and a market place from where fruit and agricultural products are trucked to Hue city. Settlers from Hue have established in Nam Dong a new economic zone called "Huong Giang village" where they cultivate 270 hectares of crops, including 40 hectares of rice. Last year they sold the state 288 tonnes of food, more than seven tonnes of pork and nearly 600 kilograms of beans.

The Ca-Tu nationals have settled in two villages where they have set up production collectives and built community welfare facilities such as creches, kindergartens, classrooms and dispensaries. They have an art ensemble of their own and half of them are living in comfortable wooden houses.

U.S. 'PROVOCATIONS' DETAILED, PROTESTED

[Text] Kaesong, May 12 (KCNA) -- A meeting of security officers of the two sides to the military armistice commission was held on May 12 at Panmunjom at the proposal of our side.

At the meeting our side lodged a protest with the enemy side against the ever more frequent provocations against our side and crude violations of the armistice agreement and the provisions agreed between the two sides, committed recently by the U.S. imperialist aggressors in the joint security area, and called it to account for these acts.

According to the statement of the security officer of our side at the meeting, the enemy committed provocations 7 times only in a few hours on May 5.

At around 18:20 that day soldiers of the U.S. imperialist aggression army at an observation post southeast of the conference room of Panmunjom committed the extremely dangerous provocative act of levelling pistols at personnel of our side, shouting at our post on the opposite side.

Earlier, at around 14:45, 15:45 and 16:50 that day, they made the arrogant gesture of threatening personnel of our side with clubs at the same post. [Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean at 0400 GMT on 13 May carries a report on the protest which is virtually identical to the KCNA version, and adds the following at this point: "In addition, at a post northwest of the MAC conference room at around 1530 on the same day, at the pavilion on the opposite of Panmungak at around 1315 and on one side of the MAC conference room at 0956 they disturbed the performance of duty by the personnel on our side by shaking their fists and making obscene gestures."]

Besides, the enemy committed many provocative acts and violations, such as introducing into the joint security area machineguns and armed personnel in excess of the designated number.

Such reckless provocations and violations committed by the enemy numbered more than 50 from April 6 to May 11.

Saying that due to the enemy's provocations and violations, the situation in the joint security area was rendered more strained and security and order in this area gravely violated, the security officer of our side lodged a strong protest with the enemy side against this and strongly demanded it to give assurances of taking responsible measures for preventing the recurrence of such criminal acts. [The Pyongyang Radio version adds: "No matter what kind of trick they may play, the enemy cannot evade responsibility for their criminal acts, the security officer of our side added and fully exposed the deceptive nature of the enemy's gibberish about lessoning tension."]

In conclusion the security officer of our side stressed: [The radio version adds: "In conclusion, saying that to eliminate tension in the joint security area and preserve safety and order, the enemy must immediately halt their provocations and violations, the security officer on our side stressed:"]

If the enemy persists in his provocations and violations against us, lending a deaf ear to our warnings, he would be held wholly responsible for all the consequences arising therefrom.

VRPR ON REAGAN'S REMARKS, U.S. TREATY WITH SEOUL

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] On 11 May in a so-called announcement declaring a period marking the centennial anniversary of friendly relations between South Korea and the United States, U.S. President Reagan clamored that the treay of friendship and trade concluded between South Korea and the United States on 20 May 1982 opened a new chapter in the relations between the two countries, that the two countries of South Korea and the United States are closely cooperating with each other in all fields and that the U.S. forces have contributed to the independence of South Korea.

This is, indeed, a shameless and absurd remark of the aggressor. First of all, his remark that the treaty of friendship and trade between South Korea and the United States opened a new chapter in the relations between South Korea and the United States is an intolerable lie distorting history. The so-called treaty of friendship and trade which was forcibly concluded on 20 May 1882 by the United States was a treaty of subjugation and inequality with which the United States solidified the foundation for aggression against our country. With the conclusion of this treaty, the U.S. imperialists began to actively stretchout the claws of aggression to our country and to force great suffering and misfortune on our people. As is known to everyone, the past 100 years has been a history of master-servant relations, not the relations of friends.

This notwithstanding, U.S. President Reagan depicted the relations between South Korea and the United States as the relations of friends. This is a foolish act to cover up the aggressive nature of the United States. Reagan's clamoring about the U.S. contribution to the freedom and democracy of the South Korean people and the independence of South Korea is also an intolerable, absurd remark insulting our people.

For 100 years the U.S. imperialists have tried to subjugate our country. They have schemed to make South Korea their colony and our people their colonial slaves. From the first day they sneaked into this land under the mask of missionaries, instilling the ideology of worship of the United States and the ideology of flunkeyism in our people, the U.S. imperialists desperately schemed to obliterate our people's desire for self-determination and to make our people their colonial slaves. They also plundered the human and material resources of our country at random.

It was also the United States which illegally occupied this land after the 15 August liberation and kicked off the 25 June war of aggression to dominate the whole Korean Peninsula. Today, too, running counter to the aspiration of our people for democracy and reunification, the U.S. imperialist aggressors are trying to fabricate two Koreas and are accelerating preparations for a reckless war of northward invasion in an attempt to dominate the whole Korean peninsula by helping a military fascist dictator like Chon Tu-hwan maintain power.

All facts show that the U.S. imperialist aggressors are the enemy of democracy and reunification, the basic obstacle to the independent reunification of the country and the source of all the misfortunes and sufferings of our people.

Nevertheless, in distorting this historic fact Reagan clamored as if the United States had contributed to the independence of South Korea. This is nothing but a trick to mislead public opinion at home and abroad and to conceal their criminal acts. Reagan cannot conceal the true nature of the United States as an aggressor and their criminal acts committed before our people. Our people will never tolerate the criminal acts of the U.S. imperialist aggressors. Reagan should stop such absurd remarks, which insult our people and try to mislead public opinion at home and abroad, and should withdraw U.S. forces, including nuclear weapons and various kinds of lethal weapons, from this land without delay as unanimously demanded by people at home and abroad.

Our people will more vigorously wage the sacred anti-U.S. struggle for the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Korea and for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

OVERSEAS KOREAN PAPER DENOUNCES CHON REGIME

SK121523 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 12 (KCNA) -- SINHAN MINBO, a Koreans newspaper published in the United States, on March 25 carried a statement published by the seventh general meeting of the "Fellowship Council of Patriotic Women in the United States," a Koreans organisation in the United States.

The statement reads in part: The Chon Tu-hwan "regime" has offered to the United States our territory as its military base and nuclear arms depot and, seeking fabulous profits, induces international enterprises under the cloak of "economic revival" and forces the toiling masses in the homeland to a slave labor without parallel in the world on low wages hardly sufficing to maintain the barest existence, which leave them on the verge of starvation.

The "government" which fails to guarantee the right to existence to the toiling masses is suppressing even their three rights of labor, arresting and imprisoning without mercy working people who protest that they "cannot eke out a living," or expelling them from their workshops, rendering countless people jobless.

The statement continues: What is the lot of the female populace subjected to the evil custom of treating women as inferior to men? It is South Korea where women are offered as kisaeng girls to prodigals enticed from foreign countries. They are made comfort girls, waitresses, charwomen and indentured women and foreign currency is obtained through the prostitution forced upon them and it is again South Korea where women and children are exported like commodities.

And all the ha[illegible]as of justice fighting for democracy and reunification are arrested and numerous people [illegible]e murdered or crippled or made vegetable-like men by brutal tortures. What is it, if not a national extermination policy?

The statement goes on to appeal to the compatriots at home and abroad not to be duped by the ruse of the outside forces and to concentrate all their efforts on creating an atmosphere of reconciliation between the compatriots of the North and the South and paving the way of dialogue for reunification.

The statement in conclusion urges the Chon Tu-hwan "regime" to lend an ear to the voice of humanity, the voice of the nations desire which no one can smother and to apoligize to the Kwangju citizens, restore the civil rights and unconditionally release all the democrats.

YI CHONG-OK ADDRESSES NONALIGNED PRESS GROUP

SK122244 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2200 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 13 (KCNA) -- Yi Chong-ok, premier of the Administration Council of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, made a congratulatory speech at the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Non-Aligned Countries which opened in Pyongyang on May 12.

Follows the full text of the speech:

Dear delegates,

Today we are very pleased to have the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Non-Aligned Countries here in Pyongyang, the capital of our country.

On authorization, allow me, first of all, to extend in the name of the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, warm welcome to the representatives of news agencies from various countries and international organizations who are dedicated to the information activities for the development of the Non-Aligned Movement and the common cause of mankind and express my hearty congratulations to the meeting.

The seventh meeting of the coordinating committee of the pool is being held amid great expectation and concern of the people of non-aligned countries and the rest of the world as well as men of the press.

The current meeting will make a positive contribution to the exchange of the precious achievements and experiences the news agencies pool of non-aligned countries has gained in its information activities, to the enhancement of its role, to the elaboration of ways for a speedy news flow among the national news agencies and to the establishment of a new international information order.

I am convinced that with the active participation and sincere efforts of you, representatives of various countries, the meeting will surely achieve fruitful results.

Honourable delegates,

Progressive information is one of the powerful media of advocating and disseminating progressive ideas and representing and organizing the public opinion.

Only when an independent sovereign state is possessed of powerful information media can it educate, organize and mobilize its popular masses to successfully achieve their just cause and strengthen its international solidarity with the progressive people of the world. It is, indeed, a matter of importance for the building of a new society and acceleration of the common cause of mankind that the non-aligned countries should strengthen their own national news agencies and invigorate the news flow between countries. It is all the more urgent under the situation in which the major news agencies of imperialist countries continue to monopolize information, distort realities and exclude the new-emerging countries in their information.

With the news agencies pool of non-aligned countries coming into being in compliance with these requirements, the Non-Aligned Movement was put in possession of a new form of reliable cooperation system in communication and information advocating and representing the interests and aspiration of new-emerging countries. This is a brilliant success that non-aligned peoples have achieved by their joint efforts.

From its inception, the non-aligned news agencies pool has vigorously striven to fulfil its noble mission and aim in conformity with the idea of Non-Aligned Movement.

It has taken in 80 news agencies or so in a matter of a few years time; it has encouraged the people of the world in their just cause of the building of a new society, independent and prosperous, against all forms of domination and subjugation and made a great contribution to the consolidation and development of the Non-Aligned Movement.

It has occupied an unshakable position as an information body representing the new-emerging forces in the international information system and its influence is daily growing.

The Government of the DPRK and the Korean people highly appreciate the achievements of the news agencies pool and warmly support its activities.

Today the overall international situation is very complex and tense. Frightened by the daily-growing power of the Non-Aligned Movement which is expanding and developing to be an extensive, world-wide movement, the imperialists are desperately manoeuvring to divide and disintegrate our movement and drag the newly independent countries into their spheres of domination.

The obtaining situation raises it as a more acute problem for the news agencies pool of non-aligned countries to firmly safeguard the non-aligned character in its information activities.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song said as follows:

"The non-aligned countries should strictly observe the fundamental principles of the Non-Aligned Movement and preserve its peculiarities properly."

Preservation of the non-aligned character in information activities is life and soul of the news agencies pool of the non-aligned countries.

The news agencies pool, through its information activities, should powerfully arouse the people to the sacred struggle to thwart and frustrate the imperialists plots of aggression and scramble for the maintenance and expansion of their spheres of domination, and preserve the basic principles and solidarity of the Non-Aligned Movement and build a new independent world free from all forms of domination and subjugation.

Only then can the pool continue to strengthen its position and influence as a new communication and information cooperation system which champions and represents the interests and aspirations of the people of non-aligned countries. In order to discharge with credit the honourable mission the times and mankind have entrusted it with, the pool should adhere to the principle of individual and collective self-reliance. The principle of individual and collective self-reliance is a basic means of boosting the function and role of the pool.

Every member nation should bring into full play the spirit of self-reliance, the spirit of making and tapping what it lacks, and firmly build up and incessantly strengthen and develop its own national news agency.

On the other hand, those countries should fill each others needs in such a way that they provide finance, if rich, impart technical know-how, if possessed of it, or supply experiences, if experienced, and exert a concerted effort to consolidate the pool.

Only when the pool strictly abides by the principle of individual and collective self-reliance in its activities will its might be manifolded and can it put an end to the monopoly and arbitrariness of the big news agencies of the imperialists in the field of world information and grow into a mighty leading force.

Dear delegates,

Under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, the KOREAN CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY has been turned into a powerful information institute in a short historic period. Today the KOREAN CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY is making its due contribution to the display of the dignity of the country and nation prospering under the rays of chuche, to the strengthening of international solidarity with the world people and promotion of the cause of anti-imperialism and independence.

The government of our republic will, in the future, too, render every support to the KOREAN CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY so that it may work energetically to strengthen the pool and creditably perform its duties. It is an invariable policy of the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to strengthen and develop the Non-Aligned Movement and to promote friendly and cooperative relations with the non-aligned countries.

Holding aloft the banner of independence, friendship and peace, the Government of the DPRK and the Korean people will do their utmost to strengthen and develop friendly and cooperative relations with the peoples of the non-aligned countries and the peoples of the peace-loving countries of the world. You are our close friends and brothers advancing hand in hand with us on the same front of our common cause of independence. You have extended, through your information activities in the past, active support and encouragement to our people in their struggle for socialist construction and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. We remember this and feel grateful to you for this.

We believe that you will invariably support, in the future, too, our peoples just cause of the complete victory of socialism and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

You, participants in the meeting, during your sojourn in our country, will keenly feel the sentiments of friendship our people have for the peoples of the non-aligned countries and enjoy warm hospitality of our people everywhere you go. Hoping that you will spend pleasant and fruitful days, I sincerely wish you great success at the meeting.

Thank you.

PARTY EFFORT IN CONSTRUCTING CHUCHE TOWER HAILED

SK100800 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2225 GMT 8 May 82

[NODONG SINMUN 9 May article: "The Chuche Torch Will Be Ablaze Forever"]

[Text] On 15 April -- the greatest and most sacred day in our long 5,000-year history on which we greeted the 70th birthday of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song with exhilaration and excitement -- a grand ceremony was held in Pyongyang, the capital of the revolution, to unveil the Tower of the Chuche Idea, which was built reflecting the firm will of our party and people to bequeath the leader's immortal revolutionary idea and achievements generation after generation and to complete the chuche revolutionary cause generation after generation.

This ceremony, which was held with the participation of state leaders, premiers, vice presidents, special envoys of state leaders, leaders of party and government delegations and guests from various foreign countries together with more than 200,000 workers in the capital who crowded on both banks of the Taedong River, was, indeed, a historic event which added a brilliant chapter to the chronicle of our era advancing toward independence.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The chuche idea is a world outlook which considers everything with man as a central feature and makes it serve him, and is a revolutionary theory designed to achieve the sovereignty of the working people. Looking up to the magnificent Tower of the Chuche Idea, strongly taking root on the bank of the historic Taedong River and shedding a resplendent ray high up in the sky in our contemporary era, guests from many foreign countries as well as our workers participating in the grand ceremony were overwhelmed with excitement. How magnificent was the Tower of the Chuche Idea which rose successfully reflecting the urgent desire -- increasing each day in the hearts of the grey-haired, old anti-Japanese fighters, young members of the juvenile corps and the revolutionary people who differ in skin color and language -- to praise the immortal achievements of the great leader and bequeath these achievements generation after generation!

With such excitement, our workers were overwhelmed with a feeling of happiness to have glorified the new era of independence, holding in high esteem the great leader, the sun of the nation and genius of the revolution whom they had greeted for the first time in the history of several thousand years, and with that of endless pride to complete the chuche revolutionary cause generation after generation under the wise leadership of our glorious party.

1. The Tower of the Chuche Idea reflects the people's ardent, noble desire overflowing throughout the country to bequeath a monument of exploit. This desire erupts when the people hold in high esteem a great leader of the century and when they greet an era overflowing with great events. Living in this era, our people have experienced this feeling for a long time.

Our people have greeted and held in high esteem the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song for the first time in a history of 5,000 years. During the period of suffering when a dark cloud hung low, the great Comrade Kim Il-song brilliantly led our people along the road of smashing the Japanese imperialists' iron shackles -- the road of independence and socialism -- by indicating the chuche-type line of the Korean revolution at the Hill of Karyon. By inventing the immortal chuche idea, which occupied the highest position in the history of ideologies, he opened a new advance path of struggle for the oppressed working people to achieve sovereignty. He has recovered great achievements in taking the lead in the work of pioneering the era of independence -- a new era in the history of mankind. We will praise and bequeath this achievement forever generation after generation. This was the feeling our people cherished in their hearts in greeting the great leader and was the people's ardent desire which overflowed throughout the country on the eve of the 70th birthday of the leader.

While working at the blast furnace at the Kangson steel mill at the end of 1978, a worker told his fellow workers: How wonderful it would be if this steel is used in building a towering object to commemorate the 70th birthday of the great leader! This was the manifestation of the ardent, sincere feeling which overflowed in the hearts of all our people. Reflecting such a trend of the contemporary era, our coal miners, cooperative farm members and youths repeatedly made suggestions on bequeathing the respected and beloved leader's revolutionary achievements.

This ardent feeling overflowed like a surging billow not only among our people but also in the hearts of our friends and the revolutionary people who revered and admired the great leader and followed the ray of the chuche idea. In the latter part of the 1970's, those who believed in the chuche idea in various foreign countries held seminars on the chuche idea in Antananarivo in Madagascar, where the blue wave of the Indian Ocean surged, in San Jose in Latin America, in Tokyo and in New Delhi, and zealously discussed greeting the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's 70th birthday as a common festival of mankind.

An elderly scholar in Asia -- upon coming into contact with a revolutionary world outlook of respecting man from the chuche idea at the last stage of his life after devoting himself to studying advanced ideologies for more than 30 years -- expressed the belief that history should praise forever the invention of the chuche idea, the greatest event in the development of the ideologies of mankind. He believed that the people should bequeath the story of the chuche idea to the history of the world, making the future of mankind blossom forever.

Many figures in Asia, Africa and Latin America, which have achieved independence and embarked on the road of building a new society after suffering under the yoke of the imperialists for centuries, have endlessly revered and admired the respected and beloved leader, looking for the independent and prosperous future of their countries and people on the road of following the line for independence. At this moment, with profound insight into the long-cherished desire of the people, a farsighted plan was being formulated in our country to develop this desire forever.

In March 1979, having profound insight into the desire of the people, the glorious party center made a historic suggestion that a tower of the chuche idea be built in Pyongyang -- the capital of the revolution -- to bequeath generation after generation the immortal achievements of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in inventing and developing the immortal chuche idea. This suggestion overwhelmed tens of millions of people with delight and excitement. There was a functionary who received this great suggestion for the first time. He was a functionary in the sector of historic relics, who, following the leadership of our party, had previously participated in the construction of a great monument in Mt Wangjaesan. At that time, he was engaged in the construction of a great monument at Samjiyon. On many occasions, he had been choked by tears in receiving instructions from our party on bequeathing forever the great leader's achievements through the construction of historic relics. Overwhelmed with excitement in receiving the historic suggestion at Samjiyon, he walked along the snow-covered bank of the lake. He soliloquized: The construction of the Tower of the Chuche Idea is a great event which can be compared to the work of building a pivot on earth which advances along the orbit of independence. Thus, he walked in the forest. The surging wave of excitement did not subside in his heart. Indeed, this task was a cause resembling one erecting the pivot of the contemporary era and is a great project delineating the course of advancing the wheel of history with the people as masters.

This suggestion was one which could only be made by our party which, reflecting the trend of the contemporary era and the desire of the people, had glorified the chuche revolutionary cause developed by the great leader with a noble will to show loyalty to him.

Through ceaseless study and outstanding intelligence, our party has developed the chuche idea into the best idea among the ideological and spiritual assets which human beings have created and into the immortal banner for revolution and construction, and consummated it into the great revolutionary idea of Comrade Kim Il-song. Extolling the immortal exploits the chuche idea had created, our party unfolded the brilliant plan to erect the Tower of the Chuche Idea in accord with the unanimous will of the working masses aspiring to follow the road of victory indicated by the chuche idea.

A project reflecting the aspirations of the times causes unprecedented response. Completely reflecting the people's ardent desire, the news of the construction of the Tower of the Chuche Idea spread, creating a wave of exictement and delight. Expressing a sense of happiness to be able to see the people's long-cherished desire brilliantly fulfilled, everyone volunteered to participate in the glorious work of erecting this tower. At the Paehwa war veterans pharmaceutical plant, more than 20 party-member war veterans visited a primary level party committee. They said that they wanted to show the loyalty they had displayed in the war they participated in to protect the fatherland in building the Tower of the Chuche Idea. Among them were comrades who had performed exploits in the area along with the Nakdong River and on Hill 1211. This news brought enthusiastic excitement and delight from the progressive people of various countries. Believing that it is natural to erect the Tower of the Chuche Idea in Pyongyang -- capital of the chuche fatherland -- the supporters of the chuche idea and revolutionary people devoted their all to the monument of the era of independence. Expressing their sincere feeling, the members of the Institute to Study Comrade Kim Il-song's Works in Peru sent rare marble produced only in Peru. This marble, which was used as construction material during the era of the Incan Empire, is very difficult to discover due to the imperialists' aggressive policy. The institute members researched about 900 books in libraries, climbed up and down the Andes Mountains and finally discovered the rare marble. A responsible man of the institute said: This marble shows our resolution to follow the chuche idea forever.

Indeed, our party's suggestion on construction of the Tower of the Chuche Idea was a great one which was recorded in history forever, reflecting the long-cherished desire of people like a constellation in the night sky.

2. Towering on the banks of the magnificent Taedong River, Tower of the Chuche Idea is a creation of the century, which has been built with outstanding leadership. This wise leadership comes from the fact that it always brilliantly reflects the trend of the times and that it brilliantly creates a unique object, transcending conventional concepts. The construction of the Tower of the Chuche Idea is the brilliant fruition of the outstanding, unique leadership of our party. The period of building the great ideological tower of the working class, which has not been built elsewhere, was one overflowing with the unprecedented spirit of creation, one overflowing with the spirit of transcending conventional concepts and studying and discovering new things.

In building the great ideological tower, our party led the creative project based on justifiable grounds. While discussing matters concerning the location of the Tower of the Chuche Idea, some functionaries and architects had the idea of building this monument at a certain place on a certain street which had a long corridor. This is a conventional view of stressing metric space in building the monument. With a lofty historic view, which they failed to understand, however, our party made a decision to build the Tower of the Chuche Idea on the banks of the Taedong River opposite the Kim Il-song Plaza in the central part of Pyongyang -- the capital of the revolution. This was a new method in the history of architectural aesthetics, abandoning the conventional architectural view of increasing scenic effect and metric space and delineating the way of bringing into relief the unique nature and significance of the monument to the maximum. Receiving this decision, an architect who had been engaged in drawing blueprints said: Please review the Tower of the Chuche Idea and its location. You will see the truth of the contemporary era and history when you view the Tower of the Chuche Idea and its site.

The sacred vestige of our revolution has been imprinted on the Kim Il-song Plaza every day and every hour. This is the historic place where our people passionately cheer, holding the great leader in high esteem, and where the trend of times and aspirations of the masses for independence are being centered.

How just, unique and meaningful is the building of the tower of immortal idea at the place opposite the Kim Il-song Plaze where the great chuche ray shines and where the ardent people always visit!

The wise leadership of our party was a great guide which brilliantly led even the unfamiliar creative project of guilding the Tower of the Chuche Idea.

To reflect the greatness of the chuche idea, which occupied the highest and most brilliant position in the history of the ideology of mankind, into a single monument was a very difficult task. Therefore, studying the blueprints of the Tower of the Chuche Idea, architects encountered difficulties from the very beginning. At this juncture, our party, solving every question in a unique manner, showed a new way of building the monument.

The party set forth a policy of making the Tower of the Chuche Idea one on which a torch of truth is always lit, symbolizing the greatness of the chuche idea and depicting the magnificent aspect of the contemporary era advancing under the banner of chuche through the three images of workers, peasants and working intellectuals who are holding aloft the ensign of our party.

This policy, stressing the reflection of the greatness of ideology as its main factor and extensive reflection of the brillian time, opened up a new approach in building the monument.

In fact, the chuche idea itself is the immortal beacon fire of the times. The chuche idea is the great beacon fire reflecting hope and truth, justice and all forms of beauty. Thus, we could vigorously reflect the greatness and truth of the chuch idea when we portray the working people advancing with the banner of chuche, holding this banner as a beacon fire. We could extensively reflect the exciting reality of the time when advancing toward independence has become the unavoidable trend.

From that time, the creators could give full play to their imagination with conviction and could bring their ideas close to the shape of the Tower of the Chuche Idea today.

The fresh and unique guidance was ceaselessly extended to the height and balance of the tower, unique and traditional architecture of the stone pagoda with 70 steps, clothes of workers depicting the working class, subsidiary sculptures reflecting the vitality of the chuche idea and making the surrounding area a park for people to visit and relax.

Thanks to such guidance, the Tower of the Chuche Idea was raised high in the sky as the tower with noble outlook and traditional beauty reflecting the lofty political and ideological contents and as a grand monument of our era with magnificent, elegant and delicate beauty.

Nevertheless, even after the completion of the monument built with all new data and creative delvings to herald the accomplishment of the great leader -- the founder of the immortal chuche idea -- to the generations to come, the party was firmly determined to perfect it with great devotion.

At a time when all the people thought, thanks to such a will of the party, that there was nothing to add to or cut away from it, an unfathomably extraordinary leadership was ceaselessly reaching the Tower of the Chuche Idea.

It was on one significant day of February last year when all people in the nation were happily singing the joy of upholding the benevolent party. At night when the streets of the capital city were deserted, a functionary in charge of construction of the Tower of the Chuche Idea was on his way to the construction site. He stopped his car at (Ongnyudo) and stepped out of his car to the guardrails of the bridge. His chest heaving with unusual excitement, with his shirt collar unbuttoned and open, he looked for a long time at the Taedong River through two pavilions erected at either side of the brilliantly illuminated construction site. Shortly before, he had been informed of a new guidline by the party to construct two giant fountains on the Taedong River in order to decorate the Tower of the Chuche Idea more magnificently.

Once the giant fountains, some 150 meter in height, are erected in the vicinity of the Tower of the Chuche Idea, which will open up a picturesque scene of risings and fallings, both sides of the Taedong River will certainly create a magnificant view.

How solemn, elegant and fascinating it will be when the serenely flowing blue water of the Taedong River is combined with the pleasantly soaring columns of the fountains! How esctatic it will be when the beautiful rainbow born out of the water spray is combined with the sky-soaring Tower of the Chuche Idea!

The more he imagined the future scene of the Tower of the Chuche Idea, the more he was touched by the outstanding leadership of the party which, not satisfied with the erection of the Tower of the Chuche Idea as a monument possessing the noble spirit of the times, perfect artistic level and noble quality, intended to remodel this area into a magnificent view. It was indeed an extraordinary leadership whose limit is unfathomable.

This invincible leadership has erected not only the Tower of the Chuche Idea with the highest standards but also a vast number of creations -- monumental creations of the Workers Party era -- in the 1970's and 1980's, firmly leading our revolution and construction on the road to victory. Moreover, under this brilliant ray of guidance, our fatherland has ushered in an unprecedentedly prosperous era -- a blessing of history and the revolutionary cause of chuche pioneered by the great leader which is now brilliantly advancing from generation to generation.

3. The Tower of the Chuche Idea is a monument born out of a harmony of deep trust and burning loyalty. This monument of the times is a cause initiated by our party, which has been training all the members of society to become chuche-type revolutionaries under the lofty slogan of imbuing the society with chuche idea, out of its firm confidence in the party members and working people.

Underlying the plan of our party to build the era's great monuments such as the Tower of the Chuche Idea and the Arch of Triumph in so short a time of less than ?(2) years is our party's endless confidence in the loyal enthusiasm of the party members and working people.

Our party has given creative tasks to the party members. It was a brilliant prospect of building the Tower of the Chuche Idea as the highest stone tower ever built in the world.

They also were assigned the task of building the body of the great tower, which is some 150 meter high, within only 3 months. Assigned such a touching prospective assignment as the building of a tower as high as the position enjoyed by the chuche idea and as high as the objective of the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea and creating surprising speed in its construction, the party members and working people were burning their hearts with fiery and passionate loyalty.

Pledging themselves to justify the great confidence placed in them by the glorious party center by high political awakening and brilliant labor successes, they joined in the construciton of the Tower of the Chuche Idea.

Needless to say, the task assigned them was impossible to implement by standards of existing construction speed and methods. Undaunted, however, the combatants [as heard], breaking down the conservatism and mysticisim and with the passion of youths, introduced a new sliding type of construction method in the construction of the tower and began building the tower with surprising speed, surpassing existing records.

The struggle was arduous. A problem arose -- how to guarantee the complicated technical requirement of building the tower body which gets narrower as it rises and keep the work safe in so high a place.

At this critical moment, a party member was silently climbing up to the cabin of the tower crane, a dizzy height up the tower. He was none other but the designer who had contrived a new construction method. He never tried to keep his pledge made to the party with what is written on the drawing plans. He was guaranteed with the blood-boiling hearts of the party members the speed and quality of the struggle for the construction of the Chuche Idea Tower and safety of the work. Thus, he never left his work place even when the crane was swung by strong winds and when dark clouds and storms gathered above his head.

The air of an obscure man, who is usually tactiturn, is now encouraging others by working up in the sky just like an eagle! The solmen scene created by all workers engaged in building the tower body, breathing as if they were one body and waging an exciting struggle! These were the most touching paintings depicting the height of the burning loyalty pouring out of the party members' hearts. With such self-awakening and courageous spirit, they completed the building of the dizzingly high tower body within only 35 days not 3 months, and finally made a report of loyalty to the glorious party center.

The loyal epic written in building the 170-meter Tower of the Chuche Idea tells that our party members, whom our party has embraced with motherly affection and correctly led, have magnificently grown into chuche-type revolutionaries who know how to hold in high esteem the great leader of the revolution and confidently follow the intent of the party with fidelity.

While imbuing society with the chuche idea, the party has made an effort to develop fully the noble communist trait of our people. While a groundwork was underway for the Tower of the Chuche Idea, a legend-like story spread among Pyongyang citizens that there was a layer of pure, immemorial jade underneath the site of the tower. People said that it was natural for the layer of jade to exist at the time of the construction of the tower to extol the achievements of our leader, reflecting the desire of the people of the world and for the wonders of nature to be wrought in making the ray of guidance penetrate through the precinct of 1,000-ri. Believing in this legend -- the product of our people's will to hold in high esteem the great leader and endlessly revere and admire our sagacious party -- our people decided to lay the most beautiful and solid jade in the base of the tower. Thus, the people throughout the country volunteered to participate in the work of collecting jade for the groundwork of the Tower of the Chuche Idea. In the flames of the loyal movement participated by workers, peasants, elderly people and members of the youth corps, the base for the Tower of the Chuche Idea was purely and solidly hardened with jade from revolutionary battle sites and from Kumgang and Myohyang mountains, with sand from the beaches of the east and west coastal areas and from the Sachon River near Kumson village and with the clean water from a pure well at Mangyongdae, from the lake on the summit of Mt Paektu and from the Samjiyon Lake.

Indeed, the construction site of the Chuche Idea Tower was a significant place where the flawlessly pure, ardent loyalty of our people, growing in the bosom of the party, gushed forward, unprecedented in history and where the party's trust in party members and workers and the will of the people were fused into one through blood ties, thus demonstrating the might of this unity in the chronicle of the contemporary era.

The Tower of the Chuche Idea is not only the loyal tower of our people but also one reflecting the desire and sincerity of the South Korean people, overseas compatriots and the world's revolutionary people advancing toward independence. The 700,000 compatriots in Japan sent great quantities of flowers, trees and marble to the construction site of the Tower of the Chuche Idea, conveying their flawlessly pure and noble loyalty and sincerity.

Conveying their sincerity, chuche idea believers and people in Asia, Africa, Latin America and Europe, who were struggling for the cause of independence, sent famour Pakistani jade used in manufacturing elaborate decorations, rare marble from Benin and Upper Volta, non-efflorescent Italian granite which had been used in building a stadium in ancient Rome and expensive marble from Gaviao, Portugal. Thus, the Chuche Idea Tower rose high with the celebration of the contemporary era and the ardent desire of the people.

Indeed, the Chuche Idea Tower, surrounded by beautiful flowers and rare trees from various places throughout the world and supported by rare marble and granite, is a monument reflecting the trend of the times and the desire of mankind.

On 1 April, the Tower of the Chuche Idea construction workers enjoyed the endless honor of greeting at the construction site the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who had invented the immortal chuche idea and illuminated over a long period of half a century with the torch of chuche the historic new era when the people emerged as the masters of the world. At this moment, the Tower of the Chuche Idea, mafnificently rising on the bank of the Taedong River under the brilliant spring sunglow, and the elegant images engraved on it, shone exquisitely.

There was a beautiful arch of water spray high up in the sky, gushing from a fountain. Was he picturing before his eyes his leaving the grass gate of a straw-thatched house at Mangyondae and embarking on the road of the 2-year-long anti-Japanese struggle in his early days when the dark cloud of national ruin hung low, taking the destiny of the fatherland? Or was he recalling the unforgettable days when he led the revolution and construction after destroying toadyism and dogmatism and after pioneering the world of chuche? There was a vestige of noble excitement in the eyes of the respected and beloved leader. The white water column was vigorously gushing from the large fountain and the ripples on the river glowed as if they were signing a eulogy of his nostalgic feeling.

Indeed, because of the existence of the great leader, we see that our fatherland exists today, the happiness of the people blossoms, and the future illuminated by the ray of chuche exists. Because our glorious party in a revolutionary manner takes the lead in inheriting the leader's revolutionary cause, the future of the era of chuche is more promising and its future path is overflowing with a resplendent ray.

At this significant moment, the Tower of the Chuche Idea rose high as witness to the immortal, moving scene. Depitcting this scene and telling truth and linking various parts of the world, the torch of chuche will be ablaze forever.

FURTHER REPORTAGE ON 'CURB LOAN SCANDAL'

Ministers Discuss Probe

SK130248 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 13 May 82 p 1

[Text] The Prosecutor General's Office questioned last night about 10 ranking officials from two commercial banks in connection with the recently-exposed curb loan scandal, it was learned.

Those questioned were three to four staff from the Commercial Bank of Korea and several from the Cho-Heung Bank.

The prosecution, now digging into the curb loan turmoil, will make a thorough probe of the background for lending huge amounts of money to curb loan dealers including Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chong Yong-cha without mortgage.

The investigation for them followed a government decision to get tough with those who were involved in the loan scandal regardless of their ranks and positions.

Such a government decision was made in a meeting of relevant Cabinet members, chaired by Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun at his Capitol office yesterday.

The government also decided to investigate the truth of the case exhaustively until all doubts were cleared.

Justice Minister Yi Chong-won reported in the meeting that Yi Kyu-kwang, former president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corp was not directly related to the case, it was learned.

Sources said that the government did not consider asking the concerned ministers to (?take) political responsibility for the scandal as of now.

Participants in the meeting included Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song, Foreign Minister No Sin-yong, Home Minister No Tae-u, Justice Minister Yi and Defense Minister Chu Yong-pok.

Others were Education Minister Yi Kyu-ho, Culture-Information Minister Yi Kwang-pyo, Government Administration Minister Kim Yong-hyu and Ho Hwa-pyong, first senior presidential secretary for political affairs.

Meanwhile, the National Assembly convenes its Finance Committee for two days from today to handle the curb loan scandal of Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chong Yong-cha with the political parties regarding the prosecution announcement of the case as "insufficient."

Rep. Yi Chong-chan floor leader of the Democratic Justice Party, said yesterday, "the announcement of the prosecution's initial investigation results was insufficient to clear the people's suspicion about it."

"The prosecution should have made public the names of persons in political and banking circles and in the government, if any," he said.

Officials Not Involved

SK130310 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 13 May 82 p 8

[Text] Senior Prosecutor Yi Chong-nam denied any involvement of "highly-placed" officials in the loan-bill scandal involving Mrs. Chang Yong-cha and some major industrial firms Tuesday shortly after the announcement of the probe results.

Prosecutor Yi told reporters that though Mrs. Chang's elder sister was the wife of Yi Kyu-kwang, president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corp. and he was a brother of Yi Kyu-tong, father of First Lady Yi Sun-cha, the relationship was very thin as Yi Kyu-kwang married her after he was divorced. Yi added that, "highly-placed" circles had not provided any help to Mrs Chang in connection with the scandal but Mrs Chang often used such relations in obtaining huge amounts of bills on her own.

Asked whether Yi Kyu-kwang played a certain role in enabling Mrs Chang to manipulate financial and banking circles, the senior prosecutor denied the suggestion based on their investigation so far but added that Mrs Chang often used him as her background and often told her partners that she "can provide billions at any time."

Prosecutor Yi also denied spreading rumors that influential politicans were actively involved in matching Mrs Chang and industrial firms for loan-bill dealings. Yi said, "Such rumors are groundless. In case of the Kong Yung Construction Co., a certain Kim, the first husband of Mrs Chang, provided good offices for them."

As for the rumor that part of money Mrs Chang gathered by discounting bills constituted "political funds," Yi said that the prosecution had found no suspicious points in investigating such possibilities and confirmed that the rumor was purely wrong.

No Political Implications

SK130229 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 13 May 82 p 8

[Text] The prosecution's announcement of the results of its investigation of the loan scandal involving the Yi Chol-hui and Mrs. Chang Yong-cha couple still leaves many questions unanswered.

Senior Prosecutor Yi Chong-nam, head of the Central Investigation Division at the Prosecutor-General's Office, told the press Tuesday night that the probe would continue for "about two more weeks," but it has yet to be seen if the authorities will be able to clear public suspicion completely.

He stressed that the incident did not have political implications at all, denying the involvement of any highly-placed government figure in the scandal. Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha "just pretended to have personal connections" with influential people, according to the prosecution.

Yet, people who attended the couple's wedding at the Asian Safari Club in Chang-Chung-Dong, Seoul, early this year recalled that the well-wishers in fact included many notable figures in the financial and political arenas. The wedding was the first for Yi and the third for the bride.

Executives of business firms which had financial relations with the couple said that they could get billions of won in bank loans within a few hours when Mrs. Chang introduced them to bank officials.

Han Tal-sam, executive director of the Tae Yang Metal Co., said that he met the business manager of a major city bank and the president of a securities company in the office of the Taehwa Industrial Co. at the Hotel Lotte last April 15 when he was called to the place by Mrs. Chang.

A bank loan of 1,500 million won was decided on instantly at the office and he was told by the woman that he would be able to get the money "a few hours later."

The prosecution said that the nation's leading financiers had a "wrong belief" that Mrs. Chang had strong connections with political power. But it is doubtful if the woman could manipulate them by simple "pretension," without being actually supported by people in high positions.

The circumstances in which businessmen issued promissory notes for huge amounts of money to the couple in the name of "collateral" bills were not fully explained by the prosecution's announcement.

In the case of the Kong Yung Construction Co., its executives handed "collateral bills" for nearly 10 times the amount of money they actually owed to the couple. Kong Yung, one of the top 10 construction firms in the nation with 25 years of history, must have sought some unknown gains from deals with the couple and obeyed their demand, observers noted.

The couple offered extremely favorable conditions for the loans they provided. They were repayment terms of five years including two-year grace periods and an annual interest rate of 20 percent, much lower than the current bank rate. Commercial bills these days carry the interest rates of around 35 percent and are repayable over three months or so.

How the couple could invite major business firms to engage in deals with them with such fanciful offers remains a mystery. The prosecution said that the couple convinced the businessmen that they were acting "for a national cause" helping firms in financial difficulties.

The prosecution announcement contained many detailed figures showing how the couple disposed of the promissory notes they received from Kong Yung, Ilssin Steel and four other companies, which had a combined face value of 262,400 million won, about 6 percent of the nation's total money supply.

The prosecution's breakdown included 7,700 million won whose usage was unspecified. Senior Prosecutor Yi denied any possibility that any part of the money the couple manipulated had been turned into political funds.

Members of the ruling Party also strongly denied speculations that some funds could have been offered to politicians by the couple in efforts to buy influence. The continuing prosecution probe should clear up all these doubts more precisely, observers said.

The prosecution also said about 8,700 million won was given to bank officials in the course of getting bank loans. Two city bank heads were replaced but details about the behind the scenes deals between the moneylender couple and bank executives have yet to be disclosed.

The prosecution's "inteim" announcement came four days after the Central Investigation Division revealed the couple's arrest on charges of violating the foreign exchange control law on May 7.

The contents of the second announcement gave the impression that the investigators were trying to fill blanks in the astronomical money deals in a hasty manner. For example, it said that the couple suffered losses totalling 37,700 million won in their stock transactions.

It also said that the couple paid 59,900 million won in interest in the course of having the promissory notes discounted.

Finance Ministry Probe

[Text] The Finance Ministry has decided to dig into the real picture of the Chang Yong-cha scandal, irrespective of investigation of the prosecution, ministry sources said yesterday.

The sources said the ministry's probe into the scandal would focus stating item-by-item money the big woman curb loan dealer and her husband used after obtaining it by means of frauding. The ministry has also decided to dishonor all kinds of bills issued in the name of the Kong Yung Construction Co. and the Ilssin Steel Co., as an initial step, the sources said. The sources said the ministry reversed its earlier plan to let banking institutions pay "real bills" issued by the two insolvent firms in return for commodity purchases. With the plan reversed, the sources said, all sorts of bills including commercial papers (CPS) will be dishonored.

Meanwhile, Finance Minister Na Ung-pae told his ministry officials in a meeting yesterday that they should do their best to prepare comprehensive measures against a great ripple effect caused by the Chang Yong-cha loan incident.

To help ease shortages of funds available for enterprises arising from hardest hit curb-loan markets, the sources said, the government has instructed the Bank of Korea to release 200 billion won step by step.

On a long-range basis, the sources said, the ministry will hasten its program to reshape the ill-structured banking industry.

In consideration of tightly-knitted banking rules, the sources said many questions were raised on the couple's spending in financial loss from their investment in the stock market, discount rate on bills and attracting bank deposits.

Finance Committee Probe

[Text] Major political parties, determining the result of an initial investigation by the prosecution into the large-scale curb loan scandal as "insufficient," plan to delve thoroughly into the case in the National Assembly.

A Finance Committee session is scheduled for today and tommorrow to look into the case, and other pertinent committee sessions are also expected shortly.

The ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) and the opposition Democratic Korean Party (DKP) and Korea National Party (KNP) held a series of separate meeting to work out floor strategy.

In a meeting of the Central Executive Council, the DJP adopted a resolution calling for the swift normalization of the money market. The DJP also decided to convene assembly panels other than the Finance Committee to probe the scandal thoroughly. The DJP reaffirmed in the resolution that corruption involving political power should by no means be tolerated, and urged the government to exert all efforts to normalize the money market at the earliest possible date. Disclosing the result of the council meeting, spokesman Pong Tu-wan said the ruling DJP will unravel the curb loan scandal in an exhaustive manner at the two-day Finance Committee session.

Asked to comment on the possible convocation of relevant assembly panels, Pong said all options are being studied. It is always possible to convene a special assembly session to discuss the case, he said. The four-point resolution said the DJP will ascertain whether the prosecution's announcement is all there is to the scandal. If necessary, the DJP will hold sessions of pertinent assembly committees, the package said.

In a lawmakers' meeting held earlier in the day, the DJP decided to unveil all the facts of the scandal which unsettled the overall economy of the nation. Taking a serious view of speculations that a top-ranking DJP leader is implicated in the scandal, the DJP decided to focus its queries on finding out all the facts of the case and formulating measures to rectify irregularities dominant in financial circles.

Talking with reporters, DJP floor leader Yi Chong-chan strongly denied that Yi Chol-hui, former lawmaker, and his wife had made donations to the party. If the prosecution had made an announcement after full investigations into the case, all the facts of the scandal should have been brought to light, he said. Referring to a possible resignation of of the responsible minister, the DJP floor leader said it is premature to discuss the issue, because it is just four months since Minister of Finance Na Ung-pae was appointed. He said the DJP will look into the background of the unsettling of the nation's economy by a woman, trace more than 100 billion won allegedly spent by her and work out measures to protect innocent victims of the scandal. The DJP will also intensively ask the government on how to improve the overall financial mechnism, he said.

DKP President Yu Chi-song said, in the meantime, that the announcement Tuesday evening by the prosecution of the results of an initial investigation was not sufficient to clear public suspicion. After hearing a briefing from the party policy committee on the scandal, Yu called for a thorough probe into the case at the Finance Committee of the assembly. The DKP held a joint meeting of its Finance Committee members and floor leaders to formulate floor strategies for the panel session. Emphasis will be laid on unveiling all the facts of the scandal and thrashing out steps designed to root out corruption in financial circles, Yu said.

The KNP, determining the scandal as the worst of its kind since the national liberation in 1945, resolved to locate the source of the scandal. The KNP also called for a session of the Assembly Legislation-Justice Committee, attributing the scandal to the psychological makeup of higher-ups and the accumulated irregularities within the monetary circles. KNP Vice President Yi Man-sup said the scandal should be thoroughly investigated.

The splinter Parliamentary Fraternity Club (PFC) threatened to call for the resignation of the incumbent government, should it fail to unravel all the facts of the scandal. In a statement, Sin Sun-pom, acting spokesman of the splinter group, asked if a couple could perpetrate "such a penomenal scandal without influential packing."

Lawmaker Derides Cabinet

SK130800 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 13 May 82 p 1

[Text] On 12 May, the acting spokesman of the Parliamentary Fraternity Association, Sin Sun-pom, said: The fact that such an abnormal act as the curb loan scandal involving the woman Chang was perpetrated under the present regime, which claims to play the leading role in conducting reforms in all fields to build a just society, raises doubts about the ability of the present regime.

He said that the Cabinet should resign if it fails to thoroughly investigate the loan scandal.

KOREA HERALD Report

[Text] Prosecutors are continuing investigation of the recent curb money market scandal involving a wealthy businessman and his wife, amid lingering speculation that one of more "influential" figures might have been connected with the case. Yi Chol-hui, 59, former legislator, and his 38-year-old wife are the involved couple who were arrested recently.

The prosecutors, who asked not to be named, said they were also considering the possibility of filing criminal charges against the former heads of two city banks -- the Commercial Bank of Korea and the Choheung Bank — for their alleged part in extending a large sum of bank loans to the couple without obtaining collateral.

They said a decision on whether to book Kong Tok-chong, former president of the Commercial Bank of Korea, and Yim Chae-su, ex-president of the Choheung Bank, will be made depending on the outcome of the current investigation. Of the two, they said, Yim was suspected of extending about 35 billion won in bank loans to the couple collateral-free during an unspecified period of time. Meanwhile, it was not clear what prompted Yim to make the favorable and improper loans to the couple who were under investigation by prosecutors on charges of cashing 147.6 billion won worth of commercial papers in the curb money market.

Yi, 59, and Mrs Yi, 38, allegedly sold the commercial bills between early last year and this May by breaching the loan contracts after obtaining them as collateral from six business companies in return for a combined total of 57.6 billion won in private loans, the supreme prosecutor's office announced late Tuesday.

In an announcement on the result of an initial investigation into the case, the prosecution has said that the co-chairpersons of the Seoul-based Daehwa Industrial Inc. gave a total of 8.7 billion won in commissions to an undisclosed number of banking officials.

Prosecutors, however, did not say if the alleged act of giving the huge amount of commissions to the ranking officials constitutes bringing a bribery charge against the couple.

In a related development, sources close to the investigation said indications are that Mr. Yi might have been involved in peddling influence from an highly-placed figure, known later as Yi Kyu-kwang, in perpetrating the abnormal operation involving the private loans.

The sources said Yi Kyu-kwang, 57, former president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corporation, is the husband of Mrs. Yi's elder sister. Yi Kyu-kwang, a retired one-star general, is one of the brothers of Yi Kyu-tong who is president of the Korea Senior Citizens association. The sources pointed out that Mrs. Yi posed as an intimate of a high-ranking government figure when she was involved in drawing bank loans collateral-free and investing the preferential loans into the stock and security markets. Yi Chol-hui was a former national assemblyman of the now-disbanded Yujong-hoe Party and ex-deputy chief of the Korean Intelligence Agency (KCIA).

A reliable source at the top prosecution, however, said yesterday the prosecution failed to obtain any evidence that Yi Kyu-kwang used any pressure on banking officials to extend the Yi couple the yet-to-be determined amount of bank loans without collateral. The government yesterday accepted the resignation of Yi who had expressed his willingness to retire from his post taking moral responsibility for the scandal.

Prosecutors refused to go into details on how much improvement they made during the last 24 hours in their investigation into the case, saying that they were trying to clarify the allegations that the couple might have evaded income taxes in the course of dealing in commercial bills in the private money market.

Prosecutor Yi Chong-nam, who is heading the investigation into the large-scale money market scandal, said in an announcement Tuesday afternoon that all the personal property of the couple is estimated at 32.1 billion won.

The prosecutor also said the couple were suspected of depositing $200,000 in their savings account in an undisclosed bank in the United States.

He said the two were considering the possibility of setting up a joint venture with a California-based U.S. company to manage a farm in Los Angeles from last December and early May of this year. He recalled that the couple was originally charged with trying to smuggle $400,000 into the United States early this year. In addition to the charge against the couple under the Foreign Exchange Control Law, Mrs. Yi was additionally charged with possessing $400,000 plus 8 million yen in Japanese currency at the time of her arrest.

SINMUN Comment

SK130830 Seoul SINMUN In Korean 13 May 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Those Who Deceive and Those Who Are Deceived"]

[Text] What we have seen from the recent curb loan scandal is that there are still people in our society who try to profit by selling the names of persons in high government posts and that this has been successful. Needless to say, we hate the Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha couple. Banks and enterprises cannot escape responsibility because they have assisted this couple in committing a swindle. Although we can understand that, like those who are on the brink of drowning reach for straws, the owners of enterprises facing financial difficulties have succumbed to temptation, we acknowledge that both those have deceived and those who have been decieved are the victims of a social malady.

It is reported that in expressing great regret while being briefed on the recent loan scandal, President Chon Tu-hwan referred to his repeated instruction on rejecting requests for favor under the names of persons in high government posts. He then instructed that, if the incident is linked to him, it should be sternly investigated, no matter how many links turn up.

We are astonished to find how extensive is the influence of the social malady and how deeprooted it is. The goal of the government is to achieve a just society. The movement to reject requests for favor has been carried out. The new government has concentrated on eliminating irregularities. Nevertheless, the recent incident has shown that old practices still remain.

It appears that the recent incident has thrown cold water on the newly-launched movement to reform the people's consciousness. However, this does not diminish the importance of a spiritual reform movement, which has just been launched. Indeed this movement is all the more urgently required. If people try to collude with those in power no matter how eagerly the government may strive to be upright, this will gain nothing. We are apt to shirk responsibility. Reviewing the result of the interim investigation of the incident, we admit that we are partly responsible for the incident.

We cannot deny that the structure of our consciousness is the product of our social structure. Because we have achieved everything by resorting to those in power and because we have lived for a long time in the era when those in power and those who enjoyed financial influence colluded with each other, the majority of people have failed to abandon the spiritual attitude of regarding power as an absolute entity.

The most effective way of correcting such an erroneous idea is to repeatedly show that the practice of resorting to those in power is no longer tolerated. Our way of thinking, which has developed over a long period, will not change all at once. However, it will change if it is repeatedly shown to people to prove that it is erroneous.

In this connection, the government's policy of widely reporting this incident and thoroughly investigating its background is appropriate. We see the government's firm will to eliminate irregularities resorting to those in power at any cost. We hope that the government will continuously assume an upright attitude.

We would like to stress that uprightness on the part of those in power cannot be achieved by the government alone. As shown by the incident, those who decieve can survive when those who are deceived exist. As instructed by President Chon, government officials should be prepared to reject all temptations by learning a lesson from the incident and by creating an atmosphere of uprightness around them. We all should examine ourselves to see if we are assuming the spiritual attitude of revering those in power as we did in the past.

CHOSON ILBO VIEWS ASSEMBLY SESSION ON UIRYONG

[Editorial: "Closing of The National Assembly's Extraordinary Session To Deal With the Uiryong Incident"]

[Excerpts] The 112th extraordinary National Assembly session, called to deal with the Uiryong incident, concluded on 11 May after a 5-day session.

Though the session was expected to end on the last day, 11 May, with adoption of recommendations to the government as had been agreed on between the ruling and opposition parties, an unexpected situation developed. The parties barely managed to adopt recommendations to the government late at night after many complications, such as negotiations which took them all day long.

When the fraternal group, an association of independent house members, insisted on calling for mass resignation of the Cabinet in the recommendations drafted by members of a committee formed by other parties, it became the eye of a storm, sending whirlwinds throughout other parties.

With the closing of the assembly session, what attracts our attention is not how the National Assembly has dealt with the shock generated by a policeman's shooting spree, but what direction the National Assembly and its management will take in the future. We cannot deny that this concerns us more than anything else. It is because the National Assembly has acted opposite of what the people had hoped -- revitalized politics and political flexibility.

The National Assembly session to deal with the unprecedentedly shocking incident appears to have only refreshed the people's distrust of politics. The fact that 17 members of the fraternal group stayed away from adopting recommendations was a political event which attracts our attention. It remains to be seen what the people will say about this.

The National Assembly session should have been called without going through the procedure of convening a meeting of the Home Affairs Committee. Once the parties had agreed to aovid the political rigidity and primitive clashes out of consideration for party interests and strategy, such political fidelity should have been upheld. At any rate, the people expected the extraordinary House session would come up with a fundamental diagnosis and prescription other than what had been discussed at the meetings of the Home Affairs Committee. Even after considering the serious and sincere interpellations between the House members and the Cabinet members, including the prime minister, what resulted stopped short of satisfying the expectations of the people.

What we find in the recommendations adopted by the national assembly session are strong suggestions which, just like charters or ethics codes now prevailing, are correct and natural. What has been urged in item No 1 of the recommendations, the embodiment of responsible administration, is nothing but a reiteration of what is aspired by the government as its goal, and calling for prompt and fair compensation to the bereft families in item No 4 is a case of coming to the fair a day late, since compensation has already been granted.

The majority of the people, who think they can either find answers to satisfy their misgivings or see their hopes in the government, now find it difficult to see what recommendations the National Assembly has concretely proposed to the government.

The only hope we have now in the National Assembly, which has failed to achieve political harmony as hoped for by the people, is that it carries out its function of supervising and encouraging the administration, rather than struggling over the type of recommendations.

HUN SEN, GROMYKO SPEAK AT MOSCOW RECEPTION

[Text] Phnom Penh, 11 May (SPK) -- Foreign Minister Hun Sen, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau and vice chairman of the Council of Ministers, voiced his support for the peace proposals of the USSR and its untiring efforts to check the arms race and promote detente, disarmament and international cooperation. During a reception given in his honor in Moscow on 10 May by his Soviet counterpart, A. Gromyko, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo, Minister Hun Sen said:

The Kampuchean people admire the brilliant successes that the fraternal Soviet people have achieved under the just leadership of the CPSU. Not only do these successes serve as a basis for the construction of communism in the country of Lenin, but they are also the successes of the socialist communist and of the struggle for peace. They encourage the struggles of the Asian, African and Latin American peoples against U.S. imperialism, Chinese hegemonism, colonialism and neocolonialism for independence, democracy, freedom and social progress.

Minister Hun Sen stressed that the efforts of the USSR in favor of detente and international cooperation constitute an obstacle to the policy of militarism and expansionism pursued by the United States and its allies, and the policy of aggravating armed conflicts in various parts of the world, leading mankind toward nuclear catastrophe. He went on to say:

The Soviet Union is making a great, positive contribution to the reestablishment of peace and stability in Southeast Asia and to the defense of the revolutionary gains of the Indochinese peoples, including the Kampuchean people.

Since the liberation from the blood-thirsty Pol Pot regime, our people have permanently enjoyed the aid and support of the USSR and other fraternal socialist countries in our national reconstruction and in our struggle against the Beijing hegemonists who, in collusion with Washington and international reactionary circles, are seeking by all means to oppose the Kampuchean revolution. These hostile forces have engaged in subversive activities against the PRK; they persist in these activities today and seek to interfere in the internal affairs of our country, to jeopardize the process of the Kampuchean people's rebirth and to restore the genocidal regime.

Whatever the maneuvers of our enemies, the solid Kampuchea-Vietnam-Laos solidarity, the solidarity with the Soviet Union and the solidarity with the progressive and peace forces in the world guarantee that none of them will succeed in reversing history.

Together with the fraternal Indochinese peoples, the PRK actively struggles for the transformation of Southeast Asia into a region of peace and cooperation on the basis of the principles of peaceful coexistence. We wish to establish with the ASEAN countries -- particularly Thailand, which shares a common border with Kampuchea -- relations of good neighborliness on the basis of the proposals put forward at the conferences of the Indochinese countries' foreign ministers. The conference held in Vientiane in February affirmed our desire to discuss with Thailand the question of stabilizing the situation at the Kampuchean-Thai border on the basis of mutual respect for independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity. It is time the other side declares that it is also ready to do so.

Minister Hun Sen affirmed: It is not the Vietnamese military presence in Kampuchea -- which is there at the request of the Kampuchean Government -- which is the root of tension in Southeast Asia, but the Sino-U.S. alliance and their activities which results in the destabilization of the situation in the region.

As for the campaign launched by Washington regarding the so-called "use of chemical weapons in Kampuchea, Laos and Afghanistan," it is nothing more than fabrications by Washington to cover up its own crimes and its criminal plans to produce chemical weapons on a massive scale.

The successes of the Kampuchean people during the past 3 years and the stable situation in Kampuchea show conclusively the irreversible character of the process taking place in our country. The Kampuchean people are determined to carry out the tasks defined by the Fourth KPRP Congress.

With the support and assistance of fraternal countries -- particularly the Soviet Union and Vietnam -- thanks to the solidarity of the peace- and justice-loving forces in the world and by their own efforts, the Kampuchean people will attain happiness and prosperity.

Minister Hun Sen expressed profound gratitude to the CPSU and the government and people of the USSR for the aid and support they have given the Kampuchean people in the spirit of noble proletarian internationalism.

Minister Hun Sen declared himself "convinced that the fraternal friendship and fruitful cooperation which bind the parties, governments and peoples of the Soviet Union and Kampuchea would develop in the interests of the two peoples, of socialism and of peace in Southeast Asia and the world."

In his speech, Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko expressed his joy at "the positive process in Kampuchea and the achievements in the rehabilitation and development of the economy and social life." All the schemes aimed at reversing the situation by various intermediary counterrevolutionary factions are a waste of effort. No one will succeed in reviving the political corpse of Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and their ilk, declared A. Gromyko, who went on to say:

The Soviets are firmly convinced that under the leadership of the KPRP, the Kampuchean people will be successful in building a new prosperous Kampuchea. In this field, they can always count on the multifaceted assistance and support of the Soviet Union.

We note with satisfaction the deepening of the relations which bind our two countries. This cooperation rests solidly on the 1980 Soviet-Kampuchean summit agreements in Moscow.

The exchange of views which took place today dealt with some present international problems. The discussion confirmed our identity of views on the questions raised.

The head of Soviet diplomacy said: The Soviet Union, with the PRK and other fraternal countries, is struggling to eliminate the risks of a nuclear war and to lead the course of the events toward detente and peace. Our common important task is to improve the climate in Asia,which the imperialists and their lackeys want to turn into a hotbed of tension and dangerous conflicts. The policy of our state regarding Asia is one of peace and is a firm answer to the enemies of peace. It is a policy of peaceful cooperation with anyone who wants it, of fraternal friendship with the socialist countries and of solidarity with all progressive forces and of defense of the sovereign rights of all peoples.

A. Gromyko pointed out: During our talks, the two sides noted that in Washington as well as in Beijing, they do not wish to establish peace and stability in this part of the world; they regard it more advantageous for themselves to maintain tension. The appearance in this region of a group of countries opting for progressive changes and for peace and socialism does not please the imperialists and their henchmen. This is exactly the reason they are doing their best so the new Kampuchea does not occupy the seat which, by right, belongs to it at the United Nations.

We affirm that the settlement of problems in Southeast Asia is the business of the countries in the region. There is no question which cannot be solved at the negotiating table. The USSR entirely associates itself with the peace initiatives that Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos put forth to encourage the establishment of good-neighbor relations between the Indochinese countries and ASEAN, the normalization of the situation and the transformation of Southeast Asia into a zone of peace. The Soviet people wholeheartedly wish the Kampuchean people successes in strengthening their sovereignty and in building socialism, A. Gromyko said.

On 10 May, Minister Hun Sen met with Petr Demichev, alternate member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo and minister of culture of the USSR, on the consolidation of Soviet-Kampuchean cultural cooperation.

At the end of this meeting, a protocol on cultural and scientific cooperation between the Soviet Union and the PRK for 1982-83 was signed by Nikolay Firyubin, vice minister of foreign affairs of the USSR, and Hor Nam Hong, Kampuchean ambassador to the USSR.

SVAY RIENG PLANS TO RECLAIM MINEFIELDS FOR RICE

BK121244 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 0400 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] The province of Svay Rieng plans to reclaim an additional 15,000 hectares of land during this rainy season. The reclamation of riceland is to take place in the Parrot's Beak area, which is an important strategic zone strewn with tons of iron spikes, bamboo stakes and landmines planted by the genocidal Pol Pot regime during its war of aggression against Vietnam. At present, although our revolutionary authorities have already defused several tons of mines, more than 4,000 peasants and several head of cattle have been killed by mine explosions, while others have been badly maimed.

The authorities and armed forces of Svay Rieng Province are paying a great deal of attention to dangers stemming from landmines and other explosives in the reclamation of additional land for production.

Since the beginning of February, nine army units have launched a campaign in cooperation with the commune militia and local inhabitants to unearth and defuse all types of mines, transforming 1,523 hectares of land strewn with mines and punji sticks into ricefields for our people to cultivate during this rainy season.

Comrade (Put Saem), vice chairman of the Svay Rieng Provincial Military Committee, affirmed that despite its relative youth and lack of equipment our army is patriotic and loves the people. It is worthy of being the army born of the people. Loving and serving the people unconditionally, our comrades in arms are ready to make all kinds of sacrifices. They temper themselves and train seriously while enduring hardship. They study hard, draw lessons from past experience and are disciplined and obedient. They learn combat tactics from their Vietnamese comrades in arms and outstanding comrades. At present, they are making every effort to reclaim mine-infested ricefields so that the people can engage in production before the first rainfall of the coming rainy season.

[Text] According to Bangkok press reports, on 1 and 2 May the Lao guerrillas launched two attacks on a military camp of the Vientiane puppet forces in Moun District, Sayaboury Province. Four Vientiane puppet soldiers were killed and several others were injured.

According to another report, a handgrenade exploded in the Soviet cultural center in Vientiane on 2 May. On the following day two Lao youths were arrested by the Vientiane puppet authorities on the charge of being implicated in the incident.

FISCAL 1983 BUDGET ACCEPTED BY CABINET

BK121143 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 11 May 82

[Excerpt] Today the Cabinet accepted in principle the fiscal 1983 budget of 177,000 million baht, which is 9.9 percent higher than the 1982 budget. The 1983 fiscal budget was jointly prepared by the Finance Ministry, the Budget Bureau, the National Economic and Social Development Board and the Bank of Thailand. The breakdown of the budget in order of priorities is as follows: 37,228.9 million baht, or 21 percent, for education; 35,454.2 million baht, or 20 percent, for national defense; 33,822.7 million baht, or 19.1 percent, for economic affairs; 18,500.1 million baht, or 10.6 percent, for public health and public services; and the remaining 29.3 percent for internal security, general administration and loan repayments. The budget for economic affairs does not include the World Bank loan of about 3.5 billion baht for improvement of the economy.

Income in 1983 will come from taxes, state businesses and other sources totaling 151,000 million baht, as well as from loans and the country's financial reserves totaling 26 billion baht. The majority of the loans will be obtained locally. Total revenues will be 177,000 million baht, the same as the expenditures.

The basic criteria used in preparing the 1983 fiscal budget were:

1. The government would not draw up an overly large budget in order to maintain the country's financial and monetary stability in a time of world economic recession;

2. The government would not draw up a budget which is too small in order to ensure sufficient funds for national development and improvement of the people's education and health levels;

3. The government feels that the budget of 177,000 million baht would be neither too big nor too small, but the proper amount to enable the balance of national development and maintenance of national stability.

NATION Editorial

[Editorial: "Modest Budget With Emphasis on Education"]

[Text] The budget that has been approved by the Cabinet for the fiscal year starting this October, in all respects, is modest and places the accent on the right lines for the future of the country. It is also a bond move in that, although there has been 12 per cent inflation in the country during the past year, the increase in the country's budget is only 10 per cent -- a wee bit less -- and it is based on the hope that Thailand will be able to reduce the rate of inflation during the next fiscal year which, we are sure, would be an admirable achievement.

But one thing we have to bear in mind in considering the fiscal year 1983 is that it is only really meant for half a year since after that a new government, under full-fledged democracy, will take over the reins of the country and may request from parliament to change the allocations -- something that would be perfectly within its rights. It is one of the tragedies of the Third World countries that defence always has to have a high priority in budget allocation since almost all of them fear some kind of internal and/or external threat. Thailand's problems in that direction need no further emphasis.

However, we commend the government for coming up with a budget that puts education in a category higher than defence, which shows confidence in two ways -- Thailand wants to invest more in the future of the country by emphasizing education and, secondly, considers itself quite capable with the present defence budget to be able to hold its own against both internal and external threats to national security.

We do not have to go far to find comparisons -- the fellow members of ASEAN also put great emphasis on education and defence.

But Thailand's is a special case since not only do we have active internal subversive elements but we are also the frontline state, check-by-jowl with Kampuchea where a guerrilla war is going on right across our border with that country. No country in this part of the world has a higher claim to defence expenditure than Thailand, and the very fact that we have chosen to emphasize education above defence clearly shows the confidence which the present government has in its ability to defend the country against internal and external aggression.

There is, in the budget of every country in the world, a fly in the ointment and in ours it is the question of loan repayment. Our foreign exchange holdings do not project the brightest picture and we have, during this year, gone through one devaluation. Naturally this puts us in the position of having to upgrade the loan repayment and that may affect the stability of the baht once more. That is where some expert fiscal management is necessary and we are not quite sure that the present government is up to that. However, we sincerely hope that the general elections next year will produce a strong elected government -- not the kind of coalition we have been having with a Cabinet with inbuilt instability and pulling every which way.

POST COMMENTS ON SITTHI SAWETSILA PRC VISIT

[Editorial: "Sino-Thai Talks Perfectly Timed"]

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila has gone to China obviously for at least three objectives, one being the improvement of bilateral relations, another the formation of a loose tripartite coalition government for Democratic Kampuchea and the third the understanding of the recent leadership changes in Beijing. Thai-Chinese diplomatic ties can be further strengthened with greater trade volume at a time when Thailand's foreign policy stresses a determined export drive. China, which desires closer cooperation with Thailand and ASEAN to keep Soviet domination out of Southeast Asia, may oblige with purchases of more Thai commodities which it requires anyway for its modernisation programme.

Thailand will have to demonstrate to the rest of the world that while we place high value on our friendly relationship with China we still maintain even-handedness in our ties with the major powers so that none will feel that it is being disadvantaged by any tipping of the scales in any direction. This is the traditional policy that has made it possible for Thailand to remain independent during the age of Western imperialism and that is necessary today for Thailand to survive with its institutions and way of life intact. It has to be made clear that we are not involving ourselves in any sort of conspiracy with China. We have just one aim as far as Kampuchea is concerned -- the total withdrawal of the Vietnamese invasion forces.

It also has to be shown that while we support the idea of a coalition of the Khmer patriotic factions resisting Vietnamese occupation of their country, we are in no way whatever trying to intervene in the affairs of the Kampuchea people. We are only making it possible for the Khmers to regain their independence and to exercise self-determination, freeing themselves from a regime imposed upon them by the force of arms of a foreign power. That, after all, is part of the United Nations General Assembly resolution on Kampuchea.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi's discussion with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, former head of state of Kampuchea, will be most helpful in smoothing the way for the establishment of a coalition government. Actually, Prince Sihanouk has been the most cooperative of all leaders of the factions concerned and, in contrast with his past statements, has been consistent about a coalition to assist in the implementation of the UN resolution.

His talks with the Chinese leaders who wield influence over the Khmer Rouge should be more contributory to the formation of the proposed coalition. Beijing is expected to deny it has any "say" with the Khmer Rouge, maintaining it is an internal affair, but the truth is different. It can make a coalition probable rather than just possible by simply talking sense to the Khmer Rouge leaders. Beijing and the Khmer Rouge are well aware of the suggestion by Hanoi that the seat at the United Nations now occupied by Democratic Kampuchea be made "empty" -- a situation which could only lead in the near future to the handing over of the seat to the Heng Samrin regime, the puppet of the Vietnamese and the Russians.

Our foreign minister will be able to find out how the recent leadership changes in Beijing will affect policies regarding Thailand and ASEAN and whether the Sino-American problem over Taiwan would affect the peace and security of Southeast Asia. We may have China-watchers but there is nothing like observing from within. We will learn more and be prepared for whatever may transpire.

OFFICIAL SAYS ASEAN MAY FORM TIN PRODUCERS GROUP

[Text] The Association of Southeast Asian Nation [ASEAN], whose members include the world's major tin producers, is likely to form its own tin producers association to boost its bargaining power in the international tin market, a senior official said yesterday.

Director General of the Mineral Resources Department Dr Praphat Chakkaphak said that he will accompany Industry Minister Maj Gen Chatchai Chunhawan to attend a ministerial-level convention in Kuala Lumpur on May 14-16.

He said it is very likely that tin producers in ASEAN, including Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand will discuss the formation of the associations.

The three countries account for 75 percent of world's tin production. Praphat said Malaysian Primary Industries Minister Datuk Paul Leong recently proposed the concept to Thai authorities.

"He is convinced that the sixth international tin agreement will not be ratified by all members of the international tin council," he said. Indonesia also shares the same belief, he said. The United States has refused to join the agreement. Praphat said Thailand also has the same view and prefers to have producers association formed after the fifth agreement expired on June 30 and in case the sixth agreement has not been enforced. The deadline for signature was on April 30, but so far only 22 countries have signed the agreement.

Only Malaysia and Indonesia have ratified the sixth agreement among producing countries while Thailand, Australia and Zaire have not made ratification. It will enter into force provisionally if countries accounting for at least 65 percent of production and consumption have ratified or acceded to the agreement, or if they have given notification that they will apply it provisionally.

COMMENTARY SCORES BUSH PRC VISIT, CHINA ALLIANCE

BK121528 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] U.S. Vice President George Bush has just concluded his 5-day visit to China. What is the aim of his visit, and what is behind all his commitment? Our commentator has this observation.

While in New Zealand and even upon his arrival in Guangzhou, China, George Bush dropped words that he was going to Beijing to discuss the serious question, that is, U.S. arms sales to Taiwan. Meanwhile, the Chinese PEOPLE'S DAILY and other propaganda organs in Beijing sharply criticized the United States for selling arms to Taiwan.

In so doing, both Washington and Beijing wanted to conceal the real aim of Bush's visit. That, according to reliable sources, one can see through what is behind that visit. [as heard] At a banquet given in honor of George Bush, Premier Zhao Ziyang emphasized the global significance of U.S.-China relations and expressed the hope that such relations would continue to develop. George Bush, on his part, said that President Reagan always considers U.S.-China relations vital and wishes for friendly relations with China.

During his visit, George Bush also handed to Deng Xiaoping, Zhao Ziyang and Hu Yaobang the three letters from President Reagan reaffirming the strategic cooperation between the United States and China as a vital matter. There is no doubt that George Bush's visit is aimed at consolidating and promoting the U.S.-China alliance against the Soviet Union and the socialist community as a whole. It serves U.S. dark designs in Southeast Asia and the Pacific.

The French news agency AFP on 9 May remarked that the aim of George Bush's visit is to emphasize the U.S.-China strategic cooperation against the Soviet Union.

Washington and Beijing loudly said that the visit was a great success and that the talks were frank and friendly. But they could not conceal the fact that there are still disagreements over the Taiwan issue. Beijing knows too well that the United States is playing the two-China card. Obviously, it pretends to criticize continued U.S.-Taiwan relations only to deceive public opinion and to appease the Chinese people's desire for the recovery of Taiwan and reunification of the country.

In fact, Beijing already sold Taiwan to the United States when Mao Zedong was alive. Mao Zedong was quoted by Nixon and Kissinger in the memoir that was signed in 1972: Taiwan is only a minor problem in our relations. Deng Xiaoping has more than once declared that the Taiwan problem is to be solved by the coming generation.

George Bush himself stressed that the Taiwan issue did not influence U.S.-China relations. The United States is assured by Deng Xioaping that China will dispel all dark clouds in U.S.-China relations. Founded 10 years ago, U.S.-China alliance is now jeopardizing peace in Indochina and Southeast Asia and straining the world situation.

GROMYKO, HUN SEN REMARKS ON KAMPUCHEA CITED

[Text] Hanoi VNA May 11 -- Andrey Gromyko, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and foreign minister, has declared that all attempts to use the various counter-revolutionary groups to change the situation in Kampuchea are just illusions. Nobody can revive the political corpse of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary gang and its henchmen, he added.

A. Gromyko was speaking at a reception held yesterday in honour of Hun Sen, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea, vice chairman of the Kampuchean Council of Ministers and foreign chairman [as received] of the Kampuchean Council of Ministers and foreign minister.

Dealing with the relations between the Soviet Union and Kampuchea, the Soviet foreign minister pointed out that cooperation between the two countries has a firm basis which is the agreement reached at the high-level bilateral talks in Moscow in 1980.

On the situaiton in Southeast Asia, A. Gromyko said: To settle the Southeast Asian problem is first of all an affair of the countries in this region. Any problem there can be solved through negotiatons. Therefore, the Soviet Union fully agrees with an supports the peace initiatives of Kampuchean, Vietnamese and Lao peoples which lay the groundwork for establishing good neighbourly relations between Indochinese and ASEAN countries, normalizing the situation in Southeast Asia and making it a zone of peace.

It is high time for the genuine representatives of Kampuchea to take over the seat of Kampuchea at the United Nations from where their voice will be heard, the Soviet diplomat stressed.

For his part, Hun Sen welcomed the Soviet Union's contributions to the establishment of peace and stability in Southeast Asia and to the safeguarding of the revolutionary gains of the Indochinese people. He said: "Whatever perfidious schemes the enemies may resort to, the close alliance between Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos and their solidarity with the socialist community, first of all with the Soviet Union, and the solidarity of the forces of peace and progress throughout the world will prevent them from turning back the wheel of history.

"Kampuchea wishes to establish relations of good neighbourhood with all ASEAN countries especially with Thailand which has a common border with Kampuchea, on the basis of the proposals consistently put forth at the Indochinese foreign ministerial conferences. At our conference in Vientiane last February we re-affirmed our wish to discuss the situation with Thailand aimed at stabilzing the situation at the Kampuchea-Thailand border on the basis of respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity".

"The tension in Southeast Asia arose not from the presence of Vietnamese armed forces in Kampuchea at the request of the Kampuchean Government, but from the danger caused by the Sino-U.S. alliance," he emphasized.

PAPER CLAIMS NATION ECONOMICALLY SABOTAGED

[Article by Phan Thanh: "The Enemies' War of Economic Sabotage Will Surely be Defeated']

[Text] At present the imperialists and international reactionary forces -- led by the reactionary Chinese expansionists and hegemonists and U.S. imperialists -- are colluding with one another to wage a frenzied war of economic sabotage against our country. Like the espionage war and the psychological war of ideological sabotage, the war of economic sabotage is a very important part of the multifaceted war of sabotage launched by the enemies against our country in all fields -- politically, military, security, diplomatic, economic, social and ideological, and the feelings and ethics of man.

In their war of economic sabotage, the basic scheme of the enemies is to create economic instability so as to weaken us, further aggravate the difficulties facing our people's life, sow dissatisfaction among the masses and weaken and erode the people's confidence in party and state viewpoints and policies, especially economic ones; and on this basis, to incite unrest, rebellion and subversion.

In their war of economic sabotage, the enemies are seeking to undermine our economic line, production relations and production forces; and taking advantage of technology to conduct sabotage activities in our scientific and technological research and application centers, large industrial installations where modern equipment and precious and rare technical materials are used and in establishments for the research, application and culture of seeds for agriculture. They are also paying attention to undermining our circulation and distribution, prices and currency.

The enemies have distorted and exaggerated our shortcomings and weaknesses in economic management in order to fill the people with misgivings concerning party and state economic policies. They have enforced a policy of encirclement, imposing an embargo and forcing foreign individuals and corporations to refrain from signing contracts or to cancel, postpone and limit the economic contracts already concluded with us, or to set forth numerous conditions, consequently complicating the economic relations between the two parties concerned. They have also organized many international smuggling rackets to deal in foreign currencies and contraband goods, draw gold and precious stones away from our country and introduce luxury goods into our market; used dishonest traders to hoard strategic merchandise and essential commodities for speculative purposes; and organized the production, storage and circulation of counterfeit money and spread rumors about changes of the currency to make our currency drop in value and disrupt the market. On the northern border, the Chinese reactionaries have resorted to various measures aimed at disurpting production work and destroying the crops in the northern border provinces of our country.

The enemies have always tried to take advantage of loopholes in our economic and social management to encourage our workers, peasants and other laboring people to neglect their work and dislike productive labor; and have seized upon our lack of technological expertise to create explosions and fires in order to destroy our machinery, raw material, supplies and goods.

Along with planting their henchmen deep within our ranks, the enemies have encouraged, enlisted and organized thugs, hooligans, prostitutes and dissatisfied degenerating elements to sabotage our economy.

In recent years the enemies have further accelerated their sabotage activities against our national economy.

In the economy as well as in all spheres of social activities, correctly combining and resolving the relationship between construction and protection constitutes a problem of a legal character in today's era. In our country, implementing this law strictly is all the more a problem of a very important and pressing nature.

Protecting the economy and production efforts is a wide-ranging undertaking that involves the need to ensure correct implementation of the party's economic line, viewpoints and policies; to constantly consolidate and perfect the socialist production relations; to develop the socialist production forces; to apply unceasingly new methods for management and technological innovations broadly to step up production, improve circulation and distribution, intensify control over the market and stabilize prices and the currency; and to ensure the constant expansion and strengthening of economic relations with other countries in the world, especially those of the socialist system.

This undertaking also involves the needs to counter sabotage activities by the enemies, combat theft and minimize managerial and technical oversights and the lack of responsibility that may result in damage to state property.

The struggle against the enemies' war of economic sabotage is part of the difficult, fierce and very complex class struggle. Therefore, it is an extremely important task of the entire party and people, under the absolute, direct and comprehensive leadership of the party committee echelons, to develop the right of the laboring people to socialist collective mastery and enhance the effectiveness of the state in management. All sectors and echelons must develop this right.

As an immediate step, we must make all cadres, workers and civil servants deeply aware of the situation and revolutionary tasks in the new stage, and of the reactionary nature and the perfidious and cunning maneuvers of the imperialists and international reactionary forces led by the Chinese reactionaries and U.S. imperialists in their scheme of waging a war of economic sabotage against our country. They must be made to understand the national situation correctly — first of all the economic situation and the living conditions -- correctly assess advantages and difficulties and accurately pinpoint their causes, especially subjective ones. In this way they will be able to clearly determine responsibilities — especially their own responsibilities and those of the leadership, of their units and of their own -- for protecting the economy, maintaining production efforts and heightening vigilance against all enemy sabotage activities.

It is necessary to improve economic and social management intensively and to correct promptly all shortcomings in production management, distribution and circulation, and in the control of prices and the currency. Efforts must be made to improve the work ability as well as the technical, specialized and professional knowledge of cadres, workers and civil servants, especially those who are directly involved in the production process and distribution and circulation activities. Moreover, it is necessary to gradually bring economic activities onto the right track and instill in everyone the habit of living according to principles and working according to regulations.

We must wage a struggle to expose and severely deal with henchmen of the enemies who have infiltrated our economic organs and production establishments. Attention must be given to dealing with highly dissatisfied, decadent, degenerating and degraded elements, professional thieves and thugs and others and to removing elements harmful to economic security from economic zones and areas having important production establishments and scientific-technological centers.

The enemies are very cunning and crafty. The struggle against their way of economic sabotage is a very complex, fierce, protracted and difficult struggle. By developing the strength of tens of millions of revolutionary people who are collective masters and who always remain united and vigilant, and combining their efforts with the professional operations of security organs under the leadership of the party and the management of the state, however, it is certain that we can smash all the dark schemes of the enemies.

PAPER URGES ECONOMIZATION TO DEVELOP ECONOMY

BK121221 Hanoi QUAN DOI NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 19 Apr 82 pp 1, 4

[QUAN DOI NHAN DAN 19 April editorial: "Economization is a Major National Policy"]

[Summary] Economization is a major economic policy of the party and the state that is aimed at effectively exploiting production capabilities and all sources of reserves to develop the economy, expand production and gradually improve the laboring people's living standards.

"For socialist construction, we need many things, ranging from grain to machinery, equipment, materials and fuel. Although our country's natural resources are rich, we have just begun to exploit them. The supply of many kinds of essential materials and fuels still depends on fraternal countries or on imports. Our needs are increasingly growing at a time when many imbalances in the national economy can only be gradually overcome. Practicing thrift strongly amounts to contributing to the reduction of these imbalances. At present, the use of materials, fuel, equipment and funds is very wasteful and not very effective. Despite some efforts made in establishing and executing various economic-technical standards, the rate of material and fuel expense for making a unit of products has not yet been reduced. Instead, it is showing signs of increasing. In social consumption, there still exist indications of waste and corruption in various areas. These constitute a great obstacle to efforts to improve the results of production and to improve the people's livelihood."

In order to overcome this situation, it is necessary to strictly execute a policy of austerity in all activities of the national economy and in all areas of life, from production to distribution, curculation and consumption. We must translate this policy of austerity into daily actions for every production unit in society. We must eliminate at all costs all phenomena of waste. Additionally, we must rationally use natural resources, land, manpower, materials and funds with a determination to constantly increase labor output, reduce production costs and bring production into full play.

We must practice thrift not only in production and but also in consumption. Although the laboring people's living standard in our country is still low, we must realize that we are consuming more than we can produce. This is unacceptable. We must live on the fruits of our labor.

"With the duty of remaining combat ready and firmly defending the socialist Vietnamese fatherland, our people's armed forces have a large defense budget at their disposal. Capital investments in various economic projects carried out by the army are also considerable. A significant quantity of the country's materials and technical equipment is now in the hands of the armed forces." Therefore, practicing thrift in the armed forces becomes increasingly important.

In order to make austerity a truly major national policy with good results, all units must practice thrift in all fields of activity as it is an important factor for successfully building socialism.

QUAN DOI NHAN DAN ON TRIAL OF GASOLINE THIEVES

BK121429 Hanoi QUAN DOI NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 21 Apr 82 p 4

[VNA report]

[Text] The An Giang Provincial People's Court recently opened a hearing of first instance to try Nguyen Van Phien on charges of taking advantage of his duty and authority to steal state gasoline and oil, and Thai Don Hoa and his accomplices on charges of hoarding and illegally dealing in gasoline and oil.

Nguyen Van Phien, a former policeman under the old regime, was employed by the An Giang General Material Supply Corporation to work as its gasoline and oil depot keeper shortly after the liberation of the south. Phien was reported to have stolen gasoline and oil from the corporation directly or through illegal contacts and arrangements with his accomplices. The gang, using delivery documents and transport facilities, stole gasoline and oil from various depots of the An Giang General Material Corporation as well as from the Nha Be depot (Ho Chi Minh City) for sale on the free market. To cover up their criminal act, they readjusted the gasoline pumps, refilled the gasoline storages with thousands of liters of fresh water, and used money to bribe inspection cadres and tank trucks and barges to carry the stolen gasoline and oil away for sale.

Between 1977 and March 1981, they stole as many as 591,490 liters of gasoline and oil. Of this quantity, Nguyen Van Phien alone accounted for 230,435 liters.

Phien also bought from Hoa and his accomplices another 200,000 liters which they had stolen from the Nha Be depot. With the money collected from the sale of stolen gasoline and oil, Phien had purchased dozens of taels of gold in an attempt to flee abroad. When his crime was brought to light, he also used money to bribe the responsible cadres. The An Giang Provincial People's Court handed down a death sentence on Nguyen Van Phien and a life imprisonment sentence in absentia on Thai Don Hoa. Meanwhile, the rest of the gang received sentences ranging from a 2-year suspended term to a 20-year jail term. In addition, all of them must pay damages to the state for the quantity of gasoline and oil they had stolen in accordance with its price on the free market.

NATIONWIDE AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS REPORTED

BK111247 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 10 May 82

[Text] The recent rainfalls in almost all of the northern provinces have provided water for ricefields, which were faced with drought. These ricefields are now blossoming. The rain was accompanied by strong winds which damaged some areas of the spring rice crop. Localities are now surveying their ricefields. According to intial estimates, the rice has not developed as uniformly this year as last. Some localities have harvested almost 30,000 hectares of early rice, compared to 56,000 hectares in the same period last year. Because of recent cold weather, the rice blooming period was 15-20 days later than last year.

Thanks to the active eradication of harmful insects, damage to the rice crop was limited to 172,000 hectares. Cautious localities, however, are continuing to eliminate these insects.

Along with caring for the early rice crop, the northern provinces are concentrating their efforts on 10th-month rice production. To date, they have sown 32,000 hectares of seedlings and plowed 26,000 hectares of ricefields for the 10th-month crop. They have planted almost 9,000 hectares of summer-fall vegetables including gourds, pumpkins and eggplants, thereby contributing to overcoming the shortage of vegetables in municipalities and cities.

Over the past 10 days the mountainous provinces planted an additional of 14,525 hectares of corn, 7,938 hectares of manioc and 2,093 hectares of other starchy plants.

For the days ahead, the Ministry of Agriculture urges the northern localities to inspect their ricefields more frequently in order to combat drought and eradicate harmful insects, especially rice blast and brown leafhoppers. They should urgently harvest vegetables and subsidiary and industrial crops and promptly embark on summer-fall crop production. They must accelerate plowing work using tractors and draft animals to prepare land for the 10th-month crop quickly. They must solve the feed source problem satisfactorily in order to maintain and develop animal husbandry, especially breeding cattle, and actively concentrate manpower and facilities for coping with floods and typhoons in the coming monsoon season.

As of 5 May, provinces in the Mekong River Delta had plowed 658,000 hectares of ricefields, planted 430,000 hectares of summer-fall and early 10th-month rice. This is three times more than during the same period last year. For the summer-fall crop alone, 68 percent of the cultivated area has been plowed and 28 percent planted.

FUEL SHORTAGES SAID TO HAMPER DOMESTIC FLIGHTS

BK071635 Hong Kong AFP in English 1617 GMT 7 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, 7 May (AFP) -- Several domestic flights of the Vietnamese airline company have been cancelled this week apparently due to a shortage of fuel, causing serious disruption in inter-city traffic, civil aviation sources said here today. Several flights to Ho Chi Minh City were cancelled, the sources added. There are normally two daily flights. Travellers arriving from Ho Chi Minh City indicated that their aircraft had to land in Da Nang to refuel.

Vietnam, which gets its fuel supplies from the Soviet Union, is said to have very limited reserves.

Various sources said Vietnam had approached Iraq in a bid to diversify its fuel sources.

MARCOS CONSULTS LEGAL LEADERS ON COURT AFFAIR

HK130053 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] President Marcos said he will appoint tonight the new Supreme Court. He announced this after a 3-hour consultation meeting at Malacanang yesterday with some 60 legal luminaries that included the leaders of the Integrated Bar of the Philippines, the Philippine Constitution Association, deans and professors of colleges of law, and some opposition batasan members. President Marcos asked them to submit their memoranda this morning so he could act on the Supreme Court controversy by evening.

The president released to the legal leaders of the country the recommendations of the retired Supreme Court justices he consulted on the resignations of the members of the high tribunal, led by Chief Justice Enrique Fernando. The former magistrates recommended only the acceptance of the resignations of Justices Vicente Ericta and Ramon Fernandez, who appeared the only ones directly involved in the bar scandal. There was no consensus with regard to the other Supreme Court members.

At the same conference, some assemblymen called attention to the amendment of the 1973 Constitution requiring that all members of the Supreme Court should be both natural-born and citizens of the Philippines. They pointed out that Justice Claudio Teehankee is not a natural-born citizen of the Philippines. The assemblymen said, even President Marcos is impeachable for a culpable violation of the constitution if, knowing that Teehankee is not a natural-born citizen, he neverthless still appoints him as a Supreme Court justice.

The president said that his successors would have to come from the members of the Executive Committee. He added that the members of the opposition should be acquainted with the problems of internal security and must be able to control the armed forces.

ARMED FORCES ASKED TO ENSURE ELECTION SECURITY

HK130109 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 12 May 82

The call was made in the wake of reports that election irregularities have emerged in certain parts of the country. The reports included alleged attempts by certain persons to steal election registration forms, and the selling of illegally-circulated Comelec registration forms.

Last February naval authorities captured (Mariano Canonigo) and (Augusto Almeida Lopez) of the PSDP group while trying to sneak into the country through the southern back-door in Tawi-Tawi.

Constabulary and police units have been sent out to track down the terrorists who set off the explosions.

SUZUKI URGES EXTENSION OF CURRENT DIET SESSION

OW131129 Tokyo KYODO in English 1109 GMT 13 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 13, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki is determined to extend the current 56th Diet session by up to two months in order to pass pending key bills. The Diet's regularly 150-day session would normally come to an end next Wednesday.

Suzuki's intention has already been conveyed to leaders of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP), including its Secretary General Susumu Nikaido, according to sources close to the LDP leaders.

Extension of the current Diet session was decided by Suzuki because of his firm conviction that the bill concerning revision of the present upper house election law must be passed as soon as possible in order to pave the way for more equitable elections.

The prime minister will formally declare his intention to extend the session by up to two more months to lower house Speaker Hajime Fukuda and upper house President Masatoshi Tokunaga within this week, the sources said.

Suzuki originally hoped to conclude the current Diet session by June 2, as he has to prepare for his official visit to Paris to attend the summit meeting of seven industrial nations to be held in Versaille on the outskirts of Paris on June 4 and 5. But he changed his mind and decided to continue Diet deliberations even after he returns home from the summit and the United Nations special session on disarmament in New York.

ECONOMIC GROUP URGES U.S. TO CUT DISCOUNT RATE

[Text] Tokyo, May 13, KYODO -- Japan's economic growth would quicken by 0.06 percent a year if the United States were to lower its official discount rate by 2 percent, according to a new "world economic model" released by the Economic Planning Agency (EPA) Thursday.

Analysis based on the econometric model confirmed that high interest rates in the U.S. are obstructing recovery of the Japanese economy, the EPA said. The analysis made it plain that reduction of high money rates in the U.S. would result in a rise in the value of the Japanese yen in relation to the dollar and a lowering of prices in Japan.

The new economic model covers nine countries -- the seven countries participating in the annual economic summit of Western industrialized countries (Japan, the U.S., Canada, Britain, France, West Germany and Italy) plus Australia and South Korea.

The EPA said its consolidated multinational model was the most advanced of its kind in the world in terms both of accuracy and analysis.

The U.S. Federal Reserve Board (FRB) was the first to embark on the development of such a model covering the economies of many countries. But its efforts have apparently not met with full success, the EPA said. The new EPA model, it said, analyzed the way the economy of each country covered should be managed under the present floating exchange rate system.

Another notable feature of the model is that in forecasting Japan's economic future, importance is attached to the interrelationship between the economies of all nine countries.

Application of the model shows that if the U.S. official discount rate were lowered by 2 percent a year, the yen's value as against the dollar would rise 1.43 percent in the first year and 3.15 percent in the second year, while prices in this country would decline 0.24 percent in the first year and 0.72 percent in the second. The real growth rate of Japan's gross national product (GNP) would increase 0.06 percent in the first year and 0.17 percent in the second year.

The EPA's analysis based on the model includes the possible impact on the Japanese economy of a rise in the price of imported crude oil. Other things being equal, if crude oil prices were to go up 10 percent, the yen's value would sag 1.41 percent in the first year and as much as 5.08 percent in the second year, according to the EPA. As a result, the GNP growth rate would fall 0.23 percent in the first year and 0.62 percent in the second. By contrast, the yen's depreciation would bring on a gradual upsurge in exports. Although the export value would decrease 0.12 percent in the first year, it would increase 0.01 percent in the second year, the EPA said. The rise of crude oil prices, it said, would cause Japan to suffer the sharpest fall in the exchange rate among the nine countries. But at the same time, this would lead to export increase.

GOVERNMENT ADMITS U.S. CONTROLS OKINAWA AIRSPACE

[Text] Tokyo, May 13, KYODO -- U.S. forces are still in control of the skies over Okinawa and the safety of civilian planes is jeopardized, the government admitted in the Diet Thursday.

Answering a question put by Socialist Issei Inoue at the meeting of the House of Representatives Audit Committee, Akira Takeda, director of the Air Traffic Services Department of the Transport Ministry, admitted that the U.S. forces retain control over the terminal radar at the three airports in Okinawa.

He stated that the U.S. forces operate the terminal radar only as a temporary step pending completion of preparations by the Japanese side to take over the control. But that there is no prospect for such a takeover at present.

Takeda also revealed that there are as many as 16 "warning areas" designated by the U.S. forces in the skies over Okinawa. He said that the situation is exactly the same as in the days before reversion of Okinawa to Japanese rule in 1972.

At the same committee meeting, Kunio Tanabe, director general of the Okinawa Development Agency, also stated that the safety of civil aviation is an important problem from Okinawa. He said that he will endeavor to grasp the actual situation on the occasion of his participation in the ceremony to be held in Naha Saturday to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the reversion of Okinawa to Japanese rule.

SAKURAUCHI URGES U.S. TO LIFT USSR EXPORT BAN

[Text] Tokyo, May 13, KYODO -- Japan has renewed its demand that the United States lift a ban on the export to the Soviet Union of sophisticated equipment for underground exploration so that a Japan-Soviet joint venture for oil and natural gas development off the coast of Sakhalin can go ahead as scheduled.

This was revealed Thursday by Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, who returned home earlier in the day from Paris where he attended a ministerial session of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) on Monday and Tuesday.

Talking to newsmen, Sakurauchi said he made the request when he conferred in Paris with U.S. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldridge, who also attended the OECD meeting. He told the U.S. Cabinet officer that if not lifted soon, the U.S. embargo would delay the development of oil and natural gas deposits on the continental shelf off the Soviet island north of Japan's Hokkaido, Sakurauchi said. He told Baldridge that in such circumstances, Japan's massive investment in the joint venture since 1975 could come to nothing, he added. The U.S. official replied only that he would discuss the matter with quarters concerned upon returning to Washington, the foreign minister said.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki also asked U.S. Vice President George Bush for the removal of the embargo when the two conferred in Tokyo recently during the U.S. leader's visit to Japan.

The equipment embargoed is needed for examining underground structures. Washington banned its export to the Soviet Union as part of sanctions imposed after the Polish military regime cracked down on the Solidarity free trade union late last year.

FISHING BOAT REPORTEDLY SEIZED BY DPRK SHIP

[Text] Fukuoka, May 11, KYODO — A Japanese fishing boat was captured by what looked like a North Korean ship in the Yellow Sea Tuesday, maritime safety officials said. The No 83 Kyofuky Maru, with 12 crewmen aboard, was captured around 9:40 a.m.

The 114-ton ship, belonging to Daiju Fishery Co. of Fukuoka, left Hakata Port February 13 and was scheduled to return home around May 20.

Five Japanese fishing boats were seized by a North Korean warship April 24 but were released 17 hours later.

VRPR SCORES AMBASSADOR WALKER'S COLUMBIA REMARKS

SK140232 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 13 May 82

[Dialogue from feature program "Focus on Topics"]

[Text] Amid a situation in which the anti-U.S. sentiment is growing across the country, U.S. Ambassador Richard Walker's remarks made at the Columbia news conference continuously attract public attention. In this hour, I will talk with Madam Yun in this regard.

Announcer: As time goes by, voices denouncing U.S. Ambassador Walker's remarks at a 16 February, Columbia news conference are being raised. It seems that Walker is desperately trying to deny his remarks.

Madam Yun: That is correct. He is at a loss as to what to do. When his remarks insulting the Korean people resulted in our people's government, he excused himself several times by denying his insulting remarks. Appearing at the 6 May dinner arranged by the Kwanhun Club — a friendship organization of journalists — at the Koreana Hotel, he conducted a mean act of imputing responsibility for this remarks to a cabdriver, babbling that he had not made such remarks but had received a report that a cabdriver had once termed students as spoiled brats. There is a saying that once split, water cannot be poured back into a vessel. However desperately Walker may try, it will be impossible to excuse himself and impute responsibility for his remarks to others. His try will only cause our people's stronger resentment and resistance.

Announcer: I agree. What were the remarks made at the Columbia news conference? To review Walker's crimes, we had better call his remarks to mind. Would you please talk about them?

Madam Yun: Sure. Last 16 February, Walker, the U.S. ambassador to South Korea, held a news conference in Columbia, South Carolina. Expressing his views on Korean affairs at the news conference, he insulted antigovernment figures and students by calling them spoiled brats. Furthermore, he said that Chon Tu-hwan was enjoying absolute support from the Korean people and that the Korean economy was developing, overcoming the recession. Shortly after the news conference, his remarks were reported to the world through newspapers, news broadcasts and press agencies. STARS AND STRIPES, a noted U.S. Army paper, featured his remarks.

Announcer: I see this an intolerable, insulting remarks to the Korean people. Having assumed the position of the U.S. ambassador to South Korea, he then brazenly supported the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military rule and denounced the patriotic masses against it by using nasty terms which are used only by hoodlums. This has never taken place before. Walker's remarks are intolerable, reflecting the U.S. aggressive policy toward Korea and Americans' views on Korea. For this reason, we need to talk about his remarks in more detail.

Madam Yun: The reason why Walker's remarks invoke defiance and great anger at home and abroad is because he insulted personages and students who oppose the Chon Tu-hwan military regime by calling them spoiled brats. Walker's remarks are regarded as an intolerable insult to not only the democratic personages and students at home and abroad but also to all the South Korean people. As for the antigovernment personages and students who were called a gang of scoundrels by Walker, they are struggling patriots risking even their lives for democratic and civil rights and rights to existence in opposition to dictatorship and injustice. Are they not?

Announcer: That is correct.

Madam Yun: Actions taken by them are all for the nation and people. None was taken for the benefit of individual interests. According to remarks by Walker, all those who are struggling for democracy and reunification are a gang of scoundrels. This is indeed an intolerable insult. They cannot be a gang of scoundrels and their actions cannot be childish ones.

Announcer: You are right. In addition, what we should not overlook in Walker's remarks is that he mislead the people about the situation by describing Chon Tu-hwan as being supported by the majority of the people. What he said of Chon Tu-hwan is unabashed praise similar to a colonial governor's praise of the ruling capacity of the chieftain of the natives in the colony or urging for his men in charge of a smaller division by a gang boss. This is another preposterous act showing a scene created by a master who tries to revive his stooge on his deathbed by breathing life back into him.

Madam Yun: I see no need to describe what kind of a person Chon Tu-hwan is. The only thing he has done since he usurped power by bayonets and exposed his dirty appearance is that he turned this land into darkness by consolidating his fascist dictatorial rule and practicing tyrannical rule.

Announcer: True.

Madam Yun: It was the Chon Tu-hwan ring which soaked Kwangju in a sea of blood by staging the 17 May violence and indiscriminately massacred thousands of innocent residents of Kwangju. It was also the Chon Tu-hwan ring which obliterated even freedom of expression by covering the whole territory of South Korea with a tight net of repression, regarding murder as a common occurrence. For this reason, none of our people has ever supported Chon Tu-hwan. They rather raised their voices calling for death to him through mutilation. If there were any supporters of Chon Tu-hwan, they were a few who, living parasitic life under the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military regime, flattered and kowtowed to Chon Tu-hwan. Even so, Walker babbled as if Chon Tu-hwan were supported by the whole people. This nakedly exposes his nature as a strangler of democracy and as a person who tramples on human rights.

Announcer: You are right. In his remarks, Walker also said that South Korea's economy has overcome the recession of the 1970's and is now developing. We cannot view this as coming from a man with a stable mental state.

Madam Yun: I agree.

Announcer: If he knows a little bit about the present situation facing South Korea's economy, he could not possibly say so. Now that Chon Tu-hwan himself admits that the economy has collapsed and people are suffering from hardship and is whining about it whenever he opens his mouth, how can anyone view it as developing? Don't you think so?

Madam Yun: Right.

Announcer: Maybe a recession appears as development and stagnation as a boom to Walker.

Madam Yun: Maybe he things that such lying of his could pass without raising any problem because he formerly taught political science at the South Carolina University. By the way, he is the person who conducted clandestine activities in support fo the Pak regime's plot for the Yusin coup d'etat for 3 years from 1970 through 1972. Moreover, he has lied more than anybody else in international seminars held in South Korea in connection with South Korea's security. In recognition of his services of this sort, the Pak regime gave him warm hospitality along with a considerable amount of compensation for his services.

Announcer: True.

Madam Yun: So it is not by accident that he displayed the same quick wit as soon as he was appointed U.S. ambassador to South Korea.

Announcer: True. When we consider the fact that his interview with Columbia news was not his private opinion but a reflection of U.S. policy for aggression toward South Korea and the U.S. view of South Korea, its effect could be greater.

Madam Yun: That is true. For this reason, every sector of our society, regarding his remarks as serious, is now condemning and denouncing them.

As in the anti-U.S. struggle staged by Kangwon College students on 22 April, in the statement issued by the Korean Christian Action Organization and earlier in the arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan, students, clergymen and people of all strata strongly called for a recall of Wickham and Walker, shouting "Yankee, Go Home" and "The United States Should Not Intervene in the Internal Affairs of South Korea."

Announcer: Right.

Madam Yun: Walker will never be able to excuse himself for his remarks in the Columbia news conference nor shirk responsibility.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors should immediately leave this land as unanimously demanded by the people at home and abroad.

Announcer: Yes, I think so. Now we stop it here today. Thank you.

Madam Yun: Thank you.

Pool Chairman's Report

SK130526 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0444 GMT 13 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 13 (KCNA) -- Pero Ivaoic, chairman of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries, made a report on the agenda item on the implementation of the pool action programme and decisions adopted at the Sixth Coordinating Committee at the plenary session of the Seventh Coordinating Committee meeting which opened in Pyongyang on May 12.

He said: Since the last, 6th Pool Coordinating Committee meeting, 15 months have elapsed.

The 6th Coordinating Committee meeting gave an important contribution to the expansion of pool activity and to the efforts exerted by pool member agencies to achieve greater efficiency. The efficiency and scope of the 6th pool CC meeting as well as the period which has elapsed have obliged us to make this report as elaborated and detailed as possible and to present activities and achievements, along with obstacles and problems, met by the pool and its participating agencies.

Along with the pool progress report submitted and adopted at the nonaligned ministerial conference held in New Delhi, February 1981, it could give an insight into pool functioning and serve as a basis for the report to be submitted by the coordinating committee to the 3d general pool conference, planned for the end of this year. The pool was also invited to present information to the Intergovernmental Council for the Coordination of Cooperation among the Nonaligned Countries in the Field of Information, scheduled to meet in the middle of June.

All this contributes to the importance of the 7th pool CC meeting. Of equal importance is the fact that this meeting is held in the DPR of Korea, a nonaligned country. I should like to note that the presence of a great number of news agencies from all the continents at this meeting, in this friendly country shows the universal acceptance of pool concepts and activities. The joint meetings and discussion we have conducted in different places enable us to become acquainted better and come to understand specificities in the functioning of individual news agencies and thus reach joint agreements much more easily.

Before presenting the topics of this report, I feel a general and important assessment should be quoted: The pool has been developing since its foundation. This was also stated at the 2d general pool conference held in Belgrade 1979, which underlined the adherence to the authentic principles and objectives of the policy of nonalignment and to the obligations undertaken with a view to developing and strengthening the pool and materializing the adopted programmes into action.

Establishment and Strengthening of National News Agencies

It was stated at the 2d pool conference that some 30 non-aligned countries had no national news agencies and that approximately the same number of nonaligned countries had news agencies which are insufficiently equipped for the reception and transmission of information and thus for equitable and active participation in the pool.

For this reason, the establishment and capacitation of national news agencies have been and remain the priority tasks. News agencies have been established in Guyana, Zimbabwe, Botswana. Dominica and Grenada also send their information for the pool. In Malta, radio-television XANDIR is functioning as a news agency, similar disposition having been shown by broadcasting organizations in Guinea and Sierra Leone. The Maldives send their bi-weekly information bulletin by air mail, etc.

Better conditions for the functioning of news agencies have been created in many countries while projects for news agencies capacitation are being realized or elaborated in a number of countries. In the sense of special importance is the realization of the first phase of the PANAFRICAN NEWS AGENCY (PNA) project, planned to start operating at the end of this year.

Our Coordinating Committee feels itself under an obligation to call upon the governments of the countries in which news agencies do not exist with the view of identifying the causes and obstacles for such a situation and undertaking united action on an international scale. Such an active pool attitude has so far proved efficient in several countries such as Seychelles, Nicaragua, Zimbabwe, etc. Some pool participating agencies have directly assisted and are assisting the establishment of news agencies and their technical and cadre capacitation. Among those are PTI, PL, TANJUG, KUNA, as well as GULF NEWS AGENCY, TAP, JANA. Also, Sri Lanka's contribution should be pointed out by giving an example with the introduction of reduced transmission tariffs (DPBS) and that of KCNA which among other things, has made it possible for us to gather here.

Assistance and Support to the Liberation Movements

Among priority tasks in the pool action programme there has been support to the Patriotic Front of Zimbabwe and the SWAPO [South West African People's Organization] of Namibia in the training of cadres and acquisition of equipment necessary for establishment of a national news agency following national liberation. With the help and engagement of the frontline countries, the pool has done much to assure the wider dissemination of information on liberation struggles and movements in South Africa, world-wide.

Pool support to the liberation movements also includes continuous support to the liberation struggle of the Palestinian people, the PLO as its legitimate representative and the WAFA News Agency, which has been actively participating in the pool since its very beginning and is a Coordinating Committee member.

It should be noted that numerous agencies through their information circulated through the pool express their support to the just struggle of the Palestinian people and to the PLO for their basic rights. In this sense, all assistance and support to the WAFA NEWS AGENCY remains a lasting task for the pool agencies.

Marking of the 20th Anniversary of the 1st Summit Conference of Nonaligned Countries

In accordance with the resolution adopted at the Pool CC meeting, many pool participating agencies actively participated in marking of the 20th anniversary of the First Conference of Heads of State or Government of Nonaligned Countries, held in Belgrade in 1961, interviews or statements of heads of state or government, foreign ministers or other personalities from more than 30 nonaligned countries were disseminated through the pool system; and this activity is being continued till the end of the year. Pool newscasts have regularly included commentaries and press coverage of the anniversary in nonaligned and other countries. The Coordinating Committee has included the publication of the book on the pool in the pool programme for marking the 20th anniversary of the 1st nonaligned summit conference.

Development of Communications Among Nonaligned News Agencies

The majority of news agencies in nonaligned countries still cannot communicate directly, without the mediation of a third party. In the course of the last year, certain achievements were realized and the contours were defined of a system which would interconnect nonaligned news agencies. Also, the first duplex satellite links were established, thus enabling flow of information between Havana, Mexico, Belgrade and New Delhi. The ASIA NEWS NETWORK (ANN), which started to function in January this year, and the expansion of the Organization of Asian News Agencies (OANA) provide for the inclusion of greater number of Asian news agencies in the pool flow of information. A just established duplex connection between TANJUG and TAP will also contribute to better inter-communication among pool agencies on different continents. The launching of the AFRICAN NEWS AGENCY (PANA), planned for this year, will considerably improve the flow of information within the African Continent and between African states and news agencies in other nonaligned countries. It is important to note that the communication networks OANA and PANA are based upon cooperation on an equal basis and the exchange of information among national news agencies. The functioning of the OPEC NEWS AGENCY (OPECNA) is based upon the system similar to that of the pool. OPECNA comprises 12 non-aligned news agencies and it is realistic to discuss the possibilities of using OPECNA communications for transmission of information destined for inclusion in the pool too. The multiplication of connections among the developing countries and the transmission capacity increase of particular national news agencies create better conditions for the pool participating agencies in general.

The action programme envisages the organization of a meeting of representatives of news agencies possessing their own telecommunication channels. It would be useful to enlarge such a gathering with representatives of regional and international mechanisms for the dissemination of information. A broader internatinal gathering on mechanisms for the dissemination of information, being prepared by UNESCO for this September, could represent an appropriate opportunity to realize the idea.

However, the connections already established as well as the mentioned projects and concepts cannot, in this phase, solve the problems of the inclusion of underdeveloped news agencies from the least developed countries in the pool system.

For that reason, the idea expressed on some earlier occasions by the CC is again emphasized that, as a minimum, these agencies be given possibility to send their most important information to the nearest pool redistribution center.

The idea is also reflected in the proposal for the introduction of a free press-collect card for the least developed agencies, as supported by the UNESCO working group for tariffs. A project on this facility has been elaborated in cooperation with UNESCO and will be presented as one of the 7th meeting agenda items. The implementation of this modest project, until better communication possibilities are created, could enlarge the number of active pool participants and would capacitate certainly their foundation in the least developed countries.

Improving the Pool Performance

The period since the founding of the pool, particularly since the second general pool conference, is accompanied by a rapid increase of participants and volume of information being exchanged and the improvement of the quality of information being exchanged is constant and indisputable. Deside the agencies which rank in the nonaligned family among the developed like PTI, PL, TANJUG, TAP, INA, MAP, ANTARA, MENA and some other, according to their participation in the pool in evidence is the increasing number of professionally given items by the agencies KUNA, ANGOP, KCNA, APS, SUNA, CNA, QNA, AIM, BERNAMA, IRNA, WAM, LANKA PUWATH, NAN, ECUAPRES, ANN, SAP, XANDIR-MALTA, NOTIMEX, ANDINA and several other agencies. However, the stepped-up development of the pool is not accompanied by an adequate increase in publishing of pool news by the mass media of a large number of nonaligned countries.

Proceeding from the fact that the placement of pool items and the reduction of domination of big information systems is the goal with which the pool was launched, the improvement of pool performance is becoming a task gaining in priority. This was also in evidence at the Sixth Pool Coordinating Committee meeting in New Delhi and the workshop organized on that occasion. The improvement of the present situation, with which we cannot be satisfied, can primarily be achieved by better linkage and cooperation among news agencies and mass media and institutions at national level. This renders greatly important the recommendation of the Coordinating Committee addressed to all pool news agencies to analyse in their respective countries the possibilities for the improvement of pool performance. Such recommendation has also been made at the New Delhi nonaligned experts meeting both to the pool and the inter-governmental council and has been supported also at the meeting of the committee for cooperation of broadcasting organizations. It is obvious, however, that this subject has a long-term significance and that it will also be discussed at the third general pool conference, since the pool must develop trust in its information focusing on the contents, facts, quality and speed.

Cooperation With Inter-Governmental Council

The Pool Coordinating Committee representative took part in the meeting of the Inter-Governmental Council for Coordination of Cooperation Among Nonaligned Countries in the Field of Information held in Georgetown, Guyana. In May 1981, on the occasion, he submitted a report on the work and decisions of the Sixth Pool Coordinating Committee meeting and informed the council about the basic course of pools activity.

At the invitation of the inter-governmental council, the Pool Coordinating Committee chairman took part in the work of a group of experts of non-aligned countries this year which discussed elements for the drawing-up of the action programme of cooperation among non-aligned in the sphere of information.

Cooperation With BONAC

The successful cooperation between the pool and broadcasting organizations of nonaligned countries (BONAC) continues. It is developing in mutual participation in meetings of coordinating bodies of news agencies and broadcasting organizations of nonaligned countries, in meeting of experts for information and communications, as well as in inter-governmental meetings, particularly those organized by UNESCO. Emphasis is also placed on the need for increased cooperation between news agencies and broadcasting organizations at national level.

Cooperation With UNESCO and UN

A number of useful actions was realized in cooperation with UNESCO since the last pool coordinating committee meeting. A meeting of representatives of news agencies and institutes on training of journalists with UNESCO's assistance and participation was organized. Within the framework of its regular programme of analysing of world information system, UNESCO has agreed to assist in the publishing of a book on the pool. Pool is invited to meetings in UNESCO devoted to information and communications. UNESCO representatives also take part in all meetings organized by the pool. UNESCO has agreed to prepare a project on the introduction of press-collect cards for the agencies of the most underdeveloped countries.

UNESCO-press items are occasionally transmitted through the pool while pool agencies items are present in the UNESCO headquarters.

In keeping with the decisions of the Pool Coordinating Committee on examining the possibilities for the expansion of cooperation between the pool and the DPI-UN and on the basis of the UN Committee for Information invitation, the Pool Coordinating Committee chairman attended the UN committee session last May. The report he submitted on the work of the pool. hitherto cooperation with the DPI-UN and possibilities for its expansion was received well in the committee and included in the session documents, which represents not only the acceptance of the pool as an information partner in the UN, but also opens new possibilities for cooperation.

Significant is the experience gained by the implementation of the Pool Coordinating Committee resolution on the joint coverage of the UN conference on energy held in Nairobi, last August, with UN's financial contribution. The KENYAN NEWS AGENCY and CC chairman are submitting a special report on this at this meeting. In the period since the pool New Delhi meeting there were no new remarks by pool agencies so that the statute is implemented in practice. In this way, conditions have been created for us, as planned, to submit the new statute for adoption to the third general pool conference.

Candidacy for Hosting Third General Pool Conference

At the New Delhi CC meeting, the determination of the place of holding the third pool conference was postponed for this seventh coordinating committee meeting.

The TUNISIAN NEWS AGENCY, TAP, submitted its candidacy. In consultations with a number of coordinating committee members in the course of preparations for this meeting, the candidacy was endorsed. Should Tunisia be accepted as the host, the 8th coordinating committee meeting would also be held there, immediately before the conference scheduled for the end of this year.

Pool Newsletter

Only two issues of the pool newsletter have been published since the last coordinating committee meeting. Issue No. 5 was according to volume significantly larger and does contain a series of information and documents of significance for pool news agencies. The sixth issue is being prepared for June this year.

The pool newsletter could, however, could be a much better and effective platform for mutual informing of news agencies of nonaligned countries. There are also some other questions which could have been mentioned here in this report. The first group includes training of journalists. The most recent report pertaining to this subject is the one about the meeting of a UNESCO working group held last December, which is included in the documents for the agenda.

Belonging to the second group is the exchange of features and photographs and special economic information, archives cooperation, exchange of information about the production of equipment for news agencies in nonaligned countries, etc. I do believe decisions will be adopted which will help them being included in the pools future activity.

Thus what was said in the report and what will be substantiated during the three-day work in Pyongyang nevertheless shows the extent in which the pool expanded the field of its activities and became a system for exchanging information.

I am obliged to stress that in the period since the last Pool Coordinating Committee meeting, the contacts, consultations and cooperation between the Coordinating Committee members have significantly improved. A contribution to this was also made by regional news agencies meetings, expert meetings, international meetings and symposiums.

I am also obliged to stress that a large number of agencies has contributed quite a number of reports on the pool activities and substantial amount of documents to the 7th Coordinating Committee meeting. This will certainly contribute to the efficiency of this meeting of ours.

Kim Il-song Address

SK131640 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1559 GMT 13 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 13 (KCNA) -- The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, made a speech at a banquet he arranged this evening at the Kumsusan Assembly Hall in honor of the attendants at the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries.

Follows the full text of his speech "For the Strengthening of Cooperation Between the Nonaligned Countries in News Service":

Esteemed delegates, comrades,

The seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of the Nonaligned Countries which has been opened amidst the great expectation and interest of the progressive peoples and journalists of the world, is carrying on its work successfully thanks to the sincere efforts of you delegates.

Our people are highly pleased that their country has become the venue of the meeting which is of great importance in developing the Nonaligned Movement.

I would like to extend a warm welcome to the representatives of various countries news agencies and the international organizations who are devoted to news activities aimed at developing the Nonaligned Movement and promoting the common cause of progressive humanity, and wholeheartedly congratulate you on the success of the meeting.

The seventh meeting has exchanged the successes and experiences gained so far by the news agencies pool of the nonaligned countries in its news service and earnestly discussed the measures and ways for furthering the cooperation and interchange between national news agencies. Thus, it will mark an epoch in the struggle for further enhancing the role of the pool and establishing a new international order in news service.

The role of the news service is really great in the struggle for the building of a new society. News services are the ears and eyes of society and spokesmen of the public opinion. Progressive news services defend and propagandize progressive thoughts, thus enlightening the popular masses and inspiring them to a struggle for the building of a new society.

That the non-aligned countries carry on news activities briskly through the medium of their national news agencies and develop cooperation and exchange in the news service, is of truly great significance in achieving the cause of independence against imperialism.

The nonaligned news pool was founded in 1976 as an expression of the new trend of the Nonaligned Movement and the urgent demand of information service of the nonaligned countries. This meant a new type of cooperative news service system in the hands of these countries, which champions and speaks for the interests and aspirations of the people. In the short period of several years since establishment, the news pool has developed into an authoritative press organization with its affiliated news agencies of more than 80 countries. It has daily growing influence on the international scene.

By working actively in accordance with the idea of the Nonaligned Movement, it has powerfully inspired the people around the world in their just cause of building an independent, prosperous new society in opposition to all sorts of domination and subjugation, and has greatly contributed to the development of the Nonaligned Movement. Through its positive information service it has patently proved its vitality and secured its place as a press force advocating the newly-emerging forces in the international news service system.

This pool and the news agencies of nonaligned nations have given a great deal of support and encouragement to our people in their just revolutionary cause by widely disseminating the news of our peoples struggle for socialist construction and independent, peaceful reunification of their country. I would like to extend warm thanks to the news agencies of nonaligned countries and to the pool that have greatly encouraged our peoples revolutionary struggle through their vigorous news activities.

The seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of the Nonaligned Countries has been called at a momentous juncture when the need has arisen to strengthen the Nonaligned Movement. The present international situation is very complex and strained. Scared at the evermounting revolutionary struggle of the people for independence against imperialism, the imperialists are making desperate efforts to maintain and expand their supremacy. Going against the trend of the time, they incessantly perpetrate aggression and provocations against the countries of the newly-emerging forces and repress by force of arms the oppressed peoples who have risen in a righteous liberation struggle.

Having openly declared the "policy of strength", the U.S. imperialists are now working for its realization. They are striving to build up the military blocs and alliances they have already rigged up and, meanwhile, are running wild to form new military blocs in Asia, the Pacific area and many other parts of the world. In particular, they are craftily maneuvering to sever and sow discord among the nonaligned countries and wipe out the anti-imperialist, independent forces.

Owing to the machinations of the U.S. and other imperialists for aggression and war, the international tension is aggravated and the danger of a new world war is daily growing.

The prevailing situation demands that the people of the world struggle more energetically against the imperialist schemes for aggression and war and for making the whole world independent. Only when the whole world is independent, will it be possible to prevent a new world war, maintain a lasting peace in the world and achieve complete independence and prosperity for all countries and peoples.

In order to make the whole world independent, the Nonaligned Movement must be expanded and developed still further.

The nonalignment is a progressive movement which embodies in it the lofty idea of independence against imperialism; it is a mightly revolutionary force of our time which is confronted with imperialism. The nonaligned countries are advancing independently without joining any bloc, and the Nonaligned Movement is an independent political force of the countries which are outside the blocs. Today this movement is dealing a heavy blow at the imperialists in their moves for aggression and war, precipitating their decline and disintegration and is exerting a serious influence on the international developments and the revolutionary changes in the world. The expansion and development of this movement will provide a sure guarantee for checking and frustrating the imperialists maneuvres of aggression and war and for putting the whole world on an independent basis.

In expanding and advancing the Nonaligned Movement, it is very important to enhance the role of the nonaligned news pool. News services of nonaligned countries are a powerful weapon in the struggle to expand and advance the Nonaligned Movement. Only when the role of the pool is enhanced to carry on the news activities vigorously, will it be possible to expose and thwart the imperialists moves for aggression and war promptly and encourage forcefully the peoples of newly-emerging countries on their struggle to build a new society. Increasing the role of the pool is all the more urgent today in view of the fact that the imperialists are intensifying more than ever before their reactionary ideological offensive against the peoples of newly-emerging countries and that the nonaligned nations are confronted with the difficult yet important revolutionary task of building a new society.

All nonaligned countries should join efforts to enhance the pools role and thus steadily expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement, brushing aside every obstacle and obstructionist move. The pool should strictly adhere to the anti-imperialist stand in its information service and concentrate its pen on the struggle against imperialism. The pool should wield its caustic pen to expose nakedly the imperialists aggressive nature and crafty moves for aggression. Aggression and plunder emanate from the inherent nature of imperialism, and war is the means of its existence. By mercilessly exposing and denouncing imperialism's aggressive nature and crafty moves for aggression, the news services of the nonaligned countries will prevent the people from harbouring any illusion about imperialism and mold wide-spread public opinion against the imperialists in very part of the world.

The pool should strive to put an end to the imperialists' monopoly and arbitrariness in the field of news service and to establish a new international order of news activities.

At present the imperialists use large news agencies to hold a monopolistic position and act arbitarily in the field of news service. The kept news services of the imperialists are stifling the righteous voices of the people and make false propaganda which bends the truth. They persist in the dissemination of corrupt reactionary ideas which poison the sound minds of people. Unless the imperialists monopoly and arbitrariness in the news service are done away with, we can neither develop the Nonaligned Movement nor achieve the cause of independence for the whole world.

The pool should vigorously conduct revolutionary news activities and thus thoroughly expose and shatter the imperialists slanders and their false, reactionary propaganda about the Nonaligned Movement and the revolutionary struggle of the people. When all the news agencies of the nonaligned countries resolutely combat the reactionary news services of the imperialists, it will be possible to destroy the old, anachronistic international order of news service and establish a new one which represents the interests of the peoples of the new-emerging forces.

The pool should actively contribute to the revolutionary cause of the peoples for chajusong (independence-tr.) through news activities. It is an important mission of the pool to enhance the people's spirit of national independence, increase their political consciousness and rouse them to the struggle to build an independent new world.

The pool should give publicity to the brilliant successes achieved by the newly-emerging nations in the struggle to build a prosperous new society under the anti-imperialist, independent banner as well as the vivid pictures of the nonaligned countries which are developing with each passing day. In this way broad masses of the people will turn out vigorously in the worthwhile struggle to build a new world, convinced of the validity of the cause of independence and a bright future. It should widely propagate the aim and idea of the Nonaligned Movement, and zealously collect and disseminate information which is helpful to the unity of the newly-emerging countries and to the expansion and development of the Nonaligned Movement.

The news pool should efficiently disseminate information beneficial to economic and technical cooperation among the nonaligned countries. Every nonaligned country has one or more good things in this regard. If they exchange them with one another, it will be of great significance in building a new society. The news services of the nonaligned countries should ensure economic and technical exchanges among these nations, and thus actively help towards the building of their independent national economies.

Success in the news activities is guaranteed by a high level of ideological content, accuracy and promptness of information. The pool should fully express the aspirations and requirements of the popular masses in its information service, and timely disseminate objective and truthful information. The news services of the nonaligned countries should correctly analyze and judge important international events and the trend of developments and report them at opportune moments and thus play the role of leading and organizing public opinion along the right track.

The pool should make energetic efforts to develop exchanges and cooperation between the news agencies of the nonaligned countries. Only when they strengthen exchanges and cooperation in information service, can the nonaligned countries increase the effectiveness of this pool and attain the unity and solidarity of the Nonaligned Movement with greater success.

The worldwide dissemination and propaganda of the information of the peoples of newly-emerging countries who are building a new society constitutes a great support and inspiration to their struggle. The news agencies of the nonaligned countries should briskly exchange information with one another and direct much effort to reporting the news of the struggle of other peoples.

In order to develop interchanges and cooperation among the nonaligned countries in their information service, it is necessary to form an integrated news service network by linking the national news agencies of each country. When they are integrated into an organized system, these news agencies can handle information more accurately, disseminate it throughout the world more quickly and prevent distorted imperialist propaganda. We deem it a rational means of forming such an integrated news service network to strengthen the existing regional redistribution centres in different continents and induce them to play the role as the branch offices of the pool.

The nonaligned nations should strenthen their own news agencies, and also zealously help their fellow nations in developing their news agencies in the collective spirit of cooperation, among these nations are those with up-to-date news agencies, those with excellent journalist training institutions, and those with valuable experience in information service. If they develop exchange and cooperation on the principle of mutual accommodation, they will be able to solve successfully all problems arising the furnishing their of news agencies with equipment, in the training of journalists and all other work of building up news agencies.

The government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea which regards it as its sacred international duty to endeavour to expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement, is also keenly interested in strengthening the news agencies pool of the nonaligned countries. The government of the republic will strive to develop this pool and provide every condition so that the KOREAN CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY can fulfill its duty with credit.

Under the banner of independence, friendship and peace, the DPRK Government will vigorously struggle to develop friendly and cooperative relations with the peoples of the nonaligned countries and all the progressive people of the world and to build an independent and peaceful new world which is free from all manner of domination and subjugation.

I am confident that, through your strenuous efforts, a new success will be made in the information service of the pool and in expanding and developing the Nonaligned Movement.

Hoping that the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of the Nonaligned Countries will proceed successfully and bear a fine fruit, I propose a toast:

To the development of the news agencies pool of the nonaligned countries,

To the friendship and solidarity among the peoples of all the newly-emerging countries of the world,

To the health of delegates from the news agencies of many countries and the representatives of international organizations to the meeting, and

To the health of the comrades and friends present here.

FURTHER REPORTAGE ON PRIVATE LOAN SCANDAL

Implication of Politicians

SK140141 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 14 May 82 p 1

[Text] Finance Minister Na Ung-pae said last night that no political power was implicated in the controversial private loan scandal perpetrated by Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha confusing financial circles.

"If the case had been committed by the couple under the umbrella of political power, it would not have been exposed and could have been settled quietly through special bank loans to the enterprises involved," he testified.

Answering questions by lawmakers of majority and minority parties in the Finance Committee session, Na revealed that Yi Kyu-kwang, former president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corp., has neither helped nor protected the woman curb money dealer in her fraud tour.

He said, "I understood that the 147.6 billion won Chang had misappropriated so far had never been spent in collusion with the political power."

The minister also said that the government would strengthen its tax investigation of large-scale private money lenders to attract their funds into the institutional financing.

"However, the government will not take special measures against the curb loan market such as freezing all private money," he said.

The minority parties' members of the panel claimed in their respective interpellations that nobody could deny the involvement of political power in the case in what they called the weakness of the financial circles to the power.

Four lawmakers took the floor until early this morning to inquire of the government about the curb loan scandal, which left the Ilssin Steel Co. bankrupt and put the Kong Yung Construction Co. under court management.

They are Reps. Cho Pyong-pong of the Korea National Party, Kim Mun-won of the Democratic Korea Party, Choe Myong-hon of the Democratic Justice Party and Yim Chae-hong of the Civil Rights Party.

The lawmakers from the minority camp demanded that the bank executives involved be arrested for the breach of trust, and the concerned ministers and officials resign in order to realize responsible politics.

They urged the government to clarify the whereabouts of the missing 7.7 billion won out of 147.6 billion won, arguing that they believed the money had been converted into political funds.

They also asked the minister to bare the names of the so-called top ten private money lenders on the occasion of the curb loan scandal.

In his reply, Minister Na said that successive bankruptcy of enterprises was feared in the wake of the scandal because curb money was totally frozen, banks were shrinked and short-term financial companies suffered great damages.

"To prevent the chain failure of the businesses, the government released emergency funds to help them, and the special subsidies will be stopped when the dark clouds of possible bankruptcy disappear," he said.

As for the government decision to place Kong Yung under court management while leaving Ilssin remained [as published] insolvent, he said, "the Kong Yung Construction Co. should have gone bankrupt in principle. But, the government allowed it to be operated by the court, taking into consideration the on-going overseas construction work by the construction firm."

Assembly Session 'Most Likely'

[Text] The National Assembly is most likely to hold another extraordinary session next week to invoke its investigative power to look thoroughly into the curb loan scandal. Major political parties virtually agreed on the invocation of the parliamentary investigative power yesterday, when their floor leaders met at the assembly to discuss how to cope with the scandal.

The floor leaders decided to huddle again Saturday to determine the issue of exercising investigative power pending the result of the Finance Committee session scheduled for yesterday and today. They also shared a view that a joint session of the finance and legislation-justice committees would not be desirable, because a special assembly session is likely.

Three major political parties moved to ensure that investigative power would be exercised in the assembly for an exhaustive investigation into the scandal.

In an emergency meeting of senior officers, the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) decided to positively study the wisdom of invoking the investigative power.

Floor leader Yi Chong-chan said the ruling DJP will determine the issue of exercising the power in consultation with other parties following the conclusion by the prosecution of investigation into the scandal. Briefing reporters on the result of the meeting, Yi said that another special assembly session will be held, if the investigative power is to be invoked. He said he understands the prosecution will wind up its probe into the scandal within a week. This is interpreted as hinting that the assembly will hold another special session toward next Thursday or Friday. The investigative power, if invoked, will probably deal with the overall financial mechanism in addition to the scandal, Yi said.

The assembly is entitled to invoke the investigative power in a plenary session. The National Assembly law stipulates that a motion for the invocation of the investigative power shall be initiated by a committee or more than 30 lawmakers.

An investigative commission created in accordance with the power is authorized to summon pertinent persons and make an on-the-spot probe. The law also provides that those who make false statements before the investigative commission shall be imprisoned to a maximum 10 years.

The investigative power has not been invoked since the Fourth Republic.

The opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and Korea National Party (KNP) has decided to push through the idea of invoking the investigative power for a thorough investigation of the scandal.

The two opposition parties demanded that a special assembly session be held without delay to pave the way for the invocation of the investigative power. The two parties determined that power might have been implicated in the curb loan scandal, which unhinged the financial circles.

Bankers To Be Subpoenaed

SK131244 Seoul YONHAP in English 1230 GMT 13 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 13 (YONHAP) -- The Prosecutor General's Office investigating the so-called "Mrs Chang scandal" will subpoena the former presidents of the two Seoul banks, where the controversial millionairess has had accounts, for questioning, the office announced Thursday.

Yim Chae-su, president of the Cho-Heung Bank, and Kong Tok-chong, president of the Commercial Bank of Korea, have resigned this week following the arrest of their former client last Friday.

The two banks are suspected of making large loans without collateral to Mrs. Chang, wife of the former deputy chief of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, Yi Chol-hui.

Prosecution sources said the two bankers will also be questioned as to whether Mrs. Chang's transactions with the banks were influenced by her alleged political connections.

She has a brother-in-law who is the younger brother of President Chon Tu-hwan's father-in-law.

The sources said investigators were making little headway because Mrs. Chang has left no trace of her spendings.

Mrs. Chang and her husband were arrested on charges of violating the foreign exchange control law. They are suspected of illegally diverting 400,000 U.S. dollars to the United States. She also allegedly disrupted Korea's financial community by making large loans to Korean companies for promissory notes nearly five times the size of the loans.

More Bank Officials Questioned

[Text] Vowing to conduct a thorough investigation into the recent curb money market scandal triggered by a former legislator and his wife, prosecutors summoned more than 10 persons for questioning between Wednesday night and yesterday.

Although senior prosecutors were not available for comment, sources at the Supreme Prosecutor's Office said yesterday that those questioned or under questioning included banking officials and private moneylenders.

Meanwhile, Prosecutor Su Tong-kwon said three more prosecutors were newly assigned to investigate the controversial case in which former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and his wife, nee Chang Yong-cha, were arrested last week on charges of conspiracy in smuggling $400,000 into the United States.

The No. 2 man at the Supreme Prosecutor's Office also said the prosecution is considering the possibility of presenting charges against the former heads of two city banks -- the Commercial Bank of Korea and the Cho-Heung Bank -- for their alleged part in extending a large but undisclosed amount of bank loans to the couple without obtaining collateral.

The prosecutor refused to comment on how much progress the prosecutors made during the past 24 hours. He added that the two former presidents of the city banks, identified as Kong Tok-chong of the Commercial Bank of Korea and Yim Chae-su of the Cho-Heung Bank, might be summoned to the prosecution to undergo questioning for their respective part in the large-scale curb loan scandal.

The outcome of an initial investigation revealed that the 59-year-old Yi and his 38-year-old wife cashed commercial bills valued at 147.6 billion won in the private money market prior to due dates after they obtained them as collateral from six business representatives in return for 57.6 billion won in private loans.

The prosecution said in a statement earlier this week that the couple were suspected of offering a total of 8.7 billion won in commissions to an unidentified number of bankers.

According to the statement, it was still uncertain whether the heads of the two city banks, Kong and Yim, were among those who had allegedly took the commissions.

It did not mention whether offering the commissions to the bankers by the wealthy couple was a crime.

Prosecutor Yi Chong-nam, who was heading the investigation, has said that there was no evidence sufficient to implicate other persons in connection with the loan marked scandal.

The prosecutor has said three city banks and five short-term financing companies were involved in extending preferential loans to the couple collateral-free. He neither identified the banks and the financing firms nor did he say about the period in which the money lending took place.

However, he said recently that the Choheung Bank extended about 35 billion won in bank loans to the couple on a collateral-free basis in an unspecified period of time. In a related development, a source close to the investigation said, prosecutors were tracing the source of the couple's capital which was initially estimated to total 32.1 billion won.

Revision of Banking System

[Text] The government is studying a plan to revise or abolish laws guaranteeing secrecy about the names of those who deposit money in banking and financing institutions, Finance Minister Na Ung-pae said yesterday.

Na said intensive tax checks would be made of big curb loan dealers.

The government plan is aimed at absorbing idle money floating underground into established banking institutions, Na explained.

The finance minister was testifying on the first day of a two-day session of the National Assembly Finance Committee which was convened to dig into the real picture of the so-called Chang Yong-cha incident. Na said the credit management of companies would be computerized to help all banking institutions concerned obtain correct information daily on money flow. To do so, Na said, the government would establish an information pool system by which banking and financing institutions would be able to get correct information on money transactions among them and borrowers.

In his testimony, Na pointed out that the projected system was part of the government program to root out corruption and irregularities in the banking industry. Amidst hot debate over the incident, Na explained that banking institutions had not exchanged information on enterprises. They also had not been able to get correct information on money flow in the insurance, short-term financing, stock and curb loan markets. The lack of information allowed a big woman curb loan dealer called Chang Yong-cha to cause the incident, which shattered the money market to the root, Na said. Therefore, Na said, the government would adopt a comprehensive information system to inform all sorts of banking organizations of the daily money circulation.

In a bid to prevent a second incident like that of Chang Yong-cha, Na said the state-run Office of Bank Supervision and Examination would be empowered to exercise supervision of the secondary banking world including short-term finance companies.

Bank credit management will switch its accent from securing mortages to prospects for projects companies want to undertake. Major corresponding banks will be advised to dispose step by step of debt-ridden companies which have turned out to be too weak to stand on their own feet.

The government will revise the present bank merit system which accords top priority to ability to attract deposits, Na said, since fierce competition among banking institutions to attract money raised strong possibilities of malpractices.

According to Na's systematic innovations in the banking industry, the government will have each bank establish an operation committee composed of shareholders to wipe out "autocracy" in bank management.

Turning to the government program for further investigation of the private money market, Na said, tax probes will be made of big curb loan dealers.

However, full-scale checks of the curb loan market will not be undertaken to prevent paralysis in the market, Na stressed.

In his report on reforms of corporate taxes, Na disclosed that the tax system would be amended so as to encourage businessmen to invest their money in their business instead of getting loans from outside.

CHOSON ILBO Editorial

SK131114 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 13 May 82 p 2

[Editorial: "We Urge End To Suspicion -- on the Interim Investigation Report on Chang Yong-cha Case"]

[Excerpts] At midnight the day before yesterday, the prosecution office made an interim report on its investigation into the so-called Yi Chol-hui - Chang Yong-cha couple case. We would like to take this report as an interim finding -- the preliminary one for the upcoming full-scale investigation.

Frankly speaking, this case has drawn tremendous attention from the people. This is not only because the case has greatly shocked society and the economy but also because the public doubts such an unreasonable, irrational case took place under the very leadership which has been advocating moral reforms aimed at social justice.

In the midst of the protracted recession, the economy and enterprises are troubled. The culprits, taking advantage of such a situation, have thrust bills 2 to 10 times the actual value of the loan money on debtors. It is deplorable that they have committed such acts while accelerating the collapse of enterprises.

The people cannot help burning with indignation and expect that the details of the case will be looked into without leaving any room for suspicion. Fortunately, the Prosecution Office's interim findings say that this case is not linked to politics or political funds at all and the rumor that a relative of the person in high authority, whose name Chang Yong-cha has used fraudulently, is connected has been found to be totally false. Of course, we hope the findings are true and firmly beleive that the rumor about such a connection between Chang and a relative of the person in high authority is groundless.

However, this case is very important. The Prosecution Office has shown sincerity in dispelling the suspicion of the rumor about the political connection and the rumor about the involvement of a relative of the person in high authority.

We are demanding that all suspicion in the case be dispelled. We want to see these kinds of irregularities eradicated from our society. As long as the suspicions linger, movements against corruption and irregularities and for moral reform will not be smoothly carried out.

There is the possibility that this case will give birth to one suspicion after another. Therefore, the people's attention to this case has been growing. We urge the authorities to conduct thorough investigations and clarify the case.

[Text] Phnom Penh, 13 May (SPK) -- The PRK Foreign Ministry spokesman today energetically protested the intensification of violation into Kampuchea's airspace by Thailand.

The full text of the statement read: From 1 to 9 May, several Thai L-19, C-47, C-130, A-37 and F-5 aircraft violated Kampuchean airspace 41 times in the areas of the Preah Vihear temples, Anlung Veng, Koh Kong, Poipet, Keo Malai, Kamrieng, Kouk Romiet, Smat Deng and Kon Kaoh, penetrating from 10 to 14 km inside Kampuchea. The number of violations is double that of the last 9 days of April, 1982.

VODK CITES REPORTS ON USE OF TOXIC CHEMICALS

[Text] On 10 May, (Alice Thompson), an American doctor of the International Rescue Committee, stated that at present there is no problem with regard to finding evidence on the use of toxic chemical weapons but that the issue now is to identify the types of toxic chemicals which the Vietnamese are using. Dr Thompson examined affected patients in refugee camps on the Thai-Kampuchean border and the Thai-Lao frontier and met 10 Vietnamese soldiers who deserted to Thailand.

A Vietnamese soldier of the 27th battalion, 59th brigade said that he has seen toxic chemicals produced by the Soviets used by the Vietnamese troops in the western region of Kampuchea. Another Vietnamese soldier, who deserted to Thailand in February, stated that sometimes Vietnamese troops are affected by their own toxic chemicals. He pointed out that he saw 50 of his colleagues affected by toxic gas when Vietnamese troops fired toxic gas shells into Democratic Kampuchean areas only to have the wind blow the toxic gas back over them.

Another Vietnamese soldier, who deserted from an artillery unit, said that his unit has three types of 105-mm shells used for toxic chemicals. Another Vietnamese soldier stated that there are some toxic chemicals used to poison water and cause the water to foam.

(Dr Alice Thompson) indicated that at present the problem is not to find evidence of the use of toxic chemical weapons but to search for the types of toxic chemicals that the Vietnamese are using in Kampuchea.

VODK REPORTS HUANG HUA-SITTHI STATEMENTS IN PRC

BK131518 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Huang Hua, Chinese State Council member and minister of foreign affairs, on 10 May held a banquet in honor of visiting Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila.

In their speeches at this banquet, the two ministers appealed to the world community to join forces in continuing to demand and pressure Vietnam to withdraw all its troops from Kampuchea in accordance with the resolutions of the UN General Assembly, and in supporting and assisting the Kampuchean people's just struggle.

Huang Hua said: The tense situation in Southeast Asia has been aggravated by the continuous aggression against Kampuchea and the repeated armed provocations against Thailand by Vietnam. The Vietnamese authorities have consistently ignored UN resolutions and have not shown the slightest inclination to give up their aggression and withdraw their armed forces from Kampuchea.

Huang Hua said: Current developments require all justice-loving countries to adhere strictly to the principles and continue their efforts to have Vietnam obey UN resolutions and withdraw their troops from Kampuchea. This will create conditions for a fair and reasonable settlement of the Kampuchean question. At the same time, there should be continued support for the just struggle of Democratic Kampuchea against the Vietnamese aggressors, and justice-loving nations should work to promote the alliance of all patriotic forces in Kampuchea as early as possible through consultations, in order to reinforce the just struggle of the Kampuchean people against Vietnamese aggression.

In his speech, Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila stated: The Kampuchean question is the major disturbance to peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

We ardently hope that the international community will affirm their unity and work for a political solution to the question by demanding that Vietnam withdraw its troops from Kampuchea and letting the Kampuchean people decide their destiny by themselves.

Sitthi said: If we can solve the Kampuchean question satisfactorily on the basis of safeguarding the just rights of the Kampuchean people, we will be able to build peace and stability in Southeast Asia, as well as in Asia as a whole, which will benefit all the countries of these regions.

We hope that all the countries directly involved in the Kampuchean question, particularly Vietnam, will agree with the international community and work together for the peaceful and just solution of the question in accordance with the UN General Assembly resolutions and the declaration of the international conference on Kampuchea.

The Thai foreign minister stressed: If Vietnam proves inflexible, refusing to withdraw its troops from Kampuchea and trying to make the present situation a fait accompli by making its puppet regime a legal government, then the Kampuchean question cannot be solved.

BANGKOK POST CITES IENG THIRITH ON COALITION

[Text] The Khmer Rouge continues to insist on autonomy within any Kampuchean front and says the formation of a front will have "very little" effect on the internal situation in the country, according to the wife of Foreign Minister Ieng Sary.

Ieng Thirith, the English-speaking wife of the minister and herself a spokesman for the Khmer Rouge, told Danish journalists Carsten Lehrskov and Lise Shafte that there must be euqality of power within any coalition, and that full consensus must be reached before the united front takes any action. She was highly critical of Son Sann "who wants the posts of prime minister and minister of foreign affairs, and that is in fact everything."

Her comments apparently meant that the Khmer Rouge would continue resisting formation of a front in which it would hold less power than Son Sann or Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The latest composition of a front under discussion had Sihanouk as chief of state, Son Sann as prime minister and foreign minister and the Khmer Rouge president, Khieu Samphan, as a deputy premier. This now would appear unacceptable to the Khmer Rouge.

Ieng Thirith, who served in the Khmer Rouge government in Phnom Penh from 1975 up to the 1979 Vietnamese invasion, said the Khmer Rouge would never participate in a coalition unless it was allowed to keep its own organisation; unless there was a balance of power within the front, and unless action was taken only on the basis of unanimity within the coalition.

Asked what formation of a united front would mean to the internal situation inside Kampuchea, Ieng Thirith answered, "very little. Inside Kampuchea, we have already united the people."

Her comments to the two Danish journalists were the clearest in recent weeks on what the Khmer Rouge intends to do about formation of a front, now being actively pushed by the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

Iegn Thirith said the Khmer Rouge was in full control of the resistance inside Kampuchea and said that only Khmer Rouge forces were effective in fighting the Vietnamese occupation army.

"The key (to victory) is on the battlefield," she said. If we do not fight, the Vietnamese will never withdraw their army from Kampuchea. That's quite clear. No negotiations can push the Vietnamese out of our country. The solution is on the battlefield."

SITTHI, HUANG HUA SPEAK AT BEIJING BANQUET

BK140904 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 14 May 82

["News in Perspective" feature]

[Text] Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila, minister of foreign affiars, has arrived in Beijing since last Sunday for week-long visit to strengthen relations between Thailand and the PRC. Minister Sitthi and his delegation met with State Councillor and Foreign Minister Huang Hua and his Chinese Foreign Ministry team on Monday at the Great Hall of the People. Subjects discussed included the Kampuchean question, the political situation in Southeast Asia, Asia and the world. In the evening, Minister Huang Hua hosted a dinner in Minister's Sitthi's honor at the Diaouthai state guesthouse.

In his welcoming speech, Minister Huang praised Thailand and the ASEAN on their role in safeguarding peace in Southeast Asia for the betterment of the region. He blamed Vietnam for the regional tension and advocated measures for the just and reasonable settlement of the Kampuchean problem. He also pledged China's continued interest in strengthening ties with Thailand, noting with satisfaction the current level of the relationship.

In his reply, Minister Sitthi attributed the close Thai-Chinese relations mainly to the awareness of mutual interest for the improvement of the people's well being and the state of security and prosperity which came with peace and stability in the region. He singled out the Kampuchean problem as destabilizing the security situation in Southeast Asia, which made it an issue for collective concern. He pinned the hope of a peaceful settlement of the concerted efforts of the international community to bring about the implementation of the relevant UN resolution and declaration of the international [conference] on Kampuchea which, inter alia, called for the total withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and the exercise of the rights of the Kampuchean people to determine their own political future. Minister Sitthi called on Vietnam to match her words with deed in restoring the region's peace and stability, noting that even Vietnam has conceded to proposals made by Thailand and ASEAN with regard to working a just and reasonable solution to the Kampuchean problem. He repeated his stand about Thailand's willingness to meet with all involved parties in the problem at any time and any place.

While in Beijing Minister Sitthi also called on Premier Zhao Ziyang and Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping.

[Text] The government has prepared 15 topics on agricultural technology and domestic produce marketing to be discussed with the U.S. presidential agricultural mission due in Thailand on May 16, Dr Anat Aphaphirom, former agriculture and cooperatives minister, said at the weekend.

Dr Anat, the appointed special adviser to the national subcommittee for the U.S. presidential agricultural mission, said after the subcommittee's meeting that some of the topics are the relevance of research and extension to farmers' needs and conditons, and the technology package to be developed. Other major topics are the centralised authority and limited coordination of units responsible for agricultural technology and the personnel management problems of the public sector on agricultural services.

He said 65 percent of local agricultural experts who are university graduates prefer staying in the city to going upcountry, and this is one of the major causes of concern for agricultural development.

Dr Anat said the proposal on the cure of foot and mouth disease and the policy on the setting up of private slaughter-houses will be discussed with the American team.

The subcommittee, chaired by Under-Secretary of State for Agriculture Thaioeng Thamrongnawasawat, has proposed the establishment of a new agricultural institute to be called the national research and policy planning institute which will serve as the agricultural product data centre, he added.

The marketing infrastructure for agriculture, market information and analysis, and agricultural credit and subsidy will be another major topic for discussion, in which the most important part will be marketing efficiency and the plan to set up commodities futures exchange in Thailand, according to Dr Anat. The government will try to obtain cooperation from the U.S. mission on this matter, he added.

The American team, comprising six experts on agriculture led by Dr Donald Paarlberg, is scheduled to present their recommendations by May 24.

[Text] Two major groups have been fighting for dominance within the Communist Party of Thailand's Politburo, one under Wirat Angkhathawon , who is the CPT's military chief commander, and the other rival group under Damri Ruangsutham, now under arrest by government authorities. Damri, before his arrest last April, this year [as published], was responsible for the CPT's jungle bases around the country.

This is the analysis by government authorities published in a special "pink paper" entitled "The True Story of the Leadership of the CPT" distributed to the annual meeting of the Internal Security Operations Command (ISOC) yesterday.

According to the official version, Wirat's following includes a large number of ethnic Chinese reasonably widely scattered around the country, including the CPT's southern Secretary General Sin Toemlin.

"Most of the CPT's provincial secretaries-general who are ethnic Chinese around the country would be on Wirat's side. These include Chiang Rai, where Comrades Satcha and Lao Teng (zone 8 in Chiang Rai) and in Nan (comrades Kaeo and Kham). [sentence as published] In the northeast, the ethnic Chinese, too, play an important role in the CPT hierarchy. That also applies to the central core of the leadership many of whom report directly to Wirat," the paper says.

It says that Damri's faction used to include many local people in the north, including the Hmong hilltribers and other minorities. Both Wirat and Damri were competing for influence, the paper adds, through giving out personal gifts and favours to their followers, including such material incentives as watches, radio sets, tape recorders as well as cash. But people who get such material incentives must be those who are really close to them," [quotation marks as published] the official document says.

Thong Chaemsi, another of the seven-member CPT Politburo, grew in influence in recent years following the death of Mit Samanan, the party's secretary general. During 1978-79, while Mit fell seriously ill, Wirat travelled often to China and Beijing. After Laos closed the border, Wirat couldn't travel from China back to Thailand too conveniently, leaving Thong behind as the key person to issue instructions around the country to the CPT members.

"But since Thong was alone in carrying out such a major task, he inevitably suffered from certain setbacks. Critical remarks began to be heard against him. Thong apparently was less popular than Wirat and Damri in that context. Thong also spent sometime in jail and when he left the prison, could only spend 1975-76 to recover his status. That absence made it even more difficult for Thong to understand the latest developments of the whole CPT network around the country. His performance was therefore far from thorough," the official paper adds.

Prasit Taphianthong and Song Nopphakhun may be attached officially to the central leadership, "but the fact is that both are on the verge of a nervous breakdown."

Song, according to the official paper, is in a particularly bad shape. He is described as in "critical" mental condition but has been placed in charge of logistics. A successor has been named to work as a reserve person in Song's place but Song retains his authority although the real power now appears to have rested with the new person, known as "Uncle Prachum," who is responsible for budgetary allocations for the CPT elements throughout the country. He is also in charge of presenting requests for financial support from foreign sources.

Song's health has been deteriorating markedly. "He is getting closer to becoming a mentally deranged person. During meetings, he would walk in and out as frequently as he liked. He eats whenever he likes. Guards have been assigned to give him personal protection. He has lost all sense of discipline. Twenty days out of every month, Song is in that mentally troubled condition, with the rest of the days in a month spending in dull, isolated mood..," the government paper says.

Prasit is not much different in that sense compared to Song. But he is slightly better in the sense that he could get things done better than Song.

"The CPT's leadership core is therefore approaching total collapse. The key man, Mit, is dead. Wirat has been pushed to the background, leaving behind Thong, Prasit, Song, Udom Sisuwan, and Damri. Damri himself is in jail while Prasit and Song are suffering from mental problems. Udom himself isn't attached to the bases anymore. Thong's role has stepped up lately...."

The official paper says that recently a number of Central Committee members of the CPT had been assigned new, more active assignments. Pluang Wannasi, for example, who is now stuck in Beijing (having gone there before Laos sealed the border against the CPT), used to be of help to Thong in a significant way. Atsani Phonlachan, alias "Phi," was also active to a certain level for a time at various jungle bases. According to the official report, Prasit, although taken ill, has been asked to give advice by Thong regularly.

Not only is the CPT's leadership nearing a point of collapse, the conflict has erupted to an explosive point, especially their ideological rift, the official document adds. The paper cites the ideological clash between Thong and Atsani, despite the fact that the latter holds a much junior position in the party. "The conflict between the two became so serious at one point that sometimes, when Thong instructed Atsani to attend meetings, he would simply refuse to follow the orders, on the grounds that he couldn't make the preparations in time. Such conflicts were frequently reported."

The paper adds that Thong was shrewd enough, however, to resolve the problem by reducing the rift and damage to the party by setting up a "consultative group" to offer him advice. The group included senior, experienced persons in charge of communications, logistics ("Uncle Prachum") and those responsible for intelligence and security. "In other words, Thong set up his own politburo, without actually giving out positions," the paper says.

It describes as "unsolvable" the conflict between Wirat and Damri, whose conflict came to a head in 1969. "At that time, Damri was responsible for the CPT work in three provinces in the north covering Phitsanulok, Loei and Phetchabun. He distributed a set of documents to criticize Wirat and Mit who at the time was in the northeast with Mit [as published] who were accused of revisionism, lacking in the determination to build up new strongholds and bases."

The paper also says that Wirat and Mit had been in Kalasin in 1968 and in Udon Thani the following year. In his criticism, Damri unleashed some very fierce and ferocious attacks against Mit (the secretary general) and Wirat (deputy secretary general) openly. The challenge was unprecedented.

"In order words, Damri was trying to stage a coup against Mit and Wirat. But a compromise was subsequently struck. A meeting to thrash out the differences was held. In the end, in 1976, Damri conceded to the reasons given by Mit and Wirat, prompting a realignment within the party. While Mit and Wirat maintained their former posts within the party, Wirat began to build up his own faction. Damri, after that defeat, also launched his own efforts to regain his own power base.

Another smaller faction was also emerging then -- under Udom Sisuwan, whose foreign connections were building up quite rapidly at the time. Udom was supported by politicians, students and others, as well as supporters at the middle and lower levels. Although Udom's faction was rarely noticed at the time, it was beginning to gain strength, albeit quietly. "The outcome of the factional infighting within the CPT would be clear only at the fourth congress," the official paper says, adding that the bickering between the Wirat and Udom factions had also been rather fierce.

"Wirat rushed back from abroad to control the situation personally. Udom left the north to personally take care of his own faction members in the northeast, his former base before he was promoted to the Politburo. Udom was once a regional secretary general and a regional party member based in Nakhon Phanom. The fact that Udom went to the northeast suddenly at one point was very significant. It indicated that he was regaining his base, ready for a confrontation. Damri, now that he is imprisoned, is having problems in keeping his followers in line. But his followers aren't lying low in the jungle either," the paper says.

Thong, Prasit and Song don't really have problems among themselves, the paper says, adding: "The trio lives like brothers since two of them are already suffering from mental illness. They might develop some conflicts at times but they aren't of an ideological nature — "simply verbal clashes in jest." [quotation marks as published]

The official document describes Wirat as a man with a behavior "Similar to most Chinese."

"He speaks very loudly and tends to shout at times. He is far from a man with refined language and style. He doesn't speak Thai too fluently. And he is known as a stubborn man. But his strong and powerful voice does create some influence among his followers. Wirat likes to relax with his people at times. But he is fond of cleanliness and is a man of great discipline. He is known to like fish dishes in particular. Wirat is also known to be a man of tricks, by instructing his followers to take actions he doesn't want to commit publicly. He seemed to have won many hearts and minds in his public debate during meetings over major points of discussions," according to the paper.

Thong, second deputy secretary general, has the manner of a native worker. He spends his free time planting vegetables, digging soil and doing exercise. "He has a lifestyle which is very strictly disciplined, like most Vietnamese. He is like Ho Chi Minh, who, although after liberation, continued to wear sandals. Thong follows that Vietnamese style. He goes about wearing a piece of torn cloth around his head since he has a bald head. At times, he wears a beret cap woven by hand. He behaves like a worker, a warrior who prefers a simple life...." The official paper also describes Thong as a man who mixes well with the lower-ranking CPT members and guerrillas — so much so that he could crack jokes and could spend the tough life with them without problem.

Wirat, on the other hand, enjoys "high taste" while Thong, following the same inclination, has chosen not to make demands along that line. Thong speaks softly and appears cheerful with his guerrillas while Wirat is aloof and he is known to have smiled only very rarely.

Damri, with a worker's background, tends to make his feelings known too openly or even ruthlessly at times, the paper says. Damri has developed severe distrust for anybody remotely attached to Wirat.

"Damri wasn't very strict with discipline in his areas of influence. He was known to have followed his own sentiments often. Once, Damri visited Burma, but he sent his followers back to the jungle camps in Thailand while he himself went for a vacation in Beijing — until the party had to summon him back. He was criticized for such lack of discipline again," the paper says.

According to the government version, Damri was also criticized for playing nepotism. He once placed the special central company of guerrillas under his personal direction and put his own man in charge. Wirat retaliated by transferring the officer to become a deputy battalion commander in Nan.

When Damri was arrested in Suratthani last April he claimed that he was approaching government officials to negotiate with the government. "There might be some truth in Damri's claim," the government paper says. "Before the arrest, the CPT's leadership had instructed that line to be adopted. It was confirmed that Damri had travelled down south to negotiate, but the outcome of the negotiations was not disclosed. Before that Thong and Song had said in a similar vein that the proposed negotiations with the government were aimed at cooperating with the government to fight against Vietnam. It wasn't aimed at an end to the fighting within the country. That could have only meant that it would have opened up an opportunity for the CPT to expand its activity among the masses and to use the chance to mobilize the people to be against Vietnam and against the Thai Government at the same time. The CPT never mentioned that the proposed negotiations were to cooperate with the government to cease the people's war or the revolutionary war..." the official paper adds.

The Phukhat Zone was of great strategic significance to the CPT. It links the north and northeast. When the northeast is linked up with Phukhat, it also means that the route would be clear all the way from the northeast to Nan without having to go through Laos, facilitating the CPT's transportation and communications channels, according to the government paper. "On this issue, the CPT's leaders once thought of creating Phu Luang as the major stronghold since it is quite near Phukhat. Once the two points are linked up, the CPT would gain great strategic advantage," the paper says.

It explains: "Phukhat serves as a wedge which could be driven into the heart of the government's administration since Zone 10 and Zone 15 of the CPT (or Khao Kho or Phu Hin Longka) are just geographically natural extensions."

Also, as the government paper puts it, when Phukhat and Phu Luang were consolidated or could gain strength, the Phetchabun range would serve as another wedge to be driven right down Nakhon Ratchasima (Korat) from where the guerrillas could come from Khao Yai starting from Dong Mun to link up with Phetchabun range. "If the CPT's plan worked, Phetchabun would be isolated and squeezed by the CPT guerrillas if they could get hold of Khao Kho, Phu Hin Longka and Thung Sadapong to the east while the Phetchabun range to the west would serve as the two-pronged pincers," the "pink paper" says.

It also points out that the Phukhat work zone had gained importance for the CPT after their strongholds in Khao Kho and Phu Hin Longka had come under severe pressure from the government. "Phukat becomes important as a shelter area for their Zone 10 and 15 because of this state of affairs," the paper adds.

THAI FOREIGN MINISTER'S PRC VISIT CRITICIZED

OW131435 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 13 May 82

[Talk by Dao Nguyen: "Blowing the Horn for Beijing"]

[Text] As reported by AFP on 11 May, after meeting with one of the leaders of the three rebel Kampuchean groups in Beijing through Beijing's arrangements, Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila issued the so-called draft joint statement on the formation of a loose tripartite coalition government of Kampuchea. According to his plan, the out-of-date Prince Sihanouk will be head of state and Son Sann prime minister while Khieu Samphan of the Khmer Rouge will be given only a secondary post. But this government will maintain the same name of Democratic Kampuchea as on the day it was given birth by Beijing.

This was not the first time that the messieurs in Bangkok offered to assist Beijing in embellishing the bloody face of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique to deceive public opinion in an attempt to realize their dream of reversing the present situation in Kampuchea.

Thailand has leased out its land as a sanctuary for the Khmer Rouge and has lent a road for Beijing to rush supplies to the Pol Pot remnant troops. It has also reserved cars and buildings for the leaders of the Kampuchean rebel groups to meet and discuss the issue of an alliance against the Kampuchean people. However, their efforts have proved futile. And this time Beijing had to invite the Thai foreign minister to Beijing to serve as an advertiser of the so-called loose tripartite coalition government of Kampuchea to be founded by Beijing according to its plan. This work has been described by progressive people in the world as the locking up of three wild beasts in a single cage. As noted by AFP, despite his efforts, the Thai foreign minister has failed to achieve any result in this work.

Although these three wild beasts will be locked up in a single cage later, the loose tripartite coalition government will surely be unable to reverse the present situation in Kampuchea.

As far as the Bangkok rulers are concerned, from this story one can realize once again that they are eating their own meals while blowing the horn for Beijing to oppose the Kampuchean people and are running counter to the Thai people's interests.

WELL BEING OF SOLDIERS IN KAMPUCHEA DISCUSSED

BK131415 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2330 GMT 12 May 82

[Article by Thanh Vien: "For the Life of Our Combatants"]

[Summary] While in Phnom Penh, I was told that the Quyet Thang Regiment was operating in a rugged mountain area on the western border of Kampuchea, where there is no civilian population. "It took the regimental personnel a total of 6 days to negotiate the hazardous jungle trails, due to mines and booby traps planted by remnants of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary army, before reaching the nearest rear supply station for their provisions."

Upon hearing this, I thought that cadres and combatants of the Quyet Thang regiment doubtlessly faced numerous difficulties in their material and spiritual life. However, upon my arrival at the regiment's operational area I found out that, contrary to my belief, our combatants have created for themselves a fairly good life.

"A striking feature that caught my attention is that the daily diet of the regimental personnel is relatively well-balanced. In addition to the standard rations, it is supplemented with manioc, sweet potatoes, vegetables and pork produced by the regimental personnel themselves." The regimental commanders also told me that the comrades who are assigned to go on patrols, lay ambushes or track down enemy troops, or those who do heavy work, receive an extra daily allowance of 1 dong's worth of foodstuffs, and that all the regimental units see to it that their personnel have a fresh meal once every week.

All this is possible because the cadres and combatants of the Quyet Thang Regiment have gone through days of hard labor. During the first days following their arrival in this area, the regimental personnel subsisted on a very poor diet. Sometimes, a single can of pork was made into a thin soup to feed 60 men. Every day our combatants had to scrounge in the jungle for taro roots and edible leaves to eat; and this affected in no small way their combat readiness and training activities. Having grown tired of their steady diet of rice and salt, the regimental personnel were determined to produce their own food. However, this was easier said than done, for the regiment was always on the move in their operations against the enemy along more than 100 km of border, thus making all production efforts impractical. In addition, the climatic conditions in western Kampuchea are extremely harsh with scorching sun in the dry season and violent floods during the rainy season.

Despite these seemingly insurmountable difficulties, to improve the lives of our combatants, the commanding cadres of the Quyet Thang Regiment have studied ways to organize production activities for the regimental personnel during the period between the dry and rainy seasons. "No matter where they are encamped, the unit cadres and combatants, after getting approval from the administration and people of the friendly country, have made full use of all available lands and worked against time to develop production. Various battalions and companies have organized production activities right at their strongpoints to ensure combat readiness. The regiment's logistical organ has set up a full-time production unit at the rear base, whose duty is to plant various types of vegetables and food crops and raise livestock for supply to the various strongpoints."

I had the opportunity to visit the regiment's production area, which is surrounded by rocky mountains. On more than 20 hectares of land the valley and on the mountainsides a total of 50 tons of rice was produced; and now the production unit personnel are preparing to plant the next crop. Behind the mess section of the production unit, I found 10 breeding hogs which, the unit leader said, had just been bought and would be sent to the various strongpoints. I was also told that in order to buy these breeding hogs, the unit personnel had put aside part of their rations to exchange with the Kampuchean people.

During my visit, I learned that upon returning to the regiment from their home leave, many comrades had brought with them crop seeds and breeding livestock, such as chickens and hogs, from Vietnam.

Through their voluntary labor, the combatants of the Quyet Thang Regiment have produced a fairly large amount of grain and food over the years. The regimental political officer told us about the results of the regiment's production activities during the recent 10th-month crop season: [Begin recording] Despite harsh weather conditions, our combatants have produced a total of 3 tons of mung beans and 30 tons of vegetables and raised more than 200 chicken and ducks and 64 hogs, as well as other domestic animals." [end recording]

AGRICULTURE MINISTRY DIRECTIVE ON 1982 PLAN

[Text] The Ministry of Agriculture recently issued a directive on enhancing leadership in order to ensure a successful implementation of the 1982 agricultural plan.

The directive points out the following urgent tasks to be carried out satisfactorily by localities, cooperatives, production collectives and peasants throughout the country in order to achieve good results in the 1981-82 winter-spring crop and to make the 1982 agricultural plan a success:

1. In the north, is is necessary to satisfactorily direct the implementation of the tasks of caring for, protecting, detecting and quickly eradicating insects and blights; protecting winter-spring rice from drought; and making good preparations for and ensuring a successful rice harvest with high output and yield. In the south, we must, on the one hand, provide leadership for a quick and effective harvest of the 5th-month spring rice crop while, on the other hand, we need to pay specific attention to providing guidance for the sowing of summer-fall rice in order to ensure the fulfillment or overfulfillment of the planned targets for acreage in accordance with the sowing schedule. On the basis of the estimated results of the 5th-month spring rice crop, localities throughout the country must take the initiative in working out a plan for sowing the 10th-month crop with a high determination to ensure fulfillment or overfulfillment of plans for the production of rice and subsidiary food crops.

2. We must, on the one hand, provide guidance on ensuring the implementation of the plans for the production of subsidiary food and industrial crops while, on the other hand, we need to continue to step up the planting of all crops on schedules -- including summer-fall rice, subsidiary food crops and industrial crops -- especially in those provinces in the Central Highlands, the coastal area of central Vietnam, the eastern Nam Bo region, the northern midland and mountainous regions, and in the former fourth region. In addition, emphasis must be placed on carrying out intensive cultivation and satisfactorily organizing harvesting and processing activities in order to ensure the fulfillment of planned targets for output and yields of subsidiary food crops and industrial crops of all sorts. Localities must pay attention to devising positive measures in order to resolve the circulation and consumption of subsidiary food crops satisfactorily.

3. In animal husbandry, we must pay specific attention to caring for, protecting and increasing the draft cattle population and guiding cooperatives in balancing their draft force capabilities. This can be accomplished by taking positive measures to increase the number of draft animals and by tackling other problems regarding the draft force. We must step up repair work and satisfactorily resolve the supply of gasoline and oil so that we can mobilize our existing tractor force to the greatest extent for the task of plowing.

We must quickly stamp out pockets of epizootic infection and provide close guidance for those vaccination drives to be launched in the spring and autumn seasons. Emphasis must be placed on increasing the number of female animals and ensuring the fulfillment of requirements for animal husbandry development. We must actively and satisfactorily resolve the feed problem for the breeding animal population, especially for the key herbs needed by breeding animals. State-run animal husbandry establishments must rely on animal feed obtained from the state or from self-support in order to improve animal husbandry qualitatively. We should not increase the scale on which various animal husbandry establishments are being operated unless we are able to ensure a sufficient supply of animal feed.

4. In accordance with their functions and responsibilities, all subordinate organs of the Ministry of Agriculture must step up their efforts to control, encourage and provide active guidance and assistance to various localities and establishments so they can ensure the satisfactory implementation of their production plans. Specific attention must be paid to satisfactorily resolving the supply of fertilizer, insecticides, sprayers, veterinary medicine, vaccination instruments and spare parts for the repair of tractors and so forth to various localities and establishments. The above-mentioned organs must also join with other related sectors in recommending active measures to tackle problems related to the supply of gasoline, oil, charcoal and other necessary materials for production purposes quickly.

PHAM VAN DONG ADDRESSES FORESTRY CONFERENCE

BK130940 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 15 Apr 82, pp 1, 4

[Text] The forestry sector recently held a conference in Hanoi to discuss its developmental guidelines for 1981-85 and for the 1980's, and to discuss specifically the tasks of planting trees, afforesting land and managing and protecting forests in accordance with the fifth party congress resolutions.

Comrade Pham Van Dong, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers attended and addressed the conference.

The conferees asserted: In the past 6 years from 1976 through 1981, in the light of the fourth party congress resolutions, the cadres and workers of the entire forestry sector have strived to overcome difficulties — its own in particular, and of the country in general — and have scored considerable achievements in the fields of production and of building material and technical bases and transforming production relations. Many localities and primary production units have applied creatively the directives and resolutions of the party and state, have developed and upheld the spirit of "relying mainly on themselves," and have begun to implement successfully the production method of combining agriculture with forestry and the guideline for "cooperation between the state and the people." They have fulfilled and overfulfilled the plans for planting trees, afforesting land, managing and protecting forests, and exploiting, processing and delivering products to the state.

The conferees pointed out and criticized sternly shortcomings in the determination of production guidelines and in the tasks of managing, organizing and guiding the implementation of these guidelines. They agreed unanimously: The present and urgent problem is that forests have been are are being seriously damaged and that both the quality and quantity of forest resources have decreased rapidly. This situation has directly affected not only our capability of meeting the ever-increasing requirements for all kinds of forest products of the national economy, but has also changed the living environment profoundly. Together with all other sectors, local authorities and primary installations, the forestry sector must formulate specific policies and take positive measures to stop this serious destruction of forests immediately.

If we want to develop our forestry steadily and comprehensively, we should reorganize production quickly in each given area -- especially in districts -- and improve our capital survey to control forests and forest land firmly. On this basis, we will zone off areas and establish plans specifically for production, and build the major areas of forestry business in the direction of combining forestry with agriculture and industry in a rational forestry-agricultural-industrial or agro-forestry-industrial structure, implementing the guideline: "The state and the people work together," and "the central and local authorities work together." We must strengthen the sector's managerial task, change anew its planning task and establish order and high discipline in production business and management. We should settle well the relations of management by sectors in combination with management by localities and territorial divisions. We must use, economically and effectively, our material and technical bases and capital, increase our labor productivity, reduce production costs, quickly create major sources of commodities and concentrate on serving well the requirements of domestic consumption and export.

In order to create a vigorous and profound change in forestry production, we should intensify propaganda and educational activities among the people of all strata to make them understand the importance and the many-sided role of the tree-planting and afforesting tasks and of the management and protection of forests. Since forests and forest land are the people's valuable assets, all sectors, authorities at all echelons, the people of all strata and their organizations are dutybound to manage and protect them. If we want to implement successfully the sector's strategic objective of security concentrated, stable, lasting and highly productive forest assets, we should organize a broad, deeply rooted, continuous and seething socialist labor emulation movement from the central down to grassroots levels in order to carry out well the three revolutions in forestry which must be manifested specifically through the following areas:

We should by all means manage, protect and exploit effectively the existing forests, and accelerate afforestation in the direction of intensive and specialized cultivation in order to ensure the steady supply of raw materials to industry, fulfill the requirements of construction and export, and cover bare hills and coastal beaches with greenery.

We should implement the method of combined agro-forestry production to increase the source of grain and food products for society, enrich the fertility of soil and improve the environment.

On the basis of protecting and developing forest assets well, we should exploit and use forest resources rationally by improving processing and using timber economically, considering it a positive measure to protect forests.

We should vigorously accelerate the allocation of land and forests to districts for managerial control and to cooperatives and families for business operation purposes in accordance with the programs, plans and state law. We should expand the system of product contracts with workers in state-run units, and with cooperatives and families.

We should effectively use forest conservation funds to rebuild the forest assets.

At the conference, the Forestry Ministry and trade union launched an emulation movement for building and developing forest assets, and for overfulfilling the 1982 State Plan and the 5-Year 1981-85 Plan.

The representatives of 52 provinces and units in the sector signed an emulation pledge to overfulfill the 1982 State Plan.

Addressing the conference, Chairman Pham Van Dong pointed to the interest which the party Central Committee and the Council of Ministers have given to forestry and the tasks of planting trees, afforesting land and managing and protecting forests and forestry and their organic relationship with and multifaceted effect on soil, water, weather, vegetation, animals, production and the living environment in the immediate and distant future. He analyzed the catastrophe and serious consequences of continuing forest destruction and the unpredictable stripping of hillsides. He indicated clearly: Forests and land are linked, closely interrelated and interdependent. Only by having forests do we have water. Only by maintaining forests do we preserve water and achieve water conservancy, aquatic products and hydroelectricity to support production and daily life. It is because of the deep significance that our forefathers referred to "forests as gold." We must make everyone, old and young, including elementary school students, clearly realize and act upon what our forefathers said about forests. In effect, forests are even more precious than gold.

He continued: Our forests abound in fauna and flora. In a given area, if we know how to undertake forestry business generally, we will bring about higher economic results than those obtained merely from agricultural production. The forestry sector can and should develop itself without relying merely on the state investment. On the basis of developing forestry we will expand our exports in order to import necessary equipment items for the sector.

The chairman stressed: Undertaking the combined agro-forestry business is an important guideline and a suitable production method for us. We should apply creatively the party resolutions on forestry development. In this connection, many good models have appeared in localities such as: Nguyen Xa village in Dong Hung District (Thai Binh), Huu Khanh village in Loc Binh District (Lang Son), Lac Lam village in Don Duong District (Lam Dong), Tien Phong cooperative in Huong Huu village, Phu Loc District (Binh Tri Thien), Phuc Xen cooperative in Quang Hoa District (Cao Bang), Kim Son cooperative in Ba Vi District (Hanoi), Chi Tac cooperative in Huyen Son village, Luc Nam District (Ha Bac) and Vo Nhai District (Bac Thai) and Hoanh Bo District (Quang Ninh).

The above models have acquired valuable experience in launching popular movements to plant trees, build orchards and forests and manage and protect forests; and in organizing the combined agro-forestry production. Forests plants by collectives and plantations built by families have had some effect on regulating weather, increasing the water supply, reducing the effects of flooding and drought, and alleviating the harshness of the northeastern wind. They have contributed to increaseing the yields of agricultural crops, developing sectors and jobs, and improving the people's living conditions. The Forestry Ministry should recapitulate and disseminate these fruitful and valuable experiences to all localities so that they can be learned and acted upon.

Chairman Dong continued: The forestry sector must promptly complete its plan for combining forestry with agriculture and industry in order to exploit and widely use the wealth of forest resources. On the basis of long term planning (15-20 years) we should establish the five-year and annual plans for forestry development on the basis of long term planning (15-20 years). There must be a system of stations, farms and schools for experimental and practical work and for the basic and advanced training of cadres, since this is a scientific and technical problem. We should study the organization of work-study schools for the forestry sector. We must properly organize the state management system and the business networks of the state and cooperatives. Depending on the characteristics of each region, we will adopt a suitable form of production and business organization to obtain high economic results. No matter what is to be done with the state's profits, we should organize state-run installations and these installations must perform their functions and roles in an exemplary manner. Nevertheless, generally speaking, afforestation and the management and protection of forests is an undertaking of the people, cooperatives and localities.

Land, forests and mountains are the property of all the people and they fall under the state's management. The state entrusts the collectives and individuals with the tasks of afforestation and forest management and preservation in accordance with programs and plans, in order to turn out more products for society and bring about common benefits for all the people.

All citizens are dutybound to participate in afforestation, the management and protection of forests, and production in accordance with the combined agro-forestry method. The state will encourage all collectives and individuals to work for this important undertaking and it must ensure that they can benefit from their efforts according to the principle of planters reaping their own crops. The Forestry Ministry should promptly study and submit to the Council of Ministers its incentive policies for afforestation and the management and protection of forests into a revolutionary movement of the masses. All localities should establish policies and regulations to stimulate the development of forestry and to mete out punishment severely and give rewards fairly. These policies and regulations must be approved by the local people's council and turned into local laws.

The chairman stressed the importance of forestry development and its relationship with the settlement of nomads, and indicated: We must link the settlement of nomads to the building of forests and the development of agro-forestry production in the mountainous areas.

The forestry sector must organize and guide the emulation movement well and must surge forward vigorously in the struggle to overfulfill the 1982 State Plan, marking a new turning point in the sector's afforestation and management and protection of forests and serving as a firm base for overfulfilling the state plans in the subsequent years. The entire sector must firmly grasp and satisfactorily implement the guidelines "of using forest products to develop forests," and of ensuring "cooperation between the central and local governments and between the state and the people," in order to develop to the highest extent possible the great capability and integrated strength of all the people, echelons and sectors at both the central and local levels in the building and development of forestry in our country. We must gradually build and rationally use 15 million hectares of forest land, contributing to ever beautifying and enriching Socialist Vietnam.

NHAN DAN ON PRODUCT DELIVERY AND DISTRIBUTION

[NHAN DAN 12 May editorial: "Deliver and Distribute Products According to Plans"]

[Text] All of the state-run factories' products -- whether they are industrial, agricultural, forestry or marine products -- are produced with the labor, materials and capital of the state. They are socialist assets and fall under the central government authority of distribution or under the state-delegated management authority of local governments.

All state-run factories as well as the trade and material supply organizations are dutybound to increase quickly the quantity of products and goods, to deliver them in prescribed quantities to the state, and to organize their distribution and circulation in accordance with the state plans.

At a time when the state-owned economic forces are still weak and the state capacity for collecting materials, grain, food products and consumer goods is still limited, the state-run factories are all the more compelled to accelerate production vigorously and to ensure that their products can be delivered in prescribed quantities to the state according to plans and in accordance with the state policy of distribution.

The sole purpose of collecting more products from the state-run factories and those localities charged with delivering products to the central government according to plans is to fulfill the vital requirements for production and export, and to contribute to the livelihood of the people and armed forces throughout the country.

The sources of products and commodities, once concentrated in state hands, constitute the primary material strength of the socialist administration, a tool to intensify the leading role of the state-run economy and a decisive condition for the state to master planning and market control and to stabilize production, prices and the people's livelihood.

The consumption -- if well organized and planned -- of the factories' products will also enable factories to achieve their product values quickly, creating conditions for them to develop adequately their independence in production and business and their financial autonomy.

Despite difficulties over the past few months, with the new and correctly oriented method of working, many state-run production installations have fulfilled their production and delivery tasks. However, there are still some factories which have failed to deliver sufficient products to their consumer agencies.

Despite prohibitive decisions, some factories have continued to withhold some of their products for their own use or for barter. They have not distributed products in accordance with the state management system. As a result of failing to correctly comply with the accounting system, some installations have managed their production expenses loosely, causing high production costs and making the delivery and consumption of products difficult.

Some units dealing in trade and material supply operations have also misappropriated some commodities for internal distribution. These malpractices have contributed to exacerbating imbalances in the economy, eroding the state assets and harming the interests of the entire society.

It is a major task of the 1982 State Plan to concentrate all the sources of production from the state-owned economic and production installations into the state commodity funds.

Such negative phenomena as violations of contracts for the delivery and distribution of state products must be overcome promptly. Strict management of the consumption of products is one of the important supplementary factors in implementing Decision No 25-CP. Although the state takes every measure to stimulate production through its policy on the distribution of profits, it does not allow factories to withhold products for their own use.

Products from state-owned factories — no matter what the source of materials — still belong to the state commodity funds. Factories cannot use or barter them independently.

The system of economic contracts must be implemented strictly, combining production plans with product consumption plans. Products turned out for consumption must meet quality standards, have rational production costs and be sold at the state-prescribed prices.

With regard to products turned out under secondary production plans which do not fall under the unified state control system, if they are not accepted by the state distribution and circulation agencies, the factories will then be authorized to organize their consumption and deliver all the revenues therefrom to the state budget in accordance with the current policies.

In case they need to exchange some of their products for production materials, factories must include these requirements in their plans before submitting them to higher echelons for approval. If these requirements are other than expected, they must be reported truthfully and checked over by higher authorities.

While changing the method of doing business in factories, all trade and material supply agencies must initiate action to firmly control all sources of commodities and to collect and purchase all products turned out by factories.

Management agencies must intensify the tasks of closely leading, controlling and supervising production and consumption; and they must implement accounting, planning, punishment and reward systems, since this will play an active role in urging primary production installations to fulfill the state plan.

The delivery and distribution of products according to plans constitute the most important criteria for correctly determining the settlement of relations among the three interests. This is also a gauge for measuring the revolutionary qualities of management cadres and fundamental base on which to evaluate the levels reached by sectors and echelons in implementing the state plan and economic laws.

U.S. FARM, FISHERY QUOTA PLAN CAUSES TRADE FLAP

Abe Briefs Suzuki

OW151219 Tokyo KYODO in English 0942 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 15 KYODO — Shintaro Abe, minister of international trade and industry, Saturday urged Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki to include farm products in a new market liberalization program, government sources said.

Abe made the suggestion when reporting to Suzuki upon his return from a two-day quadrilateral trade conference at Chateau d'Escrimont on the suburbs of Paris. The sources quoted Abe as saying the program would not be well received by the United States and European countries unless farm products were included. Suzuki did not say, however, whether farm products would be part of the package, they said.

Abe told reporters later that U.S. trade representative William Brock, who represented the United States at the Chateau d'Escrimont meeting, handed a letter to him Wednesday calling for the opening of the market to imports of farm products, a cut in farm product tariffs and the simplification of import formalities for such products. The minister said the letter only repeated previous American requests and contained nothing new.

However, Ministry of International Trade and Industry sources said Brock asked in the letter for the immediate liberalization of imports of some farm products now on the import quota list.

Brock Letter Draws Query

OW151015 Tokyo KYODO in English 0922 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 15, KYODO — Japan's agriculture authorities Saturday asked Washington whether Tuesday's demand by U.S. trade representative William Brock for a complete liberalization of the 22 farm and fishery products imports really represents the position of the U.S. Government as a whole.

The Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry sought the U.S. Government's confirmation through the Japanese Foreign Ministry, ministry sources said.

The sources said Brock made the demand in a letter which he delivered to Japan's Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi Tuesday in Paris.

Brock's demand is inconsistent with the stand taken by the U.S. side in informal talks May 5 in Geneva with the Japanese representatives on Japan's residual curbs on the import of farm and fishery products, according to the sources. At the Geneva meeting, the American side sought a considerable raise in the import ceiling on the quota products, and a reduction in the tariffs on 39 farm and fishery products, in exchange for the softening of its demand for a complete liberalization of imports of such products, according to the sources.

Japan's Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry, somewhat satisfied with the softened American stand, has since been preparing to draw up a new market-opening program, the sources said.

However, according to the sources, the Brock letter sought early full liberalization of imports of five to six farm products of American concern, a cut in the tariffs on farm products and the simplification of the import formalities involved in such products, on the assumption that the curbs on the imports of the remaining farm and fishery products would all be lifted in the future.

Brock's new demand could destroy the "thawing" mood between the two countries, the sources said.

The sources quoted the Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry and the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's farm bloc as saying that they would refuse further consultations with the United States on the proposed opening of the market wider to farm and fishery products imports as long as the U.S. seeks complete liberalization of the imports of the 22 farm and fishery products.

Talks Stopped in Protest

[Text] Tokyo, May 15, KYODO -- The Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry, angered at U.S. Trade Representative William Brock's new demand for the liberalization of farm and fishery products imports, Saturday decided to refuse to talk with the United States on market-opening measures unless Brock withdraws the demand, ministry sources said.

Brock made the demand in a letter which he handed to Japan's Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi in Paris Tuesday.

A senior official of the Foreign Ministry said officially the Brock letter is only a repetition of earlier U.S. requests. However, the official indicated his dissatisfaction with Brock's lack of consideration for the delicate situation in Japan over further measures to opening the market for farm products.

New U.S. Proposal

[Text] Tokyo, May 17, KYODO -- Japan Monday swiftly responded to a U.S. proposal for agricultural negotiations and indicated the talks might begin this week as the United States has requested.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa told reporters: "We want to fix the date for our (bilateral) consultations within today if possible."

Miyazawa made the statement after the United States proposed that the two governments hold talks on wider access to the Japanese market by U.S. farm and fishery products as early as possible.

Japanese and U.S. negotiators met in Geneva informally May 5 and agreed to hold formal negotiations as soon as possible. The Japanese Government intended to propose that the talks be held late this week or early [illegible]t week. But the government efforts met difficulties last week when U.S. Trad[illegible] Re[illegible]sentative Bill Brock demanded Japan's complete liberalization of 22 farm and fishery products still under import restrictions. Officials at the Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry and the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party sharply reacted to Brock's demand and said they would refuse the bilateral negotiations on farm products unless Brock rescinds the demand.

The U.S. proposal for holding the farm talks was contained in a letter Monday from U.S. Ambassador to Tokyo Mike Mansfield addressed to Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, Japan officials said.

Briefed on the proposal by Foreign Ministry officials, Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki directed the bilateral negotiations be held and the compilation of the second package of market opening measures, according to the officials.

The Foreign Ministry officials are arranging with officials of the Argicultural, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry the schedule of the negotiations, which should lay the ground for Tokyo's second market-opening package.

The new proposal by the United States was made at a time when the Foreign Ministry was seeking explanations on last week's demand by Brock.

Hiromu Fukada, director general of the Foreign Ministry's Economic Affairs Bureau, said that Mansfield's letter did not mention Brock's demand.

In the Geneva talks, the American team sought a considerable increase in the ceiling on imports and reduction in the tariffs on 39 farm and fishery products, in exchange for the softening of its calls for a total liberalization of imports of such products.

Government Formulating Answer

[Text] Tokyo, May 14, KYODO -- The government's work on a second package of measures to open Japan's market wider to foreign products will enter a crucial phase this weekend as it redoubles its efforts to reduce domestic opposition to a further liberalization of agricultural imports, informed sources said Friday.

Whether the government can work out a plan convincing enough for the United States and Western European nations hinges on the extent of concessions it is striving to win from Japanese farmers' organizations and lawmakers of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party, who depend on the vote of the farming population, they said.

The importance of farm import liberalization was brought home afresh to the Japanese Government by demands voiced by American and Western European delegates, who attended two international meetings held in Paris this week.

The U.S. and Western European delegates in their meetings with Japanese delegates emphasized the need to have agricultural imports included in Tokyo's second package, the sources said.

The two international conferences were a ministerial session of the organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) on Monday and Tuesday, and trade talks between Japan, the U.S., Canada and the European Community (EC) Commission at the Chateau d'Escrimont Wednesday and Thursday.

Following working-level talks held in Geneva on May 5 by Japan and the U.S. to discuss the liberalization of agricultural imports, Japan's Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Minister made a positive approach to farmers' organizations and LDP legislators in a bid to mitigate their objections to a further decontrol of farm imports.

The ministry's effort centers on the expansion of import quotas for agricultural and fishery products still subject to "residual import restrictions" excepting beef and citrus fruit, reduction of tariff rates and improvement of inspection procedures for imported goods, the sources said.

However, they said, even the ministry is not sure how much ground Japan should give to allay Washington's discontent and induce it to withdraw its still demand for complete liberalization of Japan's agricultural imports.

This has made it all the more difficult for the ministry to obtain concessions from opponents. As a result, the date of Japan-U.S. talks on agricultural trade, agreed upon in Geneva on May 5, remains to be fixed, the sources said.

The situation has been further complicated by the LDP's sudden decision to send acting Secretary-General Noboru Takeshita to the U.S. on Saturday on a pulse-taking mission regarding agricultural trade, they said.

Concerning market-opening measures for productions other than farm products, they said, proposals advanced by International Trade and Industry Minister Shintaro Abe at Chateau d'Escrimont drew a favorable response from U.S. Trade Representative William Brock and EC Commission Vice President Wilhelm Haferkamp.

Therefore, Tokyo's effort to formulate the second package focuses on how to cope with Washington's strong demand for liberalization of agricultural imports, including expansion of tobacco imports, the sources said.

DPRK RED CROSS REPORTS CAPTURE OF FISHERMEN

OW160642 Tokyo KYODO in English 0554 GMT 16 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 16, KYODO -- Twenty-five fishermen of two Japanese trawlers captured last Tuesday by a North Korean warship on the Yellow Sea for allegedly violating North Korea's military water frontier are all in good physical condition, it was learned Sunday.

This was made known in a report from North Korea's Red Cross Society to Japan's Red Cross Society. The North Korean side thus has officially confirmed the seizure of the two Japanese ships for the first time.

At around 9:40 a.m. May 11, the 114-ton trawler No. 85 Kyofukumaru of a fishery company in Fukuoka, Kyushu with 12 men aboard was captured by the North Korean vessel on the Yellow Sea.

Its fellow ship, the 114-ton No. 83 Kyofukumaru with 13 men on board became missing after sending a report that it would accompany the No. 85 Kyofukumaru, according to the maritime safety office at Fukuoka.

The two trawlers left Hakata port on February 13 and were scheduled to return to the port around May 20, maritime safety officials reported.

Two other ships of the same fishery company were captured by North Korea on May 5 last year for allegedly intruding into North Korean territorial waters, but were freed five days later.

Around the Yellow Sea, similar trawlers from Fukuoka were captured on April 25, but were set free about 17 hours later.

NODONG SINMUN SAYS WICKHAM BEHIND CHON'S POWER

SK170850 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0825 GMT 17 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 17 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN May 16 carried an article headlined "U.S. Imperialism Cannot Evade Responsibility for Framing Up Military Fascist Regime in South Korea."

Recalling that traitor Chon Tu-hwan seized the military power of South Korea by staging the "army purge coup" on December 12, 1979 under the command and manipulation of Commander of the U.S. Forces Wickham, the article says:

According to materials, traitor Chon Tu-hwan was marked as a useful agent of the U.S. CIA early in the 1950's.

The ferocity shown by traitor Chon Tu-hwan in keeping the fascist rule of South Korea, his brutality shown in the Southeast Asian war and bis quality as a faithful dog which he revealed by crying that "U.S. aid is the life-line of South Korea" and he "will share destiny with the Stars and Stripes" during the intelligence training he underwent twice in the United States attracted the attention of the U.S. bosses who had been looking for a "stooge in hiding."

He was even "praised" by his U.S. masters for "faithfully guarding the safety" of U.S. Presidents Eisenhower and Ford during their South Korean tour in 1960 and 1974.

This was for this reason that the bosses of the U.S. imperialists, when the Pak Chong-hui puppet regime was in crisis, chose traitor Chon Tu-hwan as its successor in South Korea. It was Wickham who was assigned to the task to train traitor Chon Tu-hwan finally as a new puppet in South Korea. Wickham, directed by the bosses of the U.S. imperialists, openly encouraged their new stooge the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique to the seizure of power when the former dictator met his tragic end.

Shortly after the "October incident" Wickham had a confab with the fascist clique to "tide over the situation" and installed him as "head of the joint investigation headquarters of the martial law command" to "lawfully" guarantee him conditions to list and remove political rivals.

On this Wickham himself told foreign reporters that it was instructions of the U.S. military and administration to back Chon Tu-hwan. This is how the first operation of the U.S. CIA was carried out through Wickham.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan seized the military power through the "army purge coup," but he lacked strength yet to bar the vigorous advance of the people of all strata towards democracy and reunification and succeed in "power" robbery. It was again the United States that assisted him and it was Wickham who directly buttressed him with "strength."

The usurpation of "power" which traitor Chon Tu-hwan committed, estranging himself from the people, after submerging the whole land of South Korea beneath the sea of blood, the murderous trial of Kim Tae-chung, the fabrication of a "new constitution" of "Yusin" style through a forcible "referendum," the invention of the "legislative council" and all sorts of evil laws -- all these were done also under U.S. manipulation.

After framing up the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist "regime," the U.S. imperialists have instigated him to fascism, division and war in an attempt to perpetuate their occupationist policy and colonial domination over South Korea. But they will taste a bitter cup.

VRPR DEMANDS U.S. FORCES WITHDRAWAL FROM SOUTH

[Feature program "Today's Feature" — special article [nonsol] by station commentator (Kim Mun-song): "U.S. Troops Should Leave South Korea Without Delay"]

[Excerpts] Hello, everybody: In recent days, the United States has repeatedly made provocative remarks reaffirming its freeze of a withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea. Not long ago, Wickham, commander of U.S. Armed Forces in South Korea, in a meeting with the members of South Korean National Assembly's Defense Committee, said that the U.S. administration's policy of not withdrawing U.S. troops from South Korea would emerge in a solid form and that various equipment of the U.S. troops stationed in South Korea would be strengthened with modern ones.

It is an open challenge to public opinion at home and abroad and an intolerable criminal act running counter to the trend of the present times that the Reagan administration, which had already revoked a pledge of withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea, repeatedly reaffirmed its freeze of the withdrawal plan .

This clearly shows that the Reagan administration is no different from previous U.S. administrations as far as U.S. policy toward South Kora is concerned. They have pursued a split of the Korean Peninsula and a policy of war, and the Reagan administration is a more aggressive and bellicose regime than any other previous regime.

If we are to achieve peace and peaceful reunification of our country, we should first of all put an end to the forcible occupation of our country by the U.S. troops stationed in South Korea -- obstacles to peace and peaceful reunification.

The situation in our country, which is being strained daily, shows clearly that the continuation of the U.S. policy of forcible occupation of our country by its troops contains the danger of repeating fratricide. This is why people at home and abroad who are yearning for peace and peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula so strongly demand that U.S. troops withdraw from South Korea. U.S. troops have no reason or justification to remain in South Korea. No matter what means or methods they may try to use, the United States cannot justify its troops remaining in South Korea. None of our people want U.S. troops in South Korea and our people have consistently struggled for their withdrawal from this land ever since U.S. troops occupied it.

As has justly been noted in a statement issued on 15 April by the Korean Christian Action Organization, the recent arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan and the incident of dissemination of anti-U.S. leaflets can be said to be a concrete expression of such an anti-U.S. struggle. The fact that anti-U.S. slogans such as "Yankee, Go Home" were shouted many times in the numerous antigovernment struggles staged in the period from the heroic Kwangju resistence struggle until last March is widely known to the world.

The only duty facing the U.S. troops stationed in South Korea is to leave South Korea. Reagan has repeatedly reaffirmed a freeze on the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea which is, under the pretext of military balance or peace hints, in fact, an attempt at the permanent stationing of U.S. troops in South Korea. This is a provocation of public opinion at home and abroad which is against U.S. occupation of South Korea and which demands withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea, showing again their aggressive and bellicose nature.

It is none other than the U.S. troops in South Korea and the Reagan administration which are building up a military force on the Korean Peninsula and disturbing peace on the Korean Peninsula. The only thing that the Reagan administration has done behind the curtain of peace is create a military buildup and preparations for a nuclear war against the North.

They cover up their military buildup and their true intention to invade the North by shouting about the nonexistent North's military buildup and its southward invasion. They fabricated the slander that it is not them but the North which is preparing a war. This is foolish political slander which can be committed only by such war merchants as Reagan and Wickham.

As long as U.S. troops remain in this land, our people cannot enjoy stability even for a moment nor can we achieve peace and peaceful reunification of the nation. Our people will rise and drive out the U.S. troops in united strength, if they do not leave of their own accord. As has been proven by reality and shown by historical experience, aggressors never leave of their own accord. This is also a lesson taught us by the 37 years of U.S. occupation of South Korea.

Our people should never have any illusions about the U.S. troops and, by awakening to the historical truth that they should explore their own fate by themselves, continue to wage a more vigorous anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle for national salvation in order to bring about social democracy and independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland.

NAVY WARNING OF NORTHERN INVASION DENOUNCED

[Text] In the navy commanders meeting held today, Yi Un-su, chief of naval operations, urged major navy commanders to strengthen their vigilance and preparations for action, babbling about the nonexistent southward invasion by the North.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring's babbling about the nonexistent southward invasion is aimed at weakening the anti-U.S. and antigovernment fighting spirit which is growing daily among the masses by justifying criminal preparations for the northward invasion and misleading public opinion. The fact that the Chon Tu-hwan ring clamored about strengthening vigilance and preparations for actions shows that its maneuvers by the Chon Tu-hwan ring, the situation on the Korean Peninsula is on the brink of war. Every fact shows that if we leave the Chon Tu-hwan ring intact, we cannot maintain peace and prevent war on the Korean Peninsula.

VRPR: SOUTH KOREAN SOLDIERS SHOOT CIVILIANS

[Text] At a restaurant, soldiers of the South Korean Army shot the restaurant owner and a female employee of a tea room to death and seriously wounded another civilian.

The six soldiers, including a battalion and a company commander of a certain army unit, were drinking liquor with the female employee of the tea room at the Kwangpo Restaurant, located at Sum-ri Ammyon-Up in Sosan County, South Chungchong Province, at around 1900 hours on 13 May. Angry at the employee of the tea room who was trying to leave the place, Corporal (Choe Myong-chin) shot with his rifle Yim Yong-cha, employee of the Kwangpo Tea Room, and Kim Yong-chae, owner of the Kwangpo Restaurant, to death and seriously wounded Kim Kwagg-pyo, a resident.

People are shocked at the incident which occurred at the time the Uiryong shooting spree was giving rise to strong criticism in society. The consecutive shooting incidents are the natural outcome of the fascist Chong Tu-hwan tyrannical rule. The Chon Tu-hwan ring should take responsibility for the Uiryong shooting spree and this shooting incident and immediately step down from power.

VRPR COMMENTS ON S. KOREAN LOAN SCANDAL

SK151247 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolution Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 14 May 82

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] As was widely reported, on the night of 11 May, the supreme public procurator's office announced the so-called results of the investigation on the curb loan scandal of Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha.

According to the announcement, the couple drew promissary notes for 262.4 billion won and cashed them in the private loans market. They obtained huge loans from banks on the pretext of funds for business use by giving the promissary notes as security and turned the loans to private use.

Mobilizing some 170 billion won from three city banks, including 50 billion won from the Cho-Heong Bank, five short-term financing companies and private lenders. They handed over 15.7 billion won to the Ilssin Steel Company, 16.9 billion won to the Kyongyong Construction Company, 20 billion won to the Life Housing Construction Company and 5 billion won to the Samik Housing Company. They used a total of 139.9 billion won -- including 59.9 billion won of interest gained from discount commissions for notes amounting to 262.4 billion won they received from various firms, 8.7 billion won expenses for inducing deposits, 37.7 billion won as compensation for losses in the stock market, 1.5 billion won as interest on foreign currencies and 32.1 billion won for purchasing precious metals and other purposes. They hid $400,000 and 8 million Japanese yen in foreign exchange.

The incident of the fraudulent notes of Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha was an unprecedented fraudulent practice and illegal handling of foreign exchange. This shows that the Chon Tu-hwan clique's corruption and injustice are increasing and becoming more cunning with each passing day, although it is loudly talking about elimination of corruption and injustice, realization of the just society and so forth.

As the incident has become a political issue and aroused social condemnation, traitor Chon Tu-hwan made prosecutors announce the results of the investigation and rave that no government officials were involved in this case -- either arranging loans for them or accomodating transactions of notes -- and that rumors about political funds are false.

This is indeed a trick. The incident of the fraudulent notes of Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha is a replica of the Pak Yong-pok incident committed by former dictator Pak Chong-hui.

If there were no support by the Chon Tu-hwan clique, the president of a nameless company together with his wife could neither extend private loans, drawing promissary notes amounting to more than 262 billion won for about a year, nor could he hide $400,000 and 8,000,000 Japanese yen to use for escaping overseas.

Moreover, some tens of billions of won at a time were brought into and taken away from the Cho-Heong Bank and the industrial bank. Nevertheless, traitor Chon Tu-hwan insists on his ignorance of the case. However, no one will believe his utterance.

If this incident has nothing to do with the rascal, why is traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who claims to be clean and pure while loudly talking about the elimination of corruption and injustice, attempting to conceal the truth of the incident and hushing up the case? The incident of fraudulent notes of Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha and the hiding of foreign exchange is another corrupt practice perpetrated under the approveal of Chon Tu-hwan and arranged by Yi Kyu-kwan, president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corporation, who is a brother-in-law of the couple, and with the help of the energy-resources minister.

Thus, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has attempted to mislead people, raving that the incident occured due to a disorderly financial circulation system. He produced a drama of making the presidents of the Cho-Heong Bank and the industrial bank resign from their posts, calling them to account, and raved that he would release emergency funds amounting to 3 billion won to help enterprises overcome financial difficulties. All this is aimed at appeasing public opinion.

However, he can neither deceive anyone with such a trick nor conceal the truth. The incident of fraudulent notes clearly shows that traitor Chon Tu-hwan is the ringleader of corruption and injustice. As long as traitor Chon Tu-hwan exists, constantly involved in, while loudly talking about, the elimination of corruption, we cannot remove corruption and injustice. Therefore, we should drive from power the Chon Tu-hwan clique, the ringleader of corruption and injustice, in order to eliminate corruption and injustice.

CHON TU-HWAN IMPLICATED IN SEX SCANDALS

[Dialogue from the feature program "Hour for Compatriots Abroad"]

[Text] Every evildoer is vulgar. Everyone who is bent on a fascist dictatorship is bound to be a debaucher. Chon Tu-hwan is a matchlessly depraved scoundrel and sordid debaucher. His dirty sex scandals, which have been consecutively unveiled, enrages the people. In this hour, I will talk with announcer Kim Chol-min in this regard.

First speaker: Mr Kim Chol-min, Chon Tu-hwan's life of dissipation is remimiscent of King Yonsan in the Yi dynasty who conducted all wrongdoings, indulging in sex.

Announcer Kim Chol-min: Yes. Last October movie star Chang Mi-hui was taken to a different world by a deluxe car which was equipped with two auto antennas and served a man for a night. Everyone in the fatherland knows who owns such a car, numbering less than 100 in South Korea, and where Miss Chang Mi-hui was taken. Some CHUNGANG ILBO journalists, who had reported the case, were threatened. As the truth of the case was unveiled later, Miss Chang Mi-hui was taken to the Blue House [president's residence] and became Chon Tu-hwan's private concubine. The fact that Miss Chang Mi-hui is Chon Tu-hwan's private concubine is an open secret in South Korea.

First speaker: Would you tell us about the MBC television drama case now prevailing in Seoul?

Announcer Kim Chol-min: A Seoul daily recently reported that the MBC television station had cancelled a program due to a conflict between the writer of the drama and the television station. The reason for the cancellation of the program is that, despite the drama writer refusing casting TV actor Kim Po-yon for a part in the drama, the television station insisted on assigning a role to her. It is a widely known fact that Kim Po-yon is Chon Tu-hwan's paramour.

Last July, Mr. Chong Chin-u, one of the most noted movie directors in South Korea, was arrested on charges of violation of the foreign exchange control law. It was learned that Mr Chon Chin-u refused to cast Miss Kim Po-yon for a particular role of his movie, believing she was not appropriate for the role. Angry at this, she called on the Blue House to arrest Mr Chong. Miss Kim Po-yon, who does not hide the fact that she is Chon Tu-hwan's paramour, is threatening responsible men engaged in movie and broadcast circles and even meddling in personnel affairs. Whoever offends her feelings cannot maintain his position.

First speaker: As is well known, a certain Miss Kim, a new face on MBC television, is unable to make a living. This is because she has not been assigned any roles. When she was invited to a party arranged at the Blue House, she resolutely refused the invitation, saying she cannot be anyone's private waitress. In retaliation for her refusal, assistants in the Blue House forced a responsible person in charge of TV drama at the MBC television station not to give any roles to her.

Announcer Kim Chol-min: A certain Madam Chong, who once enjoyed a good reputation as a movie star, gave birth to a negro baby. This has drawn great attention from people. Chon Tu-hwan provided Madam Chong for a high-ranking officer from Africa who visited South Korea at his invitation. When she was divorced because of her delivery of the negro baby, Chon Tu-hwan helped her to work again for the television station to keep her silent.

First speaker: I view these facts as the minor part of Chon Tu-hwan's dirty scandals. Seizing power by the coup d'etat, Chon Tu-hwan, while espousing integrity and probity, is bent on evil deeds through exercise of his influence.

PYONGYANG RALLY MARKS KWANGJU UPRISING

[Text] Pyongyang, May 17 (KCNA) -- A grand Pyongyang mass rally, commemorating the second anniversary of the heroic Kwangju popular uprising, was held at the Pyongyang indoor stadium on the afternoon of May 16.

Placed on the platform was a portrait of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and our people. The stadium was packed with working people and students in the capital. It was attended by delegations of Chongnyon and home-visiting groups staying in the socialist fatherland. Diplomatic envoys and officials of foreign embassies and foreign guests in our country were invited.

The platform was taken by Comrades Pak Song-chol, Yim Chun-chu, So Chol, O Paek-nyong, Kang Song-san, Paek Hak-nim, Chong Chun-ki, So Yun-sok, and Hwang Chang-yop, leading functionaries of political parties and public organisations and of Pyongyang municipal party and power bodies. Taking the platform were rectors of universities and colleges, heroes of the republic, labour heroes and labour innovators. Seen on the platform were Yi Mal-sang, director of the Organisational Department of the Central Standing Committee of Chongnyon, who is heading a delegation of Chongnyon functionaries and Kim A-pil, director of the Cultural Department of the Central Standing Committee of Chongnyon, who is heading a group of Korean artists in Japan.

The mass rally was addressed first by Comrade Chong Chun-ki, alternate member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and vice-premier of the Administration Council. Then the floor was taken by representatives of workers, agricultural working people, students and men of culture. They said that the courageous Kwangju citizens in South Korea launched a bloody resistance two years ago to reject the "Yusin" fascist system and bring a new day of democracy and reunification. Their vigorous struggle to win freedom and democracy was a just national salvation struggle reflecting the earnest desire of the entire South Korean working people subjected to exploitation and oppression.

They stressed that the Kwangju popular uprising was a massive peoples resistance which was participated in by broad sections of people including the working class and the highest form of resistance against fascism and for democracy in which they fought a bloody decisive battle for many days, resisting the armed enemy with arms.

The most truculent military fascist rule and treacheries are what traitor Chon Tu-hwan has left on his record in South Korea over the last two years after he came to power, winning the trust of the U.S. imperialist master for his dirty acts of murdering compatriots. Though the Chon Tu-hwan clique is now challenging democracy and patriotism with the backing of the U.S. imperialist masters, it has nowhere to go but to a shameful destruction.

In conclusion the speakers stressed that they would more vigorously fight for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country and the accomplishment of the cause of chuche, holding ever higher the banner of the three revolutions under the guidance of the great leader and the glorious party centre. The mass rally adopted an appeal to the South Korean people.

CONTINUED REPORTAGE ON NONALIGNED PRESS MEETING

Resolutions Passed

SK160913 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0833 GMT 16 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 16 (KCNA) -- The seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Non-Aligned Countries held in Pyongyang from May 12 to 14, 1982, adopted the following separate resolutions:

The resolution (1) said:

The chairman of the pool will write to the member countries of the Non-Aligned Movement where news agencies do not exist, as well as to member agencies which have not yet fully participated in the pool activities, seeking information on the impediments standing in their way and report to the pool conference for drawing up the first phase of a programme of mobilising resources for creating and strengthening the infrastructural facilities for news agencies enabling their full participation in the pool.

The chairman will write to the pool participants requesting them to intimate, in consultation with their governments, if necessary, their interest in volunteering to hold the regional and interregional seminars and workshops recommended by the experts group.

India, which was the chairman of the Coordinating Committee from 1976 to 1979, and Yugoslavia which took over chairmanship in 1979, will, in collaboration with host agencies where Coordinating Committee meetings has been held, report to the pool conference on the decisions taken by the committee during the period of their chairmanship and the action taken in fulfillment of these decisions.

The chairman will report to the Intergovernmental Council of Ministers of Information of Non-Aligned Countries on the steps taken or being taken to implement the various recommendations of the expert group.

Resolution (2) said:

- Each member agency of the pool submit to the general conference an evaluation in quantitative terms, to the extent possible, of pool news transmitted, received and re-distributed.

- Each member agency prepare an appropriate subject-wise analysis of pool news.

- The third pool general conference consider, on the basis of these individual news agency reports, the agreed norms, in order to make the work of the pool more efficient.

- The Coordinating Committee chairman seek financial assistance from the UNESCO and UN-DPI, in order to undertake appropriate studies on the transmission, reception and redistribution of pool news in collaboration with big agencies, according to their geographical location in different continents, and in association with professional advisors.

The resolution (3) assures them the fullest support and cooperation of the pool in every endeavour aimed at promoting understanding and concord among countries and peoples and realisation of a new international information and communication order.

Considering the recommendations adopted by the Inter-Governmental Conference on Communication Policies in Asia and Oceania held in Kuala Lumpur (February 1979) and also the recommendations made by the expert group meeting of the Inter-Governmental Council for Coordination of Information and Mass Communication in Non-aligned Countries, held in New Delhi in February 1982, emphasizing the urgent need for appreciably reducing the communication tariff rates for faster growth of the non-aligned news pool.

The resolution (4) calls upon governments of member countries to reduce the existing tariff to 1/10th for satellite communication in conformity with the rates proposed by UNESCO for Developmental Press Bulletin Service (DPBS) at the rate of U.S. dollars 200 per month at each and for a 24 hour duplex circuit and reduction of the rates for press bulletin service (PBS) to U.S. dollars 500 per month at each and for a 24 hour duplex circuit; and to extend these concessional tariff rates to cover the operation of the news pool, immediately, if possible, and in any case before the end of 1983, as a major contribution to the celebrations of the international communication year.

Resolution(5) recommends the twinning between news agencies whether on the bilateral level i.e., between one news agency and a group of news agencies, or between two groups of news agencies, in order to allow them to participate fully in the various activities of the pool, and requests the pool chairman to initiate and follow the stepping up of the implementation of these twinning agreements.

Resolution (6) calls on all news agencies participating in the pool to disseminate information on the decisions taken by the Coordinating Bureau communique, and based on the principles of non-alignment.

Taking note of the resolution of the meeting of the Coordinating Bureau of the Non-Aligned Movement, held in Kuwait from April 16 to 19, 1982, and taking into account the political declaration of the ministerial conference, held in New Delhi from February 9 to 12, 1981,

Resolution (7) said:

The Coordinating Committee has decided to express its solidarity with the struggle of the Palestinian people under the leadership of the PLO, sole representative of this people, and especially with the Palestinian News Agency, WAFA, which disseminates through the world the truth on the just struggle of the Palestinian people. The Coordinating Committee categorically condemns the systematic aggressions perpetrated by Israel against the Palestinian and Lebanese peoples, Syrian Golan and the Palestinian people on the West Bank, and condemns the support Israel receives from foreign forces. The Coordinating Committee also expresses its solidarity with the Federation of Arab News Agencies (FANA) in its efforts in the field of information. The seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee reiterated its support of the Palestinian people's right to return to its homeland, and to its right to live in peace and to re-establish its independent state.

Resolution (8) said:

Estimating that the pool can demand a joint action of the agencies, in order to disseminate the realities and achievements in the countries which are exposed to the aggression or which are isolated by imperialism, colonialism, neo-colonialism, racism, expansionism and hegemonism, the 7th meeting of the Pool Coordinating Committee decides that every participating news agency of the pool should present to the 3rd general conference an evaluation, in terms of statistics, of the transmitted, received and redistributed news in this field. That every participating news agency of the pool is engaged to disseminate these news.

The report includes the following points: The setting up and the strengthening of national news agencies, the aid and the support to liberation movements, the development of the communication media among the news agencies of non-aligned countries, the improvement of pool performance, the cooperation with the intergovernmental council, the cooperation with BONAC, the cooperation with UNESCO and the United Nations, the pool statute, the candidature for the organization of the third general conference of the pool, etc.

The representative of the Indian news agency, PTI, submitted a report on the meeting of the group of experts held in new Delhi, in February, 1982. The Coordinating Committee also heard and expressed satisfaction over the report of the PTI representative on the style book project, elaborated by PTI in cooperation with the Indian Institute of Mass Communication.

5. General Debate

About 40 delegates spoke at the general debate. They analysed the results achieved by the pool, its shortcomings and difficulties, and the work it carries out at present. They also pointed out the immediate and future tasks of the pool.

The following conclusions were drawn from the general debate:

A) The function and role of the pool should be enhanced more substantially in view of the present situation and the demand of the development of the pool itself, and the pool news should be disseminated more widely in the world.

B) The professional standards of the pool performance should be upgraded and the speed of the pool information ensured.

C) The news agencies able to do so should increase their assitance to the less developed news agencies to improve their infrastructures and to the countries having no national news agencies of their own, so that they may set them up.

D) The operation and the efficiency of regional redistributing centres should be improved substantially, their number increased especially by establishing new centres in regions where they do not presently exist, in order to ensure a well-balanced and speedy dissemination of the pool information throughout the world.

E) Bilateral, sub-regional, regional and multilateral cooperation and communication links should be expanded among the pool participants and, on this basis, a programme be drawn for promoting in stages the establishment of an integrated communication network of all the non-aligned countries.
F) Active steps should be taken for a wider use of pool news by mass media of each country.
G) For a more extensive dissemination of pool news, it is essential for the governments of non-aligned countries to take positive measures to lower tariffs of communications.
H) Pool information should cover more intensively the various activities of the Non-Aligned Movement, important political events, efforts and successes of the non-aligned countries in various fields, social, economic, cultural, arts and sports, and promote the mail exchange of backgrounders on development, feature articles and photographs.
I) The training of journalists and technical personnel should be promoted and experience in this sphere be exchanged on a wide scale.
J) The possibilities of the financial assistance of UNESCO and the United Nations should be used to a greater extent to the benefit of the pool activities. To this effect, specific proposals should be submitted to these organizations.

6. Improving Pools Performance

The Coordinating Committee emphasized that substantial improvement and expansion of the dissemination and redistribution of pool news, along with the establishment and strengthening of national news agencies, were important tasks of the pool at the present stage of its development.

The Coordinating Committee reiterated its will to accelerate the setting up of an integrated telecommunication network of all non-aligned countries, through which the redistribution centres will receive information from national news agencies and redistribute it, without any amendment, to news agencies in their regions and to other redistribution centres.

Within the framework of bilateral agreement, the redistribution centres should disseminate the pool information without harming their integrity, to other foreign national news agencies. The meeting agreed that a technical group, consisting of representatives of news agencies from Algeria, Cuba, DPR of Korea, India, Iran, Iraq, PANA, Yugoslavia, and Zimbabwe, be formed to study within the framework of the pool statute the concrete problems arising in the setting up of an integrated communication network of the non-aligned countries, including the possibility of setting up joint ventures for the production of telecommunication equipment, to work out recommendations, and to report the results of its initial study to the third general pool conference.

The Coordinating Committee also pointed out the importance of establishing both quantitative and qualitative norms in order to improve and make more useful the news disseminated by various national news agencies.

The Coordinating Committee considered that, while remaining faithful to the principles of promoting the free and balanced flow of genuine information, priority should be given to the problems of principle related to the upholding of the coherent identity of the Non-Aligned Movement as an independent political force, strengthening the unity and solidarity among the non-aligned countries and consolidating and developing the Non-Aligned Movement, in accordance with the general principles of the statute.

The meeting also considered, as envisaged by the statute, that the pool information should aim mainly at making the peoples of the world understand the need of strengthening the Non-Aligned Movement to preserve the world peace and security, in view of the current international situation in which the bloc policy has heightened international tension and increased the danger of a new war.

7. Coverage of the Seventh Summit Conference of the Non-aligned Countries

The Coordinating Committee stressed that prior to the seventh summit conference of the non-aligned countries, pool news agencies should widely distribute editorials, commentaries and features in connection with the Non-Aligned Movement, and information on the activities concerning the preparations for the conference, and underlined the need of ensuring the joint coverage of the seventh summit conference by the pool news agencies.

8. Cooperation with UNESCO and UN

The Coordinating Committee commended the continuous cooperation with UNESCO and UN-DPI, which has had excellent results. Appreciating the financial aid offered by the International Programme for the Development of Communication (IPDC) for the establishment of news agencies in the developing countries and the consolidation of their infrastructures, the Coordinating Committee recognized that steps should be taken to further expand such an aid. The committee hoped that the developed countries which have not yet made their contributions to IPDC, would do so without delay. The Coordinating Committee stressed the need of studying the financial and managerial aspects of the idea of the press-collect card.

It has been agreed to expand the cooperation with UN-DPI in the field of the dissemination of information on major UN conferences and its activities, the joint coverage of the major UN conferences and its activities, the joint coverage of the major UN conferences, and the UN-DPI programme for journalists in the UN headquarters. In accordance with the resolution adopted by the United Nations, it is desirable that UN-DPI receive daily news dispatches from the non-aligned news agencies pool and from regional news agencies of developing countries, in order to reach a better balance of information sources used by UN-DPI.

9. Recommendations of the Meeting of Experts of the Non-Aligned Countries on Information

The Coordinating Committee approved the recommendations concerning the pool, adopted by the meeting of experts of non-aligned countries in the field of information organized in New Delhi in February 1982, by the Intergovernmental Council for Coordination of Cooperation among the Non-aligned Countries in the Field of Information.

10. Cooperation with the Broadcasting Organizations of the Non-Aligned Countries

The Coordinating Committee commended the excellent cooperation and coordination between news agencies and broadcasting organizations during various international meetings, especially within UNESCO, and demanded the continuation of this cooperation. The Coordinating Committee agreed that PRENSA LATINA NEWS AGENCY represent the pool at the ninth meeting of the Committee for Cooperation among Broadcasting Organizations of the Non-aligned Countries to beheld in Havana in October-November this year.

11. Projects of the Regional News Agencies

The Coordinating Committee took note of the reports presented by OANA, FANA, ASIN and PANA on their activities.

12. Proposals of the Editorial Board on Publication of a Book on the Pool

The third meeting of the editorial board held during the seventh C.C. meeting examined the recommendation of the editorial board and with amendment decided to publish the book to coincide with the third general conference of the pool. It accepted a suggestion for annual or triennial supplementary volumes dealing with activities of the pool and developments in the sphere of information and communication in periods following the years 1975-1981 covered in the present book. The committee decided to publish draft style book, also prepared by PTI in collaboration with the Indian Institute of Mass Communication, with as many additions as possible, to give the book wider appeal.

13. Date and Venue of the Third General Conference of the Pool

The Coordinating Committee chairman gladly accepted the candidature of the Tunisian News Agency, TAP, to host the third general conference of the pool. According to the pool practice, the eighth meeting of the Pool Coordinating Committee will be held at the same venue as its third general conference.

FURTHER REPORTAGE ON CURB LOAN SCANDAL

President Warns Guilty

SK142339 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 15 May 82 p 1

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan warned strongly yesterday that all people, including himself, would be subject to stern punishment according to the pertinent laws irrespective of their ranks if they were found to have been involved in scandalous affairs.

"All types of corruption or irregularity should be uprooted by all means in the Fifth Republic. And this goal can not be changed absolutely," he emphasized.

According to Presidential Spokesman Yi Ung-hui, the chief executive deplored the recent curb loan scandal, saying that the government felt heartily ashamed before the citizens.

The president made his remarks during a Cabinet session he chaired at Chongwadae. He directed the Cabinet members to do their best to minimize the damage inflicted on the national economy as well as on the people by solving the aftermath of the scandal with conviction.

The spokesman quoted the president as having repeated several points the government is going to carry out with a firm posture. "All cabinet ministers and other officials are urged to reflect deeply on the scandal," President Chon said. He went on, "My goal and that of the government is to leave a practice of peaceful transfer of power politically.

"Economically, the target is to increase the GNP to the $100 billion level while I am in office, thereby doing away with areas of poverty in the society," he told the Cabinet members.

The spokesman quoted the president as stressing that socially, the goal of the incumbent government was to realize new social ethics, the basis of becoming a great nation. "By achieving these ends, we can approach peaceful unification with our security posture consolidated," the president said.

The Cabinet ministers were ordered to make their utmost efforts to materialize these goals, according to the spokesman.

Meanwhile, the president made similar remarks during a reception at the Sejong Cultural Center after the end of a national rally of small and medium industrialists. He took part in the rally. He said that he would by no means tolerate the creation of a climate in which persons tried to take advantage of powerful figures to do business easily while he was in the office. "Any official or other concerned person who is being used by enterprises will not go unpunished regardless of his rank," he warned.

Assemblymen Demand Arrests

[Text] Lawmakers on the National Assembly Finance Committee demanded yesterday the arrest of the former presidents of insolvent Ilsson Steel Co. and Kong Yung Construction Co. as well as the ex-heads of the Cho-Heung Bank and Commercial Bank of Korea for what they called complicity in the curb loan scandal.

Both the majority and minority members of the panel, including Rep. Pak Chong-kwan of the Democratic Justice Party, charged that the two companies were pretending to be victims of the incident, even though they had issued huge sums of dishonored bills to help Mrs. Chang Yong-cha's illicit bill deals.

Rep. Pak of the Majority Party strongly argued that those who were found to have been involved in the scandal should not be regarded merely as economic offenders but be labelled as "anti-state criminals."

The assembly ended its twoday panel session yesterday at 11:53 p.m. after inquiring of the government about the bill fraud case of the woman curb money dealer. The two former bank executives were also summoned to the session for testimony.

In his reply, Finance Minister Na Ung-pae answered that the two industrial firms operators could not steer clear of responsibility criminally for circulating huge amounts of bills beyond their financial capability, even though they were used by Chong to remain victims. He reiterated that neither political nor financial figures were implicated in the incident as of the present time. "It is evident that the scandal has nothing to do with the raising of political funds," he stressed.

The minister also testified that the government had not considered taking a special economic measure to freeze all private loans at all as a means of settling aftermath of the scandal.

During the interpellation session, Rep. Pak Wan-kyu of the Democratic Korea Party queried how the woman curb loan lender could make such an enormous fortune without a close relationship with the political power. He also asked the government whether it had conducted an intensive investigation of possible tax evasion by the big private money lenders. He urged the government to work out proper measures to protect the small shareholders of the two companies, who owned a majority of the total stocks.

Rep. Yi Young-chu of the DKP asked minister Na whether Kong Yung had been operated virtually by a powerful figure behind Chang.

Asked about the possible connection of the newly-emerging Myung Sung group, whose sources of funds were said to be unclear, with the curb loan dealer, Minister Na replied, "I understand that the new industrial group has no relation with her."

Kim Su-hak, director of the Office of National Tax Administration (ONTA), revealed that his office was determined to conduct a thorough tax probe of the vicious private money lenders to prevent the recurrence of another curb money scandal in the future. He also said that the amount of penalty tax to be imposed on Chang for her tax evasion in the course of dealing private loans was estimated at about 5,447 million won at present.

The nation's top tax official further said that no special favors had been offered to the enterprises joining the supporters' group of political party. He revealed that the government would inquire about an allegation that some foreigners were engaged in private money lending business through Korean brokers.

The two former heads of the commercial banks denied in their respective testimony that they had been pressed by Chang or requested by those in power to over-issue blank bills or to offer loans to the two companies. They were taken to the prosecution at about 11:30 p.m. obviously for interrogation immediately after testifying before the house panel.

Further Details on Scandal

SK150210 Seoul YONHAP in English 0150 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 15 (YONHAP) -- The six South Korean companies involved in the recent curb loan scandal owed a total of 939.3 billion won to their banks, papers submitted to the National Assembly by the Finance Ministry showed Friday.

The six companies' collateral held by their banks, however, was worth only 226.2 billion won. One U.S. dollar is worth about 720 won.

The papers revealed that Kongyung Construction Co. owed its bank 306 billion won with only 8.1 billion won in collateral; Ilssin Steel Co. owed 202.1 billion won with 85.7 billion worth of collateral; Life Housing and Construction Co. owed 165 billion with 37.2 billion in collateral; Samick Construction Co. owed 165.9 billion with 109.5 billion in collateral; Taeyang Metal Industrial Co. owed 11.2 billion with 11.1 billion in collateral; and Hai Tai Confectionary Co. owed 88.6 billion with 60.9 billion in collateral.

Lawmakers on the National Assembly Finance Committee Friday demanded the arrest of the former presidents of Kongyung and Ilssin, as well as the former heads of the Cho-Heung Bank and the Commercial Bank of Korea, who resigned in connection with the scandal. They charged that the two company presidents issued bills more than five times larger than actual loan amounts to help Chang Young-cha's illicit bill deals.

Mrs. Chang and former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui are in custody, charged with violating the foreign exchange control law by illegally taking 400,000 U.S. dollars to the United States as well as pocketing 146.7 billion won by obtaining 262.4 billion won worth of promissory notes from the six companies in return for lending only 57.6 billion won.

Prosecutors To Request Warrants

SK151117 Seoul YONHAP in English 1030 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 15 (YONHAP) -- The Prosecutor General's Office, investigating the so-called "Mrs. Chang scandal", will request arrest warrants for nine banks and private money dealers including the former presidents of the two Seoul banks that did business with the controversial millionairess, a spokesman for the prosecution said Saturday.

Prosecutors investigating Yim Chae-su, former president of the Cho-Heung Bank and Kong Tok-chong, president of the Commercial Bank of Korea, have concluded that the two banks "improperly "lent" significant" sums of money to Mrs. Chang, the spokesman said.

The two bankers were subpoenaed by the prosecution Friday night for interrogation. Both resigned this week in the wake of the scandal, which was sparked by the arrest of the millionairess and her husband, Yi Chol-hui, a former deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

The prosecution is expected to conclude its investigation of the scandal and announce its findings early next week. According to the prosecution, the couple received more than 363 million U.S. dollars in promissory notes from Korean companies in a private money-lending operation. Attention has been focused on Mrs. Chang, who allegedly masterminded the whole operation.

The couple is also charged with foreign exchange violations. They allegedly deposited 400,000 dollars in an unidentified California bank, which is illegal under Korea's foreign exchange control law.

Government Committee on Scandal

SK170142 Seoul YONHAP in English 0117 GMT 17 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 17 (YONHAP) -- The Korean Government has decided to set up an ad hoc committee to cope with the aftershocks of the recent curb loan scandal triggered by former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha, who allegedly handled 147.6 billion won (205 million U.S. dollars) in shady bill transactions.

A ranking government source said Monday that the proposed committee will be chaired by Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song, and will work out comprehensive measures to minimize the incident's adverse impact on national economy.

The measures contemplated at the first economic ministers' conference over the weekend since the scandal broke out early this month include establishing a new financing company to divert as much money as possible from the curb market into institutional banking agencies, thus legalizing the private money lending business.

According to the course, the government will be obliged to [word indistinct] its 1982 money supply estimates to protect financially healthy enterprises from the repurcussions of the affair.

The commodity price hikes which are expected to occur as a result of an increased money supply will be countered by reducing such infrastructure projects as electricity source development, communications and the double-tracking of railraods, projects which will not directly affect market conditions.

The measures will be implemented along with tax cuts and government-financed projects such as dam and road construction, which the government has already considered as anti-recession measures, the source said.

Nine More Arrested

[Text] The prosecution arrested nine people, including Yim Chae-su and King Tok-chong, who resigned as heads of the Cho-Heung Bank and the Commercial Bank of Korea early this week, in connection with the private loan scandal involving Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha.

Others are four senior officials of the Co-Heung Bank and three private moneylenders. The bankers are Yi Tu-chong, business director at the head office; Kim Sol-ho manager of Toksu Branch; Kim Chong-su, former manager of the same branch and So Tu-in, manager of Bando Branch.

The two former bank heads are accused of breach of trust for having provided loans amounting to 94 billion won to the King Yong Construction Co. and the Ilssin Steel Co. without securing mortgages in violation of bank regulations.

The huge loans to the two insolvent firms are alleged to have been arranged by Mrs. Chang, who reportedly exercised strong influence on the two banks as a big depositor.

Arrest warrants for the two former bank chiefs revealed that Yim of Cho-Heung was also suspected of having received 150 million won from Mrs. Chang in return for his cooperation in releasing loans to the two companies, and CBL's Kong of having accepted five million won from Ilssin's Chairman Chu Chang-kyun.

Cho-Heung's loans to Kong Yong and Ilssin without mortgages have been made on 27 occasions since November, 1981 in the form of guarantee for commerical bills and overdrawing accounts and they amounted to 73.3 billion won. Of them, 38.9 billion won went to Ilssin and 34.4 billion won to Kong Yong, according to the warrants.

On the other hand, Kong Tok-chong of the CBK allegedly released loans totalling 20.7 billion won to the two companies without securing any collaterals.

In the case of the Cho-Heung bank loans to Ilssin have been released from its Bando Branch. The branch's former manager Yi Tu-chong, now business director at the head office, is responsible for providing it with 26.1 billion won and his successor so Tu-in for giving another 12.8 billion won improperly.

Loans to Kong Yong have been released from the bank's Toksu Branch — 21.3 billion won by former branch manager Kim Chong-su and the remaining 13.1 billion by present manager Kim Sul-ho, according to the warrants.

Sources at the central investigation division of the PGO now probing the scandal which jolted the nation's financial circles, said that more arrests could be made. Those now under prosecution probe besides the nine arrested are top executives of Kong Yong and Ilssin, who are suspected of having conspired with the money lender couple in the issuance and circulation of commercial bills much in excess of the actual amounts of cash loans.

The sources said the prosecution authorities were considering arresting Kong Yong's Chairman Pyon Kang-wu, Managing Director Pyon Tae-su, and Ilssin's Chairman Cho Chang-kyun on charges of breach of trust and conspiracy to commit fraud. The three private moneylenders are accused of making illegal profits through discounting commercial bills circulated by Mrs. Chang.

Prosecution officials identified them as Kwak Kyong-pae, 35, representative of the Tong-jin enterprise; Kim Chong-mu, 45, of Haedong Credit Fund; and Chong Yong-chae, 36, financing division head at the Sambu Construction Co. They will face charges of violating the short-term financing business law. Among the three, Chong was found to have accepted commercial bills for a total of 208.5 billion won from Mrs. Chang on 95 occasions since February, 1981. He was accused of having made over 30 billion won illegal profits by discounting the bills, issued by Kong Yong, Ilssin, Life Construction and other firms, at 174.8 billion won. He and two other moneylenders engaged in this kind of private loan business without authorization of the Finance Ministry in violation of the short-term financing business law, their warrants said.

Kwak Kyong-pae discounted 23.3 billion won worth of commercial bills at 16.9 billion won, making illegal profits of 6.4 billion won, while Kim Chong-mu discounted bills for 30 billion won at 26.9 billion won, earning more than 3 billion won illegally, according to the warrants.

Yim and Kong were summoned to the prosecution around midnight Friday right after they finished testifying to the Finance Committee of the National Assembly, in questioning on their involvement in the loan dealings with Mrs. Chang.

The sources hinted that Mrs. Chang's ex-husband Kim Su-chol, 53, would also be detained for his role in linking business firms with his divorced wife. Kim reported to the prosecution Friday afternoon and remained in custody until late yesterday. Kim, now president of the Dae Ah Metal Co., would face charges of fraud and breach of trust, the sources said.

So Tong-kwon, deputy chief of the PGO, said that overall probe results would be disclosed early next week when the questioning of the two former bank heads and others would be completed.

Update on Arrests

SK170243 Seoul YONHAP in English 0219 GMT 17 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 17 (YONHAP) -- The Prosecutor General's Office, investigating the so-called "Mrs. Chang scandal," arrested a total of 15 persons over the weekend, including the former presidents of two Seoul banks where the controversial Chang had accounts, a spokesman for the office said Monday.

The weekend round-up brought to 17 the number of suspects arrested in connection with the scandal, including Mrs. Chang and her husband, Yi Chol-hui, a former deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

Those under arrest also include the heads of two companies, Kongyung Construction Co. and Ilssin Steel Co., which are said to have been major clients of Mrs. Chang's curb market loans. The millionairess' first husband, Kim Chol-su, was also arrested on charges of tax evasion.

He allegedly received a total of 400 million won (555,555 U.S. dollars) from his former wife during 1978-79, and failed to report this income to authorities. One U.S. dollar is worth about 720 won.

According to the prosecution, Im Chae-su, former president of the Cho-Heung Bank, received 150 million won in payoffs from Mrs. Chang in November 1981 after lending 73,300 million won to her without collateral from October 1981 to April 1982.

The prosecution said Kong Tok-chong, former president of the Commercial Bank of Korea, received 50 million won in payoffs from Chu Chang-kyun, chairman of Ilssin Steel Co., after guaranteeing the payment of Ilssin's company bonds totaling 20,700 million won. The two bankers resigned last week in the wake of the scandal, which was sparked by the couple's arrest May 7.

In addition, four branch managers of the two banks are suspected of making loans ranging from 12,800 million to 26,100 million won to Kongyung or Ilssin without collateral.

Meanwhile, three curb market dealers, including Kim Chong-mu, also under arrest, are suspected of cashing the promissory notes which Mrs. Chang received as collateral for unofficial loans from Kongyung and other companies. It is customary in Korea not to cash promissory notes that curb money market lenders receive as collateral for their loans.

A spokesman for the prosecution said investigators have not yet found any evidence of Mrs. Chang's alleged political connections in the scandal.

Mrs. Chang's brother-in-law Yi Kyu-kwang is president Chon Tu-hwan's uncle by marriage. The prosecution said Yi had several contracts with the former president of the Cho-Heung Bank before the banker received the alleged payoffs from Mrs. Chang, and added it plans to subpoena Yi for questioning "sooner or later." The prosecution said it has located 6,500 million of the 7,700 million won, which it had been unable to trace.

A considerable portion of this money was given to Mrs. Chang's relatives, including her father, who the prosecution said received 100 million won from her last October. It did not further elaborate. The prosecution said that its findings will be made public early this week at the earliest.

Money Market Hit

SK150214 Seoul YONHAP in English 0156 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 15 (YONHAP) -- The unofficial South Korean money market is expected to suffer a long paralysis in the wake of the recent curb loan scandal triggered by former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Young-cha. Market sources said Saturday that curb loan dealers who suffered losses from the incident have disappeared as the government investigations have drawn close to them.

Estimating the number of such private money lenders at more than 2,000, the sources said that a great majority of them will quit the money lending business even after the investigations are completed.

The sources said that although they have been instructed to report their losses to the authorities to receive compensation, most of them will not do so because they will then have to pay taxes on their illegal money lending businesses.

Yi and Chang allegedly inflicted an undetermined amount of losses on bona-fide private money lenders, while misappropriating some 147.6 billion won (205 million U.S. dollars) through their illicit bill transactions.

[Editorial: "It Is Time To Hold an Extraordinary National Assembly Session"]

[Excerpts] Now the entire nation appears to be boiling over at the incident involving a woman named Chang. To that extent, the shock generated by this incident was great and its shock wave is spreading farther. Thanks to the prosecutors office's announcement on the initial investigation results, the outlines of the incident are clear. However, more misgivings were spawned as a result, and still more questions were raised by the interpellations conducted by the National Assembly's Finance Committee on 13 and 14 May.

With each passing day, more and more stories on the incident are revealed and we can easily surmise that there remains a lot more unexplained. Likewise, people are focusing more sharply on this incident, and public opinion in connection with it is in an uproar.

Whatever is hidden behind this vicious incident, which not only has dealt a severe blow to our economy but also has smeared out country's reputation, must be thoroughly exposed. And the money that has disappeared, whether deposited in foreign banks or hidden in the hands of friends, should be ferreted out for the people to see.

If this incident is hushed up, as was the practice in the past era, the effect will be greater than the incident itself. This being the case, there can be no difference in the attitude of the ruling or opposition parties toward this incident or in political or legal viewpoints in regard to this incident. Our opinion, therefore, is that we should deal with this incident from national consensus, maintaining a fair and strict attitude toward it, so as not to leave no complaint or misgivings about it.

As far as the interim announcement of the investigation is concerned, it was strictly based on what the couple said. Naturally, a follow-up investigation has been conducted and will, of course, continue. We think the National Assembly should hold a session to take measures while thoroughly analyzing the incident on the basis of the investigation by the prosecutor's office. And if it is necessary, the National Assembly, calming down its fury, and excitement, and in a deliberate manner, should carry out its mission as the institution representing public opinion by invoking the right to audit government offices.

Some may object to use of the right to audit government offices because the incident is under investigation. However, there can be no problem as long as the National Assembly does not interfere in the prosecutor's investigation. Some may still assert that it is better not to make noise about this incident lest it give rise to controversy, and in fear of adverse reaction by economic circles and public sentiment. Even so, the incident has already been brought into the public eye, the nation is seething with it and the people are harboring more misgivings.

In order to restore order in the banking circles and to normalize the economy at an early date, the prosecutor's office and the National Assembly should win the people's trust by thoroughly investigating the incident.

At such a critical juncture as this, nobody should waste time through moral lamentations or discussing measures to rectify the situation. These come later. The first thing we should do is to get a clear picture of the incident.

Press Complains of Censorship

SK160842 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 16 May 82 p 3

[Column "Reporter's Memorandum" -- article by reporter Yim Paek]

[Text] The prosecutors office's investigation on "the Mrs Chang incident" is in its final stage. As of 15 May, the prosecutor's office has been engaged in the investigation for 2 weeks, more or less. In the course of this not brief period, the investigation has progressed to arresting 9 more bankers or private money dealers, including former presidents of banks. However, there is one point we cannot quite understand about the prosecutor's office.

The point in question is that the prosecutor's office has never allowed reporters to come close to the Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha couple, not even once. Counting from the day this couple was arrested, on 5 May, already 11 days have passed and 9 days since the prosecutor's office belatedly announced investigation results on 7 May. Nevertheless, except those at the prosecutor's office, no one has seen the faces of Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha. If the prosecutor's office has meant to protect the human rights of the couple on the basis of the penal code, we can understand. And if it had been the practice of the Prosecutor's Office to never allow the press to come close to people in custody, we would have no objection.

However, in the past, the prosecutor's office has never been reluctant out of legal considerations to let the public come close to suspects. On the contrary, the prosecutor's office has been practicing a custom of opening cause to the press in order to let the people know about them.

Strangely, as far as this incident is concerned, the prosecutor's office has maintained a different attitude. It may not have meant to do so, but the press has had access to the former presidents of banks or private money dealers -- who are almost accomplices -- but not the two ringleaders.

We believe this is not fair, and such an attitude can give rise to speculation that the prosecutor's office treats the two differently.

Readers continue to telephone and ask the newspapers, half protesting and complaining, why no photographs of the couple have been carried in the papers.

Newspapers are on the verge of being misunderstood. Under such circumstances, in fact, the newspapers had to look around for photographs of the couple. They had to extract photographs of them even from university and high school albums. We frankly admit that we were a little too enthusiastic about getting photographs and such overenthusiasm might have been undesirable. We also do not want to hide the fact that there has been competition among newspapers, not to mention our goal of satisfying the curiosity of the readers.

But the air of shunning the press maintained by the prosecutor's office is quite different the above. First of all, due to such an air of the prosecutor's office, all sorts of bad rumors are circulating in the city.

To cite a few rumors: "The criminals who set the whole society in turmoil are now interrogated in a hotel room", or, "the prosecutor's office is shielding the couple out of consideration for their social status." For a long time, it has been the case that, as long as people's misgivings remain unexplained, people believe the rumors as true. This is what we are concerned about.

The present situation is that we have no way to come close to the truth of the incident except through the prosecutor's office's announcement. This situation is acceptable assuming that the investigation is being carried out in a satisfactory manner. Nevertheless, if the people's misgivings about the truth of the incident remain unexplained, as is now the case, this may lead the people to disbelieve even the prosecutor's office's announcement on the investigation results. Emotionally, we are not very keen on seeing their faces. Is the prosecutor's office taking our feelings into consideration?

Journalist Complains

SK151112 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 14 May 82 p 3

[Column "Today and Tomorrow" — "Editor's Viewpoint" by Deputy Economic Editor Yi Hyon-ak]

[Excerpts] There is no stronger antiseptic than sunshine. Nothing is allowed to become rotten or corroded in bright sunlight. Germs breed only in dark, moist corners. The same may be said of social phenomena. Corruption and irregularities cannot find any place to exist in an open society. The United States has a law on opening up information — called "the sunshine act." This may be because the United States attaches great importance to the antiseptic function of opening up information.

The Yi Chol-hui-Chang Yong-cha couple's curb loan scandal can be construed as a case symbolic of the present era, signifying that dark corners in which poisonous mushrooms can grow are surprisingly widespread in our society.

This case contains numerous aspects which ordinary people can never understand. However, it is very satisfactory, from the standpoint of putting vigor into antiseptic function of opening the case, that the prosecutor's office has made an interim report on the outlines of the case. In this sense, the suspicious parts of this case should be thoroughly looked into and clarified.

The most suspicious point of the case is why the couple committed such an act. As long as the motivation of their fraudulent acts if not clarified, suspicions will not be cleared away.

It is hard to believe that the enterprises concerned yielded to blackmail at the risk of going bankrupt; and it is all the more unbelievable that they were deceived by the culprits. That is because enterprises, in essense, are profit-seeking. It is also strange that the banks unhesitatingly cooperated (?) [as published] only because the culprits masqueraded as having powerful backing.

The government is now in trouble because of a coal surplus. Although it can solve this problem by purchasing and stockpiling only one million tons of coal, it has difficulty raising the 30 billion won necessary for doing so. Under these circumstances, it is quite improbable that a couple, who masqueraded as having powerful patrons, took complete control of 260 billion won in a fraudulent manner. Unless this is like a central American-style "banana republic" of the past, in which a few hoodlums toyed with the entire society, how could such a case, which has rocked the economy to its foundations, take place?

Who created the climate in which everyone grovels before powerful backing and the vicious curb loan market prospers? If an atmosphere of keeping everything secret were removed, such a thing could never happen. Establishing a system under which we carry out things in an aboveboard fashion will let us place trust in and create a sound society. In this connection, it is important to thoroughly look into this case; we should also exert efforts to establish a system under which we carry out all things in an aboveboard fashion. The under-the-table dealings and the underground economy cannot find a place to stand in a bright world.

KYONGHYANG SINMUN Editorial

SK151030 Seoul KYONGHYANG SINMUN in Korean 14 May 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Prosecutors' Investigation and the Authority to Investigate the State Affairs"]

[Excerpts] The National Assembly is continuing an examination of the case of the fraudulent notes of Chang Yong-cha by convening, from 13 May, the Finance Committee. Reviewing the results of the first day session of the Finance Committee, we had an impression that some assemblymen made inquiries about the case based merely on false rumors about the Chang Yong-cha incident, laying aside questions of policy, which originally they were to raise.

In parallel with the parliamentarians' interpellation at the Finance Committee, political parties are calling for a special session of the National Assembly to investigate this incident and for exercising the authority to investigate the state affairs.

It is true that all the people wish the incident to be thoroughly examined in accord with legal procedure. However, the politicians and the National Assembly should neither be merely excited nor should they throw the case into confusion, handling the incident by accepting ahead of time various random guesses and groundless rumors.

It is understandable that the political parties and national assemblymen are excited in view of ridiculous nature of the Chang Yong-cha incident. However, if the national assemblymen merely excite themselves with the incident, together with the masses, state affairs would be in absurd shape. The national assemblymen, as the responsible representatives of the people, should be more reasonable than the ordinary masses and should calmly inquire into the real state of the groundless rumors which are being viciously disseminated. They should take the lead in calming down the masses' excitement.

Nevertheless, some assemblymen and political parties are calling for exercising the authority to investigate state affairs in this incident, which is in midst of investigation. We consider this as an idea that reverses the proper order.

We think politicians should more sincerely review how they and the National Assembly ought to cope with such an incident; what is the essence of the authority of the National Assembly to investigate state affairs and how the basic relations among the three branches of the government are maintained under the ruling structure of separation of the three powers of government.

Concerning the case, President Chon, the head of state and the leader of the government, directed prosecutors to thoroughly investigate the incident, opening the results to the public, and severely punish those who are involved in the case. He urged that "if the persons involved in the case are related to me, even distantly, they should be more severely punished."

President Chon's directive clearly shows that the administration will never hide anything. Prosecutors are centering their all efforts on clarifying all aspects of the incident following Chon's personal directive.

We assume it would not be too late to raise the question of the authority to investigate state affairs if we still find unsatisfactory points in the final announcement, which is to be made public in the near future.

Now is the time for the administration and the legislature to calm down the people's sentiments, which are confused because of a series of unexpected incidents, and to minimize the damage to the national economy and the people's living by rapidly normalizing the financial system, which has fallen into disorder because of this incident.

SINMUN Editorial

[Editorial: "The Way To Remedy the Situation Developed by the Curb Loan Scandal"]

[Text] We should quickly extricate ourselves from the aftermath of the scandal involving Mrs Chang. The true aspect of this scandal should be thoroughly investigated. Those who are responsible for this incident should be punished by law regardless of title. Those government officials who are morally responsible for the incident should resign regardless of title. At the same time, by taking appropriate action against those enterprises involved in the incident, we should prevent many workers from being threatened in their daily life.

All these steps can only be initated when the National Assembly conducts an investigation of the incident. The National Assembly Financial Committee was convened on 13 May. All parties should honestly probe into the true aspect of the incident at the earliest possible date. The most important thing for them is to determine whether those involved in the incident have colluded with those in power. By thoroughly disclosing the result of this investigation to the people, they should await the people's judgement, if necessary, and clear up any suspicion about the incident. What we would like to repeatedly emphasize is that, instead of making this incident a political issue, we should make the principle of seeking truth prevail in the process of investigating the incident.

We believe that the prosecutors' initial-stage investigation was unsatisfactory. We admit that the prosecutors' passive attitude in investigating the incident in its initial stage and the announcement of their inadequate investigation failed to placate public sentiment. When the prosecutorial authorities assumed a hesitant attitude in dealing with a very grave case, social suspicion and mistrust deepened. The Ministry of Justice and senior prosecutors should examine themselves in this regard.

The first action taken by the Ministry of Finance concerning the incident was also unsatisfactory. By creating the impression that it adopted a microscopic method of approach in dealing with the incident, which had shaken the foundation of the monetary and economic order, the Ministry of Finance failed to eliminate the discontent and derision of the middle class and the commonality.

By assuming an easygoing attitude of settling the matter by dismissing responsible chief bankers, the Ministry of Finance has proved that it has failed to extricate itself from the bureaucratic legacy of the old era. The Ministry of Finance should examine itself in this regard.

Such being the case, the people have come to expect something from the National Assembly. By disclosing the true aspects of the incident in detail, the National Assembly can clear up the peoples' suspicion about the incident. If it produces the impressionthat it has failed to thoroughly disclose the true aspects of the incident, the people's mistrust of the government, the National Assembly and politicians will increase, making it difficult for them to placate public sentiment. Politicians should bear this point deep in mind.

While investigating the true aspects of the incident, we should quickly and effectively take follow-up action. We should quickly take measures to restore monetary order and gain the trust of the people in banks. At the same time, we should formulate and publicize a policy for private loans. People say a private loan is a necessary evil. We should protect large enterprises from being victimized by evil private money lenders.

There should be political considerations to prevent enterprises from falling into bankruptcy one after another. We should protect enterprises and achieve job security for workers. We should make utmost efforts to prevent the incident from developing to the extent of applying pressure on the workers' daily life.

President Chon Tu-hwan has repeatedly and strongly urged government officials concerned to thoroughly and quickly investigate the incident so as to make our society quickly extricate itself from the aftermath of the incident. We believe that these instructions should be implemented without fail. To this end, we will watch the movement of the National Assembly.

PRESIDENT MEETS NEW LIBERAL CLUB'S TAGAWA

[Text] Seoul, May 12, KYODO -- South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan told a Japanese opposition party leader Wednesday that he could not violate the law to release leading dissident Kim Tae-chung.

After a 45-minute meeting with the president, Seiichi Tagawa, leader of the New Liberal Club, told newsmen he asked Chon to free the 1971 opposition presidential condidate as early as possible.

Tagawa quoted Chon as saying he had nothing to do with Kim politically and that he did not regard Kim as a political opponent. Kim committed a crime in trying to overthrow the government through violence, and no one can be exempted from punishment for his crime, Chon was quoted as saying.

Kim, 57, was arrested in May 1980 for allegedly attempting to topple the government through uprisings. A military tribunal sentenced Kim to death in September of that year. President Chon Tu-hwan reduced his sentence to life imprisonment in January 1981 and then to 20 years in prison in March 1982.

Tagawa, leading a 10-man New Liberal Club delegation, arrived here Monday for a five-day visit. The New Liberal Club is a minor conservative opposition party with 13 seats in Japan's lower house. Later in the day, Tagawa and his party met with Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun. The prime minister told the group that South Korea wants to improve relations with China with which Seoul has no diplomatic ties, according to Tagawa. Yu asked him to convey the South Korean desire to China when he has a chance to meet with any Chinese official, Tagawa said.

Tagawa, a journalist-turned politician, is known for active efforts to pave the way for Japan-China rapprochement in 1972. He visited China 18 times. Tagawa is also one of the dietmen promoting Japanese-North Korean friendship. Tagawa told reporters he was impressed with South Korea's strong desire to improve relations with Beijing.

UNEN DENOUNCES PRC POLICY IN NEI MONGGOL

OW140122 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1712 GMT 13 May 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 13 May (MONTSAME) -- The autonomous region of Inner Mongolia created 35 years ago and which the Chinese propaganda call "the model autonomous region" is the history of oppression and forceful assimilation of national minorities, carried out by the Chinese rulers, the newspaper UNEN writes. [sentence as received]

If in May 1947 the population of Inner Mongolia comprised 2 million people, now only 7.8 million people out of 18 million inhabitants are Mongolians. In 1980 Beijing rulers decided to send another 400 thousand Chinese to Inner Mongolia. It evoked protests on the part of the Mongolian population. In the town of Hohhot mass riots against the policy of assimilation broke out which were severely suppressed by military units. During the "Cultural Revolution", the article reads, more than 340 thousand people were repressed and nearly 76 thousand killed. Mongolians were not allowed even to speak in the native language. And this is branded by the official Chinese press as the "victory of the national policy in the model autonomous region." ... In the party and administrative bodies, in the leadership of the autonomous region the Chinese have taken power. It is called "the equality of nations" in China.

The Beijing leaders are striving to turn Inner Mongolia into a launching pad of struggle against the Mongolian People's Republic. The autonomous region is declared as a "front-line of struggle against hegemonist and revisionism" and is announced as a closed zone. The militarization of Inner Mongolia and converting of it into a military base is in full swing. The mounting struggle of the national minorities in Inner Mongolia and Tibet for independence testifies to the fact that the protest movement against the chauvinistic national policy of Maoists is gaining strength and scope in China, UNEN stresses.

SON SANN: FORMATION OF COALITION 'IMPERATIVE'

BK161111 Hong Kong AFP in English 1051 GMT 16 May 82

[Text] Bangkok, 16 May (AFP) -- Son Sann, leader of the Khmer Peoples' National Liberation Front (KPNLF), has reaffirmed in a statement released here today his willingness to participate in a proposed alliance of Cambodian resistance groups.

The statement was made Thursday, while Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila was in Beijing holding talks on the proposed tripartite coalition with Chinese leaders. Mr. Sitthi's mission failed, and he announced on his return to Bangkok Saturday night that there was "very little hope" of an anti-Vietnamese front being formed.

One of the main objections to the proposed alliance came from the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge, who as the main guerrilla force in Cambodia refuse to share power equally with the resistance groups headed by Son Sann and former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Under the new Thai proposals unveiled during Mr. Sitthi's visit to Beijing, the tripartite alliance would be headed by Prince Sihanouk as head of state, with Son Sann as prime minister and Khieu Samphan, political leader of the Khmer Rouge, as deputy prime minister.

In Thursday's statement, Mr. Son Sann called on the other two leaders to join the coalition, saying that it was "imperative" that they form the alliance immediately if the object of getting the nearly 200,000-strong Vietnamese force out of Cambodia was to be achieved.

The purpose of the tripartite coalition, he said in the statement, is the "mobilization of all efforts in the common struggle to liberate Cambodia from the Vietnamese agressors and to restore to the country its sovereignty and independence."

SON SANN URGES FRANCE 'TO STOP HELPING' HANOI

BK161208 Hong Kong AFP in English 1154 GMT 16 May 82

[Text] Bangkok, 16 May (AFP) -- Son Sann, former prime minister of the former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, today appealed to the French Government to stop helping the Hanoi government while Vietnamese troops remain in Cambodia.

"Many Cambodians, workers and soldiers, took part in the two world wars and died for France," Mr. Son Sann, president of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), said in a communique reaching Bangkok today.

The president of the KPNLF, one of the three Cambodian anti-Vietnamese resistance groups, said the Cambodian people had never borne arms against France and "do not understand how the French can defend the Vietnamese aggressors."

"Above all they do not understand why the French Government is now giving Hanoi economic aid, before the Hanoi leaders have agreed to withdraw all their troops from Cambodia.

"With its liberty and human rights, Franch has enough prestige to maintain contact with Hanoi without needing to give aid which is interpreted as a bonus for aggressors," Mr. Son Sann continued.

Soviets Present Gifts

BK160832 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1100 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] At 0800 on 14 May, a ceremony was held at the Health Ministry to present donations from the Soviet Committee for the Defence of Peace to its Kampuchean counterpart. These donations included a truck, movie cameras and some office equipment.

Attending the ceremony on the Kampuchean side were Yit Kimseng, minister of health and chairman of the Kampuchean peace committee; Comrade (Sok An), chief of Cabinet of the Foreign Ministry; and many cadres. On the Soviet side were the visiting delegation of the Soviet peace committee led by Comrade Stanislav and Comrade (Kolesnikov), a counselor at the Soviet Embassy.

On behalf of the Soviet peace committee, Comrade Stanislav made a speech in which he stressed that the visit by his delegation was aimed at strengthening the fraternal relations between the two peace movements and contributing to regional and world peace. He also expressed full support for the PRK's foreign policy of peace as well as the peace initiatives of the three Indochinese countries which are aimed at transforming Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation, thus contributing to the defense of world peace.

In conclusion, he said that although the gift of the Soviet peace committee was minimal, yet it was very significant for our two committees as it constitutes a symbol of the close cooperation between the Soviet Committee for the Defence of World Peace and its Kampuchean counterpart, as well as a symbol of the undying relations of solidarity and friendship between our parties, governments and peoples.

In his reply, Minister Yit Kimseng talked about the sufferings of the Kampuchean people during the imperialist's war of aggression in which more than 1 million Kampucheans perished. He emphasized that the genocidal Pol Pot regime, the lackey of Beijing expansionism, massacred more than 3 million Kampucheans and destroyed all national structures, thereby bringing grief and sorrow to all families and leaving millions of orphans. He stressed that following liberation on 7 January 1979, our people experienced dire difficulties and shortages of everything. However, under the leadership of the party and front, and thanks to the support and aid of socialist countries such as the Soviet Union, Vietnam and Laos, our people have achieved great successes in all fields.

In conclusion, he stated: This donation by the Soviet Committee for the Defense of World Peace represents a great source of encouragement for the Kampuchean people in their struggle against the Beijing hegemonists and expansionists to defend their national independence and regional peace and stability and thus contribute to the defense of peace in the world.

VODK: U.S. TESTS CONFIRM SRV CHEMICAL WARFARE

BK160322 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] Last week the U.S. State Department announced that an analysis of blood samples from two Kampucheans who were affected by the Vietnamese enemy's poisonous gas shells last February shows that the blood of these victims contained a toxin called Trichotecene.

These two Kampucheans became victims when the Vietnamese fired 105-mm artillery shells at a populated village in the zone under the control of Democratic Kampuchea.

This is one among the tens of thousands of examples of the Kampuchean people being attacked with toxic chemical weapons by the Vietnamese enemy aggressors.

NHIAVU LOBALIAYAO ON TRIBAL, PARTY UNITY

BK161204 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0400 GMT 15 May 82

[Speech by Nhiavu Lobaliayao, member of the LPRP Central Committee and chief of the Central Nationalities Committee, at the Third LPRP Congress in Vientiane -- no date given; read by announcer]

[Text] Respected members of the Presidium, distinguished guests, dear comrade delegates: On behalf of the Central Nationalities Committee, I express complete unanimity with the LPRP Central Committee's political report submitted to the party congress by Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan and other reports. I have the honor to deliver a speech to this congress on tribal work.

In the period of national-democratic revolution, as well as in the period of socialist revolution, our party and state have always maintained that the tribal issue in Laos is an important matter which requires close attention. Therefore, various party resolutions and state plans contain a clear and correct policy toward the people of various tribes, which conforms with the special aspects of the situation in each period in our country.

Over the past several decades, the U.S. imperialists, the Beijing hegemonist ruling clique and other reactionaries have carried out many heinous and cunning schemes to sabotage and divide the unity among various tribes. Nevertheless, educated and trained by the party and state, the people of all tribes have always maintained their high vigilance and taken part in attacking the enemies, thereby promptly smashing all schemes and tricks of the imperialists and the reactionaries.

Generally speaking, the people of various tribes in our country have upheld patriotism and the spirit of loving socialism. As indicated in the party Central Committee's political report, for several decades the people of all strata, tribes and races have united as a bloc in the National United Front, marching under the party banner, and resolutely risen up to fight for national liberation and to defend and build the country.

At present, the people of various tribes have had cadres and party members working as their representatives at all levels and in all branches, including the military and police forces, from the central down to the grassroots levels, with equal privileges. All this shows that our party has always created conditions for all tribes from Gnot Ou down to Li Phi [northernmost and southernmost areas] and from the Phou Louang Range to the Mekong River to enjoy the rights to mastery and equal rights and responsibilities before the country.

Recalling past events, the people of various tribes have never before enjoyed the status, role and great honor they do today. Our party and state have effectively improved the material and spiritual life of the people of various tribes step by step.

Comrades, after implementing the party policy toward various tribes, we have drawn the following lessons:

1. To solve tribal problems effectively, it is necessary to implement party and state line and policies thoroughly, such as those on political and ideological mobilization, economic construction and cultural and social development, as well as that of putting equality among various tribes into practice.

2. Parallel with heightening the spirit of self-sufficiency and self-reliance and surmounting all difficulties encountered by the people of various tribes, the party and state must give them regular and effective assistance. These two aspects must be closely coordinated. By so doing, difficulties and problems can be effectively solved.

To resolve the problems of a gap between regions and tribes, the party Central Committee has adopted a resolution to build model towns for various tribes. As a result, our people are happy and have become more confident in the leadership of our party and state.

3. Various branches and localities must formulate concrete plans to implement correctly the policy toward various tribes, because tribal work is one of the important tasks contained in the overall policy of the party and state. Nevertheless, this is not a new issue. Various resolutions of the party Central Committee always state that once a branch of service or locality firmly grasps and correctly implements the party's tribal policy, it can score great achievements in carrying out its duties. On the contrary, if it fails to grasp this policy firmly, or implements it incorrectly, it will encounter difficulties in carrying out its tasks. Moreover, it will experience serious mistakes. As a result, the people of various tribes will not understand our party and state line and policies.

To express support and complete unanimity with the LPRP Central Committee's political report, we will endeavor to carry out the following tasks in the years to come:

1. To continue studying the national sense of unity, practice equality and mutual assistance among various tribes, and enable cadres, soldiers, policemen and people of all tribes to understand, profoundly grasp and correctly implement the party and state policy toward various tribes.

2. To lead and assist the people of all tribes positively to build the economy, develop culture and gradually improve our material and spiritual life. What is important is that we must build a core of cadres and party members.

3. To smash resolutely and promptly all of the schemes of the Beijing hegemonist ruling clique, the imperialists and other reactionaries to divide our various tribes.

4. To improve further the Nationalities Committee at all levels and its auxiliary apparatuses, for example, in the provinces and districts inhabited by several tribes.

5. To hasten to sum up experiences gained in implementing policies and adopt correct directions and policies in accordance with the political task in the new period of the revolution so as to contribute to the cause of national defense and socialist construction in our country.

Comrades, to fulfill these tasks, I hope that the delegates attending this congress and all branches at all levels, from the central down to the grassroots, will cooperate with us and join in bringing into full play the heroic traditions of various tribes in defending and making the country prosperous and progressive. I wish the congress glorious success. Thank you.

SITTHI COMMENTS ON VISIT, MEETINGS IN PRC

BK151410 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila reported to newsmen at the Bangkok airport at 1800 today that he visited China from 9 to 14 May at the invitation of Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua to strengthen bilateral relations and exchange views on matters of common interests. He said China attached great importance to his visit. On 10 May he held talks with the Chinese foreign minister and on 11 may he met with Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang. On 13 May the Foreign Minister said he met with Chinese Vice Party Chairman Deng Xiaoping.

During the visit, Foreign Minister Sitthi said he held talks with Chinese leaders on broad subjects in a frank atmosphere. The talks are very useful. They included bilateral relations to which China attached special interest. China also supports the role played by Thailand and ASEAN and realized the importance of Southeast Asia.

The talks also included the problem of Kampuchea,which affects the stability of Southeast Asia and the world. The formation of a coalition of the three Kampuchean factions was also a problem of common interest. It constitutes the joint effort of Thailand, China and other countries to solve the problem. The success in the formation of a tripartite Kampuchean coalition will certainly facilitate the settlement of the Kampuchean problem. Yet, the settlement depends on the will of the Kampuchean people. It is impossible for Thailand to force anybody. What it could do is to exert efforts in order to see progress made toward the settlement of the problem.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila said he learned prior to his trip to China that there existed certain obstacles to the formation of the tripartite coalistion. These had to be solved first. He said he met Prince Norodom Sihanouk in Beijing. Prince Sihanouk reiterated his stand on the settlement of the Kampuchean problem, which is in accordance with the internationally-adopted resolutions. He believed that the Kampuchean problem must be solved on the basis of the UN resolution. He made known his determination to join with other Kampuchean patriots in order to liberate Kampuchea from Vietnamese occupation and to make it a country which is independent and genuinely neutral.

Reporting on his discussions with the Chinese leaders, the foreign minister said they covered a wide range of subjects, including economic matters. Both countries agreed to expand bilateral trade in order to benefit their respective economies. On Kampuchea, the foreign minister said the talks were straightforward. He conducted the talks not on behalf of Thailand but on behalf of ASEAN. The proposals he put forth were the proposals agreed upon by ASEAN during earlier discussions.

Comments on Khmer Coalition

[By Banyat Tasaniyavet]

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila has given up hope of a "summit" meeting of Khmer resistance factions before the ASEAN ministerial conference scheduled for mid-June in Singapore. On his return from Beijing last night, he told reporters that he had asked the leaders of the three factions to "go ahead on their own." Asked if he meant that ASEAN was "washing its hands" of the Khmer tripartite coalition affair, he said, "ASEAN has still to meet in June."

He said that Democratic Kampuchea (presumably the Khmer Rouge, now the sole component of DK) "raised some problems." He added: "It is not a matter of cabinet posts. They are suspicious of each other. There is hardly any hope of their meeting in Kuala Lumpur (offered by the Malaysian Government before the Singapore conference of ASEAN. It's best to let them do things by themselves," he said.

Asked if he was concerned about a planned invitation by the House Foreign Affairs Committee to answer questions about "alleged interference" in Kampuchean affairs, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said, "I'm not worried, but we have not interfered. The Khmer groups are trying to get together and we are just supporting their efforts. This is part of the political solution for the Kampuchean conflict in accordance with the United Nations General Assembly resolution. We prefer a political to a military solution." He said that Thailand, "as a frontline state, has to keep itself abreast of developments."

Asked about chances of retaining the Democratic Kampuchea seat in the United Nations, he said: "We are doing what we can. Acceptance of the Vietnamese invasion of Kampuchea would set a precedent for other governments to commit aggression against neighbouring countries on the excuse that the administration of that country is bad."

The foreign minister found Prince Norodom Sihanouk, former head of state who leads one of the three resistance factions, to be "patriotic, striving for the restoration of Kampuchean independence and unity of the Khmer people."

He said he had gone to China at the invitation of Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua to discuss improvement of Sino-Thai relations and to exchange views on matters of regional and global interest with Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang, the foreign minister and other high officials. Chinese Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping expressed appreciation of the ASEAN attitude towards the Kampuchean problem, which he felt would promote peace and security in Southeast Asia.

ACM Sitthi said that there should be continuous Sino-Thai consultations at high levels. Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon had been invited to China for this purpose. China would also like to expand trade, he added.

NATION: PRC MUST RECONSIDER KAMPUCHEA POLICY

[Editorial: "China Must Be More Flexible in Khmer Issue"]

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila has completed long talks in Beijing with Chinese leaders and with former Kampuchean head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk but it appears as if the outcome of the talks is still in the balance. The principal subject is of course Kampuchea and how to put together a coalition government that will include the three anti-Vietnamese factions. It is just not any odd coalition for the sake of one, but one which will be able to present a respectable face to the rest of the world. ASEAN has tried hard in various ways and has produced several formulae which one or the other faction has deemed unacceptable.

It is also true that China must also have a voice in the formation of the coalition, since supplies to the Khmer Rouge have been only from China up to now -- for that matter Sihanouk's Moulinaka also has had some supplies from China recently. Basically, the solution to Kampuchea's problem is the ending of the Vietnamese occupation of the country, but the approach differs. ASEAN wants a political solution through the United Nations, while China does not believe in that and seems to be sticking to her initial intention of "bleeding Vietnam white."

These two approaches do not differ very much and can be combined easily and obviously that was the thrust of Sitthi's talks in Beijing. ASEAN plan is to make Sihanouk the head of state with Son Sann as prime minister and Khieu Samphan as deputy prime minister.

As Sihanouk has pointed out, this line-up itself can be changed and he has himself offered to take no part in the coalition with his assistant In Iam representing Moulinaka as the deputy premier. Since ASEAN places high emphasis on world opinion, the coalition that emerges must be acceptable to the countries outside the Soviet bloc.

The question of the portfolios of defence and foreign affairs appears to have been the main point that cannot be resolved between China and ASEAN. The ASEAN formula is that both defence and foreign affairs should be jointly handled by committees with each faction having its representative. The Chinese do not seem to look at it that way. There has been a lot shilly-shallying over the coalition for about two years and it is only natural that ASEAN is a little frustrated.

Several countries have de-recognized Democratic Kampuchea — Australia and Britain, for instance — and in a few months, if all goes well, ASEAN should start lobbying in the United Nations before the next General Assemly session starts. Hanoi and Moscow are already starting a two-pronged assault -- Vietnam says it will accept an "enpty seat" for Kampuchea at the UN, while the Soviet Union says that it wants the Heng Samrin regime to take the Kampuchean seat. Time is steadily running short. Next month there will be the ASEAN foreign ministers meeting in Singapore and that will be followed by informal consultations with the foreign ministers or their representatives of such countries like Japan, Australia, New Zealand, etc. ASEAN must be ready to plot a strategy with them.

Necessarily, Chinese assistance is essential in the background so far as the coalition is concerned but up to now it has not been forthcoming. But ASEAN has not put all her options in the single basket of coalition. There are several other options left. China must reconsider her position towards the coalition so both military solution, which she prefers, and a political solution, which ASEAN prefers, can be coordinated into a single strategy acceptable to the rest of the world.

SPECIFICS OF SOVIET TRADE AGREEMENT DISCLOSED

BK141304 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 14 May 82

[Excerpt] According to deputy Commerce Minister Praphat Limpraphan, in the agreement signed between Thailand and the Soviet Union yesterday Thailand proposed to sell 700,000-800,000 tons of rice, 100,000-200,000 tons of corn, 50,000-75,000 tons of sorghum, 2,000-3,000 tons of mung beans, 400,000-600,000 tons of tapioca, 20,000 tons of rubber, 30,000-40,000 tons of raw sugar, 500-1,000 tons of canned pineapple, $5 million worth of textile products, 70,000-100,000 tons of fluorite ore and 100,000 tons of tin. The Soviet Union proposed to sell several items to Thailand, such as machinery and chemical products.

Thailand and the Soviet Union have not set the price of their products because the Thai side could not set the price of its agricultural products in advance. The deputy commerce minister said that the trade agreement with the Soviet Union will ensure a market for Thai products, which will benefit Thai farmers. After completion of the agreement in 1-1/2 years, both sides will renegotiate their trade targets.

KHMER-SRV CLASH REPORTED NEAR PRACHIN BURI

[Text] Aranyaprathet — Fighting between Khmer Rouge and Vietnamese-led Heng Samrin forces flared anew near the Thai-Kampuchean border last Friday, and several artillery shells struck the Thai side.

There were no causalties or property damage on Thai soil but army bomb experts were summoned to Bang Nong Ian to defuse an unexploded artillery shells, military sources said. The clash occurred between 6:30-7:30 p.m. when a band of about 100 Khmer Rouge troops from Division 474 engaged an unknown number of Heng Samrin forces on Highway Number 5, between kilometres 4 and 5 at Ban Pho Sam Ton. The clash took place three kilometres from the border opposite Ban Khok Sabaeng, about 15 kilometres south of Aranyaprathet.

Deputy commander of Division 474, Mit Peap, told reporters in an interview near the border that Vietnam had recently brought in fresh reinforcements.

Military sources, however, said that fighting has lessened somewhat because of continuous rainfall in the area which makes troop movement difficult.

NEW 'YELLOW RAIN' VICTIMS ARRIVE FROM LAOS

[Text] Four new victims of "yellow rain" attacks in Laos, their bodies covered with sores, have sought refuge in Thailand. The Hmong refugees told interviewers at the Ban Winai Camp that residents of three villages have died following the attack, six weeks or more ago.

Reports from the Loei Province refugee settlement said officials are trying to place two of the four men in a Bangkok hospital for treatment and observation. Scientists will also study a large package of residue to try to determine the source and composition of the toxin involved.

The refugees, from three different villages in the Phu He area of central Laos, all reported that the "yellow rain" was sprayed from an aircraft which flew over village ricefields in late March on early April.

Three of the Hmong -- two teenage boys and a 25-year-old man -- said during extensive interviews with refugee officials that the unidentified chemical killed villagers, animals and crops, although in all three cases, dogs and cats survived unaffected.

Resident doctors at Ban Winai said they had never seen refugees suffering from similar symptoms, and were unable to diagnose their problems. Two of the Hmong had lesions and scabs over most of their body, while the third had only an affected leg. In all cases, the refugees said, they and other villagers vomitted blood, suffered varying losses of hearing and sight, had difficulty in breathing and suffered white discharges from their eyes and noses.

Two refugees said they knew, or had heard from other villagers, of 17 deaths in their tiny villages. The third said that from the time of the attack, one villager died every two or three days until he left for Thailand. Officials involved in the case believe the three were involved in the latest case of "yellow rain" by Soviet-supplied chemical experts. They have, however, withheld final judgment until more extensive medical and scientific tests had been made.

The new Laotian report follows by only a day the release of a scientific report in Washington on blood samples taken from six Khmer Rouge soldiers following a battle with Vietnamese troops last February near Ban Nong Pru, south of Aranyaprathet.

Scientists said they discovered the Khmer had tricothecene mycotoxins in their body, and identified the substances specifically as T2 and HT2. They said HT2 was a matabolite of T2, the main mycotoxic substance believed used by Vietnamese, Laotian and Soviet forces.

Meanwhile, U.S. officials are analysing statements taken from four Vietenamese military defectors currently at the Phanat Nikhom refugee camp in Chon Buri. The four, from the 5th and 307th Regular Army Divisions, have claimed to interviewers that they were involved in various ways in chemical and biological warfare. One claimed that he was a member of a security platoon protecting a "special unit" detailed to poison water holes around Phnum Malai, the Khmer Rouge hilltop stronghold south of Aranyaprathet.

SRV TROOPS REPORTED DEPLOYED ALONG LAO BORDER

[Text] Nakhon Phanom — About 8,300 Vietnamese soldiers have been deployed in a Laotian border district opposite this northeastern province, a senior local official said yesterday.

Assistant Governor Pol Capt Wirot Phuchinpa quoted an intelligence report as showing that two more companies of Vietnamese soldiers will be reinforced in the Hin Boun area this month. Hin Boun, which is a strategic Laotian district, is opposite the Thai border district of Ban Paeng, about 92 kms from the provincial seat.

About 150 Vietnamese soldiers led by a military officer identified only as "Col Ruong" joined the Vietnamese force stationed at a camp opposite Ban Paeng here on April 27, quoted the assistant governor. However, Pol Capt Wirot also reported that some of the 15 anti-aircraft guns and four rocket launchers had been moved to another military outpost at Namtho camp.

ANTIPIRACY CHIEF ON NEED FOR UNRESTRICTED UN AID

BK170210 Bangkok POST in English 17 May 82 pp 1, 3

[Text] Strong action against pirates preying on Vietnamese boat people will be launched as soon as the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) agrees to provide a committed U.S. $3.65 million allocation to Thailand "without strings," according to the country's anti-piracy chief. Over ten governments have pledged various amounts to make up this total to help the Thai authorities combat piracy.

Secretary-General Prasong Sunsiri of the National Security Council, placed in charge of the anti-piracy drive by Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon, stressed that no conditions must be imposed on how the Thai Government uses the fund or equipment purchased with the fund.

"We require autonomy to carry out our plans without any hampering of our initiatives, because that is the only way to make the campaign effective," he said. He would be willing to have international observers or submit reports on results.

Squadron Leader Prasong informed Jacques Terrin, local representative of UNHCR, on Friday that he could not agree to the conditions imposed. Because he believes that at least $30 million, ten times more than the amount offered, would be need for real success in suprressing piracy, Prasong told the UNHCR official the sum would be sufficient for only one year's activities. Nevertheless, he added, the assistance would improve the capability of the navy, the marine police and the police of the southern coastal provinces, to operate within the 12-mile territorial waters.

More funds would further extend anti-piracy capability into the 200 mile economic zone. Here, however, Prasong pointed out, the problem of seas claimed by neighbouring countries clashing with those claimed by Thailand must be faced. Thailand cannot operate in disputed areas. He also noted that it is not only Thai pirates but also Vietnamese, Kampuchean and pirates of other nationalities who rob, rape and abuse the boat people. Thai officials have captured Vietnamese and Kampuchean pirates who used Thai fishing vessels which they had seized previously, he said.

While the UNHCR considers Thailand's request for the anti-piracy aid to be "untied," Squadron Leader Prasong said that Thailand would go ahead with the inadequate equipment that it has to combat this crime in the gulf for humanitarian reasons. "This will be beneficial not only to Thailand but also to the international community," he said.

Regarding "rescue vessels" which have been or are being sent out to help the boat people, Prasong suggested that they loiter around the exit points of Vietnam. In this way they can pick up the refugees before they undergo the dangers of storms and piracy. However, he emphasised, these vessels should take the boat people to the countries to which they belong.

Other sources said that the fund will provide the navy with two patrol boats and two patrol boats and two spotter planes and cover operational costs. These boats will operate with one to be provided by the navy itself. The planes will fly over the gulf to look out for pirates.

The marine police reportedly will get a patrol boat and operating expenses and the habour department some small inspection vessels. Police in the southern coastal provinces are expected to receive three speedboats and operating expenses.

Concerning the "strings," Squadron Leader Prasong stated: "We must have full jurisdiction to undertake the anti-piracy drive ourselves, free of outside interference." The NSC secretary general insisted to Mr Terrin: "We don't want to be in the position of working under a hire contract which would be the case if we accept the conditions by the UNHCR."

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER DISCUSSES ANTIDRUG DRIVE

["Excerpts" from interview with Deputy Prime Minister Prachuap Suntharangkun]

[Excerpt] Question: How did the second offensive against the Shan rebels start?

Answer: Khun Sa was still trying to make Thai territory his base for his logistical reason. We found out that military-like barracks had been erected and decided to work out a plan in the form of our own exercise to counter the move. In the future we will apply similar pressure on all foreign armed elements on the border to prevent them from crossing the border. After our last offensive in January, the rebels came back to build their strongholds and we had to move in to destroy them.... When our aircraft flew over Baan Lao Lue (eight kms northwest of Ben Hin Taek), we were fired on. We detected about 40 Khun Sa men and began repelling them. We still did not find their presence in other parts of the border. The rebels had no definite locations.

We took aerial pictures of the border areas every month. That was why we immediately spotted the 100 houses erected. We will send in ground forces to confirm the type of the houses which had the military appearance. We have to find out first whether they are just houses or whether they are other structures. We will certainly stage air attacks as soon as we find out what they are.

Question: Is the offensive part of the Thai-Burmese cooperation plan?

Answer: We have made four points of principle of cooperation (with Burma). One is that we will consistently suppress the drug trafficking movements. Secondly, we will exchange intelligence reports. Thirdly, we will have discussions over important matters and lastly, we will implement crop substitution programme.

Our war with Khun Sa has not finished and we will continue our suppression until we could drive them out of Thai territory. We regularly inform the Burmese Government on what we do and this is not a kind of request from Rangoon. But joint operations with the Burmese Government have not been planned. It depends on where the Khun Sa's army happens to be. If it is found on the Thai side, we would take action and if it is on the Burmese side the Burmese would do it.

But if the rebels happen to be just on the border, a joint operation is then necessary. But we will have to wait until that time comes. However, we will try to avoid it (joint operations) because it has to be a large-scale operation.

Question: Was the question of joint operation discussed during your last visit to Rangoon?

Answer: There is no problem even if it was not discussed. But the size of the Khun Sa's Army does not make it necessary for such joint operation. The rebels now number no more than 2,000. We captured some very young soldiers during our last operation.

Question: There has been concern that Khun Sa might have joined hands with the Communist Party of Burma (CPB).

Answer: We are not yet certain about such possibility. Contacts between them might have been established in the past. CPB might have sold opium to Khum Sa or Khun Sa himself might have approached it for opium. But we can rule out the chance that they will unite in a bid to liberate the country (Burma). I just simply can't imagine any activities of Khun Sa that might resemble a war of liberation.

Question: Khun Sa was said to have more opium-growing areas inside Burma than inside Thailand.

Answer: Khun Sa and his men are not opium growers. He goes after others for opium. He maintains agents inside villages where opium is grown to purchase it. He might even distribute opium seedlings too. Around 700 tons of opium is being grown in the Golden Triangle this year. Fifty tons of them are grown in Thailand and Laos. Our country offers a much better communication systems and that is why the drug traffic has been hectic.

Question: Is it true that CPB has begun refining heroin?

Answer: It is not only the Burmese Communists. Anyone can do it anywhere. There are chemists who can produce heroin without having to use much know-how. But the report that CPB has turned to opium trading is so distant and we are not in a position to comment on that. But we have heard news that CPB has resorted to opium trading because of reduction in aid (from China). The same thing (cut in aid) is also happening to the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT). They (Chinese) now consider government-to-government relations more important (than the party-to-party relations).

Question: What kind of development play [as published] is going on at Baan Hin Taek?

Answer: The Interior Ministry and the Supreme Command are doing the job. We are trying to urge foreign countries to take part in the development projects there.

Question: How valid is the report that Khun Sa tried to negotiate with Thai authorities to return the body of Thaveep Kaentaptim, the news editor of MATUPHUM daily?

Answer: No, Khun Sa wrote me a letter several months ago but there was nothing new in its contents. Khun Sa is in no position to make any negotiations. We would be mad if we negotiated with him. He claimed in the letter that he had done nothing wrong and was willing to cooperate with us to crack down on opium trade.

He also asked for the captured arms of the rebels to be returned saying he wanted it to liberate the country. I don't want to get involved in Burmese politics.

The Burmese Government appears appreciative of the present Thai policy because we keep our words. The premier (Prem) said we would supress Khun Sa and we did it.

Question: Were the offensives against Khun Sa linked to visits to Burma by Thai senior authorities?

Answer: No they had nothing to do with the visits at all. We have to keep on suppressing the rebels before they can recruit new members. We will have constant surveillance and destroy all heroin refineries we come across. There are now no more heroin refineries inside Thai territory. But there are still some inside Burma.

Question: Has Burma ever told us it is facing problems, for example the problem with the minority groups?

Answer: The Burmese Government has never asked for cooperation (to fight the minority groups) from us. We only discussed narcotics and that could be the first step of our future talks.

Question: What has become of Lao Su, the heroin kingpin who escaped during detention?

Answer: Lao Su is just a minor figure compared to Khun Sa. He is only a henchman for Khun Sa. The two may have had contacts.

Question: What kind of cooperation in anti-narcotics work was discussed during your visit to Singapore?

Answer: We talked about the so-called "preventive detention law" which enable authorities to detain drug suspects without trial. There are about 3,500 people under detention there and 450 of them are drug traffickers. But we still cannot have this kind of law here. The law imposes a maximum prison term of 10 years and a two years of detention.

Another topic of discussion was on chemicals used in refining heroin. We told Singapore authorities we want to have information on the movement of these chemicals from Singapore and Malaysia into Thailand.

Question: Will the preventive detention law be adopted in Thailand?

Answer: We are studying the matter. But we don't think parliament will accept it.

Question: How good is our cooperation (in drug suppression) with Singapore and Malaysia?

Answer: Very good. But we have to go to Malaysia after the elections.

Question: How would you describe the government's performance in fighting against narcotics?

Answer: Speaking on behalf of the government, I would say that we have made tremendous achievements. During the Sanya government we caught Lo Hsing-han, the heroin overlord. But the present government is taking action against Khun Sa and it is a very big task. We lost 17 lives in the fighting against Khun Sa in the first big offensive in February, and it simply showed how much sacrifice we are making to fight against drugs.

We have no policy of making a false show out of the affair. We still don't understand the motive of the people who lied to Khun Sa and urged him to return to the border.

We are considering improving the communications in the areas to pave the way for development. If we develop the northern areas we will have the country's best tourist spot there.

Question: How long did we know about the activities of Sihadet Chindawong (Thai vice consul in Chicago) before he was arrested?

Answer: We had followed him for quite some time. In fact, we wanted a bigger fish but the news began to leak, so we decided to move and arrested him.

SITTHI'S TALKS WITH SIHANOUK CRITICIZED

BK141134 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 14 May 82

[Text] Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila has visited China. While in Beijing he held talks with Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang and Foreign Minister Haung Hua. Sitthi Sawetsila also held talks with Sihanouk on the establishment of the so-called alliance of three Khmer resistance groups to oppose Vietnam.

Why are a number of Thai authorities, including Sitthi Sawetsila, so eager to serve Beijing's design? Do they really want to solve the Kampuchean problem on the basis of defending the Kampuchean people's interests? No, all of Bangkok and Beijing's allegations are aimed against Vietnam. Their so-called defense of the Kampuchean people's interests is only designed to deprive them of independence and sovereignty. Sihanouk himself admitted that China intended to use Kampuchea to conduct a war against Vietnam in 10 or 20 years.

The China visit of Sitthi Sawetsila, as well as the efforts of other Thai leaders to shut wild beasts in the same cage, reflects Beijing embarrassment in the fact of fine development in Kampuchea.

According to AFP, even Sihanouk, after meeting with Sitthi Sawetsila, remained doubtful about the prospect of setting up the so-called alliance of three Khmer resistance groups.

Whatever the effort, China, the United States and their followers will fail to reverse the situation in Kampuchea. Their claim about the existence of three resistance groups in Kampuchea can deceive nobody. Following China's policy of pitting ASEAN against Indochina and intervening in Kampuchea's internal affairs, the Thai authorities will only do harm to peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

PRC, ASEAN DIFFERENCES ON KHMER COALITION NOTED

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 15 — Recent discussions between Chinese leaders and Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila showed that the ASEAN countries and China differed more and more on a "tripartite government" of Khmer reactionaries, comments NHAN DAN today.

It was also clear, the paper says, that the Chinese expansionists were in a hurry to rally Khmer rebels to oppose the Kampuchean revolution and cope with the 37th U.N. General Assembly. "With Washington's blessing Beijing is seeking ASEAN assistance in bringing about a merger of Khmer rebels. Yet opinion remains divided, with China and the Khmer Rouge demanding a "coalition government, or a troika with the Beijing-controlled Pol Pot gang as leader," the paper says.

NHAN DAN points out that the difference is not easy to remove. "The Kampuchean people," it says, "are master of their destiny under the leadership of a revolutionary party and a revolutionary government. They will wipe out all reactionary forces and will reject any 'government' rigged up by Beijing. Kampuchea will continue to advance along the path of independence and freedom", NHAN DAN concludes.

NHAN DAN HAILS AWARDING OF ORDER TO TIKHONOV

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 14 — NHAN DAN's editorial today extends warmest congratulations to Soviet Premier N.A. Tikhonov on his decoration with Vietnam's Sao Vang (Red Star) Order.

After recalling that President Leonid Brezhnev and other Soviet leaders have been similarly honoured, the paper says, "The conferment of the Sao Vang Order on the chairman of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers is another expression of the warm feelings felt by the Communist Party, the government and the people of Vietnam for the Communist Party, the government and the people of the Soviet Union".

"Solidarity and all-sided cooperation with the Soviet Union" NHAN DAN says, "is a principle of Vietnam's consistent foreign policy, the Vietnamese people know how great and valuable Soviet support and assistance to them in socialist construction and national defence has been. Their multiform cooperation with the Soviet Union and other members of the socialist community has been of primary importance in their struggle against Chinese expansionism and U.S. imperialism."

NHAN DAN stresses that assistance to the Vietnamese revolution is a "tradition" of the Soviet Union. "Chairman N.A. Tikhonov, together with the entire Soviet party and people, has made great contributions to consolidating and promoting the great friendship, militant solidarity and all-sided cooperation between the two parties, governments and peoples", the paper says.

PHAM VAN DONG VISITS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

[Text] According to a VNA report, chairman of the Council of Ministers Pham Van Dong, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau, recently visited the Jose Marti Agricultural College, a national center for agricultural cadre training and scientific research.

Vice Minister of Agriculture (Tran Khai) and (Le Duy Thuc), the college headmaster, accompanied Chairman Dong to some of the college's scientific research installations and the laboratory where new rice strains are cultivated experimentally in an attempt to adapt them to different types of soil. High-yield rice varieties that are resistant to blight are also being studied and the nursing of fruit-tree branches as a substitute for the traditional time-consuming methods of grafting is being examined experimentally. Chairman Dong also visited the college's data processing center.

The comrade chairman also paid a visit to Da Ton village in Gia Lam District. This village used to be a poorly rated village. But with the assistance of the Jose Marti College, it is now achieving a rice yield of 6 tons per hectare and the living conditions of its people have improved considerably.

During a cordial meeting with cadres, teachers and students from the college, Chairman Dong warmly appraised the achievements of the college in training, scientific research and the application of technological innovations to agricultural production in our country.

Speaking of the important position of the college in the agricultural development of our country, he said: Like many countries in the world, in the immediate future and for many years to come, the production of grain and food products will remain a primary problem which we must concentrate on resolving. In this connection, the Jose Marti College must make worthy contributions by conducting basic and advanced training of agricultural engineers and by applying scientific and technological innovations to agricultural production.

Speaking of the major objectives of the college in its struggle to become a center for all agricultural colleges and high schools throughout the country, Chairman Pham Van Dong stressed: The college must struggle to fulfill its four major tasks of teaching and studying well, conducting fruitful scientific research, applying good scientific innovations to production and improving the living conditions of its teachers and students.

To teach and study well, the college should emphasize its tasks in the domain of scientific information in order to be promptly and fully aware of the situation of agricultural production in the country and the situation of agriculture in the world, primarily the agricultural situation of those countries with conditions similar to those of our country. By doing so, the teaching and studying programs will meet the urgent requirements of agricultural production in our country.

Along with teaching and studying well, the college should vigorously accelerate its scentific research to support production. This is a matter of paramount importance. The college's research activities must be conducted in the right direction, involving specific targets and realistic contents. Moreover, the college must keep in touch and sign contracts with production installations in order to apply its scientific and technical knowledge through all means and in a useful manner to production in these installations.

On behalf of the cadres and students of the college, Comrade (Le Duy Thuc) pledged to implement the instructions of Chairman Pham Van Dong scrupulously by overcoming shortcomings and developing achievements and existing potentials in order to surge forward and be worthy of the attentive care of the party, state and people.

QUAN DOI NHAN DAN ON CONSUMER GOODS PRODUCTION

BK141043 Hanoi QUAN DOI NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 16 Apr 82 pp 1, 4

[Editorial: "National Defense Enterprises Must Engage in Producing Consumer Goods"]

[Text] The priority objective in the economic and social fields set forth by the Fifth VCP Congress for the 1980's is to meet the most pressing and essential needs and gradually stabilizing and eventually improve, to a certain extent, the people's material and cultural life. In particular, it consists of bringing about a steady solution to the foodgrain and foodstuffs problem and a method of better meeting the requirements for clothing, study, medical care, housing, travel, child care and other essential consumption needs.

To attain this target, it is imperative to step up consumer goods production to meet society's material and cultural needs, create more jobs, increase sources of goods for local consumption and export, stimulate agricultural production, expand the division of labor and increase social products and national income as contributions to the accumulation for our economy. This ever pressing task can help stabilize the people's livelihood and can greatly contribute to achieving a balance between money and goods and to stabilizing markets and prices. Therefore, it is clearly stated in the resolution of the fifth party congress: "There must be policies and uniform measures to develop all available production potentials and the capabilities of light industry, foodstuffs industry and even the centrally run and local industries. We must strive to develop various branches and trades, small industry and artisan industry in the cities and countryside; properly employ individual artisans; achieve cooperation among state-operated enteprises, cooperatives and individual workers to step up good production; and fully use production facilities of national defense enterprises to produce consumer goods."

National defense enterprises are production establishments of the army and, at the same time, a component of the system of production establishments of the national economy. Therefore, national defense enterprises must strive to understand and implement the production policies laid down by the fifth party congress. They must strengthen national defense industry appropriately while, at the same time, exploiting its capabilities for the development of the economy. On the basis of striving to perform well their main tasks of producing and repairing weapons and equipment to meet national defense demands, national defense enterprises can and must fully use their labor capabilities, equipment, raw materials and discarded materials to accelerate consumer goods production.

There are different requirements for the production of national defense goods and consumer goods in terms of technical regulations and product quality and they are, therefore, interdependent. Whether this interdependence is positive or negative depends on the organization and leadership of production by each enterprise. In view of this, correctly settling the relationship between the production of national defense goods and consumer goods production is a primary and important task of national defense enterprises. Because their main task is to meet national defense needs, these enterprises must devote all of their efforts and give priority to the satisfactory fulfillment of this task. As our country's economy is facing difficulties concerning materials, energy and raw materials, making full use of capabilities for producing consumer goods in exchange for materials and raw materials from the various economic sectors is a method of creating conditions for the fulfillment of the national defense production task. Thus, it is necessary to avoid the tendency to unilaterally emphasize the material interests of each enterprise by using national defense materials, raw materials and energy to produce consumer goods, thereby causing trouble in its main production task. But, at the same time, it is necessary to encourage the development of all creative abilities and potential to produce consumer goods in the service of society.

The national defense enterprises have fairly great potential. They have an abundance of discarded raw materials, including lumber, cloth, plastic and precious and rare metals, and their technical abilities are fairly high in certain areas. In the past they have fully used discarded raw materials to produce hundreds of consumer goods -- from ordinary goods to goods requiring high technical standards and meeting export criteria -- thereby satisfying part of the troops and people's needs. However, due to the lack of a uniform policy and slackened leadership, national defense enterprises' potentials have not been fully developed. Therefore, consumer goods production must be included in the enterprises' plans in which targets, tasks, measures and regulations involving this line of production must be included in the enterprises' plans in which targets, tasks, measures and regulations involving this line of production must be clearly defined. This will help national defense enterprises fully utilize all of their capabilities to further increase the production of better quality consumer goods, with a wider variety of items and with even greater economic efficiency. It will also help the state ensure control of these products.

Because national defense enterprises produce and repair different national defense goods, the machines, equipment, production capacity and discarded raw materials of each enterprise are different. Each enterprise, in addition to organizing the production of a large quantity of goods in their entirety, is capable of producing parts of other goods. This requires organs responsible for the management of national defense enterprises to study the potential capabilities of each enterprise and work out plans for organizing the coordination among enterprises in participating in the production of new consumer goods.

As our country is currently experiencing a shortage of consumer goods, fully using all capabilities for producing consumer goods and placing them under state control for rational distribution so that they will reach the workers' hands are urgent tasks designed to stabilize the people's life. Conscious of their responsibilities, all national defense enterprises, including those specializing in producing or repairing national defense goods, must immediately work out plans for exploiting all capabilities thoroughly to further accelerate consumer goods production. This is the most realistic way of contributing to the successful implementation of the resolution of the fifth party congress.

Security Chief Comments

BK151421 Jakarta Domestic Service in Indonesian 1200 GMT 15 May 82

[Excerpts] The consequences and excesses of the recent 1982 general elections are expected to be settled completely within a short period to ensure that the situation in the country is back to the normal situation prior to the general elections. This was stated by the commander of the Security and Order Restoration Command [Kopkamtib], Admiral Sudomo, at a press conference in Jakarta today explaining the outcome of the Kopkamtib-sponsored meeting with regional and district special executive officers as well as commanders of police districts throughout Indonesia.

According to Admiral Sudomo, the settlement of the excesses of the general elections will be made through discussions and consultations in line with the state philosophy of pancasila. Apart from that, they will be also settled through courts if strong evidence is found.

Materials considered to be the cause of the excesses will be gathered for consideration and improvement of the next general election law, which is expected to be presented to the forthcoming People's Consultative Assembly plenary session.

Admiral Sudomo also assured that the armed forces will provide protection against any possible threats to the people.

PPP Rejects Election Results

BK140407 Hong Kong AFP in English 0343 GMT 14 May 82

[Text] Jakarta, 14 May (AFP) -- The Moslem United Development Party (PPP) of the South Celebes branch issued a statement today rejecting the results of last week's general elections because of alleged irregularities in polling and vote counting. The statement siad there was evidence of irregularities in many electoral areas in the province; therefore the party had decided to reject the results of the elections.

It called on party members in the province to reject their elections in the central and provincial parliaments. Disciplinary measures would be taken against those disregarding the call, the statement said. It also urged that polling and vote counting should be held again in the South Celebes Province.

The rejection was seen here as a move of open defiance against Home Minister General Amir Makhmud, charged with organising the elections, who made it clear yesterday that the elections results were valid and should be accepted by the Indonesian people.

According to the latest results announced today at 0800 local time (0100 GMT) PPP gained 317,850 votes, the ruling Golkar (Functional Groups) 2,757,155 and the PDI (Democratic Party) 18,289 in South Celebes.

There had also been reports on alleged irregularities in other provinces, but the government appeared to ignore them.

Meanwhile, the armed forces faction in parliament last night stated that the election results were legal and valid. Faction Spokesman General Sumrahadi said the results should be accepted by all parties that contested the general elections.

Golkar won a landslide victory of nearly 64 percent, PPP 27 percent and PDI 9 percent out of total of 75,014,980 votes counted from over 82 million registered voters.

PPP FACTION LEADER KHALID WITHDRAWS RESIGNATION

BK141156 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1028 GMT 14 May 82

[Text] Jakarta, 14 May (ANTARA) -- General Chairman of the Nahdatul Ulama [NU] (a major component of the Indonesian Moslem United Development Party -- PPP) announced here Friday he had decided to withdraw his statement of resignation from his post and would instead carry on the task entrusted him by the NU's 26th national congress in Semarang. "I apologize to the senior Moslem scholars whom I respect and who are the witness today of my act to renounce my previous statement," Idham Khalid wrote in a letter addressed to the Central Executive Board in Jakarta Friday.

Photo copies of his above letter were distributed to the press by Amin Iskandar, member of parliament of the PPP faction at the House of Representatives building the same day.

In reply to a question, Iskandar explained that Idham Khalid handed the letter when he called at the latter's residence to report that eleven NU regional heads had arrived in Jakarta to raise objection to Khalid's resignation bid. Six more NU regional heads are also expected to come to the capital city for the same purpose, Iskandar revealed.

Seventeen of the 27 regional heads of NU have issued a joint statement addressed to the Central Executive Board describing the resignation of Idham Khalid as general chairman as void.

According to Amin Iskandar, even before the joint statement Idham Khalid had received letters and telegrams raising objection to his resignation. As a result he decided to accede to their demand to withdraw his tender for resignation. Iskandar said that Idham Khalid's decision would be conveyed to NU Rois Aam (president) K.H. Ali Maksum in Yogyakarta, vice president of NU K.H. Anwar Musadad and other NU executive board members simultaneously.

In his 4-page hand-written letter dated May 4, 1982, Idham Khalid related the background that had led him to resign as general chairman of NU as reported in the press on May 6. In the letter he said he considered the manner of his resignation as not normal, because he had become the NU chairman through election by a formal congress in which he won the majority votes. "At that time I was suffering from an ailment in the neck, so that I just agreed without much thinking when a number of respectable scholars whom I know personally urged me to withdraw from the NU chairmanship for health reasons," he wrote.

K.H. Mujib Ridwan, one of the five scholars that came to his home in Jakarta on May 2, took out a typewritten statement from a file-holder and asked Idham Khalid to sign it. It was a statement of resignation.

At that time he asked that his tender for resignation should not be announced to the press before the following congress of the NU leadership. To his regret, the news proved to have broken in newspapers in urabaya, Yogyakarta and Jakarta. The breaking of the news had led to public polemics among the NU leadership. "This really made me sad and ashamed" Idham Khalid stated in his letter.

After taking into consideration the fact that 17 NU regional branches in Indonesia had protested his resignation and also other facts relating to the future interests of NU, Idham Khalid decided to withdraw his statement of resignation.

According to the letter, the Muslim scholars who came to his home asking for his resignation were K.H. Asad Sy. Arifin, K.H. Mahrus, K.H. Alid Ma'sum, K.H. Masykur and K.H. Mujib Ridwan.

SAKURAUCHI REJECTS BROCK FARM PRODUCTS DEMAND

OW180517 Tokyo KYODO in English 0501 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 18, KYODO -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi early Tuesday morning sent a message to U.S. trade representative William Brock rejecting his demand for an early liberalization of farm product imports.

In the message, Sakurauchi said Japan would like to resume agricultural negotiations with the United States soon. Sakurauchi sent instructions to Yoshio Okawara, Japan's ambassador to the U.S., to deliver the message to Brock, in reply to the letter Brock gave Sakurauchi last Tuesday in Paris. The Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry is hoping that the U.S. Government will swiftly reply to the Sakurauchi message.

Officials of the ministry said the date for Japan-U.S. consultations in San Francisco on measures to provide wider market access to foreign farm products would probably be set within a couple of days. The officials said, however, that it is practically impossible for the two countries to hold such consultations later this week as agreed on in informal talks between the two countries in Geneva May 5. They added it is likely that such consultations will be held in the first half of next week.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki told Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Minister Kichiro Tazawa at the semiweekly Cabinet meeting earlier in the day to include farm products in a new market-opening package being prepared. However, the Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry officials said it would not be advantageous for Japan to negotiate with the U.S. on the matter on the assumption that farm products would be included in the new package. They said whether to include farm products in the package should be determined following coming consultations with the U.S.

U.S. TO BE EXCLUDED FROM MILITARY TECHNOLOGY BAN

[Text] Tokyo, May 17, KYODO -- The government will maintain its policy against transfer of military technology to other countries but will treat the United States as an exception, a top Foreign Ministry official said Monday.

Government officials have said they are studying if they can meet a U.S. request for Japan's sophisticated electronics technology for military purposes.

The request was made officially last June in a meeting between then Japanese Defense Agency Chief Joji Omura and U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

The 1976 government policy virtually bans export of weapons and related technology.

"Now that the current Diet session may be extended by three months, I don't think we can leave the U.S. request under study forever," the official said. He said the government will shortly decide to make the United States an exception to the policy.

The current 150-day parliament session is due to close on Wednesday but the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) plans to extend it until the end of August.

The military technology issue will be discussed when Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and U.S. President Ronald Reagan meet privately in France next month on the occasion of the Versailles summit of seven major Western democracies.

The official said, however, it remains to be negotiated how far Japan can and should cooperate with the United States in the field of military technology. The official, who declined to be named, did not elaborate.

Under a tentative policy, the government will transfer military technology to the United States only after it has ascertained how the specific technology will be used when exported. If the United States is involved in an international dispute, Japan will deal with military technology cooperation with "utmost caution," according to the informal government policy.

DEFENSE OFFICIAL CALLS FOR 'BALANCED' DEFENSE

[Text] Tokyo, May 17, KYODO -- A high Defense Agency official emphasized Monday that ground-launched missiles only are insufficient to secure Japan's defense, and that a balanced and systematic defense is vital to fend off various stages of foreign invasion into the country.

Akira Shioda, chief of the agency's defense bureau, made the assertion when he met with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki at his official residence.

The prime minister instructed the agency to study the most appropriate defense program for a sea bound country last January.

In an interim report, Shioda explained his agency's basic defense plans are to prevent enemies from landing on mainland Japan; to await U.S. military support and then to carry out joint actions by Japanese and American forces.

In keeping enemies from the Japanese soil, the system of defense like a porcupine's which stings with its quills is limited, Shioda said.

In the first place, he pointed out, collection of overall information and establishment of an early warning system are needed. In addition, interceptor fighters, support fighters, destroyers, as well as submarines, missile-launching vessels and ground-to-sea ballistic missiles are necessary, Shioda said.

USSR ALLOWS FISHERMEN TO GATHER SEAWEED

OW141151 Tokyo KYODO in English 1130 GMT 14 May 82

[Text] Moscow, May 14, KYODO -- The Soviet Union Friday agreed to extend for another year an agreement on Japanese seaweed gathering in waters around the Soviet-held Kaigara Island east of Hokkaido in northern Japan.

Under the agreement, reached between the Soviet Fishing Ministry and the non-governmental Hokkaido Fisheries Association, Japanese fishermen can gather seaweed between June 1 and September 30.

Japanese fishermen last year were allowed to gather tangle for the first time in five years since 1977 but actually worked for only one month because the agreement was reached late in August.

A maximum of 30 ships were allowed to operate last year but the number this year was increased to 330, Japanese association officials said.

They said the Japanese fishermen would pay yen 66 million in fishery fees to the Soviet Union, the same as last year.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES U.S. WEAPONS SALES

SK180504 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0354 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 18 (KCNA) — NODONG SINMUN on May 17 carries an article headlined "What U.S. Imperialists Seek in Arms Sale?"

Noting that U.S.-made lethal weapons are sure to be found everywhere guns roar and people shed blood, the paper brands all the successive rulers of the United States as bosses of "death merchants" who stooped to any infamy in their bid to bring greater profits to the monopolies.

The present rulers of the United States, faithful servants of the U.S. munition monoplies and war-thirsty elements, are putting greater spurs to arms expansion and production, the paper says, and goes on:

Now the war industry in the United States serves as a major means of amassing fortunes and reaping windfalls which pours bundles of dollars into the pot bellies of monopolies bent on grabbing high-rate monopolistic profits. The U.S. imperialists not only mass-produce weapons but export them as a means of criminal acts such as aggression and war, domination and plunder.

They are arming their "allies" and puppets with destruction weapons of new types to drive them out as "shock brigades" against the socialist countries and countries of the new-emerging forces. In the past ten years the U.S. imperialists have transferred weapons worth 7,360 million dollars to the Israeli aggressors and weapons worth 3,409 million dollars to the South Korean puppets.

Besides, they have supplied a large amount of destruction weapons to the reactionaries in South Africa, Chile, El Salvador and other countries where racism and fascism hold sway, to goad them into invasion of countries of the new-emerging forces and suppression of the people. Under the mask of "helper" they supply weapons to countries unable to produce them, with political strings attached, to tighten control over them.

In fact, arms-importing countries are compelled to depend on arms-exporting countries in order to learn how to use the weapons or to receive accessories and ammunitions. With this in mind, the crafty U.S. imperialists are getting frantic in the export of arms to many countries of the world. And, by gaining chances of "contact" with reactionary brasshats through the arms export, the U.S. imperialists seek to bribe them and hatch plots to overthrow the governments for turning the progressive countries to the right.

By massively supplying weapons to countries which do not produce them, the U.S. imperialists aggravate antagonism between tri[illegible] or between nations in these countries and constantly cause border disputes or regional disputes between neighbouring countries to put them at feud and quarrel.

Such arms export of the U.S. imperialists is not only aimed at money-making but mainly aimed at splitting and disintegrating the countries of the new-emerging forces following the road of anti-imperialism and independence and, furthermore, at realising their wild ambition for world supremacy.

But the aggressive designs they seek through arms export is infeasible. Many peoples of the new-emerging forces following the powerful trend of independence are fighting actively to smash the schemes of the U.S. imperialists, seeing through their crafty manoeuvres.

KWP OFFICIAL'S ADDRESS MARKS KWANGJU UPRISING

SK170255 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0858 GMT 16 May 82

[Speech by Chong Chun-ki, alternative member of the KWP Central Committee and vice premier of DPRK Administration Council, at meeting held at Pyongyang Gymnasium on 16 May to mark 2d anniversary of Kwangju uprising in South Korea -- live]

[Text] Comrades, we greet the second anniversary of the heroic Kwangju people's uprising in circumstances in which the South Korean masses of all strata are staging the anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle more vigorously than ever before and compatriots at home and abroad are daily deepening and expanding their movement for an independent and peaceful reunification of the nation. [applause]

As is widely known, the Kwangju people's uprising in May 1980, which set the whole world in turmoil, was a just struggle for democracy and national salvation staged against the criminal maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their stooge the Chon Tu-hwan ring who were trying to restore the fascist, dictatorial Yusin system. It was also heroic resistance which displayed the firm will and persistent fighting spirit of the South Korean people who were yearning for democracy and the nation's peaceful reunification. [applause]

With the elimination of the notorious Yusin dictator who had reigned over South Korea for 18 years, a bright prospect of democracy and national reunification unfolded before the South Korean people. Aspiring to build a new democratic society free of fascism and division, with the cursed Yusin system completely cleaned up, the South Korean masses of all strata had risen in one mind. Embarrassed at this, the Chon Tu-hwan ring, the boss of the Yusin remnants, under the agitation of his U.S. imperialist master, entered a path of establishing a new military fascist dictatorship, running counter to the unanimous aspirations of the South Korean people.

In particular, the ring expanded martial law throughout South Korea on 17 May 1980, banned all political activities, arrested and detained a vast number of democratic personages and patriotic students, including Kim Tae-chung, and committed a fascist, criminal act of turning the whole land of South Korea into a grim and murderous prison.

This was an extremely wicked and inhuman reactionary offensive of the military hooligan clique aimed at thwarting the roaring trend of democracy and reunification generated in the wake of the assassination incident and was also a last-ditch effort to restore the fascist Yusin dictatorial system at any cost.

This fascist 17 May violence of the Chon Tu-hwan ring provoked great fury in the South Korean students and people and eventually led the patriotic people and students in Kwangju to explode into mass resistance.

Initiated by the demonstration of the Chonnam University students on 18 May 1980, the patriotic citizens and students in Kwangju came out into the streets to resist, shouting "Lift martial law," "Chon Tu-hwan, resign," "Abolish the Yusin system" and "Release Kim Tae-chung." They strongly rejected the restoration of the Yusin system and the emergence of the Yusin remnants, demanded the practice of democracy and aspired for the nation's peaceful reunification.

When the just demands of the demonstrating masses were bloodily suppressed by the martial law enforcing troops of the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique, the Kwangju citizens stood up to the ring with a mass riot. The enraged masses who joined the demonstrations organized by the committee for democratic struggle, special vigilance unit, mobile task force, citizens' struggle organizations and armed organizations, continuing their struggle organizationally.

The resistance warriors dashed toward the enemies with the bodies of their fallen comrades on their shoulders, attacked the puppet police stations, armories and munition dumps with a fierce and death-defying struggle, drove out the martial law troops from the city and occupied such puppet ruling institution such as city hall and provincial government building and all public offices, including radio stations, banks and post offices.

In the course of confronting the enemy, the uprising masses burned 21 buildings of the puppet ruling institutions, destroyed some 50 buildings of pro-government organizations, set fire to some 459 vehicles of various sorts and captured some 5,400 sniping weapons of various sorts and 700,000 rounds of ammunition of all types.

This heroic resistance was joined not only by the patriotic citizens of Kwangju but also by the workers and peasants residing in the suburbs of the city and masses of all strata, thus growing into some 300,000 people. Even under the worst conditions of being surrounded in all directions and with supplies of food and water cut off, they bravely crushed the last-ditch offensive of the enemy who were equipped with aircraft, tanks and armored personnel carriers and put the city of Kwangju under the complete control of the resistance masses for 10 days. [applause] The flames of resistance which flared up in Kwangju instantly swept almost everywhere in South Cholla Province and quickly spread to many places in North Cholla Province.

This heroic uprising of the Kwangju citizens made the military hooligans headed by the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique extremely terrified and kept them in suspense. [applause] Sensing ignominious destruction in the face of the riot masses' roaring advance, the fascist military Chon Tu-hwan clique responded with an unprecedented large-scale massacre, unrivalled in cruelty.

The wicked, murderous traitor Chon Tu-hwan, mobilizing a large number of puppet armed forces — some 70,000 personnel, including the notorious special combat paratroop unit, 150 tanks, and armored personnel carriers, some 100 cannons and even large helicopters and missiles — surrounded Kwangju city and staged a large-scale killing operation.

The murderous Chon Tu-hwan clique supplied the special combat paratroop unit, which consisted of bachelors, with an unlimited amount of nerve gas, shrapnel shells, dumdum shells and other destructive weapons and killed people indiscriminately by shooting, or stabbing, beating or choking and even running tanks over them. These evil murderers buried innocent residents alive to save bullets, burned them with gasoline and killed them by hurling them from the rooftops of buildings, thus unhesitatingly committing wicked crimes.

Branding a mother who was crying over her dead son's body as the mother of an impure element, the blood-thirsty devils chained her together with her dead son and threw them into river. They stabbed to death even a 4-year-old child who was crying over its dead mother, saying that the seeds of rioters should be eliminated. They even committed the devil-like, barbarous act of crushing with rifle butts the skull of an old woman who, unable to stand the barbarous and evil acts of the beasts, was looking for her blood-relatives — branding her as impure element, and then throwing her body into a ditch. These are the ones who slit open a pregnant woman's belly and killed the embryo which they pulled from her. These are the very ones who, after stripping young girls naked in front of their parents, cut their breasts off and then stabbed them to death with bayonets and killed them with flame throwers.

As a result of such bloody murderous acts of the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique, some 5,000 Kwangju citizens were massacred in a matter of a few days, some 14,000 wounded and some 1,700 residents were either killed or wounded in places such as Mokpo, Hwasun, Naju, Yoju and Sunchon. Indeed, the massacre committed in Kwangju by the Chon Tu-hwan clique was a most barbarous act of fratricide, unrivaled in history in its cruelty and atrocity, and it was a most shuddering butchery of the nation which will be denounced and cursed by our people for thousands of years to come. [shouting of words indistinct]

Although history has handed down voluminous records on the crimes of murderers notorious for conquering and massacring other nations, it has never known such human butchers as the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, which has cruelly and atrociously oppressed and massacred its fellow countrymen and dipped an entire city into a sea of blood just to maintain its own power. Kwangju, a city of resistance for democracy and national salvation, is even today grinding its teeth with indignation and fury, indicting the barbarous act of murder committed by these human butchers.

Although the Kwangju people's uprising was unable to achieve victory due to a bloody suppression of the oppressors, it recorded a proud, shining chapter in the annals of the South Korean people's resistance for democracy against fascism and in the annal of the struggle of the world's oppressed peoples for liberation. [applause]

The heroic struggle of the Kwangju people was a massive uprising participated in by broad segments of people, including students, workers, peasants, intellectuals and religionists, and a national salvation resistance of the highest form against fascism and for democracy in which an armed enemy met armed resistance. The Kwangju popular uprising powerfully demonstrated to the world that the South Korean students and people were not dead but alive. It dealt a heavy blow at the colonial military fascist rule of U.S. imperialism and its stooge the Chon Tu-hwan clique and violently shook its foundation. [applause]

A massive riot, the largest and most fierce in the modern history of the liberation struggle of the people in the East for democracy against despotism, it immensely stirred not only our people but the oppressed people fighting for national independence and sovereignty. [applause] Although the modern history of Asia has recorded many bloody resistance struggles waged by people for liberation and against repression and subordination, it has never known such a massive riot as the Kwangju people's uprising, which was waged persistently, in an organized manner, in the face of irresistibly strong and vast armed forces, for several days under the occupation of brutal imperialist aggressors.

Indeed, the Kwangju people's heroic resistance was a mass riot displaying the spirit and patriotism to achieve freedom, democracy and the nation's reunification against any repression by the fascists and [words indistinct]. The immortal exploits of the Kwangju resistance fighters will shine forever in the history of the South Korean people's anti-fascist struggle for democracy and will be long remembered by our people. [applause]

Taking this opportunity of marking the second anniversary of the Kwangju popular uprising, I pay my respects to the Kwangju resistance fighters, who fought for democracy and reunification, dedicating their youth and their lives without yielding to most the vicious operation for repression and massive massacre by the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique. I express by deep condolences to the patriots who fell in the streets of resistance and to their families.

Comrades, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique covered Kwangju, a city of resistance, with the bodies of fellow countrymen and reduced all of South Korea to a land of fascism. It established an unprecedented military fascist system and implemented a most vicious oppressive fascist rule. The rascals, mobilizing enormous repressive forces, have bound the entire land of South Korea with the snare of military fascism. Today in South Korea, the suppressive fascist organizations, including the Agency for National Security Planning and the Security Command, have thrown a police cordon around the entire area from Seoul to local districts more tightly than ever before. The suppressive forces, increasing every day, viciously watching and controlling every move of the people. Moreover, more than 5,000 fascist evil laws -- including the current wicked constitution, the national security law, the basic press law, the law of special measures for improvement of the political climate -- are trampling underfoot even the people's basic democratic rights and political freedoms. The Chon Tu-hwan clique is running amok with unprecedented oppression of the people through such enormous suppressive organizations and fascist evil laws.

Following the barbarous massacre in Kwangju, the Chon Tu-hwan clique arrested and imprisoned on a large scale some tens of thousands of the students and people, including those involved in the Kwangju uprising, and openly perpetrated barbarous torture and massacre as a second massacre operation.

The barbarous oppression of democratic figure Kim Tae-chung fully displays the fascist nature of the Chon Tu-hwan clique. Illegally arresting and imprisoning Kim Tae-chung, the military fascist clique repressed and tortured him in various ways. It sentenced him to death. However, it reduced the death sentence to life imprisonment in the face of stern resistance at home and abroad. Some time ago, it committed a deceitful racket of reducing his life imprisonment to a 20-year sentence. While outwardly reducing the penalty of Kim Tae-chung, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is conspiring to kill him in prison and to pretend that he died of illness.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique arrested and imprisoned several thousand patriotic people, students and conscientious religionists in the last year alone by fabricating various incidents, including the incident of the democratic labor union, and it cruelly punished them. It also drove out from the campus some 17,400 college students and punished them. It arrested and imprisoned, tried and punished some 600 students.

According to what has been revealed in foreign news reports, there are some 100,000 political prisoners and innocent people imprisoned in South Korean prisons. Besides, a number of students and people are being killed cruelly in army prisons and secret camps installed on isolated islands.

With the arson at the U.S. cultural center in Pusan, in particular, the Chon Tu-hwan clique's fascist oppression is becoming more vicious. After the arson occurred, the fascist clique waged rackets of wholesale search and inspection by mobilizing hundreds of thousands of police, intelligence and investigation forces and even the puppet army. It arrested and imprisoned those involved in the incident, including Kim Hyon-chang, Mun Pu-sik and Kim In-suk and even the conscientious religionists who hid them some time ago. It is now maneuvering to try and to cruelly punish them. Moreover, the rascals are waging wholesale rackets in search of those involved in the Kwangju popular uprising, the patriotic students and democratic forces who led the struggle for democratization in the past. They are perpetrating barbarous acts of indiscriminately searching residents' houses and even churches. Thus, the patriotic students and innocent residents in South Korea are being inspected at all times. All South Korea is seized with a terror-ridden atmosphere and a whirlwind of unprecedented suppression.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is subjugating and selling everything in South Korea to the U.S. imperialist aggressors while engaging in an unprecedented fascist frenzy, thus running amok with flunkeyist national treachery. The treacherous flunkeyist crimes of the Chon Tu-hwan clique are being clearly exposed by the filthy rackets waged to commemorate the centennial of the opening of Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations. The South Korean puppets are going to spend enormous funds amounting to some 5.2 billion won, which were collected by the people's blood tax, for filthy gambling on the pretext of friendship and solidarity. This clearly shows that they far surpass their predecessors in nation-selling crimes and treachery. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is an intolerable national splittist who frantically opposes the nation's peaceful reunification — the national desire. They are raving about proposals and so forth as if they are interested in reunification. This is nothing but a trick to mislead public opinion at home and abroad. How can we believe that those who beg for permanent occupation by the U.S. troops, without saying a single word about withdrawal of the U.S. troops -- the basic obstacle to the reunification of the fatherland — desire reunification?

In particular, the anticommunist confrontation and war rackets viciously waged by the South Korean military hooligans while raving about dialogue and reunification more clearly show the rascals' true nature. All the facts prove that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is the bloodthirsty fascist murderer, a most vicious national splittist, a filthy nation-selling traitor and a wicked warmonger.

The United States is responsible for the fact that the people's aspiration for democracy and reunification is being cruelly infringed on in South Korea and such a tragic situation is being created. The U.S. imperialists have been implementing the fascist rule to seize South Korea as their permanent colony and military base and to block our nation's peaceful reunification.

They picked a most atrocious military gang such as the Chon Tu-hwan clique to block the advance of the South Korean people aspiring democracy and reunification by means of violence and establishing atrocious military fascist dictatorship and [word indistinct].

The U.S. imperialists, raving that they should suppress the heroic Kwangju uprising masses by the means of force, encouraged the military fascist elements to perpetrate a large-scale massacre by turning over the puppet troops and armored divisions under the command of the South Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command. The fact that they called the Chon Tu-hwan clique to the White House after putting it in the seat of power and instigated it to fascist oppression, national division and war maneuvers is related to their policy toward Korea.

While encouraging the Chon Tu-hwan ring to perpetrate suppression and fascist acts by increasing military aid to it, the U.S. imperialists have gone so far as to insult the South Korean people by saying that they are foolish people, that democracy is not suitable to them and that the South Korean youths, students and democratic personages are spoiled children. This clearly shows that the U.S. imperialists are not the protectors of the South Korean people but are vicious aggressors and enemies of democracy and peace. In the name of all people of the northern half of the republic, I sternly condemn with surging national indignation the murderous Chon Tu-hwan, which committed the genocide in Kwangju and which is desperately seeking fascism, division, treachery and war, and the U.S. imperialist aggressors who have actively encouraged the Chon Tu-hwan ring.

The desire for democracy and reunification felt by youths, students and people in Kwangju 2 years ago is now strongly seething among the South Korean people. This desire has become the flames of the anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle and is now more vigorously burning throughout South Korea. The youths, students and people who bravely staged the anti-fascist struggle for democracy throughout South Korea last year, marking the first anniversary of the Kwangju uprising, vigorously continued the anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle in September, October and November last year, too.

The anti-fascist struggle for democratization by the South Korean youths, students and people has become stronger by combining it with the recent struggle against the U.S. imperialist aggressors. Last March brave Korean youths, students and people set fire to the American Cultural Center in Pusan and lifted the flames of bold struggle by disseminating anti-U.S. leaflets which read "The United States, go home" and "We sternly condemn the neocolonialism of the United States." Following this, in April over 400 youths and students in Seoul staged a demonstration supporting the acts of conscientious religionists who helped the struggle staged in Pusan and those youths and students involved in the Pusan struggle. On 22 April students at Kangwon University burned the U.S. flag on the school campus and staged an anti-U.S. and antigovernment demonstration, disseminating leaflets which read "Yankees, go home" and "We oppose the present political system." On 26 and 27 April more than 1,000 youths and students in Seoul gathered at a church in the city and staged an anti-U.S. and anti-fascist street demonstration struggle, confronting several hundred riot police.

Along with these struggles by the youths and students many religious organizations, including the Korean Christian Action Organization, the families of the detained personages and the religious organizations of Koreans in Japan issued statements denouncing the schemes of the Chon Tu-hwan ring suppressing the seething anti-U.S. and anti-fascist struggle.

In the statements, saying that today's miserable situation in South Korea is a result of U.S. policy and that the arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan is a just act, they strongly demanded that the U.S. ambassador and commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea be recalled and that the illegally arrested and imprisoned patriotic students and religionists be immediately released.

This clearly shows that no matter what brutal fascist suppression they may use, the South Korean fascist elements cannot block the fighting spirit of the South Korean people aspiring democracy and reunification.

I, in the anme of the people in the northern half of the republic, extend warm fraternal greetings to the South Korean youths, students and people of all strata who are vigorously waging the anti-U.S. and anti-fascist struggle for democracy in defiance of the brutal and fascist suppression by the Chon Tu-hwan ring. At the same time, I extend full support and encouragement to their patriotic struggle. [applause]

Comrades, only the way to fulfill at the earliest possible date the noble desire of the warriors, who, shedding patriotic blood on the streets in Kwangju 2 years ago, demanded democracy and reunification, is to end the fascist colonial rule by the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and to reunify the fatherland. Ending the felonious fascist military rule in South Korea and achieving the democratization of society is the most urgent task assigned the South Korean people today.

Without overthrowing the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military rule, we cannot expect the democratic development of society in South Korea, and the people cannot extricate themselves from today's misfortunes and disasters. Nor can we expect the country's peaceful reunification. With the courageous spirit displayed by the Kwangju warriors, making the enemy shudder, the South Korean people should resolutely rise in an anti-fascist, democratic struggle to repeal fascist evil laws, including the notorious National Security Law, to dismantle fascist suppressive agencies, such as the Security Planning Agency and the Security Command, to release democrats, including Kim Tae-chung and youths and students who have been unjustly arrested and imprisoned and to achieve democratic freedom and rights.

The South Korean people, youths and students should make the fierce flames of a democratic struggle spread throughout South Korea, bury the fascist military rule forever in these flames and establish a true democratic government on its tomb. To achieve victory without arms in the struggle against the armed fascist military clique, the people should firmly unite and wage a joint struggle. By firmly uniting under the banner of anti-fascist national salvation and by expanding and developing the anti-fascist struggle which they have already waged, people of all walks of life in South Korea, including workers, peasants, youths, students and religious figures, should continuously and tenaciously struggle until they overthrow the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique.

Without removing the U.S. imperialist aggressors, who have strangled democracy, instigated fascists in South Korea and hindered reunification, we cannot achieve the democratization of the South Korean society and the country's peaceful reunification. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: By rising as one in the struggle to force the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea, all the Korean people should expedite the fatherland's independent reunification. By vigorously waging a mass anti-U.S. struggle against the U.S. imperialists, who, occupying the half of the national territory with arms, have instigated the puppets to fascism, division, treachery and war, the South Korean people will force the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea and end their colonial policy for subjugation and for interference in the internal affairs of South Korea.

Before being banished from South Korea by the mass anti-U.S. struggle of the indignant South Korean people, the U.S. imperialists should immediately return to their den, taking along their aggressive troops and lethal weapons, including nuclear weapons. [shouts]

The fatherland's reunification is the supreme long-cherished desire of all the Korean people and the urgent desire of the Kwangju uprisers. The only way to independently achieve the country's reunification is to implement the proposal for founding the Democratic Con-Federal Republic of Koryo set forth by the great leader. Disregarding ideologies, political views and party affiliation, all Korean compatriots at home and abroad, who love the country and the people and who desire reunification, should firmly united under the banner of reunification and national salvation and actively struggle to smash the maneuvers of the splittists at home and abroad to fabricate two Koreas and to found an independent, democratic, peaceful and neutral confederal state.

We firmly believe that by waging more resolutely a nation-saving struggle to achieve independence, democracy and reunification, holding aloft the torch of the anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle, the South's people of all walks of life will achieve through struggles the sacred cause which the Kwangju warriors failed to accomplish.

Today, the people of the northern half of the republic are assigned a weighty but honorable task of vigorously accelerating the three revolutions -- ideological, technical and cultural -- under the banner of imbuing society with the chuche idea and expediting the fatherland's reunification at the earliest possible date, upholding the magnificent program set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the Sixth KWP Congress and the historic policy speech delivered by him at the joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly.

Bearing in our hearts the pride to carry out the revolution by holding in high esteem the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and by following the leadership of the glorious party center, we should firmly arm ourselves with the immortal chuche idea -- the respected and beloved leader's revolutionary idea -- more firmly consolidate our revolutionary ranks and enact a new upsurge and innovation on all fronts of socialist construction.

Our people's just advancing under the wise leadership of the great leader and the glorious party center and under the revolutionary banner of chuche will surely achieve victory. [applause] Let us all firmly united around the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, a revolutionary genius, the sun of the nation and a legendary hero, and the glorious party center and tenaciously struggle to achieve the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification and to complete the chuche cause. [applause, shouts]

KWANGJU RALLY ADOPTS LETTER TO SOUTH KOREA

SK171255 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1023 GMT 16 May 82

[Letter of appeal to South Korean people adopted at meeting held at Pyongyang Gymnasium on 16 May to mark second anniversary of Kwangju uprising in South Korea]

[Text] South Korean compatriots, brothers and sisters, and courageous youths, students and citizens in Kwangju:

We are participating in a mass meeting in Pyongyang to significantly greet with excitement, together with all the people, the second anniversary of the heroic Kwangju people's uprising. Proudly recalling the days when courageous youths, students and citizens staged a bloody struggle 2 years ago, astonishing the world's people and all compatriots, and unable to suppress the surging indignation and hatred against the barbarous act of holocaust committed by the U.S. imperialists and the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique -- their stooges -- we send this letter of appeal to you, the South Korean people, on behalf of this meeting.

The 10-day struggle waged by the courageous Kwangju youths, students and citizens 2 years ago, pulling open the fascist curtain, was a righteous nation-saving struggle to oppose the restoration of the felonious Yusin system and to build a new democratic society, and it was a heroic mass rebellion in which the 800,000 citizens, rising like a mountain holding arms, fought against the enemy's bloody suppression.

The indomitable struggle of the warriors who participated in a death-defying battle, shouting, "Release Kim Tae-chung:" and "Chon Tu-hwan must resign:" and braving the bullets of the martial law army units was the manifestation of your firm will not to suffer the status of fascist slavery and the tragedy of division and a demonstration of the staunch spirit of the patriotic Korean people who were resolute for democracy.

The courageous spirit of those fighters who dashed toward the fascist beasts, crossing the bodies of their comrades-in-arms and who set fire to puppet police stations and armories and occupied the puppets' ruling agencies amid thunderous gun fire demonstrated the warm patriotism and heroism displayed by the preceeding patriots in the farmers' war in the year of kabo [1894] and in the Kwangju anti-Japanese student struggle.

Seized by panic, how did the Chon Tu-hwan ring react to the resolute advance of these masses in their struggle? It reacted by issuing a devilishly murderous order to kill 70 percent of Kwangju citizens and by mobilizing vast number of evil troops -- 70,000 -- who had taken hallucinogenic drugs, and by firing tanks and guns and aircraft and missiles. This was a barbarously horrible holocaust in which it randomly stabbed, crushed, hanged and buried workers, peasants, youths, students, religious figures, women, children and elderly people, who demanded freedom and democracy. How many teenagers, college students and elderly people at the age of 80 fell on Kumnam and Chungjang Streets where the song and shouts of struggle echoed? How many our blood kin were buried at the foot of Mt Mudung or were abandoned in the Kwangju River? Where in human history can we find such a brutal and barbarous atrocity as the mass holocaust in Kwangju committed by the murderous Chon Tu-hwan ring?

Indeed, the Chon Tu-hwan ring's crime of brutally murdering not other people but its fellow countrymen, not in wartime but in peacetime, was a felonious crime committed by bloodthirsty devilish murderous group of human butchers, far surpassing all fascist maniacs notorious for killing men. However, this was a desperate attempt of those who saw their death in the flames of a democratic struggle. No matter what man-killing operation the fascist ring used, it failed to thwart the will and desire of the warriors for democracy and reunification.

The Kwangju uprising in which the Kwangju citizens bloodily defended for several days a city militarily occupied by the imperialist aggressors, pitting themselves matchlessly vast armed troops, was a heroic people's uprising in the history of the struggle of the South Korean people against imperialists and fascists and in the history of the struggle of oriental people to achieve liberation.

Two years have passed, and today South Korea, which was brightened by the torch of resistance, is again covered with the dark clouds of fascism, and the danger of permanent national division grows greater.

Having soaked Kwangju, the city of resistance, in a sea of blood and turned South Korea into a place where fascism prevails, the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique set up a most violent fascist military system and has been engaged in schemes of unheard-of fascist rule and treachery.

Look! Serious are the crimes which the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique, sitting on the blood and corpses of compatriots, has committed over the past 2 years: The 2 years since the Kwangju popular uprising have been marked by a new Kwangju tragedy, and have been 2 years crimes dotted with traitorous acts by the military hooligans. Under violent fascist rule, the participants in the uprising, innocent democratic figures and patriots are being persecuted and are dying miserably, and tens of millions of people -- the South Korean compatriots -- are dying.

In the smoke-screen of the so-called theory of reunification in the 2000's and the sham reunification policy, the barrier of national division rises up, and in the noise of the puppet armed forces modernization plan and the war exercises, the danger of a new war is coming nearer by the minute.

Who should be blamed for having driven South Korean into such a miserable situation? The U.S. imperialists, who have been occupying South Korea for 37 years and enforcing colonial rule there. Those who ordered their stooges to wield iron fists against the resistance fighters of Kwangju, the city of heroes, and drove them out to a butchering operation, providing them with armed forces, are the U.S. imperialists. So, too, are they who engineered, behind the scenes, the rise to power of the fascist military clique which is rejected by the South Korean people. It is none other than the archenemy U.S. imperialists who are inciting the Chon Tu-hwan clique to fascism, war, nation-selling and national division. To hold onto South Korea as their permanent colony and military base and make permanent the division of our country, the U.S. imperialists have Chon Tu-hwan, the unparalleled fascist tyrant and traitor, as their frontman. The U.S. imperialists are the very ones who rule South Korea; they are the cruellest murderers and the vicious enemies of democracy and peaceful reunification.

With surging national indignation, we strongly denounce the crimes of the U.S. imperialists and their stooge the Chon Tu-hwan clique who are responsible for having comitted the Kwangju massacre and having turned South Korea into a living hell as exists today.

South Korean brothers and sisters, Kwangju youths, students and citizens: The burning desire and will of the Kwangju uprisers, who fell to the ground bleeding and calling for democracy and reunification, have not perished. Rather, they are burning as the flames of revenge in the minds of the brethren in the South. How can you, who came to know the target and means of your struggle through the Kwangju tragedy, keep yourselves from carrying out a new struggle? Sure enough, the flames of the anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle that you are raising all across South Korea, including Kwangju, Pusan, Seoul and Chunchon, are burning like a volcano. You should raise higher the banner of the anti-U.S., antifascist struggle that you have already raised and carry forward the struggle that has already began until the day of victory.

It is the urgent demand of history to do away with the violent fascist Chon Tu-hwan rule and realize social democracy in South Korea. With the same courage and stamina as were demonstrated by the Kwangju resistance fighters, you should fight to the end to realize the abrogation of fascist laws, such as the current constitution and the national security law, and of fascist apparatus, such as the Agency for National Security Planning and the Defense Security Command.

You must struggle more resolutely to unconditionally and immediately release democrats, including Kim Tae-chung, and patriotic youths and students who have been unjustly arrested and imprisoned. You must bury the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military rule through a pannational democratic struggle and build a true democratic government on its tomb.

The U.S. imperialists are the ringleaders of those who have strangled democracy, instigated fascists and hindered reunification. They are the archenemy of our people. You must fiercely fan the flames of the anti-U.S., nation-saving struggle everywhere to force all aggressive troops, including U.S. forces occupying South Korea and nuclear weapons, to withdraw from South Korea and end the U.S. imperialists' colonial policy of subjugation.

The fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification is the supreme task of all the Korean people. The only way to achieve the country's reunification -- the long-cherished desire of all the people -- is to implement the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation. Disregarding ideologies and firmly uniting under the banner of reunification and national salvation, let us rise as one in the pannational cause for founding the DCRK!

We firmly believe that by resolutely waging a sacred nation-saving struggle to achieve independence, democracy and reunification, people of all walks of life in South Korea, including workers, peasants, youths, students, intellectuals and religious figures, will surely fulfill the urgent desire which the Kwangju warriors failed to fulfill 2 years ago.

Victory sides with the South Korean people struggling to achieve democracy and reunification. Firmly believing in victory, let us all rise in unison in the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle to achieve democracy and save the country!

NODONG SINMUN RECALLS CHON'S VIOLENCE

SK171713 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1537 GMT 17 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 17 (KCNA) — NODONG SINMUN today carries an article upon the lapse of two years since the May 17 incident through which the military blackguard Chon Tu-hwan proclaimed the "Emergency Martial Law" throughout South Korea and launched a wholesale reactionary offensive against democratic and patriotic forces.

The author of the article titled "Military Fascist Ruling System in South Korea Should Be Liquidated" says:

The May 17 violence was a de facto military coup d'etat committed by the remnants of "Yusin" bossed by the traitor Chon Tu-hwan. A military gangster, with the dirty aim to revive the "Yusin system" on the point of collapse into a more ferocious military fascist rule and reign over South Korea as a new dictator.

It was in intolerable treachery stifling the people's right to existence and democratic liberties and laying hurdles in the way of peace in the country and her peaceful reunification.

Recalling that scared at the struggle of people for democracy and against fascism which developed in depth, assuming a new aspect after the assassination of the former dictator, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique committed an allout violent offensive simultaneously with the proclamation of the "Emergency Martial Law" throughout South Korea, the article says:

Over the past two years since the May 17 fascist outrage the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique has committed never-to-be condoned heinous crimes against the country and the nation, brandishing the bayonet.

First of all, the military fascists reorganized the military dictatorial apparatus on the pretext of "establishing" a "new order" of a "new era" and ensuring "national security" and strengthened their suppressing functions as never before, and established a more fascist, anti-democratic legal system.

The Chon Tu-hwan military backguard as a dirty, flunkeyist traitor overshadowing his predecessors has bartered away the sovereignty of the nation in begging for the permanent presence of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces in South Korea, stepped up arms buildup and war preparations with outcries over anti-communist confrontation to heighten tensions and frantically stepped up the "two Koreas" plot to lay a new obstacle in the way of reunification.

Since the May 17 fascist violence South Korea has turned into a dark, lawless land where terrorism prevails and war fever is whipped up to create social confusion and disorder and a terror-ridden atmosphere.

The South Korean economy has gone totally bankrupt and the people are suffering from increasing hardships owing to the anti-popular policy of the puppet clique. The developments in South Korea show that as long as the traitor Chon Tu-hwan remains in "power," neither the South Korean people's democratic liberties and right to existence nor peace and national reunification are thinkable.

To liquidate the military facist ruling system and realize the democratisation of society in South Korea is a vital demand of the people and a pressing problem awaiting a settlement.

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan must renounce the policy of dependence on outside forces, the police of national division, the fascist terror rule and war manoeuvrings, apologize for the criminal massacre of fellow countrymen and step down from "power" forthwith.

SK171115 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1053 GMT 17 May 82

KIM IL-SONG GREETS 'ARAFAT ON PALESTINE WEEK

SK142208 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2200 GMT 14 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 15 (KCNA) -- The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on May 14 sent a message of greetings to Yasir 'Arafat, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Palestine Liberation Organisation and commander-in-chief of the Palestine Revolutionary Armed Forces, on the occasion of the "Week of Support to the Struggle of the Palestine People."

The message reads: On behalf of the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the Korean people and on my own, I extend warm militant greetings to you and, through you, to the Palestine Liberation Organisation, the Palestine people and resistance fighters on the occasion of the "Week of Support to the Struggle of the Palestine People."

The Palestine people and resistance fighters under the leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organisation have achieved many successes in the sacred struggle for the liberation of the homeland and today the anti-Israeli struggle is being further intensified in the occupied area.

The Korean people always express full support and firm solidarity for the just cause of the Palestine people and strongly denounce the Zionists for brutally suppressing the patriotic struggle of the Palestine people.

We are convinced that your struggle for retaking your sacred homeland, Palestine, and for restoring the inalienable legitimate national rights including the right to return home, right to self-determination and right to found an independent state will surely be crowned with final victory.

NODONG SINMUN SUPPORTS PALESTINIANS' STRUGGLE

SK151530 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1510 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 15 (KCNA) — Papers here today dedicate articles to a "week of support to the struggle of the Palestinian people."

Under the title "Solidarity With Palestinian People in Their Just Struggle," NODONG SINMUN says:

A "Week of Support to the Struggle of the Palestinian People" is observed in our country from May 15 to 21. Mass rallies and other events supporting the Palestinian peoples just cause shall be held during the week.

In the course of the arduous struggle the revolutionary forces of Palestine have been strengthened politically and militarily and the Palestinian people have gained great successes in their liberation struggle. The international prestige of the Palestine Liberation Organisation, the only legitimate organisation of the Palestinian people, is growing daily.

The resolute stand of the Palestinian people and the successful advance of their liberation struggle are a heavy blow to the imperialists and the Israeli aggressors.

The Israeli aggressors, uneasy at this, leave no stone unturned in their attempts to stamp out the Palestinian revolution and keep the sacred territory of the Palestinian people under their domination with the support of the imperialists. The brigandish aggressive schemes of Israel invite the stern denunciation of the Arab nations and the world people.

In contrast with this, the liberation struggle of the Palestinian people enjoys support and sympathy from the world people in the international arena including the United Nations for its justness.

The Korean people, a half of their country occupied by the imperialists, understand the misfortunes and sufferings of the Palestinian people better than anyone else and regard it as an international duty to support their struggle.

The Palestinian people recognize the Democratic People's Republic of Korea as the only legitimate state of the Korean people and actively support our peoples cause of national reunification.

Our people will as always strengthen militant friendship and solidarity with the Palestinian people and struggle side by side with them for the common cause of anti-imperialism and independence.

If the Palestinian question and other Middle East problem are to be solved fairly, the aggression and interference of the imperialists and the Israeli aggressors must be terminated and the Israeli aggressors must get out of the occupied Arab land. At the same time, the legitimate national rights of the Palestinian people including the right to found an independent state must be fully restored.

UNC PROTESTS 17 MAY FIRING INCIDENT ALONG DMZ

SK180014 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 17 May 82

[Text] The United Nations Command [UNC] on 17 May lodged an official protest against the North Korean puppet side for perpetrating a shooting incident at a spot along the military demarcation line 14 kilometers north of Cholwon. In a letter of protest, the MAC senior member of the United Nations Command said that when a ROK civil police patrol unit approached the Demilitarized Zone at 1140 on 17 May, the North Korean puppets unilaterally fired for 20 minutes at this patrol unit and at a UNC outpost with a heavy machinegun and automatic rifles.

The UNC side immediately returned this with defensive firing to aid the patrol unit under fire from the North Korean puppets. When a UNC medical team approached the scene to take care of the casualties, the North Korean puppets again indiscriminately fired at our patrol unit and a UNC outpost from five North Korean puppet outposts. Because this firing continued for 9 minutes, the UNC civil police in the DMZ answered with defensive firing, the UNC disclosed.

The UNC senior member of the MAC proposed the formation of a joint investigation team to probe the firing incident perpetrated by the communists. However, the North Korean puppets have not responded to this proposal.

NORTH ACCEPTS SOLDIER'S BODY AT 17 MAY MAC MEET

SK181120 Seoul YONHAP in English 1110 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Panmunjom, Korea, May 18 (YONHAP) -- North Korea Tuesday accepted the body of an armed agent who was shot to death while attempting to infiltrate into the South on the east coast early Saturday.

North Korea accepted the body according to procedures proposed by the United Nations Command during a meeting of senior secretaries of the Military Armistice Commission (MAC) here. During the 465th meeting of MAC senior secretaries, four North Korean officials crossed the military demarcation line to confirm the identity of the dead soldier. Soldiers of the U.N. Command then handed over the coffin.

On Monday, the U.N.C. proposed a MAC meeting to the North so that the remains of the soldier could be returned.

FURTHER MATERIALS ON CURB LOAN SCANDAL

Ways Sought To Limit Damage

SK171336 Seoul YONHAP in English 1055 GMT 17 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 17 (YONHAP) — The South Korean Government has implemented remedies to minimize the aftershocks of a recent multi-million-dollar curb loan scandal involving a former national assemblyman and his wife.

Government measures announced Monday call for the authorization of the controversial curb money market, expansion of financial support for private enterprises, stabilization of employment and wages, and promotion of Korea's overseas economic credibility.

Sources said the government was concerned about the possible negative effects on Korea's overseas commodity and construction markets in the wake of the scandal which reportedly shrank domestic industrial production and damaged the overseas credibility of the Korean economy.

According to the government announcement, banks will be given more flexibility when considering loans for private firms short of operating funds. In addition, the government will increase the discount ratio of commercial promissory notes issued by small and medium companies.

The announcement said trust companies active participation in the stock market will be sought and the issuance of company bonds through bank payment guarantees will be encouraged.

It will also make available 30 billion won in loans to short-term loan companies.

To help stabilize employment and wages, the government will pay the salaries of employees working for firms involved in the curb loan scandal. The government will also pay in advance construction bills of those companies for projects ordered by government organizations.

The government also decided to cut the corporate tax rate to encourage companies to invest their own capital rather than relying on outside sources.

The government plans extensive talks with business circles to reduce the psychological effects of the scandal.

First Lady's Uncle Arrested

SK180157 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 18 May 82 p 1

[Text] Yi Kyu-hwang, former president of the Korean Mining Promotion Corp, and an uncle of the first lady, was arrested by the prosecution last night on suspicion of exercising his influence to help Mrs. Chang Yong-cha in her financial deals.

Prosecution officials said that they had secured substantial evidence that Yi, Mrs. Chang's brother-in-law, has been involved in the scandal that has plunged the nation's financial circles into turmoil. "Yi is suspected of having let Mrs. Chang to use their influence in her deals with banking institutions and industrial firms," a prosecution source said.

Yi has been under prosecution investigation to determine the part he played in the scandal, which has resulted in the arrest of 18 people so far.

Yi was said to have met Im Chae-su, president of the Cho-Heung Bank twice last February and frequently attended parties hosted by Mrs. Chang, thus exercising behind-the-scene political influence for her.

The prosecution is also investigating the possibility that a leading member of a political party and some officials of the Finance Ministry have been involved in the scandal.

It was learned that Kim Tong-ui, 48, auditor of the Kong Yung Construction Co, who was arrested was a classmate of a "K" lawmaker of the majority party at a primary school in Kyongsang-pukto. Even if the lawmaker has not been directly involved in the scandal, the sources said, the construction company might have tried to use the connection for its business.

A senior finance official is under investigation to determine whether he had been involved in taking over the Tonghae Life Insurance Co, by the Kong Yung on his own or at the request of leading political figures.

The sources said investigators had successfully traced the 7.7 billion won in Mrs. Chang's financial holdings which was not accounted for in the prosecution's earlier announcement.

Chon Yong-chae, 36, a private money lender, has found to be keeping 5 billion of it. Of the rest, Mrs. Chang gave 190 million won to her father Chang Pyong-chun, 50 million won to her brother Sang-Chin and 30 million won to another brother Chin-Hyok, the sources added.

Yi Kyu-kwang, 57, who resigned as the president of the state-run Korea Mining Promotion Corporation last Thursday, was escorted to the prosecutor-general's office at 9:30 p.m. from his home in Hannam-dong. When asked by reporters about his relations with Mrs. Chang, he said that "everything will be made clear by the authorities' investigation."

Earlier Sunday, the prosecution arrested six people and another yesterday as it expanded investigation of the Yi Chol-ui and Chang Yong-cha couple's allegedly fraudulent moneylending business.

They included Chu Chang-gyun, 61, chairman of the Ilssin Steel Co., and Pyon Kang-u, 47, chairman of the Kong Yung Construction Co. Others are Kim Su-chol, 53, ex-husband of Mrs. Chang; Pyon Tae-su, Kong Yung's managing director; Pyon Chwa-hyong, 45, a director at Kong Yung; Kim Tong-ui, 47, an auditor at the firm; and Pae Kil-hon, 35, president of Ilssin Steel and son-in-law of Chairman Chu.

Ilssin Chairman Chu Chang-kyun is accused of bribery and breach of trust. He has allegedly given 50 million won on five occasions to Kong Ok-chong, ex-head of the Commercial Bank of Korea, since 1979 to continue to borrow money from the bank.

His company was said to have faced serious financial difficulty in May 1979 already owing 3.8 billion won to the CBK and the Bank had refused to extend loans to Ilssin. But through the bribery, the Ilssin Company could borrow money in excess of collateral despite its rating as "insolvent," the prosecution alleged.

Chu Chang-kyun is also said to have issued six dishonored checks worth 861 million won so far including a check having a face value of 350 million won issued last April to pay the Pohang Iran and Steel Co.

Kong Yung chairman Pyon Kang-u was charged with embezzlement and breach of trust along with Pyon Tae-su and Kim Tong-ui. Pyon Kang-u allegedly issued promissory notes to Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha last March amounting to 98.5 billion won, which was more than four times the money they actually borrowed from them, in conspiracy with Pyon and Kim.

The also allegedly gave 32 billion won in 10 promissory notes to Mrs. Chang at the house of Yi Chol-hui a few days later, without receiving anything in return. They are suspected of having diverted 1.2 billion won in Kong Yung funds for private purposes to pay the guarantee money for applying for purchase of stocks on two occasions last year.

Ilssin President Pae Kil-hun is accused of having issued dishonored checks amounting to 861 million won since last April. He allegedly issued a 200 million won check to be paid by the Korea Foreign Exchange Bank in April to pay for merchandise bought from the Pohang Iron and Steel Co. He is charged with violating the dishonored check control law and the prosecution said it had requested an arrest warrant as he was feared to try to flee.

Kim Su-chol is accused of violating the law on additional punishment of aggravated crimes for evasion of donation taxes and violation of the short-term financing business law.

He has allegedly accepted a total of 400 million won from his divorced wife without paying due taxes amounting to 261 million won, since February, 1978.

Chon Relative Offers To Resign

SK180824 Seoul YONHAP in English 0729 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 18 (YONHAP) -- Yi Kyu-tong, 72, president of the Korea Senior Citizens' Association offered to resign Tuesday, following the expected arrest of his younger brother Yi Kyu-kwang, 57, on charges of conspiracy in the recent "Mrs. Chang" scandal. The senior Yi is President Chon Tu-hwan's father-in-law.

Bank Heads Admit Bribes

SK180159 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 18 May 82 p 8

[Text] Each time the chairman of a financially-troubled firm met the head of a city bank at his office or home, 10 million won in cash changed hands and billions in loans were released expeditiously without mortages.

Chu Chang-kyun, chairman of the Ilssin Steel Co., who has been arrested in connection with the loan scandal involving Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha, revealed these continued acts of bribery to prosecution investigators over the weekend.

The alleged recipient, former chief of the Commercial Bank of Korea Kong Tok-chong, admitted the deals after repeated denials when investigators showed him the record of Chu's statement.

The other bank head, Yim Chae-su of the Cho-Heung Bank, bared his acceptance of 150 million won from Mrs. Chang when he was pressed to explain that amount of money deposited in his personal bank account late in last November and drawn out a month later.

He reportedly met Mrs. Chang at the Bankei Restaurant at the Hotel Lotte one day in November and received an envelope which contained 150 cashiers' checks for 1 million won each. He claimed that he returned the money to Mrs. Chang in December because "it was too much to accept," prosecution sources said.

Mrs. Chang was being questioned in the next room on the 15th floor of the prosecution building last Saturday. Investigators immediately checked with her about this bribery, and she first firmly denied it but later admitted it with tears when the officials told her that Yim had revealed everything.

Chu of Ilssin had first claimed that he had given only 5 million won to Kong of the CBK and the prosecution accused him of that amount of bribery in requesting an arrest warrant for him. However, suspicious of the amount of the bribe, investigators persistently questioned Chu and Kong, and Chu finally disclosed the details of his deals with the bank chief.

According to him, the first envelope containing 10 million won was handed to Kong when he visited the bank head's office in December, 1979. The second payment was made in mid-February, 1980, and the third in December that year at the bank chief's home. Last July, Chu gave Kong another 10 million won at his bank office and the last payment was made on Jan. 4 this year at Kong's home, prosecution officials quoted the Ilssin chairman as saying.

Chu reportedly said he and the bank chief had been on close terms since 20 years ago but Kong refused to release loans to his company because of its weak financial status since he became the head of the CBK. Therefore, Chu used the power of money to change his mind, he was quoted as saying.

Both accused of "bribery in breach of trust," Yim and Kong who resigned as bank heads when the Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha couple's loan scandal was bared last week, were detained at the Seoul detention house in Sodaemun Sunday.

Mrs. Chang and Yi were shown to the press Sunday evening when they were brought to the prosecution building for questioning from a national police headquarters office building in Uljiro, Sodaemun-ku, where they had been interrogated since their arrest on May 4.

Yi, 59, former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency and an ex-law-maker, appeared in the blue uniform of a criminal detainee. His hands were bound with rope. He looked dejected and dropped his head low when many cameramen took his picture as he was escorted to the 15th floor on an elevator.

In contrast, Mrs Chang was quite composed and erect and wore no expression on her face, which had no makeup but looked healthy, when she was photographed by newsmen for a few minutes. She was also wearing a detainee's uniform and had her hands bound.

The prosecution had not shown the couple to the press for the past 12 days of their detention, transporting them secretly when they were brought to the prosecution building from the place of their custody.

DJP, DKP Reactions

SK180123 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 18 May 82 p 1

[Text] The Democratic Justice Party (DJP) requested yesterday that the government work out not only comprehensive but concrete measure to help normalize financial order and invigorate business at the earliest possible date in the wake of the curb loan scandal.

The majority party also urged the government to disclose the true picture of the incident involving Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha as quickly as possible for the full understanding of the people.

The DJP action came in an irregular meeting of its key post holders, including Chairman Rep. Yi Chae-hyong.

Party spokesman Rep. Pong Tu-wan said that the party's leading officials shared the view that the administration should take into consideration the serious impact of the scandal on the national economy in devising measures to counter it.

He said that they had decided to establish detailed floor strategies after the prosecution announced shortly the results of its investigation of the case.

The Democratic Korea Party (DKP) also held a key officials' meeting yesterday to confirm its earlier policy to invoke the parliamentary right to investigate the state administration in connection with the scandal as stipulated in the Constitution.

The first minority party also decided to ask the majority DJP to convene a special full house sitting to tackle overall national financial problems as well as the incident itself.

Emerging from the meeting, floor leader Rep Yim Chong-ki said that his party would determine whether to file a resolution calling for the dismissal of pertinent Cabinet members -- the deputy premier-economic planning minister -- after the prosecution announcement about the incident.

Assembly Session

[Text] Failing to reach an agreement on the convening of a special session designed to handle the curb loan scandal, floor leaders of major political parties agreed yesterday to meet again after the prosecution announces the results of the investigation into the case. It was the third huddle in a week.

Floor leaders of the two opposition parties, however, threaten to jointly initiate a motion for the immediate convocation of a special sitting, if the forthcoming announcement by the prosecution is "unsatisfactory."

The National Assembly law stipulates that a special sitting may be called at the request of more than one third of the lawmakers.

KJP floor leader Yi Chong-chan said the issue of holding an extraordinary session should be discussed again shortly after the prosecution comes up with the outcome of its probe into the monetary scandal.

The prosecution is likely to release the results of its investigation Thursday.

The opposition political circles wish to have a special session mainly to invoke the parliamentary investigative power to intensively probe into the scandal. The incumbent assembly has never invoked the power since its inauguration in April 1981.

Earlier in the day, the three major political parties held separate strategy meetings to discuss how to cope with the scandal. The ruling DJP reaffirmed its position to link an extraordinary sitting to the upcoming result of the prosecution's probe. Emerging from a meeting of senior officers, spokesman Pong Tu-wan said the government party remains unchanged in its policy of dealing actively with the scandal. "We will map out concrete floor strategy shortly after the prosecution has come up with its finalized probe," he said.

The DJP urged the government authorities to unveil all the facts of the scandal, the cynosure of all the people, as swiftly as possible, Pong said. "We also called upon the government to produce a comprehensive package to normalize the monetary circles and reinvigorate the economic activities," he said. The meeting was originally scheduled for today but was called one day ahead of schedule.

In the meantime, the opposition DKP decided in a meeting of party officers to study a plan to submit to the assembly a motion calling for the dismissal or resignation of the premier and relevant ministers.

TONG-A ILBO Editorial

SK160511 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 15 May 82 p 3

[Column editorial writer "Kim Chung-pae's View of the World"--"What Time Is It Now in Seoul"]

[Excerpts] Georgue, the author of "25th Hour", who was in Seoul a few years ago, still has not answered my question. When he was in Seoul, I asked him.

"Citizens undergoing hardships and jaded people, although they wear watches, are unable to tell what time it is. Can you still be so obstinate as to say that today's Orient, whose people now fill their hearts only with question marks, is a light for the West? Mr Goergue in Seoul, I want to ask you a question. What time is it now in Seoul?"

Readers, do not try to ask why such an old question came to mind. People in the tea rooms, who used to exchange their views on the situation in hushed tones, now talk about the development of the situation in raised voices. They even say that everyone is a thief, vulgar slang commonly used in the Japanese language which I do not want to utter myself.

The same things are heard in a chorus at the same time in different places. After saying such things, people look at each other and smile. They smile tired and bitter smiles. Is it because they all feel that they are victims? Is it also because they feel solidarity?

Let us imagine a taxpayer has just evaded taxes worth 200 billion won. In terms of finance, there are three ways to deal with such a situation. Cut the budget or levy more taxes or print more money. However, it is very difficult to touch the budget or tax. The easiest way is to print more money.

The result of this affects the entire nation. Employees get their salaries reduced and housewives feel their shopping bags lighter. It is just as if an invisible hand had taken away money from their purse. (Fokke) described such an effect as legal theft. For this reason, he asserts that tax morals should be placed on top of all other morals.

Do not ask me why I mentioned (Fokke's) theory. In any case, apart from tax evasion, printing more money will result in legal theft as has been described by (Fokke).

Those who speak about honesty become corrupt. They take power -- responsibility for their power -- for superpower. The end result of such a mistaken judgment is tragic. Whenever society boils over at such an incident, people talk about the tragedy of Vietnam, but few stress that the tragedy of Vietnam was also the end result of corruption.

(Broodworth), Observer's Saigon correspondent at the time of Vietnam's fall, describes the corruption in Vietnam as follows:

"Gen Nguyen Cao Ky, then vice president of Vietnam, shocked the Americans by saying that nine out of ten Asian politicians are corrupt. He said he was one of them. Nevertheless, instead of feeling shame for it or resigning, he stayed in office."

I do not know a word of the Thai language. But the word (Kinmuun) is a very familiar word to my ears. The word expresses bribe-taking. When it is translated verbatim, it means "eating a nation." No other word can describe corruption in such a clear way. The tragedy of Vietnam and also is enough to call corrupt people those who eat the nation.

As is widely known, corruption that ruins a nation breeds in absolute power. Just look at the current incident, which I hate to call by its widely known name. Even after generously considering that it was a game of a fox with a tiger's mask, no fox can play the game of a tiger if there is no tiger. For this reason, the prescription for corruption is to establish democracy. The history of pursuing democracy is also a history of eliminating corruption.

Those who hear slogans of democracy and justice feel their hearts grow empty. Just as we cannot usher in spring even if we succeeded in cajoling the swallows to live in our house, we are once again convinced that we cannot achieve democracy and justice by simple crying out for them.

MINISTRY STARTING 'INHABITANTS REPORT NETWORK'

SK130424 Seoul YONHAP in English 0248 GMT 13 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 13 (YONHAP) — All South Koreans will become members of a "inhabitants' report network," which the Ministry of Home Affairs is currently organizing throughout the country to cope with various crimes, accidents, and catastrophies.

A spokesman for the ministry said Wednesday that one person from every household will be responsible for reporting to the network, which is being set up in village and workplaces. Postmen, taxi drivers, and the other people well-known in their local communities will be named "special guidance members," he said.

The spokesman said the implementation of the nation-wide network is necessary because of events such as the recent fire at Pusan's U.S. Cultural Center and the killing rampage in the southeastern county of Uiryong, 200 miles from Seoul.

The Pusan fire on March 18 killed one college student and injured three others while the bloody outburst in Uiryong by a deranged policeman on April 26 left 55 people dead and 36 others wounded.

Previously, the homeland reserve corps and the civil defense corps have administered a similar system, while the police have maintained a separate system in vulnerable areas.

PRK-USSR JOINT COMMUNIQUE ISSUED 17 MAY

BK171040 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0408 GMT 17 May 82

["Kampuchea-USSR Joint Communique" -- SPK headline]

[Text] Phnom Penh, 17 May (SPK) -- A joint communique was issued at the end of the official friendship visit paid to the USSR from 9 to 16 May by Hun Sen, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs.

The text of the communique reads:

Hun Sen, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and ministers of foreign affairs of the PRK, made an official visit to the Soviet Union from 9 to 16 May.

Talks were held between Hun Sen and A.A. Gromyko, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo and minister of foreign affairs, during which prospects of future development in Kampuchean-Soviet cooperation as well as major problems of mutual interest in the present international situation were discussed in an atmosphere of complete mutual understanding and unanimity of views.

It was noted with satisfaction that the relations of friendship and multi-faceted fruitful cooperation between the PRK and the USSR are strengthening and developing for the good of the peoples of both countries, and in the interests of peace, democracy and socialism. It was stressed that the Soviet people will continue to assist the friendly Kampuchean people in their efforts to economically and socially transform their country.

A.A. Gromyko informed the Kampuchean side of the practical measures taken by the Soviet Union to implement a peace program for the 1980's adopted during the 26th CPSU Congress and Soviet initiatives aimed at eliminating the threat of war, relaxing tension in various regions of the world and checking the arms race.

The minister of foreign affairs of the PRK declared that the government and people of Kampuchea fully support the peaceful foreign policy of the Soviet Union, particularly in light of the recent important Soviet proposals which are sure steps toward the elimination of the threat of a nuclear war, toward the consolidation of peace in the world and toward the development of international cooperation.

The sides stressed the need for increasing efforts to promote relaxation of international tension, to strengthen confidence between states and to maintain a constructive dialogue for these purposes. The Soviet Union's readiness for a Soviet-U.S. summit meeting, which was expressed by Leonid Brezhnev, is therefore of great significance. The earliest resumption of Soviet-U.S. negotiations on limitation and reduction of strategic armaments and attainment at the negotiations of relevant accords on the basis of the principle of equality and security of the peoples. [sentence as received]

The ministers expressed their profound satisfaction at the adoption by the 26th UN General Assembly session of the declaration on the prevention of nuclear catastrophes, such as the resolutions forbidding all types of weapons to be placed in space, banning neutron weapons and on other questions of liberation from armaments and disarmament.

The sides stressed that the constructive progress of the coming extraordinary session of the UN General Assembly devoted to disarmament and its subsequent adoption of positive and concrete decisions would constitute a tangible contribution to the cause of strengthening world peace.

The ministers noted that the complication of the international situation as a result of actions by the forces of imperialist reaction and militarism also directly manifests itself in Asia. By reintroducing the spirit of its previous policy of military penetration into the Asian Continent, the present U.S. administration seeks to restore the military bases which were used in the course of the aggression against the Indochinese peoples and to establish new bases of support in the Indian Ocean.

Emphasis was laid on the great significance of Leonid Brezhnev's statement in Tashkent that the Soviet Union's policy regarding Asia -- just as with respect to all other continents -- is one advocating the consolidation of peace and is a firm rebuff to the enemies of peace. It is a policy advocating peaceful cooperation with all who want it and a policy of fraternal friendship with socialist countries, solidarity with all the forces of social progress and defense of the sovereign rights of the peoples. The Soviet proposal on using confidence building measures in the Far East on both a collective principle and on a bilateral basis fully meets these aims.

The sides also declared their support for the initiative of the People's Republic of Mongolia concerning the signing of a convention on nonaggression and nonrecourse to arms with respect to the relations between states in Asia and the Pacific.

Kampuchea and the Soviet Union declare their readiness to normalize and develop their relations with the PRC on the basis of the generally recognized principles of peaceful coexistence and, above all, noninterference in each other's internal affairs.

Both sides denounce the policy of hegemonism in international relations.

Kampuchea and the Soviet Union express full support for the people and Government of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan in their struggle to defend their revolutionary gains. The two sides also declared themselves in favor of a political settlement of the situation around Afghanistan, which can be attained through the termination and guaranteed nonresumption of armed and other forms of external interference into the internal affairs of that sovereign and nonaligned state on the basis of the well-known proposal of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan, which fully retains its topicality

The sides expressed concern over the new aggravation of the situation in the Middle East as a result of Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights and its aggressive actions against Lebanon. The policy of the United States -- which arms and finances the aggressor, ensures a political coverup for Israel's predatory policy and uses Israel to further its military-strategic goals -- leads only to heightened tension in that region.

The PRK and the USSR hold that the Sinai operation -- just as other consequences of the anti-Arab deal concluded at Camp David -- has nothing in common with the task of establishing lasting peace in the Middle East. It was reaffirmed that a fair and comprehensive settlement of the Middle East problem can be realized only with the participation of all sides concerned, including the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The PRK and the USSR forcefully support the idea of transforming the Indian Ocean into a zone of peace and declare themselves in favor of a prompt realization of practical measures to that effect. The solution to this problem calls for practical preparations for the convening of an international conference on that issue in the first half of 1983 at the latest and to overcome the opposition by forces which seek to aggravate the political and military tension in the Indian Ocean.

In the course of the negotiations, special attention was paid to the situation in Southeast Asia. It was noted that the states of the region -- particularly the PRK, SRV and LPDR -- remain targets of dangerous intrigues and gross pressure on the part of imperialist and hegemonist circles which bear responsibility for the heightening of tension in the relations between the two groups of countries -- ASEAN and Indochina.

The minister of foreign affairs of the PRK reaffirmed the readiness of the Indochinese countries to hold a constructive dialogue and expand cooperation and contacts with the ASEAN countries in order to normalize relations between the two Southeast Asian groups of countries. The Soviet Union supports the initiative of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos concerning the holding of regional consultations, as well as their efforts to defend their sovereignty and independence and transform Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and stability. The Soviet side expressed satisfaction at the readiness of the PRK and other Indochinese countries to establish good-neighbor relations with Thailand and to negotiate all questions of common interests with it.

The USSR is pleased with continuous strengthening of fraternal friendship and solidarity between the PRK, SRV and LPDR. The unity and cohesiveness of the Indochinese peoples is a factor for peace in this part of Asia.

The sides condemned the provocative fuss ventured by the forces hostile to the Kampuchean people under the pretext of searching for ways to settle the Kampuchean problem, which is totally their own invention.

The USSR forcefully declares that it is the government of the PRK alone -- which exercises power in its entirety in the whole territory of the country -- that can be the only legitimate representative of Kampuchea at the United Nations and other international organizations and forums.

Minister Hun Sen sincerely thanked A.A. Gromyko for his friendly and warm welcome, and invited him to make an official visit to the PRK. A.A. Gromyko accepted this invitation with gratitude.

PHNOM PENH ON THACH'S 'EMPTY CHAIR' PROPOSAL

BK170950 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 0400 GMT 16 May 82

[Unattributed commentary: "Our View is Correct"]

[Text] Recently, Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach told an AFP correspondent in Hanoi that the United Nations can help solve the problem in Kampuchea if it is impartial and stops supporting the murderous, genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique which has already been toppled by the Kampuchean people. Comrade Nguyen Co Thach added that although the PRK Government had the right to occupy the Kampuchean seat in the United Nations, the Phnom Penh Government and Vietnam were prepared to accept the empty chair formula; and that the empty chair formula would be a good thing for the United Nations to create a more serene atmosphere.

These remarks are correct. The PRK was born in our beautiful Angkor fatherland on 7 January 1979 -- the historic day when our Kampuchean people and the Kampuchean Revolutionary Army, fighting in close cooperation with the fraternal VPA, conquered the bloodthirsty, genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime -- lackey of the Beijing expansionists. The Kampuchean revolutionary power was born from the will to struggle resolutely of the Kampuchean people who love independence, peace, freedom and happiness.

In the past short period of 3 years, with the unreserved support and assistance of the friendly countries near and far, particularly Vietnam, Laos, the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries, the PRK has taken a firm position and developed the ability to maintain peace, security and social order and guide the people throughout the country to build a new life in accordance with the party line, making it develop in all fields and advance gradually toward prosperity. Thus, greater numbers of the progressive and peace-loving public throughout the world have commended and supported the just cause of the Kampuchean people's struggle.

For this reason, the preservation of genocidal Democratic Kampuchea's stinking corpse in the United Nations is an act that violates and runs counter to the UN Charter and opposes progressive opinion and people throughout the world.

No Kampuchean who used to live under the bloodthirsty Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime -- lackey of the Beijing expansionists -- can ever forget the bitter time of his life in which he faced death from hunger, hard labor in concentration camps, separation of familites, torture, starvation and the massacre of fellow countrymen by clubbing with sticks and rods. The national achievements scored over centuries by the people were ruined by the genocidal clique. The national culture, civilization, traditions, customs and social system were overturned. Every family suffered losses. Those who survived suffer from all kinds of illnesses and are deeply affected mentally and emotionally. The Kampuchean people nurture untold indignation at the dark scheme of the Beijing expansionists and the Thai and ASEAN powerholders aimed at preserving the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan corpse for use as a tool against the Kampuchean revolution.

Everyone is well aware that they are now seeking all means to add two other exiled traitors -- Sihanouk and Son Sann -- to Pol Pot's stinking corpse. Their activities are all aimed at this matter. In these evil activities of using a new shroud to wrap up this rotten corpse, they have faced with many difficulties. Although they have agreed to oppose the revival of the Kampuchean people, they are engaged in a serious conflict for personal interests. Sihanouk is willing to accept the post as chairman of the so-called loose coalition government, but Son Sann and Khieu Samphan are still arguing with each other for a share of power. Sihanouk and Khieu Samphan are also gnashing their teeth at each other since each wants the lion's share.

Thus, the attempt made by Beijing, Thailand and the ASEAN aiming at establishing this abject loose coalition government is just like an insane man trying to make a rotten corpse stand. World public opinion assessed the activities of these antirevolution reactionaries as a farce and a waste of strength and money. World public opinion is of the view that the correct way in the current circumstances is to leave the Kampuchean seat at the United Nations empty. This just view has caused great concern to Beijing, Thailand and the ASEAN. In both Beijing and Thailand, they have reacted against Comrade Nguyen Co Thach's statement.

We are firmly convinced that our view is correct and the just revolutionary struggle of the Kampuchean people waged in accordance with the KPRP guidelines will always triumph. As for the Democratic Kampuchean corpse, it remains a stinking corpse now as in the past.

EDITORIAL HAILS DRY SEASON RICE PRODUCTION

[Station editorial: "From the Dry Season Successes let us Advance To Fulfill the Rainy Season Production Plan"]

[Text] During the past more than 3 years following the great historic victory of liberation on 7 January 1979, the Kampuchean people have enthusiastically participated in a revolutionary movement with a strong desire to struggle for the defense and reconstruction of the fatherland in all fields under the clear-sighted leadership of the KPRP. They have, in particular, worked ardently to increase production and restore the national economy. Evidence of this can be found in the successful proudction during the dry season, and they are determined to increase production even further during this rainy season.

During this period, our people scored great victories in the defense of the country and the restoration of the national economy, as well as in establishing the people's living conditions.

In the past dry season, our army and people closely cooperated with each other in the struggle to smash many of the remnants of the traitorous Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique -- cheap lackeys of the Beijing Chinese hegemonists and expansionists -- who attempted to destroy our revolution. Our army and people also encouraged many people who were confused by the enemy's propaganda to return and live in the national society.

Along with the successes in smashing the enemies, the dry season production was also successful. Our people in various localities throughout the country strived vigorously to increase paddy production in the dry season, to grow all types of subsidary crops as well as to expand the amount of available land for additional crops. Our peasants are presently gathering dry season rice in all areas. The yield of this year's dry season rice is higher than that of last year. In fact, in Takeo Province the average yield is more than two tons per hectare; in Kandal and Prey Veng Provinces the yield is from one ton to nearly two tons per hectare and so on. Furthermore, our peasants gathered all kinds of vegetables, beans and peanuts, and in some provinces the yield is of these higher than planned.

The great victory in increasing production scored by our people in this dry season can be attributed to patriotism, love of work, hard work, and improvement in the skills of our people in accordance with their abilities and the situation in their respective localities. Our people are organized into production groups and are helping each other. They have demonstrated a spirit of mastery by making preparations with respect to necessary materials and [words indistinct]. They have received assistance from local authorities and the ministry of agriculture such as by being provided with fertilizers, seeds, insecticides, mechanical pumps and gasoline. Particularly noteworthy is that our people grew IR-36 rice, which can resist plant diseases very well. It also has a higher yield than other varieties of rice seeds. These successes in production have enabled our people to overcome the danger of famine and have motivated them to increase production even more during this rainy season. A number of localities have enough paddy to sell to the state in conformity with the wishes of the people and some have even surpassed the plan.

Along with these successes in production during this dry season and with the joy of welcoming the new year which offers new victories, our people in localities throughout the country are ready to start production in the 1982 rainy season. Production groups have selected good seeds, (?gathered) more oxen and buffalo, and repaired and produced a sufficient amount of materials.

These efforts show that our people are making careful preparations for the rainy season production. This year we have had an adequate amount of rain to facilitate sowing and transplanting a large quantity of early rice. Our people are ardently continuing to sow and transplant rice. On the other hand, the Agriculture Ministry has provided (?seeds, fertilizers) and insecticides to various localities. It has also provided several tractors to help our people in those localities which (?lack oxen and buffalo).

Armed with a valiant spirit of struggle, our people -- with the assistance at all levels of the state power -- will expand the amount of land used for growing crops beyond that of last year. This will guarantee an improvement in the living standards of our people. Our people have paddy left to sell to the state. Enough rice can be sent to help people in those regions which are experiencing food shortages. An additional quantity of seeds will soon be ready for production to prevent the danger of famine caused by natural disasters, which can occur at any time.

With a spirit of hard work, and under the clear-sighted leadership of the KPRP, everyone is ardently working to increase production during this year's rainy season. Our peasants in localities throughout the country are exerting efforts to increase the production of paddy and various crops (?in line with the experiences) of the past rainy and dry seasons. They are determined to score more and greater victories in order to fulfill the plan of (?the party Central Committee) as well as the plans of the localities to contribute actively to the restoration of the national economy in order to improve the living standards of the people.

FURTHER SITTHI REMARKS ON KAMPUCHEA ISSUE

BK171546 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 17 May 82

[Excerpts] Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila granted an interview to newsmen at Don Muang Airport upon his return from the PRC on the evening of 15 May as follows:

Asked if China supports ASEAN's proposal, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said: China agreed in principle with ASEAN's proposal and believed that the merger of the three Kampuchean factions would be difficult because they are suspicious of each other.

Asked if we have proposed cabinet posts in the Kampuchean coalition government, the foreign minister replied that these are small details.

Asked if the meeting of the leaders of the three Kampuchean factions would take place before that of the ASEAN foreign ministers, he said that he had learned before leaving for China that there was very little hope, and it was rather difficult for the three Kampuchean factions to hold the meeting.

Asked about the report that the meeting of the three Kampuchean factions in Kuala Lumpur was impossible, he said this is what the Chinese think. He said he did not want to comment on this matter, adding that we and the other ASEAN partners have done our best to help them. Whether they would hold the meeting or not depends on the three factions themselves.

Asked about the possibility of the coalition of the three Kampuchean factions, the foreign minister said that he did not want to comment on this matter further.

Asked about his talks with Prince Sihanouk, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said no progress was made.

Asked about the report that ASEAN and China ran into conflict over the premiership of the coalition government of the three Kampuchean factions, the foreign minister replied: Nobody should say that there is a conflict, because this matter depends on the decision of the three factions. He said the ASEAN countries are only trying to help them. If they cannot agree among themselves, we cannot do anything because we have done our best.

Asked about the report that his trip to China to work on the alliance of the Kampuchean factions is tantamount to dragging the country into the war, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said that the alliance of the Kampuchean factions is a political issue which is in line with the UN resolution. If the three Kampuchean factions continue their quarrel, the problem will be more difficult to solve. We have not interfered in their internal affairs. We are working in accordance with the UN resolution.

Asked if it is necessary for ASEAN to hold a summit meeting, the foreign minister said that the Kampuchean alliance is not the major topic of discussion at the meeting. It would be only one of the topics to be discussed at the meeting. He stressed that we will try to solve the Kampuchean problem through political means, not military ones.

Asked if the ASEAN countries would wash their hands of the Kampuchean problem, the foreign minister said he could not make any comment because he has not met with the other ASEAN foreign ministers who will meet next month.

Asked if ASEAN would continue to support Democratic Kampuchea in the United Nations, the foreign minister said ASEAN will have to continue its support for Democratic Kampuchea because it is regarded as the legitimate government of Kampuchea. The presence of foreign troops in Kampuchea is a violation of the UN charter which Thailand and other UN members cannot accept. Otherwise, Thailand would be in the same position as Kampuchea.

MATUPHUM VIEWS SITTHI'S MEETING WITH SIHANOUK

BK171014 Bangkok MATUPHUM in Thai 15 May 82 p 2

[Editorial: "The Government's Duty"]

[Text] Thai Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila last week visited Beijing and met with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who flew in from Pyongyang to discuss with the Thai minister the formation of a coalition government of the three Kampuchean factions of Khieu Samphan-Pol Pot, Son Sann and Prince Sihanouk himself.

The ASEAN countries believe that the formation of the coalition government of the three Kampuchean factions is the only way to end the armed conflict in Kampuchea.

Since the Vietnamese-backed Heng Samrin forces captured Phnom Penh and drove the Pol Pot regime into the jungle, the Kampuchean people have been living in misery. The situation in Kampuchea has many adverse effects on the ASEAN countries, particularly Thailand, which has to take care of and feed the Kampuchean refugees.

Moreover, the fighting in Kampuchea spills over into Thailand's border areas and affects the stability of Thailand and the Thai people who live near the Thai-Kampuchean border.

Therefore, it is right for the ASEAN members to try to help end the war in Kampuchea and restore peace in that country, and it is necessary for them to do that. Thailand cannot stand idle because of its neutral stance and just continue to feed refugees from Kampuchea or dig graves for its people who are killed by stray shells from Kampuchea or repair houses for the border people.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi's trip to Beijing to meet Prince Sihanouk is thus a correct move.

Certainly, Vietnam and the Heng Samrin regime must strongly condemn Thailand in this regard, because the successful formation of a coalition government of the three Kampuchean factions would mean a diplomatic defeat for them.

We believe that it is the duty of the government to try its best to solve the problem of the neighboring country that affects our national stability. Although the meeting between the Thai foreign minister and Prince Sihanouk will not suddenly give birth to the Kampuchean coalition government, it helps pave the way for that achievement.

SOVIET-KAMPUCHEAN JOINT COMMUNIQUE CITED

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 17 -- The splendid friendship and all-round cooperation between the Soviet Union and Kampuchea has seen continuous strengthening and development in the interest of the two peoples and of peace, democracy and socialism. This is contained in a communique on the official visit made to the Soviet Union from May 9 to 16 by Hun Sen member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the communist party of Kampuchea, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and foreign minister of Kampuchea.

During talks with the Kampuchean guests, the Soviet party stressed that the Soviet people would continue supporting the Kampuchean people's efforts to carry out socio-economic reforms in Kampuchea, the communique says. For their part, the Kampuchean Government and people fully support the Soviet Union's foreign policy of peace and its recent proposals aimed at averting the danger of a nuclear war, consolidating peace and developing international cooperation.

The Soviet Union and Kampuchea declared their readiness to normalize and enhance their relations with the People's Republic of China on the basis of the universally accepted principles of peaceful coexistence first of all the principle of non-interference in each other's internal affairs.

Foreign Minister Hun Sen reaffirmed the Indochinese countries' desire to enter into constructive dialogues with the ASEAN countries and broaden their cooperation and contacts with them with a view to normalizing the relations between the two groups of countries in Southeast Asia.

The Soviet Union supports the proposals of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos for regional consultations and their determination to defend their sovereignty and independence and make Southeast Asia a zone of peace and stability. The Soviet party welcomes the readiness of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos to establish relations of good neighbourhood with Thailand and to discuss with it all problems of common concern. The Soviet Union hails the strengthening of the friendship and fraternal solidarity between Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos. The close solidarity and unity among the Indochinese peoples is an important factor for peace in this region.

The two parties condemn the noisy provocative campaign launched by the forces hostile to the Kampuchean people under the signboard of seeking a solution to the "Kampuchean problem" which is invented by themselves. The Soviet Union resolutely declares that the Government of the People's Republic of Kampuchea, which is controlling the whole Kampuchean territory, is the only legal representative of Kampuchea at the United Nations and the other international institutions.

The Soviet foreign minister, A.A. Gromyko, has accepted an invitation of his Kampuchean counterpart to pay an official visit to Kampuchea.

QUAN DOI NHAN DAN ON TRIAL OF HOA COUNTERFEITERS

BK141250 Hanoi QUAN DOI NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 25 Apr 82, p 2

[Report by Thanh Lang]

[Text] Thanks to various technical and professional investigative methods, the Ho Chi Minh City Public Security Force detected the existence of fake 5-dong banknotes in circulation a few years ago. Immediately after that, it launched an investigation into this case.

Assisted by the people and the cadres of various sectors, public security agents made timely arrests of members of this money counterfeiting and trafficking racket. Among the arrested was Ly Hoat, residing at No 273/26 Nhat Tao Road. Hoat was a shady character of Chinese origin who was found to have carried out many activities against the revolutionary administration and who was being shadowed by the local administration.

Hoat testified that he worked for a book-binding corporation under the supervision of Ly Tam Chau, who was his cell leader. Ly Tam Chau gave counterfeit money to Hoat to buy articles at various state stores.

Public security agents searched the houses owned by Hoat and Ly Tam Chau, where they found 50,000 dong in fake 5-dong banknotes. Also found were printing papers of the same size as the fake banknotes, either still blank or half-finished. They had hidden many printing plates, ink, cutters, many types of seals, forged papers, and other printing equipment in various places.

Ly Tam Chau and Ly Hoat pleaded guilty and identified other accomplices in this Hoa [Vietnamese nationals of Chinese origin] reactionaries-run money counterfeiting racket, which was headed by Ly Tam Chau himself. Ly Tam Chau and Ly Hoat and their arrested accomplices all confessed that they had been executing an order from Chinese reactionaries to take counterfeit money to state stores to buy goods -- thus robbing these stores of their assets and using these materials for speculative hoarding purposes -- and to pump counterfeit money into the free market by buying gold and goods at exorbitant prices, thus causing market prices to soar and creating difficulties for the livelihood of the people and cadres.

When asked what kinds of official papers they had forged, they said that they had forged official documents and distributed them among themselves for use in travel and transactions and in cheating cadres and the people. With these forged papers, they had bought goods easily and conveniently. Hoat and Chau had also assigned their henchmen to take these forged documents to give to those wishing to flee abroad in exchange for gold.

Directed by the reactionaries among the Hoa people, Quan Van Tai and Hoang Kim Phuong, residing in the 5th precinct of Ho Chi Minh City, had boarded a train to the north to meet the reactionaries among the Hoa people in Hanoi in order to discuss a plan for the speculative purchase of good grain.

Quan Van Tai and Hoang Kim Phuong had made their way to a house at No 6 Cua Dong Street (Hanoi), where they met Lam Thang Dung and other members of this reactionary gang and discussed a plan to print and use counterfeit food stamps. The reactionaries among the Hoa people in Hanoi had provided Tai and Phuong with a number of genuine food stamps, including the type of food stamps marked with letters VM and VP, each of which may be redeemed for two kilograms of food. Tai and Phuong had taken these food stamps back to Ho Chi Minh City to deliver them to Ngo Venh, residing at No 100 Tan Thanh Road, to use as samples. Also a Hoa in this reactionary gang, Venh had been assigned the duty of printing fake food stamps. All of the fake food stamps printed by Venh had been taken by other members of this racket to Hanoi for delivery to their men there for circulation in Hanoi and Haiphong cities and in Thai Binh, Ha Nam Ninh and other provinces. Within more than 4 months, they had used a number of fake food stamps -- with a total face value of 90,000 kilos of food -- to buy foodstuffs at various state stores to be resold on the market.

The public security force has coordinated with various sectors in launching an investigation in which it found that as many as seven state stores had unwittingly accepted these fake food stamps.

The Hanoi Public Security Force has, in coordination with Ho Chi Minh City public security agents, arrested all members of this racket with all the incriminating evidence, thanks to tipoffs from the local cadres and people.

Members of this racket have pleaded guilty before the court of law and claimed that they had printed fake food stamps on the orders of the Chinese reactionaries for the purpose of making the Vietnamese people's life more difficult, thus causing them to lose their confidence in their party and state.

HANOI DISTRICTS SIGN EMULATION PLEDGES

BK160654 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 15 May

[Text] This afternoon, 15 May, representatives from 11 suburban Hanoi districts gathered at the headquarters of the municipal people's committee to sign an emulation pledge aimed at overfulfilling all norms in the 1982 State Plan and successfully implementing the resolutions of the fifth national party congress.

Pledging to overfulfill all major production norms for 1982, these districts will strive to produce another 380,000 tons of grain -- an increase of 14 percent over last year -- and accelerate the production of food to ensure 100,000 tons of vegetables, more than 13,000 tons of pork and 3,000 tons of freshwater fish for the municipality. In addition, they will strive to develop handicraft and small industrial production vigorously while implementing the procurement, control, distribution and circulation of goods more satisfactorily in order to ensure that grain and food are supplied to cadres, workers, civil servants and soldiers in accordance with the prescribed quantity and quality.

These districts also pledged to emulate in delivering export goods to the municipality in accordance with the plan while rapidly increasing the sources of these goods in their localities. They will economize on the use of energy, raw materials and other supplies in accordance with state regulations, and encourage the local people to increase their deposits in savings banks by 15 percent or more over last year.

In the immediate future, these districts will concentrate on satisfactorily caring for and harvesting more than 107,000 hectares of 5th month-spring rice and subsidiary and industrial crops together, with over 4,200 hectares of summer-fall vegetables. They will urgently plant additional summer-fall subsidiary crops in order to supply them to the municipality on a regular basis. They are also striving to carry out typhoon and flood control satisfactorily so as to protect their crops and socialist property, as well as the property and lives of the people.

MOKHTAR DISCUSSES KAMPUCHEA, RELATIONS WITH PRC

BK181036 Jakarta ANTARA in English 0939 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Semarang, 18 May (ANTARA) -- Indonesia is still not in a hurry to resume diplomatic relations with People's China, broken off following the aborted communist-inspired coup in this country in 1965, it was hinted here yesterday.

Foreign Minister Mikhtar Kusumaatmaja has said that Indonesia should be prudent and not be in a hurry to normalise diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China. "We must ascertain first how it would serve our national interests in normalising such relations," the foreign minister declared during a meeting with local journalists here Monday afternoon.

The minister is here in the framework of a visit to this area to deliver a keynote address before an ASEAN symposium on ASEAN's perspectives in the 1980's and also a lecture before local university students.

He disclosed that China has often supported Indonesian programs in international fora including the Cambodian problem, the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) regional grouping and on the Law of the Sea. "Cooperation in international fora has been going on which in other words means it is nearing normalcy," the foreign minister declared. He also reported that regular contacts had been made by the consulates of the two countries in the United Nations with the consuls exchanging visits. If the question could be resolved already through international fora then why should there be a hurry in normalising these relations, the foreign minister argued.

He reported also that Indonesia had greater influence in the international fora than mainland China because Indonesia was pursuing a special kind of diplomacy which won great sympathy from other countries. He did not elaborate.

Referring to a possible threat from the north (China), the foreign minister said that there was no need for Indonesia to be frightened. And as a nation following an independent and active foreign policy Indonesia should be vigilant against anyone and not against the north only.

He pointed out that there was no lasting friend or foe in the world. Who was considered a friend today, he added, could turn into a foe next. For this reason what [was] important was lasting national interests, he declared. Referring to the views of Indonesia and ASEAN about Cambodia, Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said Indonesia would extend support to Cambodia but they should also help themselves. None should be intransigent.

He was understood to be referring to the squabbling factions trying to form a coalition which would rule Cambodia.

With regard to Vietnam, he said, Indonesia did not consider that country an enemy but a friend. Indonesia was only opposed to that country's activities, he explained. But now Vietnam had turned to the better. She even wanted to be a member of ASEAN. Indonesia was opposed to this. What was acceptable was economic cooperation with that country.

He then talked about the goals of ASEAN which mainly wanted economic growth and development.

MOKHTAR: ASEAN PREVENTS 'BALKANIZATION' OF ASIA

BK181046 Jakarta ANTARA in English 0921 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Semarang, 18 May (ANTARA) -- Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja has stressed that the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) is a regional grouping not out to oppose any power bloc but a regional cooperation group to prevent the "Balkanisation" of Asia into smaller groups or being played off one against the other by the big powers.

Of importance in this regional cooperation among ASEAN was that the past heroic phases in facing colonialism should be changed into the phase of inter-regional cooperation, he added. Delivering a keynote address at the opening of an ASEAN symposium on the theme of "ASEAN perspectives in the 1980's" held at Rimba Graha here Monday, the foreign minister earlier said that national resilience basically constituted a concept on the process and materialisation of the welfare, defence and security in the life of a country and people. It was also a concept on regional cooperation based on the spirit of "self-reliance", mutual respect, solidarity and firm determination to achieve a peaceful and stable environment around the country.

The ASEAN symposium was organized under a cooperation scheme between the Diponegoro University here with the provincial government of Central Java and to last till May 18. The symposium was attended by ASEAN intellectuals and students of the Diponegoro University.

The idea of setting up the ASEAN regional cooperation came about in the middle of the 1960's when Indonesia just made a major political turn about when the old order was changed with the new order administration which altered the character of the country's foreign relations with other countries and particularly with its neighbours, he continued. The idea basically constituted the implementation of instruction of the Ampera Cabinet presidium which involved the guideline of promoting cooperation with other countries, namely, to make efforts at promoting regional cooperation in Southeast Asia in the widest sense of the word.

He then related that ASEAN cooperation since 1976 became wider and deep-rooted among the peoples of ASEAN -- both cooperation in the field of government and education and in other spheres on a positive scale. Political cooperation was started following the acceptance of the Kuala Lumpur declaration on November 9, 1971, which coined the concept that the Southeast Asian region was a "zone of peace, freedom and neutrality".

In line with Indonesia's independent and active foreign policy and the goals it wants to achieve as one of the founders of ASEAN, whatever happened, ASEAN would continue to be the instrument for vital regional cooperation in the efforts of promoting environmental [word as received] strong friendship with neighbour countries leading towards greater peace and security stability in Southeast Asia. To arrive at such firm cooperation, the foreign minister said, there was need for strong solidarity among the ASEAN peoples, particularly in facing threats and interference by foreign powers which could threaten and destroy the security stability in the ASEAN region and the Southeast Asian region as a whole.

The friendship between these countries was also expected to escalate developments in the economic sector as part of the process of national development. The governments of the ASEAN for the past 15 years have paved the way for a number of development projects under cooperation schemes creating a good image of ASEAN in the world. He then encouraged that symposium activities on the ASEAN level should be regularly held as the results were very positive.

ASEAN TIN-PRODUCING COUNTRIES END MEETING

BK151551 Kuala Lumpur Domestic Service in English 1130 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] The three ASEAN tin producing countries -- Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand -- have agreed to setting up of a tin producers association to protect their interests if the Sixth International Tin Agreement [ITA] fails to come into force by the July 1 deadline.

They have said they will work toward securing the necessary consumers' support for this idea. A broad framework containing new approaches toward marketing, research and development of the tin industry has been worked out. Details will be further examined to ensure the effectiveness.

This was announced in a statement issued in Kuala Lumpur today at the end of the 2-day ministerial meeting of ASEAN tin producers. The meeting, chaired by Minister of Primary Industries Datuk Paul Leong, was attended by Indonesia's Minister of Mines and Energy Professor Subroto and Thai Minister of Industry Tun Chatchai Chunhawan.

The Ministers regretted the progressive release of U.S. GSA tin despite the continued weakness of the international tin market and the (?imposition) of) export controls by the "International Tin Council [ITC]. Effective measures were also discussed at the meeting to counter such (?disposals).

Later, speaking at a news conference, Dakuk Paul Leong said the export control measures imposed by the ITC came in too late to protect the already depressed market. He pointed out that with the imposition of export controls, any movement of tin ores without the approval of relevant authority from Malaysia to any other part of the world would [words indistinct]. The Customs Department had already intensified its supervision in such activities.

Tun Chatchai Chunhawan said his country would work closely with ASEAN tin producers to work out an effective plan to curb smuggling activities of tin ores.

Professor Subroto said ASEAN tin producers would continue to approach consumer countries, such as India, South Korea and other European countries [as heard] and urge them to sign the Sixth ITA.

Criticism of U.S. Tin Policy

BK121256 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0800 GMT 12 May 82

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] One of the effects of the world recession on Malaysia has been a fall in the production of steel and tin plates, which has in turn led to a sharp decline in the demand and price of tin. But unfortunately, the depressed tin prices have also been due to unilateral actions on the part of the United States which, as the world's largest and strongest free market economy, is rather unfortunate.

Third World nations, who have looked to the United States for leadership and support, have been disappointed, and increasingly, countries like Malaysia, have begun to accept the view that only tough action, like that taken by OPEC to secure fair prices, would bring any result.

It was in December last year that Malaysia raised its voice against the indiscriminate disposal of stockpiled tin by the General Services Administration [GSA] of the United States.

For the first half of last year, 3,170 tons of tin were disposed of in the U.S. market at a time when the market for tin was already showing signs of weakness. Sales by the GSA have already exceeded 10,000 tons, and this has had a devastating effect on tin prices.

Malaysia and other tin producers had earlier warned that there was a surplus of supply over demand by some 20,000 tons for 1981 and 13,000 tons for the first half of this year. In spite of this the U.S. Government has seen fit to release tin on its market. To make matters worse, it began to release tin on the international market recently for the first time in its history. This indiscriminate disposal of stockpiled tin has resulted in the closure of 179, or 10 percent, of all gravel pump mines.

The situation would be further aggravated when Malaysia implements the International Tin Council production cutback proposal. The 15-percent production cut will result in the closure of nearly 30 percent of all gravel pump mines.

These actions will have a profound effect on the health of the Malaysian economy. Malaysia will lose revenue worth nearly 1 billion ringgit because of low prices and reduced output. Nearly 8,000 workers in tin mines would lose their jobs. The balance of payment deficit would be further worsened and economic activity would definitely slow down.

Tin-producing nations have realized that their plenty of pleas for help from the United States will go unheard. They have resolved to join hands and form an OPEC style of cartel, possibly called OTEC. Ultimately, it is the industrial nations who would suffer, because when the economic situation improves, the increased demand for tin will not be met, because it takes years to set up mines and keep them operational. The U.S. action has thus far been deemed to be only irresponsible. The time will come when tin-producing nations will question the very basis of U.S. trade policies.

The Reagan administration is known for its probusiness attitude as well as its belief in allowing free reign to the forces of a free market. But how can the tin market be called a free one when the GSA persists in pursuing its dumping policies? For the United States, it is maybe a matter of keeping inflation down by forcing the prices of primary commodities down. For primary producing countries like Malaysia, it is a matter of either a full or half-empty stomach, and we will not allow that situation to prevail where we are made poor deliberately.

PRIME MINISTER MAHATHIR RETURNS FROM JAPAN

Details of the introduction of the system would be disclosed after the prime minister discussed the matter with the public services department.

Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said both the public and private sectors would be encouraged to adopt the system. For a start, the government would send 120 officers to Japan to learn the Japanese system of banking and other methods of economic development.

Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir pointed out that at present Malaysia was only having assembly technology from the Japanese. In future, Japan was prepared to help the country in designing techology.

SINGAPORE

TRADE MINISTRY QUARTERLY REPORT ISSUED

BK161231 Hong Kong AFP in English 0438 GMT 16 May 82

[Text] Singapore, 16 May (AFP) -- Singaporeans have been warned of "rough times ahead" as the grip of world recession on the republic's economy is tightening. The warning came last night from Trade and Industry Minister Tony Tan, whose ministry had earlier released its economic survey for the first quarter of this year.

According to the survey, Singapore's economy grew by only 7.3 percent in the first 3 months compared to 10 percent for the whole of last year. There was hardly any growth in manufacturing output — only a 1.6 percent increase, the lowest since 1975 when Singapore was in the worst recession year after the first oil crisis. The electrical and electronics industry continued its downward trend. Its growth fell in the last quarter of 1981 and dropped further by 6.8 percent. Output in the textiles, timber and plastic industries was also down due to shrinking orders. Furthermore, the trade and financial and business services sectors showed slower rates of growth.

The survey also showed a January-March increase in the number of job seekers and a decline in productivity growth.

Asking Singaporeans to tighten their belts for a few years "In order to ensure our economic future", Dr. Tan said: "The lower rate of growth in the first quarter of this year is a warning to us that, while we hope for an uplift in the United States and the world economy, we must be prepared, if necessary, to face rough weather. To avoid sinking, we must tighten up the hatches. We must cut our unnecessary spending and avoid wastage."

Dr. Tan said that from now on, annual wage increases implemented for the last few years would not be automatic and, instead, it would be based on "economic performance". "This is a fact the people must accept to see Singapore through a period of recession," he explained.

Dr. Tan, however, said that so long as Singapore's economy kept growing there was no need for the government to take any "draconian measures that were being forced on workers in the West." These workers had to accept a fall in real income in wage settlements, he pointed out. Singapore's high wage policy, designed to last 3 years, must come to an end this year, he added.

Dr. Tan said that although Singapore's economic growth in 1981 (nearly 10 percent) was very good it did not give the "full picture."

The first half of 1981 was a period of high economic activity. The U.S. economy had a burst of strength in the first 6 months and Singapore was pulled up in the updraft. But from last October the effects of world recession began to be felt and Singapore began to slow down. Local manufacturers, he said, found it more difficult to get new orders, and tourism also declined. It continued into this year with the future weakening of the economies of the major industrialised countries in the first quarter, he said.

Dr. Tan noted that even Japan, which had successfully weathered economic storms in the past, was now feeling the effects of the world recession. Its economic growth is expected to be about 3 percent this year, well below previous levels.

"Under these unauspicious circumstances, Singapore did relatively well to grow by 7.3 percent per annum in the first 3 months of this year," he said, adding, "Least this should lull us into a false sense of complacemency, we should note that this was the lowest rate of increase in the last 4 years and very much lower than the 10.3 percent in the first half of 1981."

Calling on Singaporeans to work hard, increase productivity and ensure that wage costs do not go out of line, he added: "No one owes us a living. All that we consume must be earned and, if necessary, we must be prepared to face a few years of belt-tightening in order to insure our economic future. If we do not do this, then we will be in a perilous situation by the second half of the 1980's. New investment will be down. Our economy and our society will lose their dynamism," the minister said.

BARANGAY ELECTION TURNOUT, VIOLENCE REPORTED

Comelec Report

HK180129 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 17 May 82

[Excerpts] The Commission on Elections [Comelec] reported a heavy turnout of voters in yesterday's barangay elections. The Comelec said the turnout was as high as 95 percent in some areas, indicating that the turnout may exceed those in previous elections since 1972. The Comelec also reported that voting was generally peaceful and orderly, except for isolated reports of violence and vote-buying. The poll body said violations of the election code centered mostly on flying voting and unauthorized entry into voting centers. As usual there was some confusion in the absence of some voters' names in the voters' lists, but on the whole the Comelec expressed satisfaction over the turnout and conduct of yesterday's elections.

Early reports indicated that incumbent barangay captains in Metro Manila are leading their challengers 6 to 4. In some areas candidates were unopposed. There were 101 such candidates in Manila, 15 in Quezon City, 9 Makati and 1 each in San Juan and Mandaluyong.

Informed of the conduct and turnout of yesterday's election, President Marcos said it all indicated the real political emancipation of the Filipino people. The president flew to Batac, Ilocos Norte, with daughter Imee and Armed Forces Chief Fabian Ver to cast their ballots. Speaking later to newsmen, the president said the barangay elections are part of the country's political emancipation, which in turn is part of a two-phase process to fully liberate the Filipinos. After about 3 hours the president and his party flew back to Manila.

The first lady, for her part, said yesterday's orderly and non-partisan polls reflected the political maturity of the Filipino people. Mrs Marcos noted the number and high quality of candidates in the election, considering that the barangay posts carry no salary. In Metro Manila's 1,800 barangay posts, there were some 50,000 candidates, including lawyers, doctors, businessmen, and former high government officials.

The constabulary regional commanders nationwide said the elections gave them no problems in peace and order control. However, there were isolated incidents of terrorism and violence.

In the Bicol region, reports said that there are barangays in Camarines Norte where no candidates were standing, for fear of being liquidated by dissidents. These barangays all belong to Imelda town. In Gumaca, Queson, a propaganda poster of one (Vicente Maksantai) was destroyed by followers of a rival candidate.

Report on Violence

HK180131 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 17 May 82

[Excerpts] Philippine Constabulary [PC] Chief Lt-Gen Fidel Ramos has reported 9 deaths throughout the country during the last 24 hours in incidents related to yesterday's barangay elections. Among those reported killed were (Sevarino de Guzman), a barangay councilmen of Gimba, South Cotabato; (Bomeo Bacasan), who was shot dead in Metro Manila; and (Roberto de Guzman), a barangay captain candidate in (Samar), Bataan.

General Ramos also confirmed that seven barangays in Camarines Norte were under communist terrorist threats. No candidates ran in the barangays. In Imelda, three teams from the Camarines Norte PC Command were sent to those barangays to restore order.

Interviewed by newsmen in Batac, Ilocos Norte, President Marcos said the barangay elections would test the political maturity of the people. During the interview the president stressed that the barangay election is the foundation of the country's participatory democracy. Participatory democracy, he explained, calls for the participation of the lowest-ranking citizen of the republic in the government. The barangay officials, the president said, are the link between the citizens and national government officials. According to the president, the complete liberation of the Filipino people is being effected in stages. The first stage involves the political emancipation of which the barangay election is part, and the second the economic liberation of the people. The first stage includes the expansion of the democratic base of the country.

MARCOS APPOINTS THREE NEW SUPREME COURT JUSTICES

OW141223 Quezon City RPN Television Network in English 1100 GMT 14 May 82

[Text] President Marcos today constituted the high tribunal to its fullest under the constitution by appointing 15 members.

The president named three new justices, former Appeals Court Justice (Contrado Vasquez), Supreme Court Administration (Lorenzo Remova) and Court of Appeals Justice (Hugo Gutierrez, Jr). Two justices are out -- Vicente Ericta and Ramon Fernandez. Twelve other justices, who resigned in the wake of the 1981 bar scandal, were reappointed by the president, led by Chief Justice Enrique Fernando.

President Marcos stressed the appointments were made after a long, deep selection process participated in by members of the Batasan, the old Supreme Court justices, cabinet and executive committee members, legal luminaries and others. Of the reappointed, only Justice (Vicente Abad Santos), who is still abroad, was not sworn in during the oath-taking rites at Malacanang this afternoon.

Public Reaction

HK160038 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 15 May 82

[Text] The public generally approved the move of President Marcos in constituting a new 15-member Supreme Court. Random surveys conducted nationwide show the people believe the president acted swiftly and decisively in resolving the crisis. A majority still held the view that the chief executive should have carried out a total reorganization of the court. There were also those who said he should have been more drastic against some of the justices who resigned. The surveys were carried out in Metro Manila and the cities of Baguio, Dagupan, Cebu, Iloilo, Davao and Zamboanga.

SHIP SEIZED BY UNIDENTIFIED WARSHIP OFF KOREA

[Text] Fukuoka, May 19, KYODO -- A 114.45-ton Japanese fish carrier with a crew of eight aboard was seized by a warship of unknown nationality in the Yellow Sea west of the Korean Peninsula Tuesday evening, according to reports received by the Fukuoka Maritime Safety office.

The reports said the No. 81 Hiro Maru belonging to Murayama Fishery Co. of Fukuoka was seized by the warship as it was about to take on board fish caught by a fishing boat of the fishing firm in waters 37.50 degrees north latitude and 124.05 degrees east longitude at around 5:25 p.m.

North Korea established a military zone within 50 nautical miles off its coast in waters north of the 38th Parallel.

Five Japanese dragnet fishing boats were seized by North Korean warships on April 24 and another boat on May 11. The five boats seized on April 24 were freed later the same day.

KPNLF LEADER SON SANN ARRIVES FOR TALKS

OW181247 Tokyo KYODO in English 1237 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 82, KYODO -- Kampuchean resistance leader Son Sann arrived here Tuesday night for talks with Japanese Government and political leaders.

Son Sann, a former prime minister and now leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), will confer with Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi and former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda during his stay in Tokyo.

He is head of one of three Kampuchean resistance groups vowing to topple the present Kampuchean Government backed by Vietnam.

Asks More Aid

OW190622 Tokyo KYODO in English 0559 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 19, KYODO -- Kampuchean resistance leader Son Sann Wednesday urged Japan to provide increased humanitarian and economic aid to his resistance group which has vowed to topple the Vietnam-backed Heng Samrin regime in Phnom Penh.

The former prime minister of Kampuchea and now leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) made the request during his meeting with Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, Foreign Ministry officials said.

The Japanese foreign minister, however, made no firm promise to aid additional to that Japan is already providing to Kampuchean refugees for humanitarian reasons, according to the officials.

In the 20-minute meeting, Son Sann said that his resistance group wishes to settle the Kampuchean issue peacefully on the basis of resolutions adopted at United Nations meetings on Kampuchea.

KPNLF also would like to establish a united government with two other anti-Vietnamese guerrilla groups, one led by former Kampuchean Head of State Norodom Sihanouk and the other the Khmer Rouge, or former Prime Minister Pol Pot's regime ousted by Heng Samrin in 1979, as agreed among the leaders of the three groups in Singapore last September, Son Sann was quoted as saying.

But the work to establish such a government is currently stalled, he added, due to conditions demanded by the Khmer Rouge, according to the officials.

Son Sann told Sakurauchi that Kampuchean people prefer the Heng Samrin regime to the Khmer Rouge, but they support the Son Sann group, according to the officials.

Sakurauchi expressed his hope that the united government would be established, and said that Tokyo would maintain close contacts with Son Sann group in view of a visit by Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang to Japan later this month and an expanded ministerial conference of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), which favors the creation of the united government, next month.

Son Sann, accompanied by three members of KPNLF, is currently in Japan for an informal five-day visit at the invitation of dietmen of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party.

He will leave Japan Saturday after holding talks with Japanese Government and political leaders.

FOREIGN MINISTRY AGAIN REQUESTS GROMYKO VISIT

OW190415 Tokyo KYODO in English 0358 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 19, KYODO -- Japan renewed its call Wednesday for Soviet Foreign Minister Andrey Gromyko to visit Tokyo to improve bilateral relations, the Japanese Foreign Ministry said.

Vice Foreign Minister Ryozo Sunobe filed the request with new Soviet Ambassador to Japan Vladimir Pavlov, ministry officials said. Pavlov, who assumed the Tokyo post in April, did not respond to the call, the officials said.

In a 30-minute meeting with the Soviet envoy, Sunobe cited some problems yet to be fully discussed as major obstacles for stable Japanese-Soviet relations, the officials said.

Sunobe was quoted as telling Pavlov that among them was a territorial dispute involving the four northern islands off Hokkaido which were occupied by the Soviets after the war.

Pavlov was quoted as saying that he would make efforts to develop the bilateral relations which he said are not in the best state. The officials quoted him as saying that there are many spheres in which the Soviet Union and Japan could develop their bilateral cooperation, especially in economic and academic spheres.

The Soviet Union and Japan, as two major powers of the world, could play major role for peace and stability of the world, Pavlov said.

SOUTH KOREAN INTRUSION IN DMZ PROTESTED AT MAC

SK181532 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1524 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Kaesong, May 18 (KCNA) -- The 465th meeting of secretaries of the two sides to the Military Armistice Commission was held on May 18 at Panmunjom. At the meeting our side lodged a strong protest with the enemy side against the grave armed provocation committed against us by the South Korean puppet army in wanton violation of the armistice agreement and called the enemy side to account for it.

According to a statement of Senior Colonel Kim Yon-ki, secretary of our side, at the meeting, at around 10:50 on May 17, four South Korean puppet army soliders armed with automatic rifles intruded more than 100 metres into our portion of the Demilitarized Zone without prior notice along the rails near the military demarcation line marker No 0565 south of Pyonggang in the central sector of the front.

Synchronizing with this, the South Korean puppet army began firing rifles and guns all at once into the area of our side from its four posts south of the MDL markers Nos 0560, 0572, 0577 and 0579.

The rifle and gun firing of the South Korean puppet army ceased at around 12:10. During this time the South Korean puppet army fired a total of over 12,000 bullets and shells -- more than 10 recoilless gun shells, 4,100 large calibre machinegun bullets and 8,000 "M-16" automatic rifle bullets.

This grave armed provocation of the South Korean puppet army was a most crude violation of the armistice agreement and an extremely reckless military provocation which may cause an armed clash between the two sides, noted the secretary of our side. He said that the military provocation of the enemy was not a chance incident but a chain in the link of premeditated provocations for lighting a train of powder to start a new war in Korea.

The secretary of our side sternly protested against the armed provocation of the South Korean puppet army against our side and strongly demanded the enemy side to take responsible steps lest similar incidents should occur again.

KWANGJU 1980 UPRISING MARKED BY KPA RALLIES

SK181156 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 17 May 82

[Text] Soldiers' rallies commemorating the second anniversary of the heroic Kwangju popular uprising were held on 17 May in units of the Korean People's Army [KPA]. Placed in the front of the meeting halls were portraits of the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song. Slogans reading "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" and "Long live the glorious KWP!" were hung in the meeting halls. Also hung in the halls were slogans actively supporting and encouraging the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle for democratization of the South Korean people and students and slogans appealing for achieving the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification with the united strength of the people.

At the rally held in the unit to which Comrade (Kim Yong-man) belongs, (Kim Han-chu), (Song Yong-han), (Yi Yong-ho) and (Kang Kyong-ok) made speeches.

The speakers pointed out that the Kwangju popular uprising in May 1980 was a sacred antifascist national salvation resistance by the South Korean people against living any longer as slaves of the Yusin fascist dictatorship. They said that the Kwangju uprisers, without yielding to the Chon Tu-hwan clique's most vicious operation for suppressing the riot and to the barbarous massacre, waged a severe death-defying fight utilizing various forms of armed struggle and won victory by seizing the city for more than 10 days.

Thus, they dealt a hard blow to the colonial military fascist rule by the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys and greatly shook them to their foundation.

Noting that the U.S. imperialists were behind the Chon Tu-hwan clique, which committed an intolerable barbarous massacre against the Kwangju resistance fighters, they said that the U.S. imperialists handed over to the traitor Chon Tu-hwan a number of troops and modern lethal weapons under the command of the commander of the U.S. imperialist aggressor forces occupying South Korea, thus actively instigating and supporting his barbarous suppression of the people. The speakers sternly denounced with surging national indignation the U.S. imperialists -- vicious aggressors and atrocious enemies of democracy and peaceful reunification -- and their lackey the Chon Tu-hwan clique.

They stressed: The South Korean people, not forgetting the deep-rooted rancor of the heroic fighters who fell in the streets of resistance, should more persistently wage the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle for democracy and should recover the price paid with their blood. They should overthrow the military fascist dictatorship by driving out the U.S. imperialists.

They said: Soldiers of the South Korean puppet army should turn the barrels of their guns on the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique, rather than committing such intolerable crimes as perpetrated by the (word indistinct) of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique and by the rascals of the airborne troops who cruelly massacred innocent people. They should join in the just struggle of the people who resolutely rose for new politics, a new system and a new life.

The speakers also noted: All the soldiers of the People's Army should more thoroughly implement our party's military line for self-defense, upholding the programmatic tasks put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the report at the Sixth KWP Congress and in his policy speech and under the wise guidance of the glorious party center.

At the soldiers' rally in the unit to which Comrade (Kang Man-sok) belongs, (Na Yun-kyong), (Kim Tu-yong), (Yu Pyong-sol) and (Kim Kwang-sun) made speeches.

The speakers said: Kwangju, a city of resistance, is filled with resentment and grudges against the barbarous massacre by the human butchers. The barbarous massacre in Kwangju by the Chon Tu-hwan clique was a most barbarous act of killing fellow countrymen without precedent in history. It was a most atrocious act by the butchers of the nation which will not be tolerated by the soldiers and people for many generations to come.

They noted: Following the barbarous Kwangju massacre, in a second Kwangju massacre operation, the Chon Tu-hwan clique arrested and imprisoned on a large-scale tens of thousands of students and people, including those involved in the Kwangju uprising. They cruelly tortured and massacred them. With the arson at the U.S. cultural center in Pusan, the clique is running amok more wildly with maneuvers of oppression.

The puppet clique, reducing all of South Korea to a land of fascism, is more viciously perpetrating military provocations against the northern half of the republic, actively following the U.S. imperialists' two Koreas plot and [word indistinct].

Noting that the United States is responsible for today's situation, the speakers stressed that the South Korean people should drive out the U.S. imperialists -- the ringleaders who instigate the puppet clique to fascism and division and block reunification -- and should more vigorously wage the anti-U.S. national salvation struggle to put an end to their colonial rule.

The speakers said: Our soldiers should thoroughly carry out the policy for the chuche-orientation of the entire army, upholding the wise leadership of the great leader and the glorious party center, and they should make every effort to strengthen the People's Army as an invincible ever-victorious revolutionary self-defensive force.

At the soldiers' meeting in the unit to which Comrade O Ki-su belongs, (O In-suk), (Kwak Yong-chan), (Kim Yong-kyu) and (In In-chol) made speeches.

The speakers said: Our soldiers, marking the second anniversary of the Kwangju popular uprising, are proudly recalling the courageous struggle of the Kwangju resistance fighters which impressed all the people and the entire world. At the same time, we cannot suppress surging indignation and burning hostility against the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, which bestially massacred the students and people.

They pointed out that the bloody resistance waged by the courageous Kwangju students and citizens against the fascists was a just national salvation struggle against the Chon Tu-hwan clique's 17 May atrocity and for realizing a democratic new life. It was a heroic mass riot against the enemy's bloody oppression.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, frightened by the heroic uprising by the Kwangju citizens, indiscriminately killed and injured the students and citizens in a most barbarous way by mobilizing airborne troops and enormous forces numbering some 70,000 men and modern lethal weapons. They sternly denounced his intolerable crimes.

Noting that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is not only a murderer without equal but also a warmonger, they said that the rascals are strengthening on a large-scale the puppet army and equipment under bellicose slogans about so-called security and fostering national strength, raving about the theory of the non-existent threat of southward invasion. The rascals are running amok to expand defense industries and construct military bases.

The speakers denounced the U.S. imperialists and traitor Chon Tu-hwan for straining the situation in our country by repeatedly perpetrating armed provocations and for leading the situation to the brink of war. They noted that the large-scale armed provocations committed by the South Korean puppet army did not develop into overall armed conflict simply because of our patience.

The speakers warned: If the enemy continuously adheres to its reckless playing with fire against us, it will only face (?ruin).

They stressed: The soldiers of our people's army, cherishing invariable loyalty to the party and the revolution, should firmly arm ourselves with the immortal chuche idea and credibly defend the security of the fatherland and the revolutionary gains with the spirit of being mobilized and with a strained posture.

While the speeches were in progress, vigorous shouts of, "we sternly denounce the barbarous Kwangju massacre by the South Korean military fascist clique!", "let us overthrow traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the nation-selling traitor!", "Let us resolutely crush the two Koreas plot of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique!" and "let us achieve without fail the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification with the united strength of the entire nation!" were frequently heard in the meeting hall.

NODONG SINMUN EDITORIAL MARKS KWANGJU UPRISING

[NODONG SINMUN 18 May editorial: "The Righteous Aspiration of the Kwangju Uprisers Will Surely Be Achieved"]

[Text] Today, our people mark the second anniversary of the Kwangju people's uprising in the midst of accelerated socialist construction in the northern half and the deepening and expansion of the antifascist struggle for democracy in South Korea.

The Kwangju people's uprising, staged against the martial law which was imposed and expanded to crush the South Korean people's struggle for democracy, flared up like wildfire following the elimination of the former dictator, in opposition to the brutal suppression following the imposition of the martial law. It was a strong expression of resistance by the people, who were determined not to tolerate the Chon Tu-hwan ring's fascist military rule and despotism.

The uprising was a sagacious armed resistance, organized and staged to confront the counter-revolutionary violence with revolutionary violence, the highest form of a massive antifascist struggle for democracy and against suppression and for the realization of democratic politics.

The uprisers -- outraged by the bloodthirsty acts of the oppressors, who responded to the peaceful demonstrations of the people demanding democracy with bloody suppression by mobilizing a large-scale armored force -- armed themselves with weapons acquired when they attacked the puppet police stations and armories and bravely fought the frantic troops of suppression.

The uprising, participated in by thousands upon thousands of people who occupied the puppet ruling institutions, including the provincial government building, lasted for 10 days. The flames of the resistance spread to 17 cities and counties in the province and to virtually all areas in North Cholla Province.

The Kwangju people's uprising, the largest and strongest massive resistance, unrivaled in its scale, stubbornness and the suppor it won, was an extraordinary event which painted the annals of the South Korean people's struggle for freedom and democracy with brilliant exploits.

Although the modern history of Asia has recorded numerous massive uprisings in various countries, it has never seen such a large-scale struggle as the Kwangju people's uprising, which was strongly and persistently waged for several days in the midst of an attack by a vast armed force and under occupation by the imperialists. For this very reason, the Kwangju people's uprising (?shocked the people in the world).

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The heroic Kwangju people's uprising that May, in which thousands of people, with arms in their hands, bravely fought, greatly shook the foundation of the South Korean fascist ruling system, driving the U.S. imperialists and the fascist military elements, their stooges, to terror and apprehension.

Through their heroic resistance struggle, the people in Kwangju have proven the truth that the strength of a people who rise to take control of their own fate is mightier than the sword and that they can easily prevail over any brutal enemy if they fight in unity. They also displayed the heroic spirit and persistent fighting spirit of the South Korean people at home and abroad.

The uprising dealt a severe blow to the fascist military rule of Chon Tu-hwan and shook the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists at its base. The Kwangju people's uprising endlessly stirred not only our people but also the oppressed people in the world who are struggling for national independence and sovereignty and encouraged them in their struggle for freedom and liberation. The Kwangju people's uprising, which with a persistent fighting spirit and thorough [word indistinct], displayed the Korean people's persistent will and mien before the whole world, is now endlessly encouraging our people's national dignity and pride. The heroic exploits of the people in Kwangju, a product of the South Korean people's sacred cause for human dignity and freedom, will be immortal and the services they have rendered before the nation and people will shine in the nation's annals. Kwangju has become a court indicting before the whole world the fascist military Chon Tu-hwan ring's barbarous acts of murder.

Mobilizing a special paratroop unit equipped with modern weapons of mass destruction such as tanks, armored vehicles and missiles and a great number of armed forces, including an army division, an armored unit and aircraft, the fascist clique launched an unprecedented fratricidal operation, thus showing its vicious nature, more cruel than that of a beast, as a human butcher by massacring thousands of people, wounding some 10,000 people and submerging the streets of Kwangju in a sea of blood. History will not forget the atrocities committed by the Chon Tu-hwan ring, which has wet the whole land with blood shed by its fellow countrymen, and will see to it that the ring pays dearly for what it has done.

After the Kwangju people's uprising, which has become a historical milestone heralding the fact that the struggle against fascism and for democracy has entered a new stage, people's antigovernment demonstrations have been further enhanced and have accelerated both the isolation of the fascist military Chon Tu-hwan clique from the people and its political crisis.

Embarrassed by the spirit of resistance which is growing among the people, the fascist clique has finally exposed its brutal nature and launched a wicked reactionary offensive against the democratic forces.

By trampling with tank treads the several thousands of resisting masses and mercilessly massacring them with guns and bayonets, the fascist rascals submerged the streets of resistance in blood. Moreover, they arrested the survivors of the resistance in groups and referred them to murderous trials. By strengthening the suppressive network and fabricating new evil laws, they changed all of South Korea into a gloomier prison in which fasicst terrorism prevails.

Numerous democratic figures, including Kim Tae-chung, have been charged with being sympathizers or wire-pullers and sent to trial by court-martial; the political activities of politicians have been suspended; journalistic activities have been banned; and conscientious professors, students and journalists have been collectively expelled from campuses and their posts.

The treacherous acts against the country and the people by the Chon Tu-hwan ring have been further unmasked. Begging the U.S. masters for the eternal occupation of South Korea by U.S. troops and for an increase in military aid, the fascist clique, which has [words indistinct] and usurped power, is selling national sovereignty while flattering and toadying to its U.S. masters. Furthermore, the clique is crying out for South Korea-U.S. friendship, even upholding the Korea-U.S. treaty -- a subordinate, unequal treaty, which is [words indistinct].

The clique is cooking up as a history of friendship and cooperation the history of the U.S. imperialist aggression of Korea over the 100-odd years of aggression and plunder since the aggression on the Taedong River by the pirate ship General Sherman. This is aimed at entrusting South Korea to the U.S. imperialists as their colony and military base forever, maintaining the clique's dictatorial regime under their aegis and continuously suppressing and exploiting the South Korean people.

By inviting to South Korea even the Japanese reactionaries, who occupied our country for nearly half a century and enforced the policy of colonial slavery, the clique has been strengthening political, economic and military collusion with them.

The clique has invited (?the imerialist aggressive forces) and entrusted South Korea to them as a colony. This is a more execrable treacherous act than that committed by the five traitors in concluding the protectorate treaty between Korea in Japan in 1905.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring is disturbing peace and aggravating the tense situation by building up military strength, increasing armaments and kicking up war rackets backed by the strength of the foreign forces. The ring is inspiring a sense of confrontation and antagonism within the nation and promoting division by kicking up anticommunist rackets.

Owing to the puppet clique's fascist rule and its flunkeyist, nation-selling maneuvers, national independence is trampled in South Korea and the circumstances in which the people are (?deprived of their rights) have reached a climax.

Following are examples of the disasterous incidents which have taken place one after another: National industries and the agricultural economy are going bankrupt and being ruined under subordination to foreign monopolistic capital; jobless people and vagabonds are roaming the streets; with skyrocketing prices, the people's lives have been reduced to extreme distress; an increasing number of people are committing suicide under the miserable economic conditions.

The prevailing sad situation is a vicious result of the antipopular suppressive rule by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, which is making a habit of fascism, nation-selling and split while turning against the nation to secure its long-term power.

The U.S. imperialists are the ringleaders who are instigating the Chon Tu-hwan ring to military terrorist rule and to treason against the country and the people. The U.S. imperialist aggressors, who are facing a crisis in their colonial rule in the face of the revolutionary advance of the [word indistinct] people, have raised up the Chon Tu-hwan ring -- the most truculent military fascist group -- within the puppet military circles and have been enforcing an unprecendentedly barbarous rule in order to escape their crisis by way of military terrorism.

They were the ones who backed up the Chon Tu-hwan ring's usurpation of power by fabricating the coup for military purge; they were the ones who allowed the puppet army troops to be mobilized from the (?several) divisions under their military control and to be led to the Kwangju massacre; [words indistinct]; they were the ones who (?allowed the criminal paratroopers to be moblized).

The U.S. imperialists are the ringleaders who are increasing armaments by introducing nuclear arms and military equipment into South Korea, aggravating the situation by instigating the North-South confrontation and blocking the reunification through their schemes for two Koreas.

The U.S. imperialists are putting up the Chon Tu-hwan ring to execute their execrable criminal acts. The Chon Tu-hwan ring is the most truculent stooge carrying out U.S. imperialist aggressive policy. The ring is a flunkeyist, nation-selling group which maintains its life under the aegis of the U.S. masters and sells the country and the nation. The ring is a splittist group which instigates North-South confrontation and blocks the country's reunification. And the ring is a group of fascist hangmen which is squashing with guns and bayonets (?the people's aspirations for democratization).

If we leave the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique intact, we cannot realize the independence of the nation, the democratization of the South Korean society and the reunification of the country.

The fascist clique is raving about democracy, independence and reunification to conceal its vicious tyranny and pro-U.S. flunkeyist treachery. However, with such deceitful propaganda, it can neither smash the South Korean people's consciousness for national independence and aspirations for democracy and the reunification of the fatherland nor can it block their patriotic advance.

For the last 2 years, the South Korean people have brought themselves to their senses through actual experience and have become more disciplined through struggle. Since the Kwangju popular uprising, the South Korean people have been actively waging the struggle for democratization of society and for the reunification of the fatherland. They are directing the brunt of the struggle against the U.S. imperialist aggressors, while actively making an antigovernment advance.

With the arson at the U.S. cultural center in Pusan as inspiration, the spirit of anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle is rapidly increasing. Staging rallies, demonstrations and [word indistinct] everywhere, the students and people are demanding the withdrawal of the U.S. imperialists from South Korea and the Chon Tu-hwan clique's resignation.

The enhanced anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle in South Korea is a demonstration of the ardent aspiration to recover national sovereignty and democratic rights by driving out the oppressors at home and abroad and to achieve national reunification. The U.S. imperialists and their lackeys can never crush the South Korean people's just aspirations with any barbarous repression and deceitful tricks of appeasement.

The democratization of society is a vital demand by the South Korean people and an essential condition for the reunification of the fatherland. Democratic rights and freedom can be attained only through struggle. The South Korean people should raise high the banner of the anti-dictatorship and anti-fascist struggle for democratization to realize the democratization of social and political life by driving out the Chon Tu-hwan clique's military fascist rule. If they struggle in unity, there is (?nothing) which cannot be attained and [word indistinct].

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique should apologize to the people for its crimes committed against the fatherland and fellow countrymen and should step down from power. The military fascist regime should be replaced with a democratic regime.

The reunification of the fatherland is the supreme national desire. The way for the South Korean people to eliminate today's misfortunes and hardships is to reunify the fatherland. The proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK], advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, is a most just and fair and realistic plan correctly reflecting the reality of our divided nation. This is a most just national salvation program.

The South Korean people should rise in the struggle as one for the early convocation of a 100-man joint conference, which is the national [word indistinct] for founding the DCRK.

The U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea and aggressive policy are the cause of all the misfortunes and pains which the South Korean people are suffering. They are the basic factors threatening peace in Korea and the decisive obstacle to the nation's reunification.

The United States should stop violating our people's national sovereignty by instigating the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique. It should stop aggressive acts disturbing peace and blocking the reunification. It should withdraw from South Korea and take its hands of interference off Korea.

Our people's resolve to achieve the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification by putting an end to the Chon Tu-hwan clique's military terrorist rule is rockfirm. We will achieve without fail the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification with the united patriotic forces of North and the South Korea.

In the statement, the DKP said it will never stop the struggle to implement the tasks of democratization.

DEMONSTRATION OF ILSSIN STEEL WORKERS NOTED

SK181058 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1038 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 18 (KCNA) -- Over 800 workers of the Ilssin Steel Company, Ltd. in Seoul rose in a fight for existence on May 17, according to a report. They gathered on the playground of the factory in the morning and strongly demanded that the livelihood of more than 20,000 family members of the employees be guaranteed and retiring allowances and wages be paid.

Involved in a scandal of large scale with the puppet upper crust which was brought to light recently, the company is now on the verge of banruptcy, with its fund frozen and its operation suspended. Under this pretext the puppet authorities and the company are keeping the retiring allowances and wages in arrears.

PRO-MINDAN PAPER URGES SOUTH KOREAN ARMY REVOLT

SK181036 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1013 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 18 (KCNA) -- A recent issue of MINJOK SIBO, a Korean paper under the influence of the "ROK Residents Association in Japan" (Mindan), published an article calling upon the officers and men of a puppet army unit to rise up in the anti-puppet struggle.

Recalling that a South Korean subsidized paper some time ago carried a picture of officers and men of the "Chonbong unit" of the puppet army running, minus their upper garments in severe cold, together with a venomously worded article inciting war fever, the paper says: This was intended to demonstrate "matchless" strength. But, truth to tell, it was nothing but a "tragic cartoon." The paper continues:

Have you ever heard the slogan chanted by Seoul students "Beat Chon Tu-hwan to death! Destroy the fascist clique!"? Why should our compatriots hate each other? Ponder over the matter with the intellect and reason you had learned and cultivated before you entered the barracks.

The monster-like anti-communist idea, under the disguise of "patriotism," bars the compatriots from living like fellow countrymen and goads the "ROK Army" into massacring people.... Such inhuman practices are justified by the same "principle" and the same "idea" as the slogan "Let us achieve unification by destroying communism" chanted by the officers and men of the "Chonbong unit," the upper halves of their bodies stripped to the skin.

Officers and men of the "Chonbong unit," what do you intend to defend, combating the cold on the height? What are your commander and the ruling clique in Seoul doing while you are shivering there? Behold! Is there any soldier bold enough to ask, thrusting out his gun muzzle, "does he mean what he says?" when Chon Tu-hwan suggests "unification of North and South" in words sounding plausible?

Numberless U.S. nuclear weapons are deployed in the rear of the line you are guarding. Have you any notion of the tragic cartoon presented by your standing sentinel on a height on the military demarcation line with "M-1" rifles?

In conclusion, the paper appeals to the puppet army officers and men to "throw away the rifles and go back to their home towns and fulfill their duties for a worthy life with their beloved ones there. "

NONINTERFERENCE STRESSED IN REUNIFICATION ISSUE

SK190158 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2343 GMT 18 May 82

[NODONG SINMUN 19 May editorial: "A Programmatic Document Which Has Delineated the Advance Path Toward Independent Reunification"]

[Text] In his historic policy speech at the joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly entitled "The Task of the People's Government To Imbue Society With the Chuche Idea," Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and people, having scientific insight into the requirements for developing our revolution and the world revolution, which have reached a new, higher stage, delineated the way to completely achieve the sovereignty of the people, including the basic requirements for and methods of building communism and the question of achieving the sovereignty of the country and the people on a global scale.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy speech is an immortal classic document which has summed up and developed the chuche-oriented communist revolutionary theory onto a new, higher stage and has delineated the path toward communism, and is a banner vigorously encouraging the struggle of the people to achieve the sovereignty of the country and the people and to build a new, independent world.

In his policy speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song clarified a programmatic policy for achieving the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification, one of the basic factors in our people's cause of independence. Based on his explanation of the importance of the cause of achieving the sovereignty of the people and of the nature of the struggle to achieve the fatherland's independent reunification, the people's supreme, long-cherished desire, in his policy speech, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song delineated the task of forcing U.S. forces to withdraw from South Korea to independently achieve the fatherland's reunification, of checking the South Korean authorities' policy of relying on foreign forces and of founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] is in accordance with the proposal advanced by the Sixth KWP Congress. The idea and policy on the fatherland's reunification clarified by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song delineates the way to independently solve the question of the country's reunification by our people themselves in their interest by materializing the immortal chuche idea. Regarding the idea and policy on the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification clarified by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as a nation-saving proposal which is of epochal significance in achieving the cause of reunification, our people and the world's revolutionary people are enthusiastically supporting and welcoming this idea and policy.

In his historic speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song gave a profound scientific solution to the question of achieving the sovereignty of the country and the people, including the nature of the question of the people and the position of this question in the struggle to achieve the sovereignty of the people. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The sovereignty of the country and the people is a key to achieving that of the masses of people. The struggle to achieve the sovereignty of the country and the people is the struggle to achieve that of the masses. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's unique idea that the sovereignty of the country and the people is a key to achieving that of the masses of people and is a great ideology demanding that to achieve the sovereignty of the masses we should first achieve that of the country and the people and that to achieve the sovereignty of the country and the people the people should pioneer their own destiny by themselves with an attitude worthy of masters.

As taught by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the country and the people are a historically formed unit of society and people. As long as national boundaries exist on earth and as long as a distinction is made among the peoples, the struggle of the people to achieve sovereignty is waged bv individual countries. Accordintly, we cannot imagine the destiny of the people without the destiny of the country and the people. Only when the sovereignty of the country and the people is guaranteed can the people pioneer their own destiny to meet their will and desire.

Our people have struggled for a long time to achieve the sovereignty of the country and the people. Becuase of the U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea, however, the sovereignty of the people has been violated in half of the national territory. National sovereignty has not been guaranteed on a pannational scale. Today the Korean people are assigned an urgent task of achieving national sovereignty on a pannational scale by reunifying the divided fatherland.

The basic principle our party abides by in the struggle to achieve the fatherland's reunification is for our people themselves to the country's reunification independently without foreign interference. Abiding by the principle of independence in the struggle to achieve the fatherland's reunification is a basic requirement proceeding from the essence of the question of our country's reunification. The question of our country's reunification is an internal question for ending national division caused by foreign forces and protecting the sovereignty of the people. This question concerns our people's right of self-determination. The Korean people have a sacred right for national self-determination with which they will make a decision on their own destiny, and they are fully and readily capable of solving their internal question by themselves. No one has any grounds whatsoever for meddling in our people's internal questions. No foreign force can bring a reunified fatherland to our people. The masters of the fatherland's reunification are the Korean people themselves. The basic force in this regard are all the Korean people. Only when the Korean people pioneer their own destiny by themselves as masters can they solve the reunification question to meet their own will and desire. To achieve the country's independent reunification, we should eliminate all factors hindering this cause.

In his historic policy speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song analyzed the South Korean situation with an independent stand and defined the U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea and their interference in the internal affairs of South Korea and the puppets' policy of relying on foreign forces as basic factors hindering independent reunification. He then clarified the method of eliminating these factors. The U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea is a basic factor violating the sovereignty of our people, as well as that of the South Korean people. Regarding the policy of two Koreas as the basis of their strategy against Korea, the U.S. imperialists are now instigating the Japanese reactionaries and the South Korean puppets to implement this policy. They are clinging to various wicked plots and tricks in this maneuver.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique is maneuvering for perpetual national division by coming up with the timeworn proposal for simultaneous admission to the United Nations -- a proposal which its predecessor advanced and was snubbed by the people -- and the newly invented theory or reunification in the 2000's. This maneuver complies with the scenario prepared by the U.S. imperialists and is masterminded by them to continuously maintain their occupation of and domination over South Korea by fabricating two Koreas.

Every fact shows that the U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea is the greatest obstacle to achieving our country's independent reunification and that, without removing the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces from South Korea, we can never independently solve the question of the fatherland's reunification. The U.S. imperialist aggressors must stop interfering in the internal affairs of our country and immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along all lethal weapons.

To independently achieve the fatherland's reunification, we should, in addition to forcing the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea, check the South Korean puppets' policy of relying on foreign forces. As shown by history, the puppets are without exception the stooges of foreign forces, and these forces' policy of meddling in internal affairs has been implemented through the stooges' policy of relying on foreign forces.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a familiar stooge whom the U.S. imperialists have systematically trained for a long time. He is a dirty executor of the U.S. imperialists' policy for colonization and subjugation against South Korea and scheme of fabricating two Koreas. While repeatedly babbling about independence and self-determination in words only, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is actually begging for the continued presence of U.S. forces in South Korea and maneuvering for perpetual national division by clinging to the sleeves of its U.S. imperialists masters. Such a maneuver by traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who had maintained his lifeline with patronage and support from the U.S. imperialists, is a criminal act of selling the sovereignty and interest of the people to foreign forces by leaving South Korea as the colonial military base of the U.S. imperialists.

If the South Korean puppets cling to a policy relying on foreign forces, running counter to the unanimous desire of all fellow countrymen for achieving the country's independent reunification and the sovereignty of the people on a pannational scale, they will commit a even more grave and indelible crime before the fatherland and the people. If the South Korean rulers want to expiate to some extent the crime which they have committed before the fatherland and the people and to follow a righteous course, they should abandon the policy of relying on foreign forces and assume an independent stand.

What attitude one assumes against the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces occupying South Korea constitutes a touchstone showing whether or not one wants the fatherland's reunification.

Clamoring about reunification without removing a basic obstacle to the country's reunification is an empty remark mocking the people. If one truly wants the fatherland's reunification, one should above all demand the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Korea. Today all Koreans who are concerned over the destiny of the country and the people unanimously demand that U.S. imperialists aggressive forces withdraw from South Korea for the sake of the fatherland's reunification. If the South Korean rulers have a conscience, they should stop making empty remarks on reunification and join the pannational struggle to force U.S. imperialists aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea.

Solving the question of the country's reunification through negotiations and collaboration between the North and South is our consistent stand. Those who oppose the U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea and their maneuvers to interfere in South Korea and who assume an independent stand will not hesitate to meet anyone and sincerely conduct negotiations on the question of the fatherland's reunification.

The most practical method of independently solving the reunification question is to achieve the country's reunification by leaving the two systems in the North and South intact and by founding a confederal state. The DCRK, to be founded on two differing systems with a homogenous people and two regional autonomous systems, is a united state to be founded with consideration given to the situation in our country. The confederal state, which includes the territory of the country and all the people, is an independent country which will implement a domestic policy to meet the basic interests and desire of all the people and which externally will implement a completely independent policy with which it does not become the satellite state of any country, with which it does not rely on any foreign forces and with which it does not join any blocs.

With the founding of the DCRK, a peace-loving national united state -- a dignified sovereign state not meddled in by foreign forces -- will emerge on the Korean Peninsula to the extent that the sovereignty of the people will be guaranteed on a pannational scale, that national harmony and unity will be achieved in the country and that it will not infringe on others' interests in the international arena and that it will threaten no one.

Our people will make every effort to implement our party's proposal for achieving the fatherland's reunification by founding the DCRK. The fatherland's reunification cannot be achieved automatically. This cause could only be achieved through a resolute struggle against the splittists' maneuvers at home and abroad. To reunify the fatherland by thwarting the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers and the treacherous maneuvers of their stooges, the North and South should achieve grand national unity by transcending differences in ideologies and systems.

All the people of the North and South are suffering the pain of division. They have the common interests of the fatherland's reunification. No matter how brazen the maneuvers of the splittists at home and abroad may become with each passing day, the resolve of our people to achieve the cause for the fatherland's reunification is firm. If the North and South unite and make united efforts, our people will readily achieve the historic cause for the fatherland's reunification. No splittist force will be able to thwart the desire of the people for reunifying the divided fatherland and obstruct our people's advance movement to achieve reunification. Let us all uphold the programmatic policy clarified by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and rise as one in the pannational struggle to reject the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and to complete the country's independent reunification.

[Text] Pyongyang, May 14 (KCNA) -- The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, received a message of thanks sent by Aristides Pereira, general secretary of the African Party for Independence of Cape Verde and president of the Republic of Cape Verde, on May 13 upon leaving our country. The message reads:

The entire members of the delegation accompanying me cannot find words to express the hospitality accorded us by you and the Korean people under your wise leadership and the impressions we got during our unforgettable five-day stay in your country.

We saw that the future of the Republic of Cape Verde which our people desired and dear Amilcar Cabral, our undying leader, had dedicated his whole life and blood to, has become a reality in Korea.

We experienced in Korea that only when people, master of reality, have a correct attitude to it, can they bring the nation and state to a shining plane.

Through our visit to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea we deepened our conviction that every effort should be made to uphold and defend individuality, sovereignty and independence in thinking and action and that the chuche idea, a correct idea, and its correct embodiment are the key of the era for eliminating domination and exploitation of man by man through the diverse and energetic struggle of the people.

Leaving the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, we reassure you of our full support to the just proposal put forward by you for the peaceful reunification of great Korea, which will be a great contribution to mankind.

Respected Comrade Kim Il-song, we will make all efforts possible to make closer relations existing between our two peoples, parties and governments. In his policy speech at the joint meeting of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and the Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic people's Republic of Korea the great leader said that our era is an era of independence and that to make the whole world independent it is necessary to expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement. He said that the UNESCO would make active efforts for the development of the pool. It is very important for us to make the sources of information diversified and multiple. The UNESCO will cooperate with all countries not only in directly receiving but also in exchanging materials, he remarked.

Indian, Yugoslav Speeches

SK131046 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0958 GMT 13 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 13 (KCNA) -- At the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries which opened in Pyongyang on May 12 member of the delegation of the PRESS TRUST OF INDIA (PTI) Unnikrishnan Parayil, deputy general director of the PTI, informed the meeting of the results of the implementation of recommendations of the nonaligned experts meeting on information organized by the Inter-governmental Council for Coordination of Cooperation among the Non-Aligned Countries in the Field of Information. In February 1982, in New Delhi and of the preparation for publishing a book on the pool, and a member of the delegation of the TANJUG news agency of Yugoslavia of the meeting on training journalists from nonaligned countries held in Belgrade in December 1981.

The member of the delegation of the PRESS TRUST OF INDIA (PTI) referred, first of all, to the results of the implementation of recommendations of the non-aligned experts meeting on information.

At the meeting, he said, experts and personages concerned discussed the actual conditions of world communication, particularly those of the developing countries.

Noting that he would refer to the relevant problems in the recommendations made at the meeting, he said: One of the recommendations was to make the coordinating committee work out a detailed plan and expand cooperation among the member nations to improve the technical equipment of the news agencies.

It was also to make those countries without national news agencies and those countries now building national news agencies speed up their foundation as early as possible.

Also discussed were the problem of mutual cooperation among national news agencies in accordance with the principle of collective self-reliance, the problem of exchanging mutual experience, etc.

The meeting, he noted, made the pool and radio and other organs of the nonaligned countries hold international seminars on the level of information in the nonaligned countries and organize relevant groups.

Saying that the problem of expanding the news scope of the national news agencies, the problem of making the pool coordinating committee encourage the work of supplying its participants with the pool news in more languages, etc. were discussed at the meeting, he went on:

The pool Coordinating Committee studied the possibility of the solution of these problems and saw to it that the member nations organized groups to coordinate their activities and conducted the work. The task of the group is to train cadres in the press domain of non-aligned countries and lower the cost of communication. Then he referred to the preparations for publishing the book on the pool.

The PRESS TRUST OF INDIA (PTI) was elected the master of the editorial board and the Yugoslav TANJUG and Tunisian news agencies member nations at the last pool Coordinating Committee Meeting, and contained in the book compiled by the Mass Communication Institute in cooperation with the PTI are decisions, declarations and recommendations on the pool, he declared. Also reflected in the book are problems in various domains including the problem of training journalists from the member nations, he added.

A member of the delegation of the TANJUG news agency of Yugoslavia informed the meeting of the meeting on training journalists from nonaligned countries held in Belgrade in December 1981.

He referred to the meeting on training journalists from nonaligned countries held in Belgrade in December last year.

Noting that the meeting was held at the initiative of the pool and with the practical aid of the UNESCO, he stressed that the UNESCO would as ever make a positive cooperation with the pool in this domain and actively help it.

He said that the nonaligned countries should continue exchanging experience and further improve cooperation. Noting that an opportunity of having more discussions on this problem would be offered during the meeting in Pyongyang, he said that the further strengthening of the exchange of cadres and working-level personages among the non-aligned countries would contribute to developing their mass media.

The Belgrade meeting discussed the financial problem, that is, the problem of increasing stipends in connection with the problem of training journalists and further improving the system of cooperation in the training of journalists, he noted.

As the PTI raised the problem of the publication of the book, the handbook on information must be translated into other languages to help toward the work of training journalists, he stressed.

TANJUG, PTI, KCNA Speeches

SK131550 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1509 GMT 13 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 13 (KCNA) -- Speeches were made at the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries which opened here on May 12.

N.R. Chandran, head of the delegation of the PRESS TRUST OF INDIA, in his speech said: Though the Coordinating Committee has made notable successes in the past, we are as yet confronted with many tasks. We should work out a plan for strengthening the national news agencies and take a joint action in developing cooperation on a regional and global scale.

Noting that the training of journalists is a very important and peculiar problem, he declared that India would expand its work in this field through the mass communication institute in the days ahead.

India will render every service possible to the pool in the future, too, thus contributing without fail to the development of communications within the Nonaligned Movement, he declared.

Aleksandar Bakocevic, head of the TANJUG news agency delegation, said that cooperation in the Nonaligned Movement, in the field of information in particular, is of weighty significance. He said that the TANJUG news agency is striving to improve the quality of the pool's activities through strengthened cooperation with other nonaligned countries, giving technical assistance to two Asian and two African news agencies and making efforts for the training of personnel.

Touching upon the TANJUG's contacts with many personages for the purpose of undertaking a necessary work for invigorating the operation of the pool, he said. TANJUG, together with other pool news agencies, will fully discharge its obligation as a news agency in the chair of the pool Coordinating Committee.

Head of the KCNA delegation Kim Song-kol delivered a speech, in which he said: Our delegation is very proud of the fact that the pool is making a substantial development as an international information exchange system of new form diffusing to the whole world the voices of nonalignment.

To strengthen the pool's information activities, he said, it is necessary to enhance the role of the regional redistribution centres. We are of the opinion that the regional redistribution centres should receive the agreed volume of news items from their associated national news agencies on a daily basis and redistribute them, without any amendment, to news agencies in their region and to other redistribution centres, and the absolute volume of news items redistributed daily should be radically increased, he remarked.

Suggesting that a new code of service of the regional redistribution centres be worked out in this way, he stressed: The regional redistribution centres, in fact, perform their function like a "branch". So, it will be reasonable to change their name into "branch" in conformity with their new function.

The KOREAN CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY is ready to play the role of a regional redistribution centre and to participate with pleasure in every joint action and financial and technical support designed to strengthen the role of the regional redistribution centres, he declared. He continued:

Pool information should, in view of the prevailing situation, give priority to the struggle of the nonaligned countries to do away with the old international order of domination and subjugation in all fields, economic, social, scientific and cultural, and establish a new international order, impartial, independent and equitable, and on the other hand treat in every dimension all the principled matters arising in the consolidation and development of the Nonaligned Movement.

In this context I hope that a sort of code of conduct in information will be separately adopted to clarify anti-imperialist, independent and peace-loving characteristics of the pool information and determine the basic orientation to be followed in the information activities, to be added to the existing action programme and statute of the pool.

Here I wish to inform you that the KCNA is ready to speed up the preparations already under way to make its contribution to the training of the journalists for the nonaligned countries in order to help solve the personnel problem of the pool news agencies, he said.

G. Wijayasiri, delegate of the LANKA PUWATH NEWS AGENCY of Sri Lanka, said: The news agencies of nonaligned countries should give aid to the underdeveloped news agencies. In this field, it is important, first of all, to help training personnel and founding infrastructures of national news agencies. He noted that Sri Lanka had taken a series of steps including the lowering of the communication fees for national news agencies.

Toual Bechir, head of the delegation of the TUNISIA-AFRICA PRESS AGENCY, in his speech noted that the report at the meeting reviewed very affirmative questions and proposed realistic matters. He introduced the efforts of the TUNISIAN-AFRICA PRESS AGENCY to improve the quality of news reception and transmission and train journalists.

We will strive to report about the strenuous efforts of nonaligned countries for the building of a new society and remain faithful to the pool spirit, he declared.

Saber Falhout, head of the Syrian news agency delegation, in his speech expressed thanks to President Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people, for the satisfactory preparations and conditions for the current seventh meeting of the pool Coordinating Committee. He said that the meeting is of great significance in guaranteeing objectivity in information and opposing mass media of the imperialists bent on misleading public opinion.

August Marpaung, head of the delegation of the Indonesian national news agency (ANTARA), said that all the activities of the pool members are based on the principle of mutual assistance and collective self-reliance and noted that member nations affiliated with the OANA had successfully done their work in the past.

Saying that the pool should not rest on its laurels, though it has made a big progress in its work in the past, he stressed that if the nonaligned news agencies carried on more energetic activities, it would be able to establish a new international information order.

Sylla Cheick, delegate of the Guinean radio and television, expressed heartfelt greetings and thanks to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il for their concern for the success of the meeting. KWANGJU CHRISTIANS DEMONSTRATE, CONDEMN U.S.

SK190804 Seoul SINMUN in Korean 19 May 82 p 11

[Text] Kwangju/YONHAP -- On the second anniversary of the 18 May Kwangju incident, the Kwangju Young Christians Council, the Committee of Teachers of the Presbyterian Church of South Cholla Province, and other Christian organizations held a memorial service for 2 hours from 1500 on 18 May at the YWCA hall in Kwangju. However, at the gathering, some Christian leaders who had come from Seoul, while preaching, made political remarks, thus pouring cold water over the efforts of the Kwangju and South Cholla provincial citizens for unity and the construction of a new Kwangju.

At the memorial service held with the participation of some 2,000 people including priests, Christians, students and the bereaved families of those who were sacrificed during the Kwangju incident, Ko Yong-kun, evangelist of the Presbyterian Church of Korea, while preaching, instigated the participants by saying, "Let us follow the patriots who bled 2 years ago." He condemned U.S. policy on Korea and, in his political remarks, demanded the withdrawal of the present regime.

On the pretext of the memorial service, they continued to condemn the rally held for the construction of new Kwangju at the Mudung Stadium on the morning of the same day and even instigated the participants to street demonstrations as if they were seeking a reenactment of the turmoil of 2 years ago. At around 1710, after the memorial service, about 400 young, instigated Christians rushed out of the hall and staged street and sit-down demonstrations for about 40 minutes.

In the wake of the disturbance, Kim Yong-chin, 35, and about 10 other students and youths were taken away by police. The demonstrators dispersed at around 1800 when the demonstration was brought under control by the police.

FURTHER MATERIALS ON CURB-LOAN SCANDAL

More Bankers Resign

SK190340 Seoul YONHAP in English 0247 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 19 (YONHAP) -- Superintendent of the Office of Bank Supervision and Examination Pae Su-kun and Deputy Superintendent Yi In-pok tendered their resignations Wednesday in connection with the so-called "Mrs Chang" scandal, Finance Ministry sources said.

Kim Kun, vice governor of the Bank of Korea (BOK) and An Sang-kuk, BOK's director, are among those mentioned to replace Pae and Kim.

Cabinet Changes Considered

SK190839 Seoul YONHAP in English 0800 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 19 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Government is considering a partial Cabinet reshuffle of economy-related ministers who are responsible for the recent curb loan market scandal, informed sources said Wednesday.

The sources said the government is studying a comprehensive measure to regain public confidence in the wake of the so called "Mrs. Chang scandal" which has rocked the country's private financial establishments.

The Cabinet members are likely to tender their resignations en masse to ask for President Chon Tu-hwan's confidence shortly after the Prosecutor General's Office announces the final results of its investigation into the scandal, the sources said.

Meanwhile, the ruling Democratic Justice Party is working on its own measures to settle the aftershocks of the scandal and will recommend those measures to the government, the sources said.

Yi's Arrest Hailed

SK190159 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 19 May 82 p 1

[Text] The arrest yesterday of Yi Kyu-kwang, former president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corp., attests to the strong government determination to create a clean and just society. It also is a fine example that there are no "privileged persons" in the Fifth Republic.

Yi is Mrs. Chang Yong-cha's brother-in-law, the major figure in the current curb loan scandal. He also has an in-law kinship with President Chon. Hence, the arrest of Yi speaks of the 'no privileged' edict by the chief executive. Yi resigned the mining company post recently with regard to the scandal.

Upon being briefed on the scandal from pertinent government ministers and the prosecutor general May 11, President Chon ordered a thorough investigation into the scandal. He then instructed the government to make public the outcome of the investigation, and to severely punish those involved in the scandal regardless of their position or rank.

The president gave similar instruction during a Cabinet meeting he presided over Friday. This repeated presidential order mirrors how absolutely the government is committed to build a society devoid of chronic irregularities and other unjust practices.

Observers pointed out that the president, who has often emphasized the universality of the people before law, did not hesitate to have his 47-year-old cousin arrested in August last year once his involvement in a case of swindle was determined.

It is true that public concern on the current scandal had been placed on the "powerful person" presumed to be behind Mrs. Chang. The arrest of Yi may have sufficed the suspicion, the observers noted.

The government, unlike its predecessors, has vigorously undertaken various reform measures since the inauguration of the Fifth Republic. The outcome was noticeable at every corner of the society. Few people will deny the allegation that persistent irregularities have been reduced considerably as a result of a variety of camapigns directed to that end.

In fact, a renovated social climate was about to settle down when the curb loan scandal erupted, shattering the financial and monetary circles.

The observers said the "turmoil" should be probed thoroughly, but as quickly as possible to minimize adverse impact on the national economy and other social aspects as a whole.

The prosecution is expected to make another report on its investigation in a matter of days, to the great expectation of the people.

The public reaction to the initial prosecution report on May 11 was generally that it was unsatisfactory. However, the forthcoming report is expected to be substantive in light of the "all-out" efforts being rendered by the prosecution to delve into the scandal at the instruction of the president and before the watchful eyes of the people, they said.

They concluded that the question now is how to best utilize the lesson the nation learned from this unhappy incident for its future social reform drives.

[Editorial: "Ethics of Power Elite -- All Are Urged To Live Up to Democracy and Behave Properly"]

[Text] From time to time we see that, if someone takes a high post, even his very distant relatives-in-law hustle to get around him. Almost without exception, by so doing, they seek money and posts. And, very often we see that some people, making the best of such a situation, employ every means to open ties with them. People refer to this as background. During the course of their scrambles for rising in the world and amassing a fortune, irregularities are committed, corruption becomes rampant, and the discipline of the state shatters.

This is why the behavior of a person in power draws people's attention. Even if a monarch or president behaves like a Puritan, we frequently see that people talk about the behavior of his relatives. Accordingly, the behavior of the power elite and their relatives precipitates great political and social disturbances and unrest in many countries, except in the advanced democratic countries.

Every family has troublemakers and the family of a person in power is no exception. It is possible for a member of such a family to cause trouble for the society and his family. Therefore, it is extremely difficult to completely prevent such trouble. It is even more difficult to manage a family member who holds a high post or possesses an enormous fortune.

This is why we have a saying that says it would be better to keep toilets and in-laws as far away as possible. In case of old Japanese fuedal lords or samurai families, every family member but the first son, who would succeed to the family leadership, was kept away from power. In our ancient kingdoms, except for the crown prince, other royal family members were kept away from power and received merely nominal treatment.

Of course, as the saying goes: Blood is thicker than water; some people secure and strengthen their power by rallying their families and relatives around them. However, this is nothing more than unity of a family clan. A good example is the rise and scrambling of the in-laws of the royal families at the end of the Yi Dynasty.

In any event, under such conditions, a democratic state cannot be established. The system of nepotism under which the prosperity of family and relatives is considered more important than that of the nation is usually seen in such a state [as Yi Dynasty Korea].

In many African countries, newly privileged people around the person who holds power consider the state itself as a tool for amassing wealth and embezzle the money of the state to deposit in overseas banks in the name of their wives and relatives. By engaging in criminal affairs and abusing their authority, they steal state property in conspiracy with businessmen. In some South American countries, by holding important posts, the families and relatives of those who hold power amass fortunes by smuggling.

In communist countries, Brezhnev's son, by taking the office of the deputy minister of foreign trade when still young, has become a target of the people's gossip. And, to the north of the truce line of our country, as many as 16 family members and relatives -- not to mention the son -- of the person in power hold important party and government posts. As for Romania, the whole world knows the nepotic political system of the Ceausescu clan. The nepotic system is prevalent also in many Middle East countries.

Changing the subject, in connection with the recent curb loan scandal, we cannot help but pay attention to the behavior of our power elite and its families and relatives. As a saying goes: Where there is smoke, there is fire. We see smoke constantly rising. What has caused it to rise?

Our wise ancestors taught us one must not even do a thing that can cause misunderstanding, to say nothing of doing something wrong. They taught us that, by behaving properly, one will not incur suspicion of others.

While in the stage of nourishing the state on a democratic foundation, the families and relatives must stay as far away from important posts as possible. Experience shows this.

HERALD CALLS FOR CORRECTIVE ECONOMIC MEASURES

SK190115 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 19 May 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Corrective Economic Measures"]

[Text] The disturbances in our economy brought about by the curb money market scandal cry out for daring measures to correct our economic problems. It is unfortunate that the incident broke out at a time when the economy was struggling to find a way out of a long drawn-out stagnancy. Corrective measures to restore business confidence and at the same time to revitalize the depressed economy call for extensive soul-searching and daring decisiveness.

Since the curb market incident occurred because of the excessive rigidity governing the management of money supply, it is imperative to allow felxibility in the day-to-day operations of the money supply, responding to the financial requirements of the economy. Obsession with price stability has often worked against this vital need for the smooth running of the economy.

The current financial difficulties harassing the economy, therefore, give us ample food for thought concerning the merits of a tight money policy.

Equally important is the need to minimize the scope of the subterranean money market, which has grown in mockery of the official monetary policy, extending its cancerous cells into many fields of our economy. The establishment of a new financial institution specially designed to induce the curb market money out into the open would be effective toward that end.

At the same time, the process of denationalization of commercial banks together with greater autonomy in the banking operations should be accelerated both in speed and substance. The government's rigid control and interference in the administration of loans and personnel at commercial banks tends to breed inefficiency as well as favoritism, hindering the smooth running of commercial banking, and thereby causing inefficiency in the economy as a whole.

The government's attempts to alleviate and correct the current economic difficulties can neither be effective nor complete unless some decisive steps are taken to revitalize the overall economy. It was the recent economic stagnancy that nurtured the subterranean money market, and eventually resulted in the current deplorable event. Since our economy is heavily dependent on overseas markets, which remain depressed without a sign of an early recovery, the practical way to revitalize our economy is to minimize the adverse multiplier effects of the curb money market incident which has decreased domestic demand. Lower capital gains tax on real estate, increased public works projects, particularly in rural areas, to boost purchasing power, a reduction of special consumption tax rates on several key commodities would be effective to revive domestic demands.

Last but by no means least is the need to step up assistance to small and medium-sized enterprises, which are forced to bear the brunt of the current economic difficulties. It is, therefore, fortunate that the government decided to extend financial and other assistance to them immediately after the curb money market scandal surfaced. In view of the extensive social and economic impact of small businesses on society, they deserve strong support, so that they do not fall innocent victims to the current difficulties.

The curb money market incident and its aftermath has taught us a valuable lesson, exposing some of the weakness of our economy. Our nationwide endeavors will eventually bring a happy end to this unfortunate incident, as storms make oaks dig deeper roots.

COMMENTARY SAYS THAILAND MUST STOP INTERFERING

BK181056 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1428 GMT 17 May 82

[Commentary: "Thailand Must Stop Interfering in Kampuchea's Internal Affairs"]

[Text] Phnom Penh, 16 May (SPK) -- The Thai minister of foreign affairs has just concluded a pilgrimage to Beijing with the obvious goal of discussing the manner in which to oppose the Kampuchean revolution with the Chinese leaders.

This trip foretells a period of frantic political and diplomatic activities at the approach of the 37th UN General Assembly session where the question of Kampuchean representation will be raised again.

Over the past more than 3 years, the authority of the PRK has unceasingly grown stronger. Its successes have shaken the UN seat occupied by the Pol Pot hangmen in spite of and against the most fundamental ethics and with the assistance of the expansionists, imperialists and other reactionary circles. They pretend to represent a people one-third of whom they massacred and whose survivors they enslaved.

It was to consolidate this seat that the head of Thai diplomacy went to Beijing -- mentor and protector of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique. By what right does Bangkok, which pretends to defend the Kampuchean people's rights to self-determination, arrogate to itself the power to interfere in the internal affairs of Kampuchea by wanting to give it a form of government other than the one, elected by the people, which has directed all the affairs of the country and controlled the whole of the territory since liberation? Bangkok always swims against the current. It wants to speed up the formation of a ghost government which is more presentable than that of Pol Pot in the hope of prolonging criminal activities under UN cover against the Kampuchean people. To do so, it has proved to be astonishingly dynamic. It no longer waits for the initiative of the interested parties (the gangs of Pol Pot, Son Sann and Sihanouk) which remain constantly reticent despite the pressure received from all sides since the Singapore meeting in September 1981. It has prepared a plan for the distribution of roles in the troika called on to lead the so-called Democratic Kampuchea.

As for the Kampuchean people, it does not matter to them whether Bangkok succeeds or not in persuading Beijing and its lackeys to accept its formula.

Bangkok must understand that, except for the PRK Council of Ministers born out of the free and democratic general elections in May 1981, the Kampuchean people regard any other government set up by the will of Beijing, Washington and others as nothing but a puppet.

Neighbors forever, the Thai and Kampuchean peoples are called upon to live on good terms with each other. However, the Bangkok authorities have always rejected the hand offered many times by the PRK. Their policy encourages Chinese expansionism in the region and it is certain that the Thai people will also suffer from its consequences. Let the reborn Kampuchean people go their way and build their happiness, stop encouraging their hangmen and the traitors to the nation to sow new grief and suffering and, in a word, stop interfering in their internal affairs. Such is the path that the Bangkok authorities must choose in order to contribute to turning Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and stability.

There is not nor will there ever be a legitimate government other than the PRK. This reality is irreversible. The developments of the past 3 years have fully confirmed it despite innumerable difficulties of all stripes caused by the enemies of the revolution. State institutions have been elected democratically. The country is endowed with a new social structure following the vacuum left behind by the genocidal regime. The children go to school. The health of the people is improving. Agricultural production increases. The voice of a peace- and justice-loving people is heard at many international forums.

Fortified by its strategic alliance with Vietnam and Laos, its international solidarity with the USSR and other fraternal socialist countries and its friendship with the other countries and progressive peoples in the world, Kampuchea will sweep out of its way any obstacle raised by the Chinese expansionists, U.S. imperialists and other reactionaries.

SITTHI'S COALITION TALKS IN PRC DRAW COMMENT

BK181342 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 18 May 82

[Unattributed commentary: "The Thai Foreign Minister Admits his Beijing Visit Failed"]

[Text] According to Western reports, the recent visit paid to China by Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila to discuss the formation of the so-called loose alliance among the three reactionary Khmer groups met with failure.

According to AFP on 15 May, Sitthi stated in Bangkok that there are still many conflicts among the three reactionary Khmer groups. For this reason, he has little hope of seeing the Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan factions get together for a summit conference in Kuala Lumpur.

According to a report by UPI, Sitthi Sawetsila said he has given up hope of an early meeting of Son Sann, Sihanouk and Khieu Samphan. He went on to say that ASEAN might stop encouraging the three troups of reactionary Khmers.

Therefore, the successive efforts made by China and ASEAN to pressure Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan to sit at the same table in order to form at all costs the so-called coalition government have achieved nothing.

Since September 1981, under pressure from China and ASEAN and with the sanction of the United States, the three exiled reactionary Khmer groups, which met in Singapore, Bangkok, Phatthaya and, recently, Beijing, have been unable to secure the right referee to settle longstanding differences between them.

The differences among Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan also reflect the differences between China and ASEAN although both of them agree on the need to set up the so-called loose coalition government of the three exiled reactionary Khmer groups.

ASEAN wishes to see Son Sann given the role of prime minister with Khieu Samphan as his deputy prime minister in the government in exile, but China wants it to be otherwise. The Chinese side wants to see the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan gang given control of this government in exile whenever it is established.

Both China and ASEAN want an early formation of the so-called loose alliance. In fact, they meet many difficulties. Their effort is like pushing a cart up a hill. The more they try, the harder their defeat.

Despite all the odds against them, China and ASEAN continue to refuse giving up their maneuver of forming the so-called alliance among the three exiled reactionary Khmer groups to be used as an instrument for interference in Kampuchea's internal affairs. One thing is certain: All their efforts lead toward failure.

AGRICULTURAL RESULTS REPORTED FOR 10-16 MAY

BK181630 [Editorial Report] Monitored Kampuchean media have reported the following agricultural developments in the reporting period 10-16 May:

The radio says that in 1982 the peasants sold 10,000 tons of paddy. It says that the 1982 production plan calls for growing 66,570 hectares of rice in the entire province, with 30,000 hectares for Bakan District; 10,000 hectares in Kandieng District; 10,200 hectares in Pursat provincial town; 10,000 hectares in Krakor District and 8,500 hectares in Phnum Kravanh District. [figures as heard] The province has encouraged the peasants to strengthen irrigation networks and carried out intensive agriculture on 850 hectares as an example for the peasants. Training in intensive agricultural methods is to be provided in all localities. The radio says that the province plans to reclaim 5,000 hectares of additional land in 1982 and has urged the peasants to expand their hectarage.

Siem Reap-Oddar Meanchey: Phnom Penh Radio at 0400 GMT on 11 May reports that in the first quarter of 1982, the peasants overfulfilled the dry-season production plan by planting 15,212 hectares or 104 percent of that planned. This includes transplanting 9,884 hectares of dry-season rice. More than 5,000 hectares of secondary food crops were planted. They harvested 2,200 hectares, which yielded 2,552 tons. The harvest is continuing and they are preparing to plant rainy-season rice to fulfill the target of 50,000 hectares.

BUSH VISIT TO CHINA DRAWS HANOI COMMENT

OW190012 Hanoi International Service in Mandarin 1230 GMT 17 May 82

[From the program: "Developments in China Over the Past Week"]

[Text] Last week, continued U.S. arms sales to Taiwan remained a matter of concern for the Chinese people. As soon as the U.S. vice president ended his visit to China, the U.S. Congress passed a resolution on 12 May to supply Taiwan with $60 million worth of weapons in accordance with the "Taiwan Relations Act." This could not help but arouse the Chinese people's indignation.

The Beijing authorities have indicated that China will downgrade its relations with the United States if the latter continues to act in this way. Now the United States has taken action, which shows that it has totally ignored China's warning. As the saying goes: "He who leans on others always feels inferior." The Americans know this too well. Therefore, although the U.S. vice president uttered sweet words and honeyed phrases during his visit to Beijing, saying that the United States does not pursue the "two-Chinas" policy and that it supports China's nine-point proposal on peaceful reunification with Taiwan -- which saved the Beijing authorities' face -- he immediately added that the United States would not abandon Taiwan. Swallowing the bitter pill, the Beijing authorities could only admit that obstacles exist in Sino-U.S. relations and guarantee that they will try to dispel the dark clouds in Sino-U.S. relations. Zhao Ziyang straightforwardly told Japanese journalists that China will not change its policy of strengthening friendship and cooperation with the United States regardless of the changes in Sino-U.S. relations.

Here again, the Chinese people can recognize from reality the ugly features of the Beijing authorities as betrayers. It is in their consistent nature to practice the opposite of what they preach.

COMMENTS ON THAI FOREIGN MINISTER'S PRC TRIP

OW190030 Hanoi International Service in Mandarin 1230 GMT 17 May 82

[From the program: "Developments in China Over the Past Week"]

[Text] Last week, a seemingly secret but hurried activity took place in China, namely, the Thai foreign minister's visit. According to publicized information, the Thai foreign minister's visit to China was designed to join efforts with Beijing in bringing together the Kampuchean reactionaries in exile to oppose the Kampuchean people's cause. From the activities of China, Thailand and other ASEAN countries centering around this question, the Chinese people will realize that Pol Pot, Son Sann and Sihanouk are nothing but puppets in the hands of the Beijing authorities. They dare not make decisions themselves, but only turn to the Beijing authorities, who provide for them, and the Thai authorities, who give them a place to live, for decisions on all matters. The so-called "Kampuchean resistance forces" are nothing but a bunch of remnant troops who have turned bandit and who are trying their best to sabotage the Kampuchean state which they once pushed into the abyss of destruction.

The Chinese people are angry at seeing the Beijing authorities continue to support Pol Pot, Ieng Sary, Khieu Samphan and their gang of reactionary murderers, who have committed towering crimes against the Kampuchean people. It is unacceptable for the Chinese authorities to support this gang by means of the blood and toil of the Chinese working people. The Chinese people demand that the Chinese authorities stop their policy of hostility towards the Kampuchean people, represented by the Government of the People's Republic of Kampuchea.

TRUONG CHINH REITERATES SUPPORT FOR ARGENTINA

OW181558 Hanoi VNA in English 1517 GMT 18 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA May 18 -- Truong Chinh, president of the Council of State of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, has replied to a letter from Fidel Castro Ruz, president of the Non-Aligned Movement, concerning the serious situation on the Malvinas Islands as created by Britain with U.S. blessing.

President Truong Chinh wrote: "I have received your letter dated May 10 concerning the very grave situation in the area of the Malvinas Islands.

"I fully agree with your view. The war actions being taken by the British authorities with the backing of the United States in an attempt to restore the colonial status of the Malvinas Islands not only run counter to the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Republic of Argentina, a member of the Non-Aligned Movement, but also threaten peace and security in that region.

"Backing Britain's opposition to Argentina the authorities in Washington have fully revealed their colonialist, aggressive nature and their effort to seize every opportunity to strengthen intervention and creating tension in service of their imperialistic interests, against other nations' independence and sovereignty, against world peace and international security.

"The Socialist Republic of Vietnam, true to the principles and objectives of the Non-Aligned Movement, reaffirms its recognition of the Republic of Argentina's sovereignty over the Malvinas Islands. It severely condemns Britain and the United States and demands that they put an immediate end to all aggressive actions and respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Republic of Argentina."

After the opening speech made by Nguyen Thi Nhu, President of the Vietnam Women's Union Nguyen Thi Dinh presented the political report of the union Central Committee.

Chairman Pham Van Dong, on behalf of the party Central Committee and the Council of Ministers, delivered a speech highlighting the Vietnamese women's role in the revolution. He said:

"For thousands of years now, our women have consciously assumed their responsibility toward the country's destiny. They are courageous fighters in the fight against the enemy, industrious workers in the national construction and development, wives full of tenderness and self-agnegation in the family, and responsible mothers in bringing up the young generations". He went on: "The socialist revolution, which completely liberated the nation, society and the people including women, is the most profound, thoroughgoing and comprehensive revolution in the history of Vietnam and the world. The question of women is a great one in socialist construction. Our party, state and people should help women to satisfactorily discharge their obligations of a worker, a citizen, a wife and a mother, and pay more attention to the liberation of women. It is necessary to get the party's views and policies regarding women widely publicized and strictly acted upon in all party, state and mass organizations. Our women's congress is convened at a time when the international situation is evolving in favor of the continuous offensive and victory of the three revolutionary currents of our time opened up by the Great October Socialist Revolution. The enemies are seeking by every way to lower Vietnam's image in the international arena, but they have been defeated and will be completely defeated. Vietnam has always enjoyed the love and great support from friends on the five continents and the world people as a whole. That is because our people's struggle for independence, freedom and socialism, with its typical significance and historic victory, is also the outcome of the struggle of the revolutionary and progressive forces. It has become part of the world's trend and mankind's feelings. Today, it has become more significant and vital, since, national independence, freedom and socialism have become the inevitable and irreversible trend of the people all over the world".

OW200951 Tokyo KYODO in English 0940 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Fukuoka, May 20, KYODO -- Two Japanese dragnet fishing boats seized by North Korea will be released upon payment of a fine by their owner, it was learned Thursday.

The two ships are the No. 85 Kyofuku and No. 83 Kyofuku, both of 114 tons and with 12 and 13 crewmen, respectively, owned by Taiju Fishery Co. in Fukuoka city. They were seized by a North Korean warship while operating in the Yellow Sea on May 11. It is assumed that they were suspected of violating North Korea's military demarcation line. The fine to be paid by the owner reportedly amounts to yen 13 million.

[Text] Tokyo, May 20, KYODO -- Son Sann, chairman of the anti-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), requested Thursday Japan's direct food aid to his resistance group outside the United Nations arrangement.

The Kampuchean resistance leader made the appeal when he met with leaders of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP), including Secretary General Susumu Nikaido, in the Diet building.

In reply, Nikaido said that Japan has extended aid to KPNLF through the U.N., but promised to study Son Sann's request with the Foreign Ministry.

Son Sann arrived in Japan Tuesday for a five-day visit at the LDP invitation. He is accompanied by three other KPNLF leaders.

DER SPIEGEL INTERVIEWS SUZUKI ON TRADE, DEFENSE

DW190849 Hamburg DER SPIEGEL in German 17 May 82 pp 156-167

[Interview with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki by editors Dieter Wild, Wulf Kuester and Norbert Muernberger, at Suzuki's residence; date not given]

[Excerpts] SPEIGEL: An explosive situation exists in relations between Japan and other industrial nations because of the Japanese trade surplus which is increasing every year. Last year alone the surplus was more than $20 billion. Many Americans and Europeans are plagued by the nightmare that this situation could lead to total protectionism and to a complete trade collapse between their countries and Japan -- countries which have always said that they are committed to free trade. Do you share these fears?

Suzuki: It cannot be denied that we have such a surplus and that this creates a certain friction in the field of trade because protectionist tendencies are growing. Yes, unfortunately all this can be seen.

Each country in the highly developed industrial world has problems such as unemployment, inflation, balance of payment deficits and so on. It is understandable for every country to feel tempted to pursue protectionism.

If this situation continues, the Western world will experience an even longer period of stagnation and the economy will lose its vitality. The result may be a balance, but on a very low level so that unemployment and inflation cannot be fought effectively.

SPIEGEL: What can be done in view of the hardening positions?

Suzuki: We, and this includes Japan, must try to counter the protectionist tendencies so as to maintain free world trade.

SPIEGEL: American and West European businessmen are convinced that their products could compete with Japanese goods if only the Japanese market were opened wider.

Suzuki: I know that foreign countries are not yet satisfied. Therefore, we are now about to undertake a second series of measures. We plan to make things easier for foreign interests in such fields as services, banking, the stock exchange and insurance where, above all, the Americans are very interested. Japan is prepared to make an international agreement within the framework of GATT.

SPIEGEL: In response to the complaints by the other countries that more should be done to reduce the trade surplus, Japan has accused the Europeans and Americans of not making sufficient efforts to compete on the Japanese market. Do you think that the Europeans and Americans could do more in this field?

Suzuki: I believe that the Europeans and the Americans could and should do much more. Take the automobile industry, for example. American cars have left-hand drive, the Japanese right-hand drive. Japanese export cars, however, are equipped with left-hand drive, while the Americans are obviously not interested in adapting to the Japanese market at all. They say: "It's up to you whether to buy or not; our cars have left-hand drive and that's that." Things don't work this way, and that's not the way to gain a larger share of the Japanese market. Products must be adapted to Japanese life, requirements and consumers.

SPIEGEL: Mr Prime Minister, the basis of your foreign policy, and particularly your security policy, is close relations with the United States. When the communique on your visit to the United States last year indicated that Japan and the United States were forming an "alliance," a storm of protest arose which swept your foreign minister away. Aren't the Japanese and the Americans allies?

Suzuki: On the occasion of my visit to the United States in May last year, the communique mentioned the term "alliance" in characterizing the comprehensive Japanese-American relations on the basis of our common values with regard to freedom and democracy. Security agreements certainly belong to our comprehensive relations as much as our political, economic and cultural relations do.

SPIEGEL: In the Americans' view, the close relations with Japan are those of the U.S. senior partner with the Japanese junior partner. You yourself have hinted several times that Japan was thinking of speaking out politically more in accordance with its economic weight. Are you disappointed with the U.S. superpower's ability to provide leadership?

Suzuki: We are aware of our role and responsibilities as a member of the Free World, and for that reason Japan has been pursuing its own foreign policy for a long time now. This foreign policy corresponds to Japan's national conditions and strengths. The major pillar of our foreign policy is our good relations with the United States and we always attach great importance to acting in solidarity with the Americans.

SPIEGEL: Nothing has changed in this respect?

Suzuki: We value greatly the recent efforts by the Reagan administration to normalize relations with the Soviet Union and to improve relations with its allies. We expect that under the U.S. leadership the West's unity will strengthen and peace and stability will be ensured.

SPIEGEL: In addition to economic differences, Japan is having increasing political differences with the United States. In contrast to constant Washington demands that more be spent on defense, you insist that your defense budget must not amount to more than 1 percent of the gross national product. As sensible as it may be for a country to keep its defense expenditures low, Japan still complains about a growing military threat. Are the American demands so surprising in such a situation?

Suzuki: We have a constitution which is often called peace constitution, and we must adhere to it. In this consitution we — the only country to do so — have renounced waging war and we can, therefore, have only a minimum defense potential. We feel committed to three principles: not to build nuclear weapons; not to possess nuclear weapons and not to allow them to be brought into the country. This does not mean that we would not defend ourselves. However, it is quite natural for the United States, with whom we have concluded a security treaty, to be interested in a stronger Japanese defense potential.

SPIEGEL: This security treaty burdens the United States with the defense of Japan in the event of a conflict. The only Japanese concession in return for living safely under the American "nuclear umbrella" is the fact that the Americans can maintain military bases in Japan. Isn't Japan making it too easy for itself and doesn't it gain unfair competition advantages by spending considerably less for defense than other comparable states?

Suzuki: Whether and how our potential is to be further developed will be sovereignly decided by the Japanese Government and the Japanese nation on the basis of their assessment of the situation and not only the instructions of a third party. In view of the very difficult situation in this region, the government and the people are very much aware of the necessity of being able to defend themselves. Between 1971 and 1979, we increased our defense expenditures by an average of 8 percent annually. Regarding its current defense budget, Japan holds eighth place in the world and stands ahead of Italy.

SPIEGEL: The Americans know all that, but it is not enough for them.

Suzuki: We will try to explain our policy to the Americans. Since you have said that the security treaty places all of Japan's defense burdens on the United States, I must add the following: Within the [illegible]work of our treaty, we not only make bases in Japan available to the U.S. Armed Force[illegible], w[illegible]lso assume over 1 billion dollars of the American stationing costs. We believe that in doing this we are contributing to peace and stability in the Far East.

SPIEGEL: In Europe, a passionate debate is underway on whether the threat posed by the Soviet SS-20 medium-range missiles should be countered by U.S. medium-range missiles. Soviet SS-20 missiles can also reach Japan. Do you feel threatened by these missiles?

Suzuki: A potential threat by the SS-20 missiles definitely exists. This threat can become real, however, only when it is intended to use the missiles for aggression. The strategy of "nuclear weapons against nuclear weapons" does not apply to Japan with its three principles against nuclear armament. This is why we advocate worldwide nuclear disarmament. An important precondition, of course, is for this disarmament to be balanced.

SPIEGEL: So far the Soviet Union is Japan's only wartime enemy who has not made peace with Japan. Mr Prime Minister, you refuse to enter into peace talks so long as Moscow refuses to return the "northern territories" to Japan which have been occupied since the end of the war. Recently you even made an inspection tour to the vicinity of these islands claimed by Japan — a tour which Moscow regards as an "anti-Soviet provocation." Isn't it a bit behind the times for a great economic power such as Japan to make its relations with a neighbor world power -- the Soviet Union -- dependent on patriotic feelings?

Suzuki: What's so funny about the Japanese prime minister's wanting to inspect Japan's own territory? I fail to comprehend why this is considered a provocation or an insult. Granted, the Soviet Union is an important neighbor of Japan, and granted, good-neighbor relations with the Soviet Union would contribute a great deal to Japan's peace and stability. Nevertheless, we could never accept the illegal occupation of our territory by the Soviet Union, which has set up and expanded military bases there. You cannot conclude a peace treaty if the people do not support and such such support does not exist at the moment.

If the Soviet Union actually desires friendly permanent relations with Japan, it needs only to return our territories. We will be readily prepared to conclude a peace treaty at any time as soon as this problem has been resolved.

SPEIGEL: You recently even introduced a "northern territories day"...

Suzuki: It is my wish that the conclusion of a peace treaty with the Soviet Union will make this day a day of friendship between Japan and the Soviet Union.

SPIEGEL: In the meantime, however, the Japanese economy has lost orders worth billions in connection with the opening of Siberia, and the Soviet Union would have liked best to have Japan as a partner. Can the Japanese economy really afford to give up such huge orders, the biggest it would have ever received, for political considerations?

Suzuki: In the territorial issue I cannot separate economics and politics, just as I can't in other cases such as those of Afghanistan or Poland. Applying military pressure on third countries constitutes a threat to peace and international justice and cannot be tolerated. Thus Japan, in close solidarity with the United States and the West European countries, opposes such activities by the Soviet Union. We will continue to pursue this policy course.

SPIEGEL: Disappointment in China; no relations with the Soviet Union; and quarrels with the protective power, the United States, and with the trade partner, Europe — Japan seems to have hardly any friends in the world. What might be the reason for that?

Suzuki: Actually, I cannot accept your contention that Japan is practically without friends in the world. We are not disappointed in China; we intend to continue helping them modernize. In our relations with the Soviet Union, there are hardly any louder dissonant tones than exist in the relations the United States and Europe have with the Soviet Union. In view of the considerably closer and more lively exchange with the United States, it seems natural for friction to crop up from time to time.

SPIEGEL: Only friction?

Suzuki: I think it would be exaggerating to speak of "conflict" in the present relationship of interdependence and solidarity, and this also holds true for our trade problems with the countries of Europe. To us it is inconceivable that people might conclude from these problems that Japan and Europe are not friends or would not stay friends.

ANTI-U.S. LEAFLETS SCATTERED AT SEOUL UNIVERSITY

SK200832 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0811 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 20 (KCNA) — Copies of a leaflet calling upon the students to rise up in an anti-U.S., national salvation struggle were scattered on the campus of Seoul University on April 27, according to radio Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification.

The leaflet, headlined "Yankees, go home!" read: Look at the "government" offerings in reward for the U.S. "aid." The right of the nation to self-determination and the freedom of the people are offered as spoils of chase and net. [as received]

If it is "aid" obtained by offering on the altar all that the country, the nation and the people should enjoy, it is subjugation and plunder. We reject the "aid" of the United States. We are fighting to take back our offerings over the last 37 years. The fight to take back our things. The struggle to live on our own. It is justice and truth. What should we hesitate?

Let us all rise up in the sacred war of anti-U.S., national salvation for a Korea without Yankees. Yankees, go home! Down with the traitor!

FOREIGN PAPERS ON KIM CHONG-IL CULTURAL DEEDS

SK190729 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0356 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 19 (KCNA) -- Foreign newspapers and magazines recently carried articles introducing the outstanding literary and art activities of the dear leader Comrade Chong-il, according to reports.

The Swiss newspaper TRIBUNE DE GENEVE printed a photograph of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il seeing a model of a new construction project, together with an article headlined "New Development of Literature and Art in Korea."

Noting that the opera of Korea is very unique, the newspaper says:

The opera of Korea is so composed as to suit the sentiments of the people at the present time, preserving the characteristics of the national music. As to the composition of orchestra, there seems to be no change at first glance. But it consists of national instruments combined with conventional instruments; taehaegum and sohaegum adapted from traditional stringed instruments of Korea are played along with violin and cello, and chodae and tanso adapted from national wood instruments are used in place of flutes and piccolos. Tones have been made Korean and the national music has come to well cater the modern aesthetic tastes with the introduction of national instruments into orchestra.

The opera represents the feelings of the characters by Pangchang and the story of the work is accentuated by national dance in the form of group dance. It presents the scene of a combined art in the literal sense of the word.

This opera, called "sea of blood," style is completely new and unique.

The unique literature and art of Korea have been created by the kind guidance of Secretary Kim Chong-il, the new leader representing the new generation.

The magazine of Democratic Yemen AL-HIKMAH says: The dear leader of the Korean people Comrade Kim Chong-il put forward many new theories on the creation and practice of literature and art on the basis of its chuche-oriented idea advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

What is important in the new theories on literature and art put forward by the dear leader is the unique theory on communist humanics based on the chuche idea.

He teaches that the literature of the working class should be humanics which gives an artistic answer to the question of an independent man and the question of defending his chajusong (independence).

The new theory of humanics put forward by him clarifies the mission and basic demand of socialist literature and art which should rear man into independent and creative man, awaken him to the truth of life and lead him to the road of worthy life.

The theory of seed holds a special place in his theories on literature and art.

He teaches that the seed in literary and art works is the ideological kernel which decides the life of the works, in other words, the basic core of the works.

If a literary and art work is to bear a fine fruit, a fine seed must be sown.

His idea and theory of the seed not only give a profound exposition of the way for creating literature and art, but also provide the writers with a firm guarantee for creating literary and art works reflecting the demand of the times and the desire of the people on a high ideological and artistic level.

What is important in his literary and art theory is the policy on the creation of revolutionary and chuche-based film art.

With a deep insight into the importance of film art in developing literature and art as a whole, he put forward the policy of giving priority to the development of film art and gave brilliant answers to all the theoretical and practical questions arising in this connection.

The idea and theory on the creation of a revolutionary opera of new style holds a distinguished place in his literary and artistic theories.

He advanced the unique policy on the creation of new operas of "sea of blood" style on the basis of the chuche-oriented idea and theory of opera art, which are completely different from the previous operas.

The opera of "sea of blood" style is the new opera of Korea suitable to the ideological sense of the people at present.

With his far-sighted plan for building literature and art of chuche through a big change in the field of literature and art, he guided the work in this field so as to bring about fundamental changes in the content of literature and art and their style and method of creation.

He has not only brought the bright prosperity of literature and art but effected great changes in all fields of literature and art by wisely leading film, drama, opera, fine arts, music and dance in a unified way.

The Panamanian paper LA REPUBLICA and CRITICA, the Ecuadorean paper EL COMERCIO and the Venezuelan paper LA NACIONAL printed portraits of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il and carried articles "Founder of Renaissance of the Twentieth Century."

INCREASES IN AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION NOTED

KCNA Report

SK061533 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1518 GMT 6 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May (KCNA) -- The Democratic People's Republic of Korea has set itself new goal of raising the average per-chongbo grain yield to 9 tons in rice and over 9.5 tons in maize in the coming few years.

This goal was set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his policy speech at the recent joint meeting of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and the Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Noting that it is an important policy which should always be adhered to in developing agriculture to increase the per-unit-area yield through constant modernization of agricultural production as required by the chuche farming method, the great leader taught that, in particular, we should obtain many new high-yielding varieties by improving seed production and ameliorate the methods of crop cultivation to bring the average per-chongbo yield of grain to the afore-said figure.

This is, indeed, a high goal.

Our agricultural working people who are convinced of the superiority of the chuche farming method through their life and the agro-scientists who have made valuable successes in obtaining new high-yielding varieties of crops are filled with the determination to attain the new prospective target.

The per-chongbo yield of rice, the most important staple crop of the country, reached 5.0 tons throughout the country already in 1974 to surpass the high level of developed countries in the world. That year the per-chongbo yield of maize, the second stable crop, reached 5 tons to attain a high level in the world.

In 1979 the average per-chongbo yields reached 7.2 tons in rice and 6.3 tons in maize.

This rapid progress in the per-chongbo grain yield in Korea clearly shows the vitality of the chuche farming method created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Early in the 1970's when many countries were faced with an "agricultural crisis" and "food crisis" failing in farming every year under the influence of the cold front sweeping the world, the great leader visited many rural villages throughout the country to analyze experience gained by farmers in crop cultivation and successes by agro-scientists in their research and created the chuche farming method suited to the specific conditions of our country on the basis of shining successed registered in the rural technical revolution put forward in the rural theses.

The chuche farming method is a scientific farming method of doing farming in a scientific and technical way in conformity with the climatic conditions of our country and the biological features of crops. It is also an intensive farming method of making agricultural production highly intensive on the basis of modern science and technology.

The chuche farming method is a superior farming method which makes it possible to increase the per-unit-area yield, overcome the influence of the abnormal weather and always ensure a high and stable harvest by making most effective use of land, water, farm machines, chemical fertilizers and other means of agricultural production.

With the creation of the chuche farming method an epochal turn has been effected in the country's agricultural production.

The northern half of the DPRK produced only 2.16 million tons of grain at best at the time of the Japanese imperialists colonial rule, but it turned out more than 7 million tons of grain in 1974 and 9 million tons in 1979.

As a result, the food problem was completely solved long ago in our country.

This is why heads of state, ministers in charge of agriculture and public figures of broad segments and public circles of various countries highly praise the priceless exploits performed by the great leader in the development of agricultural production.

VRPR Article

SK050946 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 4 May 82

[Article from feature program "My Chuche Fatherland" -- second installment of travelogue on North Korea contributed by correspondent Cho Sun-chon, Korean resident in United States, to Japanese magazine REUNIFICATION REVIEW]

[Summary] "A granary is, no doubt, moving to the north on the Korean Peninsula." The food seminar of the nonaligned countries was held in Pyongyang under a slogan for increasing food production. The participants noted a great reform achieved by North Korea in food supply. A manager at the Chongsan cooperative farm in the suburb of Pyongyang noted the need for increasing the production of grain per chongbo through the improvement of agricultural variety and soil and by enacting both the mechanization and chemicalization of agriculture. He predicted a continuous increase in the production of grain in North Korea.

"To confirm this, I would like to quote statistics prepared by the UN Food and Agriculture Organization [FAO]. According to statistics for 1980 released by FAO, the average rice yield per chongbo in the world is 2,721 kilograms; the United States, 3,235 kilograms; Japan, 5,128 kilograms; the Soviet Union, 4,217 kilograms; China, 4,263 kilograms; South Korea, 4,918 kilograms; and North Korea, 6,000 kilograms -- the highest level in the world."

North Korea has unfavorable geographical and topographical conditions: "It has small plains and large mountaneous areas; drought continues in sowing seasons; it has bordered such great countries as the Soviet Union and China, and confronts the United States across the 38th Parallel. Under these circumstances, North Korea has been provided with two paths. The first is to rely on these great countries and to conduct state affairs based on aid offered by them. The other is to change the status of the people through independent efforts with a resolve to endure hardships."

"The total length of irrigation networks that the North Korean people have built amounts to 40,000 kilometers. That of drainage amounts to 1,460 kilometers." There are many reservoirs throughout the country. The North Korean people now do not need to worry about whimsical weather. They have laid the foundation in a short span of time for self-reliance through irrigation, electrification, mechanization and chemicalization. In the 1970's when grain production was reduced in the world because of unusual weather conditions, North Korea continued to increase grain production.

"In 1974, North Korea produced 7 million tons of grain -- an amount equivalent to the total grain delivery on the Korean Peninsula prior to liberation. Since then, it has continued to increase grain production without experiencing a bad crop. Today, it looks toward 10 million tons of grain production." Because of this, the food and agricultural seminar of the nonaligned countries was held in Pyongyang.

The seminar adopted a Pyongyang declaration to confirm cooperation among nonaligned countries and to oppose U.S. influence over food supply.

NODONG SINMUN 17 May editorial: "A Significant Meeting Which Has Greatly Contributed To Strengthening and Developing the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries"]

[Text] On 14 May the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries, which opened in Pyongyang on 12 May amid the great concern and expection of the world's progressive people and journalists, including the peoples of nonaligned countries, concluded after successfully completing its work.

The Pyongyang meeting, participated in by 59 delegations and representatives from member countries of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool, from the press agencies of other interested nonaligned countries and from regional and international agencies, mutually exchanged information on successes and experiences which nonaligned countries had gained in the press sector and discussed measures and methods for strengthening the role of the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song arranged a grand banquet for the participants in the meeting and made a speech entitled "To Strengthen Cooperation Among Nonaligned Countries in the Press Sector." The participants warmly supported and welcomed the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's historic speech, which indicated the correct way to strengthen and develop the Nonaligned Movement and the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries. This speech greatly encouraged them. Saying that the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's speech, entitled "To Strengthen Cooperation Among Nonaligned Countries in the Press Sector," was of historic significance in the history of the development of the Nonaligned Movement and the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries, the participants unanimously adopted it as the most important document of the meeting.

The participants respectfully sent a letter to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, conveying warm thanks for providing various conditions and giving consideration to see the successful proceeding of the meeting and wishing him long life. This is the manifestation of their high respect for and deep confidence in the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who has devoted his life to the cause of the fatherland and for liberating mankind and who has particularly contributed to strengthening and developing the Nonaligned Movement.

The meeting adopted a final report and a resolution, reflecting the will and desire of the world's progressive people and journalists, including the peoples of nonaligned countries. These documents delineated the concrete task of further developing pool work, the practical methods of further strengthening cooperation and exchange among the news agencies of nonaligned countries and the task of actively contributing to achieving the aim and ideal of the Nonaligned Movement, upholding slogans for unity in the press sector.

The meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the pool encouraged the peoples of nonaligned and developing countries struggling to oppose all forms of domination and subjugation and to build a new independent, creative life and dealt great blows at imperialists who had run amok to maintain the old international order in the press sector. The meeting was a significant international meeting which greatly contributed to further developing mutual understanding among the news agencies of nonaligned countries, to developing the pool and to expanding and strengthening the Nonaligned Movement. The Korean people rejoice over the successful result of the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries and warmly congratulates it on achieving successes.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: By further enhancing the role of the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries through united efforts, all nonaligned countries should reject all hindering maneuvers and continuously expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement.

In the struggle to expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement, the news agencies of nonaligned countries are powerful weapons. Only by actively carrying out press activities and by enhancing the role of their news agencies can nonaligned countries smash imperialists' maneuvers for aggression and war and their reactionary ideological offensive and vigorously encourage the people's struggle to build a new society.

The important success of the Pyongyang meeting was that nonaligned countries clearly delineated the stand, principle and task which they should maintain and perform in the press sector.

Assuming a nonaligned nature is the lifeline of the press agencies pool of nonaligned countries. Only by thoroughly assuming a nonaligned nature in its news coverage activities can the pool firmly maintain its position as a new type international press force capable of protecting and representing the interests and desires of developing countries and increase its influence.

By assisting the pool in firmly assuming a nonaligned nature, in taking an anti-imperialist stand in its news coverage activities an in concentrating on the struggle to oppose imperialism, the meeting delineated the method of thwarting the imperialists' maneuvers for aggression and war, of preserving world peace and security, of achieving the unity of the Nonaligned Movement and of contributing to achieving the just cause of this movement.

Self-reliance is a basic way to strengthen the role of the pool. By believing in their strength, by fully mobilizing and utilizing their potential and by highly displaying the spirit of self-reliance -- the spirit of producing goods in short supply and of searching out shortage, member countries of the pool should firmly build and continuously strengthen and develop the people's press agencies.

When nonaligned countries thoroughly abide by the principle of individual and collective self-reliance, their news agencies pool will smoothly achieve their noble duty and goal. By paving the way for the news agencies of nonaligned countries to abide firmly by the principle of individual and collective self-reliance, the meeting expressed a firm resolve to enhance further the role of the news agencies from conducting false propaganda against developing countries and to carry out actively news coverage activities to support the just cause of nonaligned countries.

The Pyongyang meeting formulated a struggle strategy to establish a new international order in the press sector so as to meet the trend of an era of independence. Ending the imperialists' monopoly and tyranny in the press sector and establishing a new international order in this sector are important tasks assigned the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries. Employing large press agencies, the imperialists are tyrannically maintaining a monopolitic position in the press sector. Ignoring the just voices of the people, imperialist-sponsored press agencies are concocting lies, distorting truth and obstinately spreading reactionary poison. Without ending the imperialists' monopoly and tyranny, we cannot successfully achieve independence all over the world, nor can we successfully strengthen and develop the Nonaligned Movement.

The participants demanded that the news agencies of nonaligned countries strengthen their unity and cooperation to establish a new international order in the press sector and thoroughly expose and through active news coverage activities, smash the imperialists' slanderous campaigns and their reactionary news coverage activities against the Nonaligned Movement and against the people's revolutionary struggle.

Promoting the people's political awareness for self-reliance and actively encouraging them to the struggle to build a new independent world are important duties of the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries. The meeting delineated the task of accomplishing these duties of the pool. The Pyongyang meeting formulated practical measures for making great progress in developing the pool by developing cooperation and exchange among news agencies of nonaligned countries. Nonaligned countries' development of cooperation and exchange in the press sector is of great significance in strengthening the might of the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries and in more successfully achieving the unity of the Nonaligned Movement.

Today, nonaligned countries possess adequate conditions and potential for developing cooperation and exchange in the press sector. Some of nonaligned countries possess modern press agencies, excellent journalist-training institutes and good experiences in the press and news field. If nonaligned countries develop cooperation and exchange in the press sector based on the principle of satisfying each other's needs, they can successfully solve all questions in firmly developing the people's press agencies and strengthen the pool ten times than now.

The Pyongyang meeting delineated the practical methods of strengthening mutual cooperation and exchange among nonaligned countries in the press sector. The meeting noted the need for organizing a complete press network by linking the people's news agencies in various countries. To achieve this end, the meeting demanded that regional press agencies in continents be strengthened to develop them into branch offices of the news agencies pool of nonaligned countries.

The meeting suggested that journalists' seminars should be held on national, regional and international scales, and that the news agencies of nonaligned countries should study the possibility of establishing a joint enterprise which produces press equipment for newly emerging news agencies and less-developed news agencies.

The Pyongyang meeting of the Corrdinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries showed that, if the news agencies of nonaligned countries highly displayed the spirit of self-reliance and if they united their efforts, there would be nothing that they could not perform.

Our people will make every effort to expand and develop the work of the pool in accordance with the direction discussed and set forth at the meeting and will sincerely accomplish the responsibility and duty assigned them.

The whole course of the seventh meeting of the Coordinating Committee of the News Agencies Pool of Nonaligned Countries vigorously demonstrated that the proposal of our party for the fatherland's reunification set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was just and that international support for and encouragement of the just cause of our people had increased with each passing day. The participants highly appreciated the brilliant successes attained by our people in the revolution and construction by materializing the immortal chuche idea under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party center. They extended support for and solidarity with the just struggle of the Korean people to achieve the country's independent and peaceful reunification. We express deep thanks for this and believe that the news agencies of nonaligned countries will extensively conduct propaganda on the struggle of our people for socialist construction and the fatherland's reunification and actively support and encourage this struggle.

Strengthening solidarity with the anti-imperialist, independent forces, including nonaligned countries, jointly struggling to achieve a common goal and ideal under the banner of independence is the consistent policy of our party and the government of the republic. As in the past, our people will strengthen unity and cooperation with the world's progressive people, including peoples on nonaligned countries, in the struggle to build new independent world under the baner of independence, friendship and peace and will actively struggle to expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement.

Party Officials 'Sacked'

[Text] Seoul, May 20 (YONHAP) — President Chon Tu-hwan, head of South Korea's ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP), Thursday sacked party Secretary-General Kwon Chong-tal, party Spokesman Pong Tu-wan and chief party policymaker Rep. Na Sok-ho in move occasioned by the nation's largest curb loan scandal.

Chon picked Rep. Kwon Ik-hyon to replace Kwon and appointed Rep. Chin I-chong to become the party's chief policymaker. Rep. Kim Yong-tae was named to serve as the party spokesman. Chon also accepted the resignation of Yi Han-tong as chief secretary of the party president. He appointed Rep. Nam Chae-tu as a replacement.

Kwon Chong-tal and Na Sok-ho also lost their memberships to the DJP's Central Executive Committee, as did Chong Chong-taek, a minister of state for political affairs, and Reps. Kim Chong-ye and Kim Yun-hwan.

Chon's action came soon after key DJP functionaries submitted their resignations in the wake of the scandal. The resignations are the first of their kind since the government party was inaugurated in January 1981.

Outgoing spokesman Pong quoted Chon as saying that he accepted the resignations in order to help "consolidate popular confidence in the party and keep the party's inaugural ideology moving forward."

Kwon, one of the leading figures who spearheaded the reform drive for the Fifth Republic, also played a key role in the birth of the DJP. He became party secretary-general when the party was inaugurated early last year. Newly appointed Secretary-General Kwon Ik-hyon, 48, graduated from the Korea Military Academy the same year as President Chon. Kwon's military career included stints as chief information officer at the Army Security Command and as assistant to the Army chief of staff. Newly appointed top policymaker Chin, 60, is a former health-social affairs minister. He is a native of North Cholla Province.

Rep. Nam Chae-tu, new chief secretary for the party president, is a graduate of Seoul's Yonsei University. He is 43-years-old and was born in Andong, in North Kyongsang Province.

New party spokesman Kim, 46, was also born in Andong. He began as a journalist, serving as deputy managing director of the CHOSON ILBO, before entering politics.

Chon Tu-hwan Comments

SK191102 Seoul YONHAP in English 1010 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Taejon, Korea, May 19 (YONHAP) — South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan pledged Wednesday a thorough investigation into the recent multi-million dollar curb money market scandal and punishment for the people involved. Renewing his efforts to ferret out social corruption, Chon said those who flout their position will face severe punishment regardless of their social status.

At a luncheon held here for attendants to the opening ceremony of the 11th national children's sports meet, Chon expressed his regrets over the so-called "Mrs. Chang scandal". Chon pointed out that some people used to defraud influential figures and that such behavior still exists but should be rooted out at any cost.

Chon's remarks came hours after the arrest of his uncle by marriage and former president of the state-run Korean Mining Corp, Yi Kyu-kwang in connection with a payoff charge.

Yi was formally arrested early Wednesday on a bribery charge. The prosecution said Yi received 100 million won in payoffs from his sister-in-law Chang Yong-cha, the central figure in the scandal, for a joint venture project her hisband Yi Chol-hui was trying to arrange.

Prosecution Announces Results

SK201030 Seoul YONHAP in English 0122 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 20 (YONHAP) — The prosecutor general's office, investigating the so-called "Mrs. Chang scandal," disclosed Thursday that Mrs. Chang and her husband, Yi Chol-hui, have circulated promissory notes totaling 262,400 million won (about 364 million U.S. dollars), and defaulted on 138,000 million won worth of them. (one U.S. dollar is worth 720 won).

The prosecution, estimating the couple's total assets at 40,000 million to 50,000 million won, said the defaulted bills represented the maximum amount which could be claimed in compensation.

The prosecution said it has found "no further evidence of behind-the-scenes political influence" in Mrs. Chang's transactions. Yi Kyu-kwang, her brother-in-law and President Chon Tu-hwan's uncle by marriage, was arrested early Wednesday in connection with the scandal. Yi is charged with receiving 100 million won in payoffs for a project unrelated to her banking and curb market activities. The prosecution is expected to announce its findings on the scandal Thursday or Friday.

Probe Results Questioned

SK200208 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 20 May 82 p 8

[Text] The prosecution's investigation of the Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha couple's loan scandal over the past three weeks has left many things doubtful about the authority and independence of judgement in the exercise of the state's law enforcement power, concerned circles said yesterday.

The people's ears and eyes were drawn to the prosecutor-general's office in Sosomun when the financial irregularities on an immense scale were exposed late last month with appeals from major industrial firms allegedly victimized by the moneylender couple.

As many as 19 people have been arrested so far, making the affair one of the worst scandals in the republic's history in terms of the number of detainees alone, not to mention its impact on the nation's financial world.

Yet, from the beginning of its probe, the prosecution gave the impression that its actions were steered by the pressure of public opinion and decisions by higher government authorities rather than its own conviction based on a correct grasp of the nature of the incident.

There have been three announcements of the results of the investigation and a fourth is expected tomorrow. But the announcements caused a credibility gap because the second reversed the major content of the first and the third contradicted the second.

The central investigation division at the PGO in charge of the loan-bill scandal disclosed the arrest of Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha on the single charge of violating the Foreign Exchange Control Law on May 7 and the prosecution authorities clarified that the couple would not be accused of fraud.

The charge stemmed fromthe discovery of large amounts of U.S. and Japanese currency in the couple's house and the detection of their unauthorized deposit of money in the United States. Prosecution officials let it be known that the case would be closed at that.

Informed sources explained that the prosecution's decision came in consideration of the economic impact feared to result from extending the probe to private moneylending circles, which played a major role in financing the industries. Keeping the mechanism of money flow in operation is as important as bringing a handful of offenders to law in the current economic recession, they said.

On the other hand, some prosecution officials asserted that it was only a technical action to hold the persons of the couple for continued investigation and they had not decided to conclude the probe at that stage. Yet observers pointed out that the extremely cautious stance of the prosecution authorities must have had something to do with their experience at the time of the coal briquet scandal last October.

The prosecution at that time extensively investigated the distribution of low-quality coal briquets in the Seoul area, arresting a number of ranking officials and producers. But this resulted in the sacking of the justice minister and an overall reshuffle in the top prosecution hierarchy. Prosecution leaders were blamed for overzealousness in ignorance of the practical impact of such an action, which eventually threatened smooth supply of the main fuel.

This time the situation was different and the consequences of the abnormal business activities of the moneylender couple were already jolting private financial circles and had driven two major industrial firms to the brink of bankruptcy. Calls for the realization of justice grew stronger and speculation ran wild that attempts to cover up the scandal were being made by influential figures involved in the affair. A high level instruction was handed down to the prosecution to expose the scandal thoroughly.

Thus the prosecution got into action but the pace was apparently too hasty as shown in the second announcement four days after the first one. It put the overall scale of the moneylender couple's allegedly fraudulent loan deals at 262.4 billion won while blaming ranking city bank officials for unlawfully releasing bank loans and a few private moneylenders for making illegal profits in the course of discounting commercial bills in collaboration with the couple.

Somewhat prematurely, it concluded that Yi Chol-hui and his wife had not actually had the help of any influential individuals such as Yi Kyu-kwnag, her brother-in-law and an uncle of the first lady, and she had just "pretended" to be enjoying their cooperation. The prosecution's revelation, however, could neither put down public doubts nor satisfy higher government authorities. The course of the investigation had to be changed again and Yi Kyu-kwnag's arrest was necessary to convince the people of its determination to bare the truth.

But in this compelling situation, the prosecution experienced difficulties in finding suitable charges for the arrest of the suspected "behind the-scenes collaborator," who was already in custody at the Sosomun PGO building.

At first, charges of evasion of donation taxes were considered on the ground that Yi had been given a house and large amounts of money by his sister-in-law as gifts, but the prosecutors found that the legal reporting period for the donation had not expired. The prosecution spent several hours Tuesday before it finally came up with a charge of an illegal payoff under the additional punishment law on specific crimes. This was possible as investigators discovered that he help them in getting official authorization for the establishment of a joint-venture bank with Arab financiers.

After putting Yi behind bars at the Seoul detention house in Sodaemun, prosecution officials hinted that no other people of influence, political or other, were believed to have helped the couple in their irregular financial deals.

As for Yi himself, they said that despite the suspected payoff, there was no evidence of his actual contacts with government officials to materialize the bank project.

Investigation Expanded

[Excerpt] While conducting the investigation on the curb loan scandal, the prosecutors office on 17 May began to investigate those who are believed to have been behind Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha. The prosecutors office has reportedly started investigating Yi Kyu-kwang, a brother-in-law and former president of the Korean Mining Promotion Corporation, and other personages who are known to have been behind the scandal. By arresting the leading officials of banks and business firms and private money lenders, the prosecution has almost finalized the investigation into the financial irregularities and fraud in issuing promissory notes and is now concentrating its investigation on ferreting out those who were behind the couple. As a first step, the prosecution is continuing the investigation to find out whether Mr. Yi Kyu-kwang was directly or indirectly involved in the fraud of Mrs. Chang. Saying that "What is to be done now is to probe those who were behind the curtain." A prosecution authority stressed that, "in accordance with the government's will to punish anyone, regardless of position, if involved in the scandal, even Mr. Yi Kyu-kwang will be arrested for investigation if there appears even a slight indication that he was directly involved in the case."

The prosecution has already discovered that Mr. Yi was frequently invited to parties hosted by Mrs. Chang. Thus, the prosecution is concentrating its investigation on the likelihood that Mr. Yi might have received financial aid from Mrs. Chang and, in return, rendered his influence for Chang's exchanges of promissory notes.

In addition, taking a serious view of the fact that leading officials of a business firm involved in the curb loan scandal tried to show off their relations with a certain "K." One of the leaders of the political party, the prosecution is continuing its investigation in this regard. In particular, Mr. Kim Tong-ui, auditor of the Kongyang Construction Company, who was detained by the prosecution on the evening of 16 May, is believed to have exploited lawmaker "K" by taking advantage of the fact that "K" is a school class mate of his.

A government official concerned said that there was a high possibility that, even if the lawmaker "K" was not directly involved in the scandal, he might be called to account for the incident, not criminally but in another form, if he had been exploited by officials of a business firm involved in the incident.

Yi Kyu-Kwang Profiled

SK190208 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 19 May 82 p 8

[Text] Yi Kyu-kwang, 57, now under investigation suspicion of having exercised behind-the-scenes influence for his wife's younger sister Mrs. Chang Yong-cha, is known as a man whose life has been full of ups and downs.

A class three graduate of the Korea Military Academy, Yi was in the powerful post of Army Provost Marshal in 1960, when a student uprising took place on April 19.

Shortly after the May 16, 1961, military coup, he was sentenced to four years in jail on charges of involvement in a counter-coup plot. Out of prison, he spent many years in obscurity.

But on May 12, 1980, Yi, who is an uncle of the first lady, was picked up to serve as president of the state-run Korea Mining Promotion Corp. During the past two years as the mining corporation head, Yi has successfully exploited mineral deposits in the Samchok, Ponghwa and Ulchin districts. Owing to his positive policy of exploring and exploiting natural resources, a large-scale molybdnite mine, known as the largest in the world with potential reserves of 28 million tons worth 141 billion won, was discovered. In addition, a 62-million-ton coal mine and a 6.3-million-ton lead and zinc mine were found.

On May 12, just two years after he was named president of the corporation, he tendered his resignation in connection with the controversial loan scandal involving Mrs. Chang.

During the past two years, the office of Yi reportedly had many visitors who had no connection with mining. According to his close associates, Yi often complained of the misconduct and irregular activities of his wife's sister. He also expressed regret about his sister-in-law during his meeting with the energy-resources minister on the day when he tendered his resignation.

"My failure to teach her a good lesson resulted in the trouble for my family," he was quoted as saying by the associates. They say that Mrs Chang must have obtained her advantages in social activities in the financial circles, stock and curb loan markets from her elder sister Mrs Chang Song-hui, Yi's second wife. The elder sister is reportedly well known among businessmen and bankers. Since late 1980, the couple has had many visitors to their home in Hannam-dong. Neighbors of the couple say that not a single day has passed without seeing somebody delivering a gift to the house.

Yi has three sons, two of whom were born to his former wife and are now residing in the United States. The youngest son is now attending a university in Seoul.

When one of Yi's sons in the United States married last February in New York, many leading business figures and some highly-placed government officials from the home country reportedly attended the wedding ceremony.

Between last April 17 and May 8 when Yi's wife stayed at a Buddhist temple in Namwon, Cholla-pukto, a lot of women, apparently wives of banking and business leaders, visited the temple to join her.

Last January, the family moved to a luxurious house worth hundreds of million won in Pangbae-dong, southern Seoul. The house was said to have been bought by Mrs. Chang Yong-cha for her sister.

DJP Chief Seeks Change

SK200422 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 0300 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Chairman of the Democratic Justice Party Yi Chae-hyong said today that he looks forward to a political decision to renew the atmosphere prevailing among the people as a countermeasure against the recent Yi Chol-hui-Chang Yong-cha couple's curb loan scandal. If a Cabinet shakeup occurs, the shakeup should take into consideration the social reputation or personal ability of the persons concerned, this notwithstanding, it is all the more important to take into consideration the public sentiment, he further said.

This morning, he met with reporters. He noted: "It is hard to envision a pan-national Cabinet, in which the opposition camp participates. It is desirable that the Cabinet obtain able men both inside and outside of the party."

Touching on the possibility of a reshuffle of party posts in connection with this case, he said it is high time, at the present, for the Cabinet to take action. He added only that he would keep watch on the results.

DJP Denies Rumors

SK191449 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 19 May 82 p 2

[From the column: "Central Tower"]

[Excerpts] With the conclusion of the investigation authorities that the Democratic Justice Party [DJO] has nothing to do with the curb loan scandal involving Mrs. Chang, the DJP has appeared to regain vitality. On the afternoon of 18 May, the party resumed vigorous activity, suddenly convening a joint meeting of its party leaders, floor leader group and chairmen of the standing committees of the National Assembly.

Party representative Yi Chae-hyong said: Recent rampant rumors have caused the party to suffer in connection with the curb loan scandal and public opinion has shown no sympathy towards the party. This is because trust in the party has not taken deep root among the people.

He added: The party should surmount all trials with firm principles and faith. If the party tries to evade the trials in the future, history will refuse to entrust anything to us.

Secretary General Kwon Chong-tal said: The allegation that the DP received political funds or funds for the founding of the party from those involved in the curb loan scandal does not hold water at all. Such a thing cannot be imagined. He added: It is indeed nonsense that the matter is exaggerated and misunderstood simply because we have a friend in the Kongyong Construction Company.

At the joint meeting, floor leader Yi Chong-chan said: The problem is that people try to circulate vicious rumors slandering our party. Asked about the source of the vicious rumors, floor leader Yi said: How could I know.

The DJP is reported to have instructed its lawmakers who are now abroad to return home within the week. This is to cope with the convocation of an extraordinary National Assembly demanded by the opposition camp.

DKP Demands Response

SK200218 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 20 May 82 p 1

[Text] The Democratic Korea Party (DKP) demanded yesterday that the government confiscate all fortunes of Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha, the key figures in the curb loan scandal, to use them in disposing of the dishonored bills the couple issued.

The first minority party also claimed that the former presidents and staff members of the insolvent Ilsain Steel Co. and Kong Yung Construction Co. should take indefinite responsibility to pay their debts with all their property.

Suggesting a six-point method to cope with the incident economically, the DKP said that the government could clear the people's doubts about the scandal only when it bared clearly the where-abouts of the money the couple had misappropriated.

The party claimed that the government's lukewarm measures taken after the incident took place had brought about successive paralysis of the functions of banks, short-term financial firms and stock markets as well as the curb money world.

The party will present "concrete measures" to help invigorate the business next week. The party alternatives for the business perk-up will be worked out by a four-man subpanel, which was formed yesterday.

MINISTRY ANNOUNCES ECONOMIC BOOST PACKAGE

[Text] A total of 200 billion won in new fund will be funneled into the farm area, while bank facilities for small enterprises being expanded by 220 billion won and housing-related taxes given a major cut, Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chun-song announced yesterday.

In the economic boost package, explained as "addressing the nation's economic slump in a structural approach," Kim said that the government has also decided to increase export financing and is seeking to improve the tax system in favor of business activity.

Under the new measures, the export finance in the won currency per unit dollar earned has been hiked from the current 580 won to 600 won.

Also under consideration is to lower the present differentiated rates of corporate tax to a unified rate and promote internal retention of corporate earnings.

The deputy prime minister said that the government plans to allow the business to retain more of its earnings without paying the "presumptive tax on dividends." At present, corporations can retain up to 50 percent of their after-tax earnings without incurring the tax. But this and the proposed slash in corporate tax require approval by the National Assembly before being implemented.

In presenting the latest economic package at a press conference, Kim, who is also minister of economic planning, said, "If essential, I think the nation can live beyond the money growth target this year but we in the government are confident that our stabilization efforts will not be damaged at all."

Korea's money supply target for this year is set at a yearly 20-22 percent on the M2 basis. Last time, the government introduced an economic revitalization package on Jan. 14 this year.

Stressing a unique approach underlining the new package, the top government economist summarized the economy's general condition and said that for now, small and medium industries have only limited access to banks, while the foundation for raising off-farm income in the rural area has just started being laid.

Under this basic perception, the government will let local governments raise an aggregate 200 billion won to undertake road paving projects on a large scale. Details will come later after due consultations between the Ministry of Home Affairs and the Ministry of Construction.

Of the 220 billion won newly put aside for small- and medium-size industries, 20 billion won will be used for projects to localize parts on the basis on international competitiveness (price and quality).

The remaining 200 billion won will be furnished in the form of financial support for general business activities. More specifically, the Bank of Korea will rediscount up to 80 percent of the commercial papers presented by enterprises of this category through city banks. Presently, this rate is 70 percent.

The compulsory rate of the loans made to this sector will also be more tightly observed in connection with commercial banks' lending activity. The rate is 35 percent as recommended by the government but remained at 28.9 percent during the first quarter of the year.

In addition, the loan limit has been virtually scrapped to allow businesses of this category to borrow as much facilities fund from the citizens national bank as needed. The present upper limit is 50 million won per business.

On the tax area, meanwhile, the first owner of a newly built house will be given a sizable cut in capital gains tax from the current 15 to 35 percent to a uniform 5 percent. This tax reduction will be in force for a one-year period after the planned revision of the existing law takes effect.

In the case of housing plots of 25.7 pyong or below each (one pyong roughly equals 3.3 square meters), the present 50 percent cut in capital gains tax will be expanded to 100 percent -- thus no capital gains tax at all.

Two local taxes on housing -- registration and acquisition tax -- will be deducted by 30 percent of the tax amount. The current rates are 2 percent (acquisition tax) and 3 percent (registration tax), making a total of 5 percent.

PRASONG DISCUSSES NATIONAL SECURITY PROBLEMS

BK190819 Bangkok SIAM RAT in Thai 26 Apr 82 pp 2, 5

[Interview with Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, secretary general of the National Security Council, given to SIAM RAT reporters Nukun Nuansi and Kasem Atchasai -- date and place not given]

[Excerpt] Question: What are the problems which pose threats to national security at present?

Answer: There are two types of problems -- internal problems and problems coming from outside. Concerning the internal problems, we are faced with fundamental and immediate problems. Examples of the fundamental problems are the economic and social problems we have had for such a long time. They are the problems our population suffers in their living conditions, the safety of their lives and property, education and public health. These are problems which remain for each government to solve. As for the immediate problems, they vary from one government to another. For example, we currently have the problems of border security, refugees, labor and insurgency of various forms. Well, we can call those problems fundamental too, but I prefer not to call them that since we still have time to solve those problems, especially the problem of the CPT. Other forms of insurgency, such as the secessionist movement in the south and the terrorist movements in certain areas of the north constitute our most immediate problems. All of the problems I have mentioned are internal problems we face. They are problems we can deal with, depending on the power of our government and its apparatus and on our laws and law enforcement. It is within our means to control these problems so as to prevent them from blowing up.

Now, regarding the problems from outside, they are beyond our control. They are, for example, the border problem and the oil price problem. These are beyond our control. We must study which of these most threatens our national security. Now, the major problem is the problem of Indochina -- that is, the Kampuchean problem. In my opinion, we must pay special attention to this problem. We must closely follow up developments in this area in order to be able to establish our national security guidelines on the basis of our cooperation with others. This problem poses a serious threat to us and can lead to many other problems. So the greatest threat to us now is an external problem. We can always solve our internal problems using our own machinery and apparatus. It might take us a long time, but it is within our control. Therefore, in my opinion, the problems we have to pay special attention to our external problems.

Question: The government is currently paying special attention to the Indochina problem, more attention than to the forging of ASEAN cooperation. Even you once stated that we seem to have given too much attention to certain issues in the effort to reach a settlement of the Indochina problem, that is, our support for the three Kampuchean factions to set up a coalition government. How much has Thailand been involved in this matter and what progress has been made so far?

Answer: I would like to explain it this way. It is our principle to give special attention to the Indochina problem. Meanwhile, our support for the unification of the three Kampuchean resistance factions is only one political measures among the many other political and economic measures. What I meant when I said that we seemed to have spent too much time and attention on that issue was that I wanted all of us to realize that there are also other measures and options for solving this problem. We have spent a great deal of time on one option and it has produced no results. If we continue to dwell on this measure, we will have no time to think of other options.

[Question]: Do you intend to warn the government about this, as it shows a difference of ideas?

[Answer]: What I said was my personal opinion, nothing else. I spoke on this matter at a meeting of officials who are receiving training. I wanted the trainees to be aware that there exists other ways to aid in solving the matter. Actually, I agreed with the joining of the three Kampuchean factions. ASEAN wants the coalition to materialize and I do too. But I felt that the point is that the Kampucheans must try to join themselves together. They must work toward thus end, then we can help. It is like a cart being stuck in the mud. It is not right for some people to remain on the cart and pray while awaiting for others to come to the rescue. I merely wanted the Kampucheans to really work together to form a coalition — the sooner the better. It is just one of several political measures. The three factions are, however, unable to compromise and, thus, we must let them work it out among themselves.

I merely brought the matter up; I did not intend to sound a warning to anyone. I wanted others to be aware that there are other ways and we should not direct our efforts toward just one solution. As for whether or not the Kampuchean factions could join together, I felt that we must let them work it out. Even if they can join together today, the Vietnamese will not pull out of Kampuchea instantly. We will have to apply other measures as well.

[Question]: Has ASEAN ever entertained an idea of establishing a joint security system? Have we taken any action toward this end?

[Answer]: ASEAN was formed basically for economic and social cooperation. If you meant ASEAN cooperation in political, economic and social areas, that already exists. Military cooperation, however, was not the objective behind the establishment of ASEAN. In any event, such cooperation for the common interest will automatically bring other ASEAN couuntries to the rescue of a member country in time of trouble. Although direct military cooperation does not exist, ASEAN countries have not denied themselves bilateral military cooperation. For example, Thailand and Malaysia have an agreement on border security cooperation and the development of border security. Our troops have held joint training exercises. We have similar cooperation with Indonesia and Singapore. I feel that such cooperation will in itself develop automatically as time passes. At present, if ASEAN should become a military alliance, it will instantly turn into an organization for confrontation with the military alliance of the Indochinese countries — a state of confrontation will have been created.

[Question]: How do you feel about the remark by U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean, which he himself had denied, about the reestablishment of U.S. military bases in Thailand.

[Answer]: I do not know if he actually made that remark; he himself denied it. I feel that there is no need for foreign military bases in Thailand in the current situation. As for Thai-U.S. military cooperation, the United States has affirmed that it is committed to the Manila pact. Therefore, the Manila pact is still valid if a problem should arise in the future. And, if in the course of the implementation of the pact, the military bases are revived, that would be a different situation. In the current situation, however, I feel that there is no need for foreign military bases here. The American people probably do not want to station U.S. forces in other countries now. Actually, I have never talked on this subject anywhere, I have always said I do not have the facts whenver I am asked about this subject by the press.

LAO PILOT DEFECTS IN SOVIET MI-8, SEEKS ASYLUM

[By Anon Bunnak]

[Text] A Laotian helicopter pilot who escaped to Thailand in a Soviet-made helicopter last Sunday has sought political asylum, Ubon Ratchathani Governor Bunchuai Sisarakham told the Bangkok POST last night.

Military sources in Bangkok said the pilot had fled from Pakse to Ubon Ratchathani via Chong Mek in a Soviet MI-8 hilicopter at about 1:30 p.m. last Sunday. He was identified as flying officer Latsami Phimchan. The Bangkok sources would give no further details other than that the defector is being kept in Thai military custody for interrorgation.

Governor Bunchuai said that the pilot, a flying officer, landed the helicopter in Ubon airbase and then asked to see Thai authorities for political ayslum. During the interrogation, the pilot complained of prejudice and pressure from his superiors and said he had not been promoted for the last ten years, Bunchuai said.

Before his flight to Thailand last Sunday, the pilot, believed to be Latsami, was assigned to fly a group of "VIP" Vietnamese military officers from Vientiane to Pakse. On the way, the chopper was refuelled in Savannakhet.

After lunch in Pakse, Governor Bunchuai said, the pilot boarded the helicopter and made a solo flight to the 21st flight wing in Ubon Ratchathani. The flight took about 35 minutes. The governor further said that the Laotian defector was familiar with the terrain in the northeastern region because he had been trained by JUSMAG officials at Udon Thani airbase during the Vietnam war.

THAI ENVOY SAYS COMMUNISTS RETURN FROM PRC

[Text] More than 40 of the Thai people who sought refuge in China since the late 1950's and October 6 bloodbath have already returned to Thailand, Thai Ambassador to China Koson Sinthuwanon said. Koson said they returned to Thailand with the help of the embassy and Chinese authorities.

Speaking to a group of Thai reporters visiting China recently, Koson said most of the former Thai students who went to China after joining the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) were in Kunming. There are nine Thais belonging to five families who had been in China since late 1950's when a military government took over the country, he said. He said most of the former students went to China from Laos and about 19 of them were studying medicine in Shanghai and Shentu. They were former medical students of many universities before they fled the country, he said.

Thai people repatriated from China are normally questioned by government officials before they are allowed to return to the fold here. The number of former Thai students returning from China has been on the rise after they developed serious ideological conflicts with CPT.

GOVERNMENT FORCES CAPTURE MUSLIM INSURGENT BASE

[Text] Yala -- Government combined forces, supported by helicopters, launched a surprise attack on a major stronghold of the Muslim terrorists here Tuesday afternoon and captured it after more than two hours of fierce fighting, a senior police officer reported yesterday. Thirty-five houses, a hospital, a canteen and an arms drilling ground were found in the stronghold which was deserted by the terrorists.

Chief of the provincial police Pol Lt Col Bunphen Bamphenbun said three policemen were wounded in the assault which began at 1 pm Tuesday in a rugged terrain bordering Bannang Sata and Yaha Districts here. He said more than 80 policemen and members of the special operations were employed in the attack on the terrorists' camp.

Helicopters from Kohong army camp in Songkhla were also dispatched to support the ground forces in the assault, he said.

The government forces were split into different groups encircling the terrorists from five different directions, he said. More than 60 Muslim terrorists were inside the area when the attack took place. They all escaped from the scene after two hours of a fierce exchange of gunfire which was believed to have inflicted heavy casualties on the terrorists. However, Pol Lt Col Bunphen said no bodies were found but trails of blood were located. He said the terrorists belonged to the BRN which is one of the splinter movements of Muslim bandits operating in the south. A large quantity of food and medical supplies as well as explosives were also captured from the deserted camp. He said the military offensive was launched in an effort to sweep the terrorists out of the area before the annual provincial fair.

REAGAN'S ARMS REDUCTION PROPOSALS ASSAILED

OW190951 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 18 May 82

[Vuong Thinh commentary]

[Text] The U.S. propaganda apparatus is praising the Washington administration's proposals on limiting nuclear weapons and the arms race. It affirms that these are vigorous proposals of good will and for peace. The United States' natural allies, headed by Mrs Thatcher's administration, have also endeavored to applaud the U.S. Government's initiatives and demanded that the Soviet Union promptly respond to these proposals. What then is the real nature of Washington's proposals and what are the Soviet Union's attitude and stand?

Indeed, in the little over 1 year they have been in power, Mr Reagan and his lieutenants have exerted efforts in paying lipservice to peace and put forth many so-called proposals and plans aimed at limiting the nuclear weapons and arms race between NATO and the Warsaw Pact Organization, mainly between the United States and the Soviet Union. First of all, Mr Reagan approved and sent a representative to Geneva to discuss with the Soviet side the question of disarmament. He also put forth a "zero option" plan aimed at removing Soviet and U.S. intermediate-range missiles in Europe. He expressed the desire for an unofficial meeting with Soviet Chairman Brezhnev to discuss bilateral matters relating to world peace and security.

On 9 May the U.S. President again put forth a proposal that the Soviet Union and the United States carry out a plan for reducing strategic weapons in stages. According to the plan, during the first stage, the current number of ballistic missile warheads should be reduced by one-third. It should be added that in his plan, he deliberately forgot about the U.S. nuclear forces deployed on submarines and planes. On 13 May he held a press conference in which he urged the Soviet Union to accept this so-called important U.S. proposal.

If one does not consider the matter from a historical and overall viewpoint and does not look into the real nature of the matter, one can easily be misled into thinking that the United States has become a kind person who is concerned with serving peace.

Fortunately, Mr Reagan's loud boasts and his administration's proposals were unable to deceive broad public opinion. First of all, it is clear that his proposals and acts stem from obvious passivity and confusion. The public has not forgotten that the U.S. representative went to Geneva to meet with the Soviet side only after the Soviet Union's repeated calls that the United States resume negotiations on disarmament had earlier met with rejection and after the United States had been criticized from many sides by public opinion.

It should also be remembered that Mr Reagan brought forth his "zero option" plan only after the Soviet Union's initiative of proposing that it would stop deploying more SS-20 missiles and stop replacing old-type SS-4 and SS-5 missiles if the United States would not implement its plan of deploying 572 equivalent nuclear missiles in Europe. On 16 March this year Chairman Brezhnev put forth another new initiative at the 17th Congress of Soviet trade unions aimed at limiting the arms race and preventing the danger of world war, emphasizing the Soviet decision to unilaterally postpone the deployment of intermediate range nuclear missiles in the European part of its territory and, during this very year, the reduction of a certain number of these missiles of the international situation improves and if the United States postpones the deployment of Pershing II and cruise missiles in Western Europe.

The fact that the U.S. President on 5 April this year proposed a meeting with Chairman Brezhnev was nothing but a reluctant response, because Chairman Brezhnev, when he made public his famous peace program at the rostrum of the 26th CPSU Congress, had pointed to the need for such summit meetings but with more careful consideration and seriousness than shown by Mr Reagan.

As for the U.S. President's recent proposal for mutual stage-by-stage reduction of strategic arms, with the current number of nuclear ballistic missiles warheads to be reduced by one-third during the first stage, it is nothing but a response to the earlier Soviet proposal for gradually reducing and eventually eliminating all weapons of this type. This Soviet proposal has long been considered by the public as extremely constructive and realistic and has been enthusiastically acclaimed.

The fact is that concern for consolidating international peace and security has been the objective of struggle and unswerving policy of the world socialist community. This policy stems from the nature of socialism which is aimed at creating all conditions for ensuring peaceful life and work for all nations and at satisfying the working people's increasing material and spiritual requirements. History notes that the first decree of the Soviet state — the first socialist state established in the world following the success of the October Revolution — was the decree on peace signed by Vladimir Ilich Lenin, and the appearance and growth of the socialist system since the end of World War II were the factors that ensured a stable historical phase without a world war lasting for the past nearly four decades.

These objectives and this nature of socialism are entirely contrary to those of imperialism, which are exploitation and aggression. In order to satisfy its boundless greed and selfishness, imperialism has not stopped at any maneuver, including war. What is ironic is that precisely a time when the U.S. President is putting forth one "peace" proposal after another and calling for dialogue with the Soviet Union, Western news agencies are openly speaking about the guiding principle and policy of the Reagan administration being to seek confrontation with the Soviet Union and to help the U.S. industrial-military complex. This is what determines the scope and intensity of the arms race being undertaken by the U.S. administration. It is a race of conventional, nuclear as well as chemical and biological weapons and even of the militarization of space.

The vigilant public has not ignored the recent overt statement by Ralph Rooky, spokesman of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, NASA, that the U.S. shuttle spaceship Columbia scheduled to be launched into space on 27 June will for the first time bring along some supersecret military equipment believed to be a kind of laser weapon.

Meanwhile, the United States has stepped up the export of arms to other countries. U.S. sources predict that in 1982 Mr Reagan's administration will set a new record in arms exporting to the tune of $30 billion, surpassing the old record of $17 billion in 1975 under Mr Ford's administration.

It is not difficult to understand why while talking glibly about peace, U.S. Secretary of State Haig has again affirmed the U.S. determination to continue to develop its nuclear force, considering it to be the best way to negotiate fruitfully with the Soviet Union. This is indeed strange reasoning. The Reagan administration has even openly declared scrapping the SALT II Treaty which the Carter administration previously signed with the Soviet Union, a treaty reached after long years of efforts and travels and countless documents. Mr Reagan has seen fit to lightly dismiss this important international commitment made by his predecessor. This cannot but set a bad, a very bad, precedent. No matter what pretext Mr Reagan may resort to, he cannot defend this about-face. Judging from this, one will have every reason to doubt the value of Washington's commitments.

All this shows that the United States' professions about peace are nothing but false and deceitful and its proposals on nuclear weapons disarmament and limiting the arms race are only efforts to cope with the Soviet Union's good will, realistic and serious proposals and to cope with world public opinion, particularly with Western European and U.S. public opinion, which is demanding that the Soviet Union's true peace proposals be positively responded to. It should also be pointed out that the U.S. proposals are fraught with contradiction, distortion of facts, and unrealistic elements that make them unacceptable to the other party of the dialogue. They give the United States a pretext to defend its program of a massive arms race with a view to seizing military superiority over the Soviet-Union.

However, Washington's tricks can deceive no one. Even if the U.S. imperialist hawk tries to put on makeup and imitate the cooing of a dove, it cannot hide its gray feathers, its red eyes and its curved break, and particularly it cannot cover up its predatory nature. The continuous struggles of hundreds of thousands of people in Western European and U.S. cities against the U.S. plan of nuclear armament and arms race and in support of the Soviet peace initiatives have testified to the public's clearsightedness and fairness.

More than ever before, people are clearly realizing that Mr Reagan and his administration are overly inclined toward deceitfulness. So long as he deals with the most important international question of mankind, the question of peace, with an insincere and passive attitude as at present, there can be no positive result. Such attitude and acts run counter to the aspirations and inevitable trend of the world. It can only further aggravate international tension and further increase the danger of war.

Naturally such adventurous plans are without future, because the peace forces, led by the Soviet Union and the mighty socialist system, will never sit idle in face of the irresponsible acts of U.S. imperialism and other warlike forces. Consequently, the war-and-peace and detente-wrecking plots concealed by Washington under its fraudulent peace proposals have been and will continue to be strongly unmasked and condemned.

SITTHI'S TALKS WITH PRC LEADERS CRITICIZED

OW200019 Hanoi International Service in Mandarin 1230 GMT 18 May 82

[Talk on current events: "Deng Xiaoping's Basic Principle Is To Support the Pol Pot Genocidal Clique"]

[Text] Days ago, the Thai foreign minister, Sitthi Sawetsila, attended a grand banquet in Beijing and held talks with Chinese leaders on several occasions. Is there any matter of importance to make the Thai foreign minister go to Beijing to see Huang Hua, Zhao Ziyang, Deng Xiaoping, Sihanouk and others in such a flurried manner?

According to an AFP report from Beijing on 13 May: After holding talks on the Kampuchean issue, the Thai foreign minister and the Chinese leaders refused to disclose contents of the talks. Although the Thai foreign minister intentionally wants to shroud the matter in mystery, the purpose of his mission to Beijing is obvious to all. Besides having discussions with the Beijing authorities on bringing together Sihanouk, Son Sann and the genocidal criminal Pol Pot to from a so-called Kampuchean coalition government, what else can it be?

On 13 May, the Indian news agency quoted Deng Xiaoping's words saying: China supports an early unification of the three patriotic forces in Kampuchea. Deng also said: The tripartite alliance in Kampuchea should be conducive to the strengthening of the struggle against Vietnam and should not weaken the Khmer Rouge forces. Support for Khmer Rouge is the most fundamental and most important principle of China's policy toward Kampuchea, he stressed.

Deng Xiaoping's blunt remarks have enabled even the commoners in China to easily understand that the Deng clique continues to pursue the policy of using the heinous criminals like Pol Pot against the free and independent People's Republic of Kampuchea. This shows that the Chinese leaders only give lipservice to justice. Their deeds show that they are out-and-out swindlers. It has been borne out by facts that, if the Pol Pot clique had not been protected, groomed and armed by Beijing, they would have long ceased to exist.

Beijing's hubbub over the so-called Kampuchean issue is merely aimed at covering up its expansionist hegemonism and acts as a smokescreen to conceal its hostility to the Indochinese people, who treasure their unity and mutual cooperation in advancing towards socialism. No forces can obstruct the steady advance of the Kampuchean revolution. Seeing that Pol Pot is heading for destruction and that the world people are increasingly aware that Democratic Kampuchean exists in name only, Beijing perceives the danger of the illegally seated Khmer Rouge being expelled from the United Nations. Under such circumstances, Beijing speeds up its collusion with U.S. imperialists and energetically employs various means to muster the Khmer reactionary elements to form a triumvirate commanded by Deng Xiaoping in order that they can prolong their feeble life.

In a move to gather together Sihanouk, Son Sann and Pol Pot to form a monstrous coalition government with assistance from Bangkok's ultrarightists, the Chinese authorities make use of the Thai foreign minister's visit to Beijing as a fanfare of propaganda. Unfortunately, the Khmer reactionary cliques, harboring different ulterior motives, intrigue and jostle each other. It is natural that after returning to Bangkok on completion of his China visit, the Thai foreign minister has to admit that there are still many differences between the three parties. Hence, all efforts to form an anti-Vietnamese alliance are doomed to failure.

In particular, this time frame is extended to 30 April 1975 for members of the People's Army and the people's security forces, mobile self-defense and guerrilla forces personnel directly engaged in combat, and assault youths. If they fail to meet this requirement, the persons concerned shall be commended and awarded at one level below the general criteria.

3. Concerning the requirement for noncommitment of serious mistakes:

a) Persons eligible for commendations and awards must be free from serious mistakes during the resistance and until the moment they are considered for commendations and awards.

j) Former participants in the resistance who were forced to join the puppet army and administration but did not do any harm to the resistance and the people, and who were later readmitted into resistance organizations prior to 30 April 1975, shall also be considered for commendations and awards. In such cases, if the break in service does not exceed a year's time, the lengths of both periods of their service shall be added together for determining eligibility. If the break in service exceeds a year's time, only the length of service since their readmission into resistance ranks shall be taken into consideration.

4. The granting of commendations and awards in special cases:

a) For persons who were captured by the enemy but were shown to have upheld the spirit of resistance and not acted as informers or spies for the enemy or to have done anything detrimental to the resistance, the time they spent in captivity shall be considered for length of service in the south.

If they made statements to the enemy, their eligibility for commendations and awards shall be determined on the basis of the impact of their statements on the revolution; and the time they spent in captivity may not be credited toward their length of service. Such cases must be verified by revolutionary organizations at the grassroots level; and the decisions for commendations and awards shall be made by the various ministries and the provincial people's committees.

b) MIA's who have been recognized as fallen heroes shall be considered for commendations and awards as fallen heroes.

c) While applying the set criteria, a shortfall in length of service that is less than 1 month for a medal and less than 2 months for an order may be waived.

For cadres, combatants, workers and civil servants of ethnic minority nationalities and for cadres, workers, civil servants and combatants serving in jungle and mountain areas or on offshore islands, a length of service shortfall of 3 months shall be waived for those with less than 10 years of service; and a length of service shortfall of 6 months shall be waived for those with more than 10 years of service.

d) Persons who participated in the resistance while under the age of 18 shall have their length of service credited for consideration of eligibility for commendations and awards if they were listed in the tables of organizations of their units.

B. Commendations and awards for people with meritorious service to the anti-U.S. national salvation resistance.

The Council of Ministers entrusts the Institute of Decorations with establishing specific criteria for granting commendations and awards to the people in accordance with article 6 of the regulation.

C. Supplemental regulations on criteria for considering commendations and awards in recognition of assistance given to the revolution prior to the August 1945 general uprising and of achievements in the anti-French resistance in the south:

1. Consideration for commendations and awards shall be given only to families and individuals who continued to participate in the anti-U.S. resistance and committed no crimes against the fatherland and the revolution or any other serious crimes.

2. If a person has not been decorated or has been decorated at a lower level for his achievements in the anti-U.S. resistance, he shall, depending on his actual political attitude, be considered for full, reduced or negative commendations and awards for his achievements in helping the revolution and in the anti-French resistance.

3. Full-time and village cadres of the anti-French resistance shall be considered for commendations and awards only if during the anti-U.S. resistance they earned a letter of commendation from the Council of Ministers or any higher forms of decorations. This requirement does not apply to persons whose length of service does not qualify for decorations for achievements in the anti-U.S. resistance but who have committed no serious mistakes, and who either died or were separated from their organizations prior to 30 April 1975.

D. Organizing and directing the granting of commendations and awards:

1. Commendations and awards shall be considered on the basis of the curriculum vitae of each person and his own statement. Those who make false declarations or certify false achievements shall be subjected to disciplinary actions; and the pertinent orders and medals shall be revoked.

The people's committees at all levels are responsible for determining the elligibility for commendations and awards of fallen heroes without waiting for their families to file their claims.

2. The heads of the various ministries and organs and mass organizations at the central level, and chairmen of people's committees of provinces, municipalities and special zones directly subordinate to the central government are responsible for considering and recommending commendations and awards as provided for under article 9 of the regulation; and they are entrusted with making final decisions on proposals for granting the resistance order, third class, and lower decorations.

3. Eligibility for all commendations and awards must be determined no later than 31 December 1984.

The deadline for forwarding proposals for granting commendations and awards to the Council of Ministers is 31 March 1985.

4. A council of decorations shall be set up at grassroots units -- namely, villages, city wards, corporations, enterprises, trading stores, hospitals, schools, state offices and so forth -- to assume the duty of considering and proposing the granting of commendations and awards to people, cadres, workers and civil servants under their jurisdiction. The organization and operation of these councils shall be elaborated by the Institute of Decorations.

5. The granting of commendations and awards in ministries, state commissions and other organizations of the Council of Ministers shall be considered by the organs in charge of cadre organization and proposed to the heads of units for disposition. In the provinces and districts, this task shall be done by the emulation committees for commendations and awards in coordination with the organs in charge of cadre organization and the war invalids and social welfare organs; and their proposals shall be forwarded to the chairmen of the provincial or district people's committees for disposition.

6. The Ministry of National Defense and the Ministry of Interior shall provide specific guidance over the granting of commendations and awards within the People's Armed Forces.

7. The Institute of Decorations is responsible for assisting the Council of Ministers in providing detailed guidance, supervision and control over the granting of commendations and awards.

NHAN DAN EDITORIAL MARKS HO CHI MINH'S BIRTHDAY

BK191531 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 0400 GMT 19 May 82

[NHAN DAN 19 May editorial: "Let Us Live and Struggle as Great Uncle Ho Did"]

[Text] The Vietnamese revolution's history of heroic struggle and glorious victories over the past half century is inseparable from the eternal reputation and performance of venerated and beloved President Ho Chi Minh -- the first Vietnamese patriot to have found in Marxism-Leninism the way to the liberation of his country and people from oppression and exploitation.

President Ho's great deeds were to have found a way to national salvation and to have founded and trained a vanguard party absoutely loyal to the sacred interests of the Vietnamese working class and people — a political party which, advocating patriotism and love for socialism, is staunch and courageous.

Absolutely loyal to the unchallengeable revolutionary doctrine of our times — Marxism-Leninism — President Ho creatively and correctly handled many fundamental and specific problems facing the Vietnamese revolution and helped bring our cause of national liberation to highly glorious, historic victories.

President Ho spent a lot of time building the vanguard brigade of the Vietnamese revolution — namely the glorious Communist Party of Vietnam — and training and cultivating many generations of cadres, from whom many outstanding disciples are now trying to further his cause.

Furthering President Ho's lofty cause, our party brought the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation to total victory, thus concluding the struggle for national salvation, achieving national unification and advancing our entire country toward socialism.

Led by the party, our army and people mounted a heroic resistance, defeating two wars of aggression staged by the Chinese reactionaries and firmly defending the country. They also contributed to liberating Kampuchea, shaping a new situation in which the three independent and free Indochinese countries are advancing toward socialism and becoming an important part of the international system of socialist countries with the Soviet Union serving as the core.

The Fifth VCP Congress asserted: The past 5 years went down in national history as a stage of highly glorious victories for the Vietnamese revolution. Continuing the work of the Fourth VCP Congress, the recent VCP Congress enhanced the socialist revolutionary line with new experiences and defined the tasks and objectives for our country's revolution in the coming stage. Apart from reaffirming the correctness of the party's line and the successes of the revolution, the party frankly analyzed the deficiencies and errors it had committed in its leadership and set forth measures aimed at correcting shortcomings, overcoming difficulties, solving urgent problems facing the economy and the people's livelihood, and taking our socialist revolution forward. These are strong indications of the steadfastness of the party and its sense of responsibility.

With the whole party trying to unite its mind and actions and with the entire people and all of the armed forces trying to close their ranks around the party, we are making every effort to translate the resolutions of the Fifth VPC Congress into revolutionary action.

Various party organizations are preparing a political activity drive to discuss the implementation of the various resolutions of the party, to review their activities and to define the tasks and specific objectives for every grassroots-level organization. All party organizations and sectors are joining hands in directing their activities ar the most important objectives in order to effect a change in the situation.

We must quickly rearrange our workforce, trying to achieve an initial balance for it in order to suit specific conditions we must continue innovative economic management structurally and institutionally in order to, on the one hand, enhance gradually its character of uniformity and integration, while on the other hand, promote the spirit of self-motivation and creativity in every sector, locality and grassroots-level unit in order to exploit most satisfactorily their existing capabilities, meet the urgent and essential needs of the people and ensure the conduct of simple reproduction and the gradual realization of expanded reproduction.

We must restore socialist order to the areas of production, circulation and distribution; strengthen the system of proletarian dictatorship; resolutely carry out the struggle to consolidate production relations; continue to carry out socialist transformation; and resolutely struggle to do away with all forms of exploitation and to better the economic and social life.

We must organize even more satisfactorily the struggle against the multisided war of sabotage staged by the Chinese reactionaries and the imperialists in order to firmly maintain political security and public order and safety and to protect our people's peaceful national contruction.

As the organizer and the leader of the socialist revolution, our party is trying to surge forward in order to meet requirements dictated by its new tasks, which consist of carrying out socialist construction and transformation, establishing the people's collective mastery, simultaneously carrying out the three revolutions, building our country into a prosperous socialist state and bringing about a bountiful and happy life for our people.

The socialist revolution is the most thorough and profound revolution in history. It is, therefore, a most difficult and complex revolution aimed at transforming and building the whole society and the life of every person.

As vanguard fighters of the socialist revolution, we, the communists, must have enough ability and qualities needed to fulfill our mandate.

Our great master struggled hard throughout his life for the fatherland's independence and freedom and for socialism and communism. He set a great and bright example of revolutionary enthusiasm, determination and lifestyle for us to follow. Only with genuine revolutionary qualities can one become a genuine revolutionary. Throughout his revolutionary life, Uncle Ho always advised everyone to cultivate his revolutionary ethics attentively. Revolutionary ethics call for an absolute loyalty to the fatherland, the people and the communist ideal; a determination not to back down in the face of difficulties and hardships; perseverence in the face of all challenges; a simple and pure lifestyle; and persistence in upholding a sense of organization and discipline.

Loyal to President Ho, let everyone among us follow his good example and live and struggle as he did.

[VNA report]

[Text] Almost all cooperatives in the north and the majority of cooperatives and production collectives in the south have applied the product-based contract system in rice and other plant crops to groups of peasants and laboring people.

In the north, the application of the product-based contract system in rice, subsidiary and industrial crops and animal husbandry has become a comprehensive mass movement for peasants and is a moving force for accelerating production and developing achievements in various fields.

Through the application of the product-based contract system, especially for the rice crop, to groups of peasants and laboring people various cooperatives have shown their strong and weak points and found shortcomings and negative phenomena which must be overcome quickly in order to improve the new management system and develop production.

In Hanoi and Haiphong municipalities and Ha Song Binh, Ha Bac, Nhge Tinh, Ha Nam Ninh, Thai Binh, Hai Hung, Binh Phy and Thanh Hoa Provinces, municipal and provincial party committees have issued directives and circulars guiding various sectors, branches and cooperatives to study and grasp firmly the spirit of the VCP Central Committee Secretariat Directive No 100. They are urged to evaluate their achievements correctly, realize their weaknesses and shortcomings and design measures to develop positive aspects and correct shortcomings in each production establishment.

The Hanoi Municipal Party Committee has led districts and cooperatives in organizing the initial implementation of Directive No 100 satisfactorily.

In Ha Bac Province about 700 cooperatives have applied the product-based contract system. The province's party committee has organized study course for provincial and district leading cadres and core cadres of research organs to enable them to understand Directive No 100. It has assigned more than 630 provincial and district cadres to grassroots bases, together with village and cooperative cadres, to review tasks concerning the application of the product-based contract system in each cooperative.

Nghe Tinh Province has organized courses for all core cadres at grassroots units to learn how to formulate plans and production regulations, to increase knowledge of intensive cultivation techniques and of the key contents of the product-based contract system. This will help them to review and evaluate correctly the results in production and in the application of the product-based contract system for the previous crops in order to accelerate production and improve the product-based contract system in the coming 10th-month crop.

[Excerpts] Tokyo, May 20, KYODO -- Austrialian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser flew into Japan Thursday night for talks with Japanese Government leaders.

Fraser, who arrived here from Canada on the third leg of a 10-day trip, is scheduled to meet with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki during his four-day stay.

Fraser, who visited the United States and Canada before coming to Japan, is scheduled to leave Tokyo Sunday.

MITI MINISTER ABE TO ATTEND PARIS SUMMIT

OW210227 Tokyo KYODO in English 0142 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 21, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Friday told Minister of International Trade and Industry Shintaro Abe to accompany him to the Versailles summit of seven industrial nations in June.

Government officials said Abe was added to the list of delegates to the summit because trade and advanced technology cooperation are expected to be discussed.

Japan has so far sent only the foreign and finance ministers to the summits, except for those held in Tokyo in 1979 and in Venice, Italy, in 1980, when the then trade minister attended.

The Versailles summit, the eighth of the series, will be attended by leaders from the United States, Japan, Britain, France, West Germany, Italy and Canada.

OIL, GAS EXPLORATION AGREEMENT SIGNED WITH PRC

OW200039 Tokyo KYODO in English 0009 20 May 82

[Text] Beijing, May 20, KYODO -- The Japan National Oil Corporation [JNOC] and the Chinese Ministry of Geology and Minerals signed an agreement here Wednesday on joint survey and exploration of petroleum and natural gas resources in the northern part of the Ordos Basin in the Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region.

The agreement was signed between Akira Watari, visiting vice president of the JNOC, and Xia Guozhi, vice minister of the Geology and Minerals Ministry, in a ceremony at the Great Hall of the People.

Up to now, China had made it a principle to conduct joint exploration of oil and gas resources with foreign enterprises in offshore areas but to engage in such undertakings on its own in interior regions without outside help.

Other than in the period immediately after the birth of new China, this will be the first time that a joint project will be conducted with a foreign country for exploration of oil and gas resources in the continental area.

Watari told newsmen after the signing ceremony that the joint exploration project will be conducted for oil and natural gas in the northern part of the Ordos region. He added the project will involve a survey of the geological structure in the region.

The project will be undertaken by Japan under the overseas geological survey budget. A total of yen 2.8 billion has been set aside in the budget for fiscal 1982. The Japanese side is expected to spend between yen 500 million andyen 1 billion annually over the next five years, or a total of some yen 5 billion.

The Ordos Basin is located in a desert area near the China-Mongolia border. It is reported to be a promising area for oil and natural gas resources.

The XINHUA NEWS AGENCY reported that the agreement concluded on Wednesday calls for the project to be undertaken from this month and completed in five years.

SOVIET ENVOY CALLS ON LDP SECRETARY GENERAL

OW201215 Tokyo KYODO in English 1210 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 20, KYODO -- Soviet Ambassador to Japan Vladimir Y. Pavlov Thursday said his country would promote a movement for peace and prohibition of nuclear arms.

The ambassador, who took up the Tokyo post in mid-April, made the statement when he called on Susumu Nikaido, secretary-general of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party.

Nikaido told the envoy that the Soviet Union should show its antinuclear stance not by words but by actions.

The LDP leader also referred to the Soviet military actions in Afghanistan and to Soviet military facilities on the northern islands, facing Hokkaido, which Japan claims as its territory.

LDP TO HOLD PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION 25 NOV

OW200809 Tokyo KYODO in English 0656 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 20, KYODO -- The ruling Liberal-Democratic Party said Thursday that it will hold its convention on November 25 to conduct its presidential election.

The LDP president is assured of becoming prime minister as the ruling party holds simple majorities in both houses of the Diet, in which he will be put up for the premiership election.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's current term as president of the party will expire on November 26.

On the basis of a decision made by the LDP presidential election management committee, the party said preliminary election will be held on October 16 with its 1.17 million members and 80,000 associate members casting their ballots. The preliminary election will be held in case there are more than four candidates.

BANK HEAD: NO INTEREST POLICY CHANGE PLANNED

OW190853 Tokyo KYODO in English 0800 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 19, KYODO -- Japan has no plan to change its current interest rate policy to prop up the faltering economy, Bank of Japan Gov. Haruo Maekawa said Wednesday.

He said his recent talks with American and European monetary policymakers revealed their strong interest in the yen's low value and Japan's "policy mix," a combination of fiscal and monetary policies.

Maekawa said he explained the reasons why Japan has taken such policies and why the yen stands as it does. "The fact is," he said, "Japan and other countries have few policy alternatives."

The central bank leader met with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Tuesday to brief him on a recent International Monetary Fund meeting in Helsinki and talks he had with his U.S. and European counterparts at the Bank for International Settlements in Basel.

Despite the foreign criticism of the low value of the Japanese currency, Maekawa said, "other industrial countries did not make any specific request" for steps to change the situation.

They apparently do not understand why the yen's rate remains low in light of Japan's stable inflation rate and good balance of payments performance.

He said he is not opposed to a plan to hold trilateral negotiations among the United States, Western Europe and Japan on currency stabilization, but he did not elaborate.

He predicted that America's high interest rates will not go down quickly while a debate on ways to reduce the huge budgetary deficits between the Congress and the administration goes on.

LABOR LEADER DENIES END TO 'SPRING OFFENSIVES'

OW210201 Tokyo KYODO in English 0133 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 21, KYODO -- Motofumi Makieda, chairman of the General Council of Trade Unions of Japan (Sohyo), said Friday labor has no plans to discontinue the present system of conducting a struggle every spring to secure wage increases.

He told a councillors meeting of Sohyo, Japan's largest labor organization, that the "spring labor offensive" sponsored annually by Sohyo and the Federation of Independent Unions (Churitsuroren) is a struggle aimed at protecting and improving the rights and livelihood of the workers.

The chairman was referring to speculation expressed in some quarters that this year signaled the end of the spring labor offensive system in view of the fact that transport strikes were conducted by neither the Japanese National Railways nor private railway workers last spring. Makieda refuted such speculation as "irresponsible" and declared labor will wage a struggle again next spring to demand drastic tax cuts and an increase in wages. He also called for a restructuring of the spring wage offensive system, which has been in force since 1955.

Makieda criticized the recent recommendation of the fourth committee of the second ad hoc administrative reform council which called for eventual transfer of the Japanese National Railways, the Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Public Corporation and the Japan Tobacco and Salt Public Corporation to private management. He said such a move reflects the true intention of business circles to seek profit by transferring the corporations to private management and is aimed at restraining activities of workers and labor unions.

Sohyo held the meeting on Friday to review results of this year's spring labor offensive.

FOREIGN MINISTRY MEMORANDUM ON KOREA-U.S. TIES

SK210150 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1200 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] of DPRK Foreign Ministry memorandum released on 20 May]

[Text] The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets are staging a farce to embellish the history of 100 years following the conclusion of the Korean-U.S. treaty as a history of friendship and cooperation. This is a most shameless fabrication of history and an intolerable insult to the Korean people, who, in surging indignation, condemn the fraudulent act of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets fabricating the 100-year history of Korea-U.S. relations.

History bears out the fact that the Korea-U.S. treaty is a nation-selling document which paved the way for the U.S. imperialists to invade Korea and is a birgandish document of aggression which has imposed untold unhappiness and suffering on the Korean people. The 100-year history of Korea-U.S. relations since the conclusion of the treaty has been a bloody period marked by incidents of aggression, marauding and homocide committed by the U.S. imperialists and a bitter history of shame and suffering for the Korean people.

The DPRK Foreign Ministry issues this memorandum, recognizing it as necessary to disclose the aggressive and subjugating nature of the Korea-U.S. treaty and expose to the world the acts of aggression by the U.S. imperialists and acts of treachery by the South Korean puppets.

The Korea-U.S. treaty -- aggressive, subjugating and unequal.

The Korea-U.S. treaty was concluded by the U.S. ruling quarters and the feudal rulers of Korea 100 years ago, on 22 May 1882. It was clearly an aggressive, subjugating and unequal one which the U.S. aggressors devised by appeasing and fooling the corrupt and incompetent rulers of Korea at that time under the hypocritical slogan of peace and friendship and was a product of the U.S. policy of invading and dominating Korea.

The background of the conclusion of the treaty and its contents fully show its aggressive and subjugating nature. The U.S. ruling quarters, which had long coveted the natural resources of Korea and its strategic location, had dreamed of occupying Korea and turning it into a strategic base for means of aggression on the continent. U.S. imperialism, which had grown fat as a consequence of its continuous aggression and raiding of small and weak peoples, had spread, by the middle of the 19th century, its hands of aggression beyond the Western Hemisphere across the world as a whole, including Asia. Having extended their territory up to the Pacific coast by taking the vast lands in the west away from Mexico in a brigandish war of aggression, the U.S. imperialists accelerated their aggressive campaign against the Orient on a full-fledged scale.

From the very moment it set foot in the Oreitn, chersihing covetous amibitions of having in its hands the vast Asian Continent, U.S. imperialism cast a watchful eye of aggression toward Korea, a military vantage point. An American named T. Dennet writes in his book: From some 30 years before the 1898 U.S.-Spain war, there were men, particularly among naval authorities, who thought that the United States should possess even naval bases in the Far East. In this context, Korean ports were often talked about. (T. Dennet), "Roosevelt and the Russo-Japan War," New York, 1925, p. 108)

The U.S. aggressors calculated that they could easily put feudal Korea in their hands. However, this was a gross miscalculation. Their aggressive attempt to bring the Korean people to their knees with the threat of shelling from a warship could not avoid a shameful defeat at its first step. In 1866 the U.S. priate ship "General Sherman" -- which, without getting the Korean Government's approval to enter the country, sailed up the Taedong River and carried out acts of espionage and marauding -- was sunk by courageous, resistant Korean people.

Taking the incident as a pretext, the United States, in May 1871, provoked a war of aggression by infiltrating into the sea off Korea's Kanghwa Island 5 warships armed with 80 guns and carrying 1,230 troops. However, due to a stubborn counterattack by Korean soldiers, the U.S. aggressors were dealt a severe blow and, shamefully, only had to flee.

Thus, the U.S. imperialists realized that they could not make Korea give in by threatening it with arms. Changing their tactics from gunboat to smiling diplomacy, the U.S. aggressors resorted to a more cunning method. While pretending to be the friends of the Korean people in an attempt to achieve their aggressive goal against Korea, the U.S. aggressors adopted a roundabout method by employing Japan as a guide. In 1880, the U.S. aggressors had the Japanese Government force the Korean feudalistic government to sign a Korea-U.S. treaty. They failed in this attempt. Later, cleverly taking advantage of the situation in which the Japanese imperialists' aggression against Korea became intensified with each passing day, greatly threatening the Korean feudalistic ruling bunch, U.S. ruling circles, deceiving the Korean feudalistic ruling bunch with a soft and seductive promise that they would protect Korea from Japanese aggression, forced them to accept the proposal for signing a subservient Korea-U.S. treaty. The Korea-U.S. treaty, which was signed in a cajoling, deceptive and fraudulent manner, was an aggressive treaty paving a way for aggression against Korea for the U.S. imperialists. It was a subservient, unequal treaty forcing the feudalistic Korean Government and people to perform a subservient role while giving a piratic right to the U.S. imperialists. Articles 2, 3, and 6 in the Korea-U.S. treaty prescribe that Korean ports should be kept open to the United States, that Americans can freely buy land and houses, and live and carry out commercial activities in these ports. Randomly visiting ports, including Pusan and Wonsan, which Japan had already opened, the U.S. imperialist aggressors exploited and plundered the Korean people.

The aggressive and unequal nature of the Korea-U.S. treaty was intensively reflected in the fact that this treaty included piratic articles of extraterritorial rights limiting or ignoring the sovereignty of the Korean feudalistic government. Article 4 of the treaty prescribes that those Americans who insult Koreans in Korea or cause damage to the lives and property of the latter will be punished not by Korean laws but by U.S. laws by yielding these Americans to the U.S. consul or to U.S. Government officials staying in Korea. This article also prescribes that those Koreans who cause damage to the houses and property of Americans will be immediately arrested and severely punished by the Korean Government through the mobilization of army troops. How piratic this logic is! This means that the Korean Government is only obliged to protect the lives and property of Americans and that it has no rights whatsoever to punish U.S. criminals. It is the publicly recognized rule of international law that all foreigners should abide by the laws and orders of the countries where they stay and that when they violate these laws and orders, they should be punished under the laws of these countries. Nevertheless, the U.S. aggressors allowed those Americans who had committed crimes in Korea to be punished not by Korean laws but by U.S. laws. As a result, Americans acted tyranically in Korea. This shows the brazen and piratic nature of the U.S. imperialists. The subservient and unequal nature of the Korea-U.S. treaty was clearly reflected in the article on most-favored-nation treatment. The U.S. imperialists included in article 14 of the treaty a provision that the Korean Government should unconditionally give U.S. Government officials and Americans the same benefit that the former gives other countries and other foreign merchants. Thus the Korea-U.S. treaty was an aggressive one paving the road toward aggression against Korea by the U.S. imperialists and an unequal and subservient one violently violating the sovereignty of the Korean people.

The aggressive nature of the treaty was well reflected in the report from U.S. diplomatic representative Young in China to the U.S. secretary of state, saying he believed the treaty was very important in order for the United States to put its footprint in Korea and to let Korea open its doors and that the treaty was conducive to expanding U.S. influence in Asia, using Korea as a springboard -- from page 172, U.S. diplomatic document dated 1882.

No matter how eagerly the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets may try to define this aggressive treaty as a friendly one, they cannot conceal historic facts. The U.S. imperialists are not patrons and aid givers but aggressors, plunderers and killers.

The history of the past 50 years in Korea is that of the U.S. imperialist's blood-stained aggression and murder. Today, those who distort history are playing a fraudulent, tricky political propaganda game to change the history of the U.S. imperialists' aggression against and plunder of Korea over 100 years into that of friendship and cooperation. Designating a week in recognition of the centennial of Korea-U.S. relations, U.S. President Reagan on 10 May brazenly tried to change the history of aggression by saying that the Korea-U.S. treaty has added a new chapter to the history of the relations of equal standing between South Korea and the United Snates and that he was proud of Americans' role in the history of South Korea. Prior to this, crawling into South Korea and saying to puppet bosses that he hoped to have a dinner party 100 years later to guarantee South Korea-U.S. relations for 100 years thereafter, U.S. Vice President Bush made absurd remarks highly praising the centennial of Korea-U.S. relations strewn with the U.S. imperialists' aggression, plunder and murder. However, no matter what beautiful words they may use, they cannot conceal the U.S. imperialists' blood-stained crime of aggression against Korea.

Immediately after signing the aggressive and unequal treaty by deceiving the corrupt and incompetent Korean feudalistic ruling bunch, the U.S. aggressors, pretending to be patrons and aid givers, began opening the road toward aggression against Korea by claiming the rights established in the treaty. The U.S. aggressors, who had not completed military preparations for exercising monopolistic domination over Korea at that time by surpassing their rivals, has the Japanese imperialists check infiltration into Korea by other major powers and tried to share influence with Japan. Abandoning the slogan of protecting Korea, which they had advocated when signing the Korea-U.S. treaty and brazenly engaging in intrigue and collusion with the Japanese imperialists, the U.S. imperialists wickedly and cunningly suppressed the patriotic anti-Japanese struggle of the Korean people and actively supported the Japanese imperialists' aggression against Korea. Reading the draft of the peace treaty prepared by the Japanese imperialists which the Japanese diplomatic representative in Washington had submitted to him, U.S. President Theodore Roosevelt approved Japan's inclusion into the peace treaty the provision on its right to rule in Korea -- pages 380, 381, volume I, "Theodore Roosevelt and his Era."

In July 1905, the U.S. Government sent Secretary of the Army Taft to Japan and had him sign a secret agreement with Japanese Prime Minister Katsura. In return for U.S. recognition of Japan's establishment of the right for colonial domination over Korea following the Russo-Japanese War, the United States, in this secret agreement, guaranteed that Japan would recognize the U.S. imperialists' economic interests in Korea and their right to rule in the Philippines. Thus the U.S. imperialists supported, ahead of other major powers, the Japanese imperialists' coercive signing of the Ulsa Protection Treaty in November 1905 and their degrading of Korea into Japan's actual colony. Article 1 of the Korea-U.S. treaty prescribes that if a third country commits an unjust act against one of the signatories of the treaty its counterpart will offer aid to assist it in smoothly settling the dispute. Thus the feudalistic Korean Government asked the U.S. Government to offer aid to nullify the Ulsa Protection Treaty which the Jpaanese imperialists forced the former to sign. However, U.S. Secretary of State Root refused this request by saying that it was difficult for the United States to abide by the Korea-U.S. treaty because the Korean Government had placed itself under the Japanese Government's protection -- from pages 673 to 675, part 1, volume 38, Japanese Diplomatic Documents.

When the secret envoy of the king of Korea visited U.S. rulers to beg for nullification of the Ulsa Protection Treaty, they turned him away at the door, saying that they were not in a position to recognize the treaty and that the Korea-U.S. treaty had already been nullified. They unhesitatingly committed the wicked act of withdrawing their diplomatic representative from Seoul ahead of others. It is ludicrous that after supporting the Japanese imperialists' aggression against Korea by abandoning the Korea-U.S. treaty which the U.S. imperialists forced their counterpart to sign, they babbled about friendship by pulling out this historic trash.

The aggressive nature of the U.S. imperialists trying to make the Korean people suffer colonial slavery, wearing the mask of peace and friendship, was revealed more brazenly after World War II. Landing in South Korea in September 1945 wearing the mask of a liberator, the U.S. imperialist aggressors designated South Korea as a military occupation zone, maintained a military rule there and brazenly posed as a colonial ruler by seizing power. In decree 1, killer General MacArthur said: In my capacity as commander of the U.S. Army in the Pacific region, I establish a military government in the area south of 38 Degrees North Latitude in Korea for the residents in this area; accordingly, I issue the following decree that the residents should abide by: All administrative power will be exercised for the time being under my authority for the area south of 38 Degrees North Latitude in Korea and for the residents in this area. The residents should immediately follow the order issued by me and under my authority. Those who oppose the occupying army and who disturb order and security will be severely punished. During the period of military government, English will be used as an official language.

The aim of the deployment of U.S. forces in South Korea was originally to disarm the Japanese aggressive forces in the area south of 38 degrees north latitude in Korea. There was no ground whatsoever for establishing a military government in liberated South Korea. However, the U.S. imperialists took advantage of the deployment of their troops in South Korea in fulfilling their wild desire for domination over Korea -- a desire which they have cherished for 100 years.

The U.S. imperialists were not satisfied with the act of occupying South Korea and placing it under their domination. Their aim was to swallow not half of Korea but all of it. To achieve this end, the U.S. imperialists provoked a piratic aggressive war in Korea. This abominable act of provoking the Korean aggressive war added a most brazen and criminal chapter to the 100-year history of the U.S. imperialists' aggression against Korea. To make the Korean people give in, the U.S. imperialists have committed the most barbarous, hostile act, unprecedented in the history of war. However, no matter what method they used, they failed to make the Korean people give in. They suffered a disgraceful defeat, confronting the heroic struggle of the Korean people. Instead of learning a lesson, the U.S. imperialists clung to maneuvers for aggression and war against the Korean people during the postwar period by remaining in South Korea.

In August 1953, the U.S. imperialists tried to justify the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. troops by fabricating "the ROK-U.S. mutual defense treaty" -- the replica of the Korea-U.S. treaty. They have positively accelerated preparations for a new war to wage aggression in Korea.

The war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists are reaching an ominous stage, particularly today. The Reagan administration is using violent language, saying that the Korean Peninsula is vitally important to the interests of the United States, like Europe and the Middle and Near East, and that the administration is willing to use arms to protect the peninsula.

Furthermore, while openly clamoring that they will not rule out the use of nuclear arms in Korea in a contingency, they are scheming to introduce neutron bombs and theater-based nuclear missiles in South Korea. They are bringing the situation to the brink of war [chongjaeng chopyong] while heightening tension. The grave crimes committed by the U.S. imperialists in Korea are that they have divided a united nation, which had a long history and culture, and are desperately opposing the country's reunification which the Korean people so ardently aspire.

Adopting a plot for two Koreas as their basic policy against Korea, the U.S. imperialists, who suffered a shameful defeat in the aggressive war in Korea, have obstructed Korea's reunification in every way. Due to the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers to perpetuate national division, none of the hundreds of reasonable, nation-saving proposals set forth by the DPRK Government to resolve the question of the country's reunification independently on the principle of democracy and in a peaceful manner has been realized. The Korean people have been suffering intolerable misfortunes owing to national division, which has lasted until today -- nearly 40 years after liberation. The 100-year history of the U.S. imperialists in Korea has been one of aggression and crimes blocking Korea's reunification and having the Korean people suffer the misfortune of national division.

History also shows that the U.S. imperialists have been the most avaricious plunderers in Korea and truculent murderers of the Korean people. Through the Korea-U.S. treaty, the U.S. ruling circles wrested numerous privileges, including free trade rights, the right to a low customs tariff, consular jurisdiction, extraterritorial rights and most-favored-nation status. They began to reduce Korea to a market for U.S. monopoly capital, the source of raw materials and a place for their capital investments.

According to the Korea-U.S. treaty, the U.S. aggressors robbed the feudalistic Korean Government of their economic privileges. As a price for their support of the Japanese imperialists' occupation of Korea, the U.S. imperialists received the Japanese imperialists' protection for economic privilege in Korea and plundered the economy with the support of the Japanese imperialists.

While selling surplus good, such as petroleum, tobacco and sugar at a high price, the U.S. imperialists plundered precious metals, including gold and silver during the period from 1909 to 1920. They looted 80 percent of the gold and silver in Korea from four mines alone -- the Unsan, Suan, Changsong and Chiksan mines.

Morevoer, the U.S. imperialists did not hesitate to commit a barbarous act against God and man by selling several thousand Korean people under the pretext of emigration by organizing a slave trade agency called the Continental Development Company. Since World War II, the U.S. imperialists have taken control of and looted about 85 percent of the South Korean economy under the pretext of the so-called enemy property administration by using their military occupation system in South Korea. They have turned South Korea into a market for their commodities and the colonial supply base for their raw materials.

After the war, the U.S. imperialists fabricated every kind of aggressive treaty and agreements, including the ROK-U.S. joint economic committee agreement on economic reconstruction and the plan for financial stabilization and the ROK-U.S. Treaty on Friendship, Trade and Navigation, consolidating their control of the South Korean economy. They have subordinated the South Korean economy by selling their surplus goods to South Korea at a monopolistic, high price on the pretext of aid.

The amount which the U.S. imperialists have looted from South Korea since liberation through capital investments, disparate trade exchanges and the transfer of the expenses for maintaining the U.S. troops is as high as $120 billion. It is not by chance that South Korea publications, describing the U.S. imperialists' aid as that of giving medicine to someone after causing him to suffer a disease, deplore the fact that South Korea suffers a little more each time the U.S. imperialists' aid comes in.

The U.S. imperialists have subordinated South Korea economically, plundering raw materials. They have committed barbarous acts of murder against many innocent South Korean people since they first invaded Korea. The U.S. imperialists aggressors are descendants of the Yankees who annihilated the native Indians in America in the last half of the 18th century and have led their lives by slave-trading and piracy. They have posed as the colonial tyrants in South Korea, causing numerous suffering and distress to the Korean people. Wherever the U.S. imperialists aggressors go, the innocent residents shed blood. Wherever their shadow is cast, the people are always seized with uneasiness and fear. It is incalculable how many Korean people have been disgraced and unjustly killed by the U.S. imperialist aggressors.

In 1925, an American named (Posmo), who sneaked into Sunan County, South Pyongan Province under the guise of a missionary, committed a barbarous act against God and man by letting a dog bite a 12-year old boy and writing the word "thief" on the boy's forehead with acid because the boy picked up a piece of an apple on the roadside by an orchard. This is one of the typical examples of the many despotic acts committed by the U.S. imperialists aggressors who sneaked into Korea while crying out for philanthropy and equality since the conclusion of the Korea-U.S. treaty.

Truly beyond human imagination was the human butchery committed by the U.S. imperialist aggressors who sneaked into South Korea under the guise of liberators after World War II.

During the 10 months after April 1948, the U.S. imperialist aggression forces in South Korea murdered about 35,000 innocent residents in Chejudo alone. They had mercilessly murdered 70,000 residents, a quarter of the population of Chejudo, by 1950. In 1949, the U.S. imperialist aggressors murdered as many as 103,000 patriots and innocent people all over South Korea.

The bestial nature of the U.S. imperialist aggressors was more fully disclosed during the Korean war. Walker, then commander of the U.S. 8th Army, told the U.S. troops: Kill indiscriminately! Don't let your hands tremble even if what appears before you are kids and old men! You must kill as many Koreans as possible to fulfill the duty of the U.S. citizens!

According to this order, the U.S. imperialist aggressors committed the atrocity of killing everywhere, which will never be forgiven through eternity. On 15 September, 1951, UPI reported that the U.S. imperialist aggressors, while retreating south because of the counterattack by the KPA, killed as many as a million residents in South Korea.

During the period of the temporary occupation of the area of the northern half of the republic, the U.S. imperialist aggressors committed the cruelest atrocity of human massacre, unprecedented in the history of the world. During the period of the 45-day temporary occupation, in Sunchon County alone, the U.S. imperialist aggressors killed in a bestial way 35,383 residents, 25 percent of the residents of the county.

Eveywhere they went, the U.S. imperialist aggressors killed innocent residents by shooting, beating, strangling and burying them alive. They gouged out eyes, cut off breasts, peeled off skin, cut lips, cut out tongues, mutilated, boiled, burned and crushed by tanks to kill people. They, indeed, committed the atrocity of cruelest massacre which horrifies the people.

An investigation team of the WIDF which made a visit to Korea during the war, denouncing the criminal atrocity of the U.S. imperialist aggressors, said in its report on 28 May 1951: The massacre and mass tortures committed by the troops of the United States and Syngman Rhee in the areas they temporarily occupied were much worse than the massacre and tortures committed in the European areas temporarily occupied by the Nazis of Hitler.

Even in the postwar period in South Korea, the U.S. imperialist aggressive troops continued violence, murder, rape, plundering and all other kinds of atrocities against the peaceful residents.

Among the atrocities which the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces committed following the war in South Korea, the shooting to death of a child who was playing in the fields, the shooting to death of a peasant who was getting firewood, the incident where they made a bestial assault on women, raped them, cropped their hair, painted their breasts and the lower half of their bodies yellow and drove them out on the street, the incident where they pulled out the fingernails and toenails of a boy with pincers, put him in a box and discarded it, and the Paju incident where hundreds of them made an assault on peaceful residents like wolves and plundered their property -- all these fiendish atrocities are indescribable and unbearable and still arouse the burning indignation of the South Korean people and the world's people.

The atrocities which the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces committed in South Korea since 1975 total nearly 10,000 cases. These are ones made public. As victims of the atrocities, tens of thousands of people died.

In particular, the bestial and wicked nature of the U.S. imperialists was completely disclosed during the Kwangju mass massacre in May 1980. Under the active instigation and direct command of the U.S. imperialist aggressors, in Kwangju in but a few days, 5,000 innocent citizens were killed and about 14,000 people were injured. Thus, all of Kwangju was stained with the blood of the patriotic people who demanded freedom and democracy.

Historical records since the conclusion of the Korea-U.S. treaty show that the U.S. imperialists are by no means a protector and supporter of the Korean people but a most wicked aggressor, plunderer and murderer. Depending on foreign forces is a way leading the nation to downfall, and only patriotism is the genuine way for the nation:

The history of the past 100 years since the conclusion of the Korea-U.S. treaty gives a serious lesson that without the elimination of the traitors depending on foreign forces or flattering and being servile to them, the dignity, prestige and sovereignty of the nation cannot be defended, nor can people be freed from the fate of colonial slavery.

The shamful history which was faced by our people 100 years ago is being repeated in South Korea. Clamoring that the conclusion of the Korea-U.S. treaty was the beginning of the full-scale friendly relations and has been the historic source of the ROK-U.S. friendship, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has set this year, which marks the centennial of the conclusion of the treaty, as a year of ROK-U.S. friendship and is wasting a tremendous amount of money in holding all kinds of events designed to laud the aggression and plundering by the U.S. imperialists, and is even scheming to erect a Korea-U.S. treaty monument.

To please his masters, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is describing the atrocities and outrageous acts which the U.S. imperialists have committed in South Korea ever since the liberation as good deeds and embellishing all U.S. imperialist crimes against the Korean people as acts of goodwill and friendship. Even the former South Korean rulers who left a stain on history by their nation-selling and treacherous acts did not dare to concoct a history like traitor Chon Tu-hwan. The farce of traitor Chon Tu-hwan is an unbearable insult to those patriots who sacrificed their lives in the struggle for the independence and liberty of the nation and against the aggression and nation-selling and an intolerable challenge to the Korean people who value national prestige and sovereignty.

If one has a bit of Korean conscience and shares the blood of the Korean people, he can never uphold the enemy of the nation as an ally. Only the flunkeyist traitor who commits any crime to win the favor of the masters insists on describing what is black as white and lauds the enemy as a friend. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a faithful stooge who has been picked up and tamed by the U.S. imperialists for a long time and a nation-seller whose body is filled with pro-U.S. ideas.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan himself openly clamors· I will not overlook words against the United States. It is a well-known fact that, betraying the nation and becoming a stooge of the U.S. imperialist about 20 years ago, traitor Chon Tu-hwan again pledged not to forget the support of the United States, even after he is dead and turned into ashes.

Since he is a traitor, during the Kwangju incident he committed the vicious atrocity of killing compatriots who had turned out demanding democratic freedom and rights with tanks, guns and swords offered by the U.S. imperialist, fiendish murderers.

The nature of traitor Chon Tu-hwan as a nation-seller was more fully disclosed during his junket to the United States during late January to early February last year. By visiting the aggressor, he begged for the cancellation of the plan to withdraw the U.S. troops from South Korea and their permanent presence.

At a time when numerous world nations oppose the domination and subjugation by the imperialists and take the road of independence, only a nation-selling traitor like Chon Tu-hwan is begging for the continued presence of the forign troops in South Korea. The ugly nature of traitor Chon Tu-hwan as a nation-seller is being clearly disclosed through the atrocious repression of the South Korean youths, students and people, which is staged in the wake of the recent arson at the Pusan U.S. Cultural Center.

On 18 March, South Korean youths and students set fire to the Pusan U.S. Cultural Center -- one of the important bases of the ideological and cultural infiltration of the U.S. imperialists -- and shouted "The United States, leave!" and "We denounce the neocolonialism of the U.S. imperialists." This was an eruption of the indignation against the U.S. imperialist aggressors that has accumulated in the hearts of the South Korean people, youths and students over a long period of time and was a just and patriotic struggle to establish a new independent society and a new democratic world in South Korea without the aggressors and the traitors.

Nevertheless, traitor Chon Tu-hwan insulted the just struggle of the South Korean youths, students and people by branding it as violence leading the nation to downfall and as a rash act. He shamefully apologized to the U.S. masters and committed an atrocity of arresting and penalizing thousands of youths, students and people.

All the facts clearly show that traitor Chon Tu-hwan is, indeed, a most faithful stooge of the U.S. imperialist aggressors and a betrayer of the nation and an ugly flunkeyist nation-seller who far surpasses the former traitors. The traitor Chon Tu-hwan's shameless concoction of history and his unhesitating nation-selling acts are for the purpose of winning the trust of the U.S. masters and realizing ambition for long-term office. However, this is nothing but a useless dream.

It is the firm will of the Korean people to end the aggression and interference of outside forces, to overthrow the traitors and to establish a reunified, independent, prestigious and sovereign state. This agrees with the trend of the times in which people oppose domination and subjugation of all forms and take the road of independence. The events marking the centennial of the conclusion of the Korea-U.S. treaty being staged by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets and their gibberish about friendship, good-will and cooperation are aimed at promoting the pro-U.S. flunkeyist ideas among South Korean people, placating their anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan sentiment, perpetuating the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists, and making it easy to continue the brigandish acts of aggression and nation-selling.

As long as the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces remain in South Korea and the U.S. imperialist policy against Korea continues, the national sovereignty of the Korean people, the unified development of the nation, and peace in Korea are unthinkable.

The South Korean people's struggle to expel from South Korea the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces trampling the national sovereignty and obstructing the reunification of the country and to overthrow the group against the nation, which is flattering and being servile to the foreign force and persisting in the nation-selling acts, is a just and patriotic struggle for democracy and reunification.

All who love the country and the nation must firmly unite under the banner of the anti-U.S. national salvation and the independent reunification and turn out as one in the pan-national struggle against the U.S. imperialists and the nation-selling traitors.

The South Korean people must firmly oppose the pro-U.S. flunkeyist ideas and the ideas of depending on foreign forces which lead the nation to downfall, have a sense of national independence and must not be deceived by the U.S. imperialists' and the pro-U.S. stooges' sugar-coated gibberish about goodwill, protection and cooperation. They must smash their deceptive maneuvers.

The just struggle of the South Korean youths, students and people waged to expel the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces from South Korea, to end the fascist military rule of the nation-selling traitor puppet Chon Tu-hwan and to achieve the democratization of society and the reunification of the fatherland will be victorious with the support and encouragement of the Korean people and the world's peace-loving people.

The reunification of the divided fatherland is an urgent task of the Korean people to achieve national sovereignty and cannot be delayed any longer. To settle the question of Korean reunification independently by the Korean people themselves, the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces must be withdrawn from South Korea, and the U.S. imperialists' interference in the internal affairs of Korea must be ended.

The most realistic and rational way to achieve the reunification of Korea independently and peacefully is to establish the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo. The Korean people's struggle to achieve the reunification of the fatherland by expelling the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces from South Korea and establishing the DCRK is winning the absolute support of the peace-loving people of the world.

The U.S. imperialists must squarely look at reality, abandon schemes for two Koreas and the anachronistic policy for the occupation of South Korea, take off the cap of the U.N. forces in accordance with the U.N. resolution and immediately withdraw from South Korea, along with their aggressive forces and lethal weapons.

At the same time, the U.S. imperialists must stop the criminal act of instigating traitor Chon Tu-hwan to division, fascism, confrontation and war and take their hands of aggression and interference off Korea.

If traitor Chon Tu-hwan, running counter to the desire of the people, persists in depending on foreign forces and nation-selling acts and seeking fascism and division, confrontation and war, this will accelerate his self-destruction. This is an ever-lasting truth proved by history.

The DPRK Government expresses the firm belief that the Korean people's just struggle to withdraw the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces from South Korea and to achieve the complete sovereignty of the nation and the country's peaceful reunification will win the active support and sympathy of the governments and peoples of the countries of the world who value peace, democracy, national independence and sovereignty.

HU YAOBANG GREETS KIM IL-SONG, KIM CHONG-IL

[Text] Beijing, May 20 (KCNA) -- Comrade Hu Yaobang, chairman of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, on May 19 met at Zhongnanhai in Beijing with the friendship delegation of the Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea headed by Comrade Ho Chong-suk, secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the SPA on visit to China.

The head of the delegation conveyed warm regards of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song to Comrades Chairman Hu Yaobang and Vice-Chairman Deng Xiaoping. Chairman Hu Yaobang expressed deep thanks and asked the head of the delegation to tell that he and Comrades Deng Xiaoping, Li Xiannian, Zhao Ziyang, Chen Yun and Hua Guofeng wish President Kim Il-song good health and longevity and wish Comrade Kim Chong-il good health for more energetically guiding work. Chairman Hu Yaobang recalled with pleasure a recent meeting between the leaders of the two countries. Saying that the relations between China and Korea are extremely close and Korea is the great front of China and the latter the great rear for the former, he noted: In past decades China and Korea have stood together through thick and thin.

In the past revolutionary struggles the Korean people shed their blood on China's soil while the Chinese people shed their blood on Korea's soil. Later, the two countries supported each other in defeating imperialist aggression and subversion. The relations between us are one of mutual trust, mutual reliance and mutual support.

He went on to say: We will meet difficulties on the road toward the future as there are people in the world who attempt to obstruct the principles of independence of our two countries, and efforts for the reunification of our respective countries. Therefore, we should continue to stand together.

Hu Yaobang wished the Korean people under the leadership of the Workers Party of Korea and President Kim Il-song greater achievements in the revolution and construction. He expressed the conviction that the friendship and unity between the two parties, two countries and two peoples of China and Korea would develop from generation to generation and such friendship and unity would play a greater role in the world peoples progressive cause.

The conversation took place in a comradely and warm atmosphere. Present were Xing Yimin, deputy secretary-general of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress of China; Han Nianlong, advisor to the Chinese Foreign Ministry; and Chon Chong-yong, charge d'affaires ad interim of the DPRK Embassy in Beijing.

TIMES Views DJP Shakeup

[By Cho Pyung-pil]

[Text] A shakeup of five Democratic Justice Party higher-ups, including secretary-general, just before a Cabinet reshuffle due today, is accepted as a fait accompli from the stand-point that they must be held morally and politically accountable for the curb loan scandal.

Matter-of-factly, the majority DJP as at the pains to extricate itself from the groundless rumors circulating concerning the involvement of a key figure in the incident.

President Chon Tu-hwan, who heads the party changed them in a blitzkrieg action to remedy the trauma as promptly as possible which has disturbed both the political and social climate as a result of a huge fraudulent loan-bill scandal.

The reshuffle of the ranking party officials is interpreted as showing a clear-cut intention not to harm its image, freeing itself from becoming a victim of groundless rumors, thereby refreshing the party's structure to pursue clean politics without interruption.

Besides the party shuffle, en masse resignations by the incumbent Cabinet team in an extraordinary Cabinet session came as no surprise because the Cabinet was also in for change in connection with recent incidents, notably the scandal.

The scope of the shift has yet to be seen. But a large-scale shuffle is most likely in light of the scandal's influence on both popular feelings and financial circles.

The focus of interest with regard to the Cabinet shakeup is on whether Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, who was named Jan. 3 this year, will retain his post or be sacked.

Along with the reshuffle in the lineup of Cabinet members and DJP leaders, the government is certain to take other measures to settle the post-scandal problems.

NO POLITICAL TIES WITH LOAN SCANDAL FOUND

SK210218 Seoul YONHAP in English 0148 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 21 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean prosecution has failed to find evidence that part of the money which former assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha obtained through their loan business flowed into political circles, Prosecutor General Chong Chi-kun announced Thursday.

Announcing results of the three-week-old investigation into the curb loan market scandal, Chong said Secretary General Kwon Chong-tal of the ruling Democratic Justice Party was found to have exercised no influence for the moneylending couple or Kongyung Construction Co.

Kwon was dismissed from his party position Thursday amid rumors that he had applied pressure on bank officials in connection with the couple's loan business.

The top prosecutor also said the investigation uncovered no illegal acts by Yi Kyu-kwang, former president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corp. and younger brother of President Chon Tu-hwan's father-in-law other than his acceptance of 100 million won from the couple on the condition that he would help the couple set-up a joint venture bank between South Korean and Middle East businesses.

Yi and Chang were charged with defrauding Kongyung Construction Co. and five other businesses of 180.1 billion won by cashing commercial papers the couple received as collateral from the companies in exchange for providing them with private loans. One U.S. dollar is worth about 720 won.

The announcement said the couple circulated premature commercial bills worth 640.4 billion won during a 14-month period since February of last year.

The couple was originally arrested for violating the foreign exchange control law, but a probe into their loan business led to the country's largest private financial scandal since the founding of the republic.

Two presidents of Korean banks and 15 others were arrested in connection with the scandal on charges ranging from bribery to complicity to embezzle company funds.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the minority Korea National Party said the prosecution announcement was insufficient to clear up the scandal, saying it is little different from an earlier prosecution statement on the case.

DKP CALLS FOR 'DEMOCRATIC POLITICAL CLIMATE'

SK210319 Seoul YONHAP in English 0305 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 21 (YONHAP) -- South Korea's major opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) Friday urged President Chon Tu-hwan's government to establish a "democratic political climate" and to eradicate corruption.

DKP spokesman Kim Chin-paw said his party was disappointed in the prosecution's investigation of the scandal as it did not completely answer all questions.

Kim also called on the ruling Democratic Justice Party to turn over a new leaf in managing the National Assembly.

SPEAKERS SCORE OUTSIDE INTERFERENCE IN KWANGJU

SK190055 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 19 May 82 p 8

[Text] Kwangju (YONHAP) -- Citzens of this capital of Cholla-Namdo declared yesterday that they would reject any attempt to make use of Kwangju for political purposes.

In a rally at Mudung Stadium yesterday morning marking the second anniversary of the bloody May 18 turmoil which left scores of citizens dead and injured amid a whirlwind of demonstrations, the citizens further said that they would safeguard their town by themselves.

Some 200,000 citizens and students from across Cholla-Namdo attended the rally with placards carrying various slogans.

Sin Tae-ho, chairman of the just-formed Citizens' Council for New Kwangju Construction, said in his opening speech that some people who had no relation with Kwangju had swarmed into the city and were trying to dissipate the citizens' hope for a new life and the construction of a new city by plotting the outbreak of another tragedy.

"Let's expel such ill-intentioned attempts resolutely and let's have a firm determination to guard our town with the efforts of 4 million citizens of Kwangju and Cholla-Namdo," he said.

Kim Chung-chae, head of the Cholla-Namdo branch of the Korea Anti-Communist League, representing social organizations, said that he could not figure out what the gangs intended to do by touching on the two-year-old scars of the citizens.

"What do you think of Kwangju and why are you trying to drive our loving parents, brothers and sisters onto the plaza of tragedy again?" he retorted.

Mrs. Yi Won-ok, head of the Kwangju branch of the Korean Association of University Women, who represented ordinary citizens in the rally, said that she was not surprised too much upon observing the preposterous attempts to rationalize the Pusan U.S. Cultural Center arson case and other vicious crimes by relating them to the Kwangju incident two years ago.

"We, Kwangju citizens, with Mt. Mudung over there, will never forgive any such spiteful attempt to make use of Kwangju for political purposes," she asserted.

Arguing that some people from religious organizations were plotting disorder and tricky crimes in Kwangju in disguise of cherishing the memory of victims who fell in the bloody incident, Mrs. Yi said: "It is we, Kwangju citizens, who will cherish them. You, apostles of disputes, don't awaken their souls now in peace."

Pak Chaong-hun, a student attending the graduate school of business at Chonnam National University, said that any effort to use students as political means would be excluded.

"If we play the role of puppets for impure elements, it will mean that we are turning our backs on our own fatherland," he said.

An eight-point resolution was adopted by the ralliers along with a message to the whole Korean people.

VETERANS DENOUNCE NORTH AT KWANGJU RALLY

SK210151 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 21 May 82 p 8

[Text] Kwangju -- Retired military personnel active in Cholla Namdo Province yesterday denounced North Korea's bellicosity and the hereditary system of Kim Il-song, its chieftain, in a gathering held here.

Gov. Kim Chang-sik of Cholla Namdo Chong Myong-hwan, secretary general of the Korean Veterans Association (KVA), Hwang Ha-taek, head of the Cholla Namdo Branch of the association, and an estimated 5,000 other former service members attended the gathering.

Participants held a fancy procession in which they burned effigies of North Korean chieftain Kim Il-song and his followers. The Cholla Namdo branch of KVA sponsored the procession and effigy-burning ceremony in order to strengthen the national security posture of the people in the province and inspire them with anti-communist spirit on the occasion of the second anniversary of Kwangju incident which occurred May 18, 1980.

In his speech, Hwang Ha-taek, Cholla Namdo branch chief of KVA, urged 380,000 members of the KVA branch to make concerted efforts to smash any possible military provocations by North Korea. He said, "If the Republic of Korea is communized by the Pyongyang regime, people in the country will be deprived of everything, including freedom and religion as evidenced in the fall of South Vietnam April 30, 1975.

He then stressed that Kwangju citizens and people in Cholla Namdo Province should more actively participate in building a democratic welfare state with the unhappy legacy of the past as momentum.

In his speech read by Chong Myong-hwan, his secretary general, Kim Chong-hwan, KVA president, asked retired military personnel to take the van in establishing an all-out security system by exercising their power, courage and wisdom.

In the met, participants adopted a four point resolution in which they pledged to do their utmost in defending their motherland and play leading roles in carrying out the ongoing new social ethics movement.

They marched to the Cholla Namdo Provincial Government Plaza from Kwangju Railroad Station Plaza, carrying effigies of Kim Il-song, his son Kim Chong-il and other North Korean key figures.

KWANGJU CATHOLICS DEMAND RELEASE OF DETAINEES

NORTH KOREA PROPOSES 28 MAY MAC MEETING

SK200920 Seoul YONHAP in English 0913 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 20 (YONHAP) -- North Korea Thursday suggested to the United Nations Command (UNC) that the 413th main session of the Military Armistice Commission (MAC) be held at 11:00 a.m. May 28, the UNC announced. This is a counterproposal to the UNC's May 17 suggestion that the MAC meeting be held Thursday.

KIM CHUN-SONG ON ECONOMIC RECOVERY PACKAGE

[Text] Seoul, May 20 (YONHAP) -- South Korean Deputy Premier and Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song said Thursday that the government is working on measures to minimize the shock-waves of the recent curb market fraud incident.

During a monthly economic briefing session presided over by President Chon Tu-hwan, the top economic policymaker said that the government decided to expand the money supply from banks and the state treasury to help ease the serious fund shortage facing enterprises. The government will also normalize the weakened functions of the stock market by encouraging institutional investors to purchase as many stocks as possible.

Kim said the government will soon take steps to insure the jobs of employees at Kongyung Construction Co. and Ilssin Steel Co., two of the six large enterprises affected by the bill manipulation incident. Commercial bills of nearly 10 billion won (roughly 13.8 million U.S. dollars) which were issued by the two companies were declared dishonored. Their jobs will be secured and their overdue wages will be paid, Kim reported to the president, Kim emphasized that the overseas credibility of the Korean economy is a priority.

As part of a long-term measures to cope with the aftershocks of the scandal, the government is considering legalizing private money lending to siphon as much money as possible from the curb money market to institutional banking agencies, as well as revising the corporate tax law to help strengthen the financial structures of enterprises, according to Kim.

On other economic trends, he said that although production and delivery have been sluggish since last October, wholesale and retail transactions, overseas orders for machinery, investments and domestic construction permits have increased in recent months.

The composite economy index in March dropped by 0.3 percent from the previous month, but the index, which predicts economic trends two to three months ahead, rose by 1.1 percent in April.

Kim said exports in March totaled 6.7 billion dollars, up only 4.2 percent from March 1981. The export growth rate has been declining since last November and a deficit of 852 million dollars was recorded in the country's trade balance in March, Kim's report to the president said.

TIMES Reviews Package

[Editorial: "Pump-Priming Package"]

[Text] Amid a furor over the unprecedentedly large-scale curb loan scandal, the government has announced a set of pump-priming measures designed to shore up the nation's economic and business activities, now staggering in a protracted recession.

Though the timing appears to be coincidental and its effects will eventually have some bearings on quenching the scandal's aftermath, the package has reportedly been under study for some time and in fact its announcement had to be held up till this week because of the flare-up of the loan controversy.

The economic boost package, the second of its kind worked out by the incumbent Cabinet in four months highlights priority steps to reanimate activities in three main target areas.

They include an increase by 220 billion won in bank facilities for the benefit of small and medium-sized industries, the floating of bonds amounting to 200 billion won to finance extensive road pavement projects in rural areas and consequently improve the purchasing capacity of the provincial populace, and major cuts in various housing-related taxes so as to reinvigorate the housing construction industry.

Besides, it envisages a slight rise in export-support financing to help boost export performance now in the doldrums and the streamlining of the tax systems for business activities, especially corporate taxes.

At the same time, the government made it public that fares for state-run railroad service and coal briquet (yontan) prices would mark modest hikes of less than 5 percent beginning in July, while discount bus fares for students and teenager workers would face a rather sharp rise next month -- all designed to help concerned businesses improve their management.

It is earnestly hoped that the measures, though requiring more realistic elements particularly in connection with the housing scheme and rural community projects, will have ample remedial effects as envisaged.

But then, news reports indicate that government policy-makers were noncommittal about business prospects or how soon the national economy could edge out of the prolonged slump.

In a sense, such an attitude is quite understandable in that the current domestic stagnation is essentially connected with the global recession over-shadowing a mainstay of the nation's economy, the export industries, and also partly influenced by noneconomic factors sometimes unfavorable to investments.

On the other hand, it is undeniable that the recent loan scandal has had an enormous adverse impact on the local financing and business, as illustrated by the bankruptcy of at least two major enterprises and the difficulties facing a number of businesses due to the virtual paralysis of the curb money market.

One of the painful blows to the national economy at large is the possibility that the government's much-publicized tight-money policy aimed at limiting the year's inflation to a one-digit figure may have to be revised.

Largely because of the 200 billion won being released as special funds to relieve the financial stringency triggered by the scandal, it is already feared that the money supply increase may override the year's target previously set at 20-22 percent.

In this regard, the government authorities, in announcing the latest economic revitalization package, voiced cautious optimism that the nation could live beyond the money growth target and that in any case their stabilization efforts would not be damaged.

Again we hope their views and plans will be effective. Yet, the situation appears to be in need of more fundamental approaches and comprehensive measures to overcome the recession and pave the way for sustained economic growth.

HERALD URGES MORE ECONOMIC COOPERATION WITH U.S.

[Editorial: "ROK - U.S. ECONOMIC TIES"]

[Text] The seventh joint meeting of the economic councils of Korea and the United States now in session at the World Trade Center Korea building is expected to give further boost to the trade and economic cooperation between the two nations.

This year's centennial celebration for the treaty of commerce, navigation and amity between the two countries adds luster to the brilliant significance of this meeting.

At this memorable occasion, we recall that it was the American businessmen of pioneering spirit venturing into the then remotest corner of the world, known as the hermit kingdom, who demonstrated to our people what the spirit of free enterprise was like.

The lessons of that early entrepreneurship of the American businessmen has never been lost among our people. In fact, private business between the two nations has flourished so much since then that the bilateral trade has grown to more than $10 billion annually. As long as the spirit of free enterprise between our two nations is alive, we can expect further growth of mutual trade.

But, as our trade relations grow and mature, their characters are undergoing subtle but palpable changes. With the termination of the U.S. economic aid and steady industrialization of our economy, we have come to regard each other as equal partners, each with its own advantages and problems.

For instance, mounting sentiment of trade protectionism has come to hamper a smooth flow of trade. Each nation rightly or wrongly attributes some of its domestic economic and social problems to rising imports. Face-to-face talks between the prominent businessmen of both nations at the economic council meeting is, therefore, expected to render a significant contribution to lowering the tide of protectionism.

In this regard, the recent move by the Korean businessmen to set up assembly plants in the United States is an encouraging sign, indicating that our concern over protectionism is being translated into practical action to solve the problem.

Another change in the wind is increasing interest among both Korean and U.S. businessmen in the possibility of establishing joint venture companies for projects in third countries. Such a mutually beneficial business relationship deserves our wholehearted blessing, and we are looking forward to some tangible results coming out of the present meeting.

The spirit as well as economic requirements of the times also calls for stepped-up transfer of advanced technology. Since this phase of economic cooperation could best be realized through private business consultations, we hope that the present meeting provides a ground for lively and fruitful discussion on the subject.

Finally, our government's move toward increased liberalization of foreign trade and investments will lend wings to the soaring hope of our business guests attending the meeting in this first year of our fifth 5-year economic and social development plan.

[Text] Phnom Penh, 19 May (SPK) -- On the occasion of the 92nd anniversary of the birth of President Ho Chi Minh, the Phnom Penh Municipal People's Revolutionary Committee decided to give a new name -- Ho Chi Minh Boulevard -- to the former Suramarith Street, one of the most beautiful streets in the capital.

The ceremony was held this morning and was attended by Khang Sarin, member of the KPRP Secretariat and minister of the interior; Chan Ven, vice chairman of the KUFNCD National Council and secretary general of the Council of State; and other personalities. The presence of Nguyen Ngoc Son, acting charge d'affairs of Vietnam to Kampuchea, was also noted and members of diplomatic corps accredited to Kampuchea also attended.

Keo Chanda, secretary of the Phnom Penh Municipal Party Committee and chairman of the Phnom Penh Municipal People's Revolutionary Committee, talked about President Ho Chi Monh's contributions to the revolutions of the Indochinese countries. He first introduced and propagandized Marxist-Leninist ideology to Southeast Asia and was not only a pioneer and founder of the political line of the Vietnamese people, but also a veteran of the revolutionary movement of the three countries -- Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos. Keo Chanda recalled: He founded the Indochinese Communist Party in 1930, predecessor of the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party which firmly consolidated and developed its role during the past 20 years and actually takes the name of the Kampuchean People's Revolutionary Party. He was a heroic combatant, leading the Vietnamese revolution from victory to victory, Directing the Vietnamese people in the building of the first peasants' state in Southeast Asia, he unceasingly consolidated and developed the militant solidarity of the peoples of the three countries -- Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos.

The giving of President Ho Chi Minh's name, glorious hero of this epoch, to this boulevard, Keo Chanda emphasized, is confirmation of the sentiments of gratitude, respect and profound sympathy of the Kampucheans for President Ho Chi Minh and the Vietnamese Communist Party, army and people. Furthermore, it also confirms the correct line of the KPRP to uphold the two banners -- the banner of authentic patriotism and the banner of the proletarian internationalist solidarity, in particular, to make common cause with the fraternal Vietnamese people.

Nguyen Ngoc Son, acting charge d'affaires of Vietnam to Kampuchea, stressed that this act is proof of the solidarity between Kampuchea and Vietnam and the Kampuchean people's respect for President Ho Chi Minh's deeds. Faithful to President Ho Chi Minh's teachings, the Vietnamese party, government and people commit themselves to care for the solidarity and friendly ties between the two countries like the apple of their own eye, he said.

Nguyen Ngoc Son expressed his gratitude to the Kampuchean party and people for their support to the Vietnamese people in their past and present struggle for the defense and construction of socialism.

VIENTIANE: USSR OVERTURES TO PRC 'ANGER' U.S.

BK210452 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0430 GMT 17 May 82

[Feature article: "Soviet Proposal to China and Washington's Scare"]

[Text] The proposal put forth by the Soviet Union for the normalization of relations with the PRC, announced by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee in his Tashkent speech, has aroused serious displeasure and anger in Washington, since the U.S. administration will no longer be able to play the China card. For a long time the administration has benefited tremendously from this card in implementing its global policy. This is why Washington is doing everything it can to slander and vilify the proposal, claiming that there is nothing new in the proposal and encouraging China not to trust the Soviet Union.

Certainly such an action is beneficial to the United States. As for China, the Soviet proposal has become an important issue. During his meeting in March with (?Lee Zung-dao), Columbia University professor, Hu Yaobang, chairman of the CCP Central Committee, said that the Soviet proposal did not pose any obstruction to the implementation of China's fundamental tasks, for example, ensuring internal stability and fulfilling the four modernizations.

Experiences gained in the development of the PRC show that China's internal stability is directly related to the Chinese people's achievements in their socialist construction. Difficulties and delays have caused instability in the Chinese society.

Comrade Leonid Brezhnev explained in his speech that even though the Soviet Union has openly criticized in many ways the Chinese ruling organization's political policies -- primarily its foreign policy, which does not fully conform with the various principles and fundamental rules of socialism -- the Soviet Union has never made any attempt to interfere in China's internal affairs, nor has it ever rejected the existence of the socialist society in China.

Many experts are of the opinion that Soviet-Chinese common economic interests are enormous and that these two countries can embrace substantial conditions in this regard as indicated by the lessons of cooperation which bloomed in the decades following the establishment of the PRC. All this has been acknowledged in the resolution of the Sixth Plenary Session of the CCP Central Committee held in the summer of 1981 that concerned some historic issues of the CCP cince the establishment of the PRC. Thanks to the assistance of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, China achieved great successes in implementing its first 5-year economic construction plan. As everyone knows, various important industrial branches were set up then and various damaged factories and plants were restored and improved and have now become China's industrial bases.

Many U.S. newspapers have acknowledged that the Soviet stand toward Taiwan, once announced by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev, is completely different from the Reagan administration's attitude. The Soviet Union has never supported the two-China idea and has always recognized the PRC's sovereignty over Taiwan.

U.S. attempts to interfere in China's internal affairs by shipping arms to Taiwan have caused a deterioration of U.S.-China relations. At a time when the United States and China are not on good terms, Washington has energetically fabricated stories which reflect its ill intentions, saying that normal relations between the Soviet Union and China are detrimental to the relations among forces in Asia and the rest of the world.

As a matter of fact, such dangers do not arise from their friendship with the Soviet Union but from relations between Beijing and the political policies of the various bellicose imperialist circles and from China's expansionist policy. The war of aggression against Vietnam and the serious consequences of the implementation of the Beijing leaders' policy in Kampuchea and their all-round support for the Pol Pot regime are clear examples for the world's people. Moreover, Beijing and Washington have persistently continued to interfere in the internal affairs of Kampuchea and Afghanistan.

It is not at all surprising that Washington has reacted angrily to the Soviet proposal to China aimed at normalizing relations on the basis of respect for each other's interests and without adversely affecting other countries. This proposal conforms with realities and responds to the true interests of China itself. For the sake of peace and stability in the Far East and the rest of the world, answers should now come from China, which should acknowledge the truth and the true interest of peace and stability of various nations.

SRV'S 12 AIRMEN RELEASED FOLLOWING APOLOGY

BK210910 Hong Kong AFP in English 0842 GMT 12 May 82

[Text] Bangkok, 21 May, (AFP) -- Thailand today released 12 Vietnamese airmen after obtaining an apology from Hanoi for what investigators called an intentional intrusion into Thai airspace last February by their Soviet-made aircraft.

The airmen, on board an Antonov-26 that crashlanded 50 km (31 miles) inside eastern Thailand on February 11, were heading back to Vietnam on a special Air Vietnam flight this afternoon.

The airmen, who had been under Thai military custody since the incident, were released and turned over to Vietnamese authorities in a ceremony at the Royal Thai Air Force's top security airport here.

Vietnamese Charge d'Affaires Do Ngoc Duang was on hand to receive the airmen from the Thai Foreign Ministry's Southeast Asia Department director, Samphan Kokilanon.

The body of one mechanic, who died when the two twin-engine [as received] Antonov AN-26 bellyflopped in a tapioca field in Sa Keo District bordering Cambodia, was cremated here yesterday.

In a statement released here this afternoon, Thailand said it had decided to release the surviving crewmen and return the Soviet-made transport aircraft after obtaining an apology for the incident and an assurance that it would not be repeated.

According to the statement, Vietnamese Ambassador Hoang Bao Son, currently in Hanoi, apologised on his government's behalf in a meeting at the Thai Foreign Ministry on May 6.

The damaged plane remains here pending negotiations for its transportation back to Vietnam.

The statement said investigators had found that the plane was heading for Thailand.

Contrary to crewmen's testimonies, its communications equipment was found to be in good working order and its fuel tank well-stocked, the statement added. But for humanitarian reasons and the sake of good relations, the crewmen and the plane were being returned, the statement added.

Hanoi earlier said the plane was on its way from Phnom Penh to Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon) when it developed technical trouble.

MP CALLS FOR END TO KHMER COALITION EFFORTS

[By Yuwadee Thunyasiri]

[Text] A senior member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday expressed fears that Thailand would be used by China for operations in Kampuchea against Vietnam.

Saraburi MP Anan Buranawanit, the committee secretary, said the Ministry of Foreign Affairs "should desist from all further efforts to get a coalition government set up for Kampuchea."

With all the publicity accompanying the efforts, he explained, Thailand has already been accused of "interfering" in Kampuchea's internal affairs.

"We might as well send in forces which could at least bring about a division of Kampuchea into two halves, one under Vietnam and the other under Thailand," he added.

The best solution, Mr Anan said, is to have the United Nations General Assembly resolution on Kampuchea implemented as soon as possible with UN forces introduced to enforce peace.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee is to invite Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila to explain the policies on Kampuchea, the committee secretary reported. This will be in addition to the inclusion of the Foreign Ministry in general no-confidence debate being filed by opposition parties against the government. The Foreign Ministry is to be queried on the scandal concerning the allegations that heroin was sent through diplomatic pouch to the now-dismissed vice consul in Chicago.

Mr Anan said the house committee had sent a letter to the ministry to warn against further involvement in the attempts to form a Kampuchean coalition, after 12 meetings had failed. "Lay hands off" was the message contained in the letter.

He said he did not consider Air Chief Marshal Sitthi's visit to China in connection with the coalition efforts to be in accordance with the Constitution which requires Thailand to be equally friendly to all countries and not to intervene in the domestic affairs of other countries.

Mr Anan said Thailand should do nothing to make Vietnam consider Thailand an enemy because "we will be fighting not just the Vietnamese but also the Russians." Thailand "should not allow China to drag us into the Kampuchean conflict," Mr Anan said.

"What we have to do is to find ways to restore peace and use our resources for our own benefit and security."

MATICHON SUPPORTS U.S. ENVOY'S VIEW ON ECONOMY

BK211023 Bangkok MATICHON in Thai 21 May 82 p 4

[Editorial: "A Complaint From the U.S. Ambassador"]

[Text] Thailand began to establish economic and political relations with Western countries during the reign of Rama IV. Soon after that it was Great Britain that had the closest ties with Thailand, then it was Japan. However, since the end of World War II it has been the United States that has had the closest relations with Thailand -- ever since the signing of a joint treaty in 1950. The U.S. Embassy has noted that at present 65 U.S. companies operate in Thailand and that shares held by U.S. citizens in those companies total over 12 billion baht.

According to the Bank of Thailand, foreign investment in Thailand from 1978-1981 totaled some 26 billion baht; 8 billion baht -- or 30 percent -- belonging to U.S. investors. U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean, speaking at the gathering of the Harvard Business School club of Thailand, expressed confidence that there is a trend for a steady increase in U.S. investment here. However, despite the good political climate and favorable investment trends in Thailand, Ambassador Dean said foreign investment here could decline if certain measures are not changed.

The Ambassador said: As a wag once said, when they cut red tape in Thailand, they cut it lengthwise. Slowness in bureaucratic decisionmaking, overlapping bureaucratic responsibilities, ambiguous laws and regulations -- all of these, when they exist, serve as disincentives to investment.

Thailand operates a free trade system and, thus foreign investment is an indispensible ingredient of the system.

The majority of the people would not agree if the government enacted laws that would allow foreign investors excessive advantages. The investment promotion law should create a good climate for investment in ways that do not adversly affect national interests or prestige. At the same time, the flaws in our system, as noted by the U.S. ambassador, des consideration.

U.S. investors conduct their business in Thailand in a relatively straightforward manner. If straightforward businessmen complain and are discouraged this much, it is worrisome to consider whether those who do not compalin remain quiet because they are paying tea money. If the government wants foreign investment, it must correct the above-mentioned weaknesses.

SU ANAKHOT URGES REVIEW OF KAMPUCHEA POLICY

BK211147 Bangkok SU ANAKHOT in Thai 16022 May p 3

[Editorial: "Thailand's Neutral Stance"]

[Text] The Vietnamese aggression against and occupation of almost all of Kampuchea constitutes a threat to the eastern border of Thailand in this century.

This threat is quite a large one. Historically, Kampuchea was a sovereign state, not a colony of Thailand or Vietnam, and served as "buffer state" to prevent direct confrontation between Thailand and Vietnam, which in the past were the regional big powers.

However, things have changed now. Vietnam has more than 200,000 troops inside Kampuchea near the Thai border. Meanwhile, three Khmer factions, namely the Khmer Rouge, Khmer Serei of Son Sann and the Sihanoukist Movement, have put up an extensive, thorny resistance against the Vietnamese invaders. In the past, Thailand gave clandestine support to these resistance factions. Later, Thailand's political and military support became more official and obvious. Eventually, Thailand, under the present administration, decided to play an active role in the effort to form a coalition, with military and political unity, of the three Kampuchean factions to fight against the Vietnamese occupation. This clearly reveals that Thailand has adopted a new policy toward Kampuchea. In other words, Thailand has discarded its neutral stance on the Kampuchean conflict and is willing to serve as a "spearhead" for the waring parties in Kampuchea, which consecuently leads it into direct confrontation with Vietnam.

During the Thai prime minister's recent visit to France, the host country offered to arrange negotiations between Thailand and Vietnam at any official level. The Thai side seemed to appreciate this offer from France, although in the past it did not agree to the idea because it maintained that the Kampuchean problem was not a problem between Thailand and Vietnam.

In regard to Thailand's new foreign policy, there is no longer a need to talk about "neutrality." Whether this policy will be beneficial to the country or not remains in doubt. Firstly, we believe that the Thai Foreign Ministry, (as the Foreign Minister is currently visiting China in a bid to form a coalition of the three Kampuchean factions), has no right to oppose Vietnam directly because it can be construed to mean that Thailand has declared itself the enemy of Vietnam.

Secondly, what will happen if the three Kamphuchean factions succeed in forming a coalition? Thailand will automatically become their "supporter" and transit route for both financial and military aid for them. Worse still, those foreign troops might even use our territory.

Lastly, if the three Kampuchean resistance factions fail in their attempt to set up a coalition, Thailand's "neutral" image will be damaged beyond repair, thus making us "vulnerable" to the adversaries' attack.

We suggest that the government thoroughly review its foreign policy and the way it deals with the Kampuchean issue on the basis of our national stability. It would be a big mistake for anyone to think that the situation in the neighboring eastern country and our national stability are the same thing.

SECRETARY GENERAL LE DUAN THOUGHT TO BE ABROAD

[Text] Bangkok, May 20, KYODO -- Vietnamese leader Le Duan may be staying abroad, possibly in the Soviet Union, for a rest or for medical care, Vietnam watchers say.

Le Duan, secretary-general of the Vietnam Communist Party, had made no appearance at an official event since attending the party congress March 27-31, the watchers say. Vietnam's official news media did not name Le Duan among prominent figures attending a floral offering ceremony in Hanoi Tuesday to mark the 92nd anniversary of the late Chairman Ho Chi Minh's birth, they say. Nor did Le Duan participate in the congress in late April of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party. He only sent a telegram of congratulations to Lao Leader Kaysone Phomvihan, they note. The watchers say there are rumors that Le Duan has fallen ill.

Some of the watchers say that Radio Hanoi reported on May 7 that the Vietnamese leader sent a telegram of condolence from abroad to the bereaved family of a noted Vietnamese medical scientist.

PRC ADVISER'S REMARKS ON INDIA ASSAILED

OW210747 Hanoi VNA in English 0719 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 21 -- The army paper QUAN DOI NHAN DAN today lays bare Beijing's perfidious plot to drive a wedge between India and Vietnam.

Commenting on a statement made by Fu Hao, advisor to the Chinese Foreign Ministry, before his recent trip to India that the Sino-India border dispute was a problem bequeathed by history whereas there was nothing to be discussed in the Sino-Vietnamese border issue, the paper notes that Fu Hao was trying to kill three birds with one stone.

"First", it says "this was a move to appease the Indian people and public opinion and tone down the Sino-Indian border dispute as well as China's illegal occupation of almost 40,000 square kilometres of Indian territory".

"Second", the paper goes on, "China sought to cover up its crimes against Vietnam and justify its hostility toward Vietnam and the other Indochinese countries".

"Finally", it says, "this was a sinister scheme of the Chinese rulers to drive a wedge between the peoples of India and Vietnam who uniting in the struggle against China's expansionist and hegemonist policy and its collusion with U.S. imperialism in undermining peace and stability and straining the situation in Asia and elsewhere in the world".

The paper points out that lies cannot cover up truth. "The fact is that China's policy toward its neighbouring countries is to start border wars to annex their territories, and this policy is the same regarding India, the Soviet Union, Mongolia, Vietnam or other countries", QUAN DOI NHAN DAN says. "By claiming that there is nothing to be dealt with in the Sino-Vietnamese border issue, Beijing revealed its sinister intention to perpetuate its occupation of Vietnam's territories, including the Hoang Sa Archipelago", the paper remarks.

NHAN DAN ARTICLE ON TRAINING FOR UNIT IN PRK

BK201025 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 28 April 82, p 3

[Article by Maj Nguyen Van San of the combat training bureau of multiregimental unit C: "While Performing International Duties a Unit Can Draft Plans and Training Schedules Ensuring Sufficient Participation"]

[Summary] Reviewing the 1981 training activities of multiregimental unit [binh dooanf] C, we noted that the results it obtained were limited. This is due to the fact that its training plans were irrational, unscientific and unrealistic, thus making it impossible for training officers to ensure the fulfillment of plans in terms of schedules and participation.

"What must the unit do to formulate suitable training plans that can ensure the fulfillment of plan norms concerning training schedules and adequate troop participation in training? At a time when the unit has to carry out its combat duty and, simultaneously, help the fraternal Kampuchean people in many respects, the formulation of scientific training plans is a difficult task. After a period of study and experimentation, we have realized that there are two main tasks to be carried out: First, the troops must be stationed in such a way that they can simultaneously perform combat duties and organize training satisfactorily. Second, the unit's situation must be carefully studied and developments foreseen before training plans are formulated."

In order to create favorable conditions for all the unit's components to fulfill their training plans, its staff organ must send teams to inspect the situation of each component. "As a combat unit performing its international duties in Kampuchea, our multiregimental unit C is divided into three main components: integrated mobile units, units operating near the border, and units providing assistance to friends." Staff officers have studied the situation of these components and suggested suitable training plans and methods.

In an effort to put the 1982 training task on the right track, the staff organ or our multiregimental unit C is studying ways to formulate training plans at the regimental level. The first training session has been favorably conducted and the quality of training is higher than that in 1981.

ARTICLE ON TRANSPORTATION REGIMENT IN PRK

BK201103 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2330 GMT 19 May 82

[Article by Vu Hoa]

[Summary] "Founded in 1979, the N-85 transportation regiment has been responsible for serving those units on international duty assisting the Kampuchean people in national construction and defense.

"In the initial stage, the unit's men were scattered around eight provinces. The political situation in the friendly country at that time was complex, with the severity varying from one area to another. The unit also experienced difficulties due to the language barrier and differences in customs and traditions. The enemy carried out their activities almost openly in certain areas. Faced with this situation, the party committee and the command staff of the regiment took appropriate steps to carry out quickly and satisfactorily their professional duties while urgently stabilizing and ordering their activities.

"Over the past 3 years, while carrying out its international duties, the N-85 regiment has struggled to achieve satisfactorily the five objectives of the emulation drive called: Develop Fine Character and Improve Fighting Strength."

During the above period, the regiment satisfactorily fulfilled all its assigned missions with increasingly higher quality. The regiment was awarded a letter of commendation by the general rear service department in 1980. Over the past 3 years, the regiment has matured in many respects. The regiment was especially noted for its efforts to cultivate a sense of discipline in its members, foster their revolutionary qualities and build them into new-type men.

The comrade commander of the N-85 regiment made it known that, despite the regimental party committee's efforts, the labor output of the regiment and the quality of its work had not been good enough in the initial stage. A sense of organization and discipline was lacking, resulting in many cases of property damage and loss. The party committee and the command staff of the regiment succeeded in overcoming the above situation by launching an indoctrination drive down to the grassroots level units of the regiment in which members were taught to correct their mistakes and to live and work as Uncle Ho did.

Since then, negative phenomena have been reduced sharply, while more and more good examples have emerged. In May 1980, many of the regiment's youth union members voluntarily signed up to join a railroad security team.

"Over the past 3 years, the regiment has spent tens of thousands of man-days tackling its own requirements for unloading and storing goods. The regiment took control of and later turned over completely to "friends" a machine repair shop with 4,000 tons of equipment, a crane and salvage system and three piers with their mechanical equipment still intact and 19 storehouses with a total of 15,000 tons of goods of all sorts remaining untouched."

In steeling themselves in discipline and improving their quality, all subordinate units of the regiment were reported to have set many good examples. In mid-July 1981, a boat carrying 70 tons of rice owned by X corporation crashed into the wreckage of a sunken enemy boat on the Mekong River, more than 30 km from Phnom Penh. On learning of this, the 9th Company sent a rescue team to the crash site where it found that the rice-carrying boat and sunk 3 meters underwater. Corporal Bui Yan Tinh volunteered to dive down to retrieve the sunken rice cargo. In nearly 3 hours, he succeeded in salvaging nearly 100 sacks of rice. He refused to let other people take over his job for fear that his comrades might be endangered, but he himself later got stuck in the sunken rice boat and drowned. He set a brave example for other people to follow.

The N-85 regiment has worked urgently and constantly over the past 3 years and has matured remarkably. All members of the regiment have now become fully aware of the situation and tasks. They are taking the initiative in solving difficulties and resolutely fulfilling the mandate entrusted to them by their fatherland.

Nguyen Thi Dinh Gives Report

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 19 -- Vietnamese women have over the past years made big contributions to national construction and defence as well as to organizing family life and fostering the future generations. This remark is contained in the political report of the Central Committee of the Vietnam Women's Union presented by the union's president, Nguyen Thi Dinh, at the opening session of its fifth congress here today.

The report reviews achievements of Vietnamese Women's movement over the past eight years since the union's fourth congress and maps out new tasks in the present stage of the Vietnamese revolution. It says: "After decades of war, Vietnamese women have no greater desire than to live in peace, independence, freedom and family union to build a happy life free from cold and hunger. Nevertheless, the reactionary Chinese authorities, driven by their ambition of expansion to Southeast Asia, directed their Pol Pot stooges to massacre millions of Kampucheans and conduct an aggressive war on Vietnam's southwestern border. At the same time, they took a series of acts of sabotage in an attempt to weaken Vietnam and, finally, threw 600,000 Chinese troops supported by artillery and armoured cars into a brazen and cowardly attack along Vietnam's northern border.

"Acting upon the appeal of the Communist Party of Vietnam, the Vietnam Women's Union launched a mass movement named 'new women in national construction and defence' to encourage women from all walks of life to shoulder the heavy tasks in the new historical stage."

The report reviews the women's economic, cultural and social achievements and pays particular tribute to women in southern provinces for having joined the revolutionary administration in solving a series of problems left behind by the neo-colonialist regime, such as unemployment, disease, social vices and depraved culture...and helping dozens of thousands of debauchees both male and female, to return to a useful life. Many southern women, who were workers, peasants or students at the time of liberation, have now become responsible cadres at factories, villages and city-wards, the report notes. It continues:

"The achievements of the women's movement in general are closely linked with their movement for achieving equality with men and exercising their right as collective masters of the new society. Neither can these achievements be separated from the socio-economic conditions created by the initial successes of the three revolutions in Vietnam.

"Following the national reunification, the Socialist Republic of Vietnam took a timely step in promulgating the new constitution which reaffirms women's equality with men in all fields, stipulates in a fuller manner the interests and rights of women and children and determines the juridical position of the Vietnam Women's Union."

The report singles out some figures to show the progress in women's and child care: 9,034 maternity houses have been established in almost all villages with a total of 46,000 beds, which helped bring the death rate of new-borns from 1.6 percent in 1975 down to 0.7 percent in 1980; 24 percent of the total hospital beds are reserved for children; the creches and kindergartens are attending to 2.7 million children (26.5 percent of the total creche-age children and 32 percent of the total kindergarten-age children).

The law on marriage and the family has basically eliminated marriage and family iniquities of the old regime in the north and has also brought about considerable progress in this field in the south where it has been enforced only since liberation.

The report also points to a number of difficulties and shortcomings which limit the promotion of women's role and capabilities. Due to our underdeveloped and war-ravaged economy, it says, women's working conditions have not yet been significantly improved, many policies have not yet been fully carried out, and the vestiges of the feudalist and bourgeois ideologies continue to hinder the implementation of the state's laws, policies and regimes beneficial to women.

In the coming period, the report says, the Vietnam Women's Union has to unite, educate and encourage women of all social strata to bring into play their role as collective masters and their will in achieving equality of sexes, in order to vigorously advance the movement "new women in national construction and defence", thus contributing actively to the cause of socialist construction and transformation, the consolidation of national defence and security, the building of the new type socialist family and the socialist type of man. At the same time, it continues, the union has to keep on struggling for women's liberation, caring for women's welfare, strengthening its solidarity with women of the world in the struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism, consolidating its organization, training its cadres and improving the content and method of its work.

The report points to five concrete tasks for the Vietnamese women's movement in the coming period, stressing the necessity to promote women's collective mastery in economic, social and state management and to enhance women's socialist awareness and capabilities in all fields.

On behalf of all Vietnamese women, Nguyen Thi Dinh expressed her sincere thanks to women in the Soviet Union, Laos, the People's Republic of Kampuchea and the other socialist countries, to the Women's International Democratic Federation and to women all over the world for having warmly supported and assisted the Vietnamese people and women.

Foreign Delegates Speak

On behalf of the Women's International Federation (W.I.D.F.), Ilse Thiele, W.I.D.F. vice president and president of the GDR Democratic Women's Union, warmly welcomed the "major achievements which the Vietnamese women and people have recorded daily in the building of socialism and the defence of their motherland as well as in service of peace and security".

She said: "The Women's International Democratic Federation puts a high value on the contributions of the Vietnam Women's Union to the struggle for our common goals, for the equality of women, for a guaranteed and happy future of all children, for world peace and peaceful cooperation of nations, for a world without imperialism and colonialism, old and new, without racial discrimination and apartheid".

She spoke of the activities of the W.I.D.F. in mobilizing women on all continents to take an active part in the struggle for peace and disarmament which found most eloquent expressions in the recent actions of millions of women in Europe, Aisa and Africa as well as in the Near East, Latin American and Australia.

She went on: "The W.I.D.F. supports the proposals of the governments and peoples of the Indochinese countries aimed at making Southeast Asia a zone of peace, friendship and cooperation and solving all existing problems on the principles of peaceful coexistence".

Ilse Thiele then read a message of greeting from the G.D.R. Democratic Women's Union.

Also speaking at the Vietnamese women's congress this afternoon were delegates of women of the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea, India, France and the Congo.

NHAN DAN Editorial

BK201359 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 18 May 82

[NHAN DAN 19 May editorial: "A Powerful and Important Revolutionary Force"]

[Text] Women in our country constitute a very important revolutionary force. Our party, which has always had confidence in our women, is struggling to eliminate feudal and brourgeois viewpoints in the assessment of women's strength and capacity, the training and employment of women workers and the resolution of concrete matters related to the life of women.

The struggle for the liberation of women must be carried out in combination with the struggle for national liberation and socialist construction. Vietnamese women have, for many generations, followed each other in serving the party as revolutionaries with heroic bearing and unparalelled devotion and sacrifice. With their great contributions to the cause of national independence and freedom and socialist construction, women in our country have earned for themselves a worthy position in their social and family life. Women's right to collective mastery, right of equality between the two sexes and other basic interests have been recorded in the constitution and other law documents of our state. In fact, these rights have already been established in our everyday life.

Despite the fact that our country is still poor, we have been able to build a network of creches, kindergartens and medical and welfare establishments for women and children. Meanwhile, more and more female leading cadres and managerial or scientific and technical cadres ahve been trained and assigned to worthy positions in party committees and the administration at all levels, as well as in various economic, cultural and social sectors. These are important achievements of our revolution and strongpoints for our women to continue to advance.

Actually in their everyday life, our women face many difficulties due to numerous reasons. Some of these difficulties have been caused by the poor and backward conditions of our economy and the heavy consequences of the war. In many cases, women still have not been afforded conditions for exercising their right to productive labor fully, despite the fact that this right has already been established by law. There are also difficulties known to stem from the system of management which is still fraught with red tape and subsidization, from impractical leadership, and from a number of policies and procedures which are no longer suitable.

The vestiges of feudalism and consequences of neocolonialist culture, which have not yet been eradicated completely, are obstacles to the exercising of the right of equality between men and women in their social and family life while vices and negative manifestations in society have adversely affected a number of women. In addition, the practices of treating women with contempt and showing no concern for their interests and aspirations or resorting to violence in dealing with them continue to occur, and the situation concerning marriage and family life and childbirth and the raising and education of children poses many complicated problems which must definitely solved.

As pointed out in the political report of the party Central Committee at the fifth party congress, the Vietnam Women's Union must strive to educate and encourage women to bring into play their right to collective mastery, to make even greater contributions to the fatherland and to socialism, and to carry on the struggle for the liberation of women and the molding of new, socialist women. It must cater to the welfare and life of women, afford them conditions for the good performance of their production task, social activities and raising of children.

President Ho Chi Minh said: Unless women are liberated, socialist construction can only be half completed. Today, the liberation of women involves many new aspects. It is closely linked with the common struggle of our entire party and people. Women now participate in emulation drives for production and practice thrift in order to overcome poverty and backwardness. They have participated in helping develop the old and build the new production relations system, establish new socialist material and technical bases, carry out the grain obligation task, encourage their husbands and sons to serve in the army and carry out rear service activities satisfactorily.

As a powerful revolutionary mass organization of the party, the Vietnam Women's Union is responsible for integrating and educating various women's strata and turning them into a firm political force in order to implement our party and state's lines and policies, thereby contributing significantly to the cause of national construction and defense.

It is imperative now to lessen housewife work and expand and organize more effectively the trade and business network, nurseries and kindergarten classes. Women must also have a strong will to surge forward. It is also necessary to create favorable conditions for them to further their studies in all fields in order to enable them to carry out all tasks effectively, while satisfactorily performing their family role as good mothers and wives.

Tasks concerning the improvement of marriage and family life, bringing up children, mother and child care and the family planning movement must be formulated into major policies and their status must be clearly defined.

The new women's movement for national construction and defense and the movement to build the new culture family initiated by the Women's Union are the two mass movements that help strengthen patriotism and accelerate socialist construction. These are big and lively schools to train Vietnamese women to exercise their right to collective mastery. These comprehensive activities require all women to change their methods and forms of actions to suit each goal of various women's strata, nationality and religious groups, branches and occupations and different localities.

In carrying out its activities, the more the Women's Union demonstrates its ability to mobilize the masses to fulfill women's interests and aspirations, the more prestige it will gain, thereby gaining an important role in the social life.

The Women's Union congress to be opened in Hanoi today will mark yet another new development in the women's movement of our nation, esoecially in the contribution to two strategic tasks of building and defending the socialist fatherland.

Together with all women throughout the country, we warmly welcome this important political event and wish the congress splendid success.

HO CHI MINH PUBLICATION -- Hanoi, 17 May (VNA) -- The "Su That" (Truth) Publishing House has just put out President Ho Chi Minh's theoretical work entitled "Duong Cach Menh" (the Revolutionary Path) on the occasion of his 92d birthday (19 May). This work was completed in 1927 and was first published by the Propaganda Department of the Union of Oppressed Peoples. "Duong Cach Menh" demonstrates a creative application of the universal truths of Marxism-Leninism to the concrete conditions of Vietnam, and the combination of the fights for national independence and for socialism as strategic guidelines of the Vietnamese revolution. It analyses in an easy, plain style the basic questions relating to the strategic and tactical policies, to the revolutionary method and to party building of the Vietnamese working class. On the basis of the thoughts and viewpoints put forth by President Ho Chi Minh in this work, the Communist Party of Vietnam has succeeded over the past half-century in solving the strategic and tactical tasks of the national and democratic and the socialist revolution in Vietnam and taking the revolution from one victory to another. RITHAUDDEEN LEAVES FOR MANILA ASEAN ECONOMIC MEETING

[Text] Malaysia will propose to the 13th ASEAN economic ministers meeting in Manila the adoption of a 3-year term chairmanship for each of the five ASEAN economic committees and that it be rotated among the countries concerned. The minister of trade and industry, Tengku Ahmad Rithauddeen, who is leading the Malaysian delegation, left for the Philippine capital this morning.

The 3-day meeting will review the five ASEAN complementary industrial projects on equity participation and also examine the possibility of such participation by non-member countries. Other matters include the revision of reports of the committees and progress made on dialogues with third countries and international organizations.

Tengku Rithauddeen said recent developments from multilateral agreements on commodities would also be discussed. This was because the negative and irresponsible attitude of certain major industrialized countries toward these agreements had upset Malaysis and many other commodity producers.

POSSIBILITY OF ASEAN MILITARY BLOC VIEWED

BK201051 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0800 GMT 20 May 82

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] The Indonesian foreign minister, Mr Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja, yesterday warned Vietnam that ASEAN would form a military alliance in Hanoi continued to threaten its sovereignty. ASEAN opposes all aggression and it was up to Vietnam whether the grouping changed from a socioeconomic bloc into a military alliance.

In the last few years, the ASEAN group of nations had condemned Vietnam as being the main source of tension in Southeast Asia. Against all internationally accepted norms and practices, Vietnam invaded a neighboring country, deposed a UN-recognized government and set up its own puppet regime, sent an army of occupation into Kampuchea, which is still in position today, and has finally unleashed a war of attrition that has resulted in the death and destruction of thousands of Kampucheans.

During the last 2 years, the UN General Assembly has condemned this illegal occupation and has called for a total withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Kampuchea. Instead of adhering to this resolution, the Vietnamese had massed troops on the Thai-Kampuchean border and the occasional shelling and intrusion into Thai territory have directly threatened the sovereignty of Thailand.

They are not actions that ASEAN can sit idly and watch. ASEAN governments have the duty to protect the people and economic and social progress that has been attained only after years of sweat and toil. Thus, if Vietnam continues to threaten the security and sovereignty of the ASEAN nations, it is only natural that they should adopt every means, including the transformation of ASEAN into a military alliance to defend themselves.

The expressed policy of ASEAN has always been the promotion of social and economic cooperation and growth among the five member nations. The past record of ASEAN can attest the strict adherence to this principle.

Vietnam's aggressive military posture in this region should be blamed if ASEAN assumes a military flavor. It must be emphasized that this is not the posture that the ASEAN nations are happy with. The ASEAN nations have viewed Vietnam with friendship and it hoped that Hanoi would overcome its war damage and play a useful regional role.

The period between 1975, when Saigon fell, and 1978, when Vietnam's military occupation of Kampuchea began, bears testimony to attempts by all the ASEAN nations to foster and consolidate a healthy and constructive political and economic relationship. Vietnam was never seen as an enemy. In fact, most ASEAN nations were most fearful of China's long-term ambition to this region.

Despite Vietnam's recent record of military aggression and expulsion of its own people, most ASEAN nations still prefered to see the emergence of a strong Vietnam, which could effectively contribute toward the peace and progress of the area and at the same time act as a possible buffer against China. But Hanoi's current policy has resulted in Vietnam emerging as the principal threat to the peace and security of the whole region.

The fact that the Russians are bankrolling the Vietnamese adventure in Kampuchea has further compounded the fears of the ASEAN nations.

It will not be diffidult for ASEAN to transform itself into a military alliance as most members are already having bilateral security arrangements among one another. The next move will depend on Vietnam.

ASEAN DISAPPOINTMENT OVER KHMER COALITION NOTED

BK191405 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0800 GMT 19 May 82

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] The ASEAN group of nations have expressed their disappointment over the lack of progress on the question of forming a coalition government for Kampuchea. The three groups, the Khmer Rouge, the Khmer People's National Liberation Front [KPNLF] and Prince Sihanouk's Moulinaka, still remain divided because of mutual distrust and suspicion, especially over the form and powers of a future Kampuchean government. ASEAN had hoped that some degree of cooperation and progress toward the formation of a coalition government would emerge before the ASEAN foreign ministers meeting scheduled to be held in early June.

The three groups fighting the Vietnamese must remember that the patience of the ASEAN group is not an unlimited commodity and that a protracted delay in the formation of a coalition government would hurt them and the Kampuchean people more than others.

It would be useful to reiterate that the main goal should not be a struggle for power in the new coalition government. They should keep in view of the fact that the main goal, to which even the question of the formation of a coalition government is subordinate to, remains the difficult task of terminating the Vietnamese military presence in Kampuchea.

The leader of the KPNLF, Mr Son Sann, should not be unrealistic in his demands. He appears to want the lion's share in the power of a new coalition government, which according to him, should give the post of prime minister and defense minister to the KPNLF. The Khmer Rouge, however, remain the strongest resistance force in Kampuchea today, and despite their past record of atrocities, committed against their own people, it still continued to enjoy a substantial backing among the Kampucheans.

The Khmer Rouge will, however, have to (?be content) with the fact that it does not have the support of the international community. Some of the leaders, who have tainted backgrounds, including Pol Pot, will have to go into voluntary exile.

The international community will not accept the Khmer Rouge demand for the continuation of the institutions that existed when they were in power. These institutions brought Kampuchea to the verge of collapse and were indeed instrumental in implementing the reign of terror that brought so much pain and suffering for the people of Kampuchea.

All the three factions must remember that delay would only be at cost to themselves. The Heng Samrin regime may gain legitimacy by default because of delay and this is a real possibility.

There is no doubt that the withdrawal of Vietnamese forces now would mean an immediate collapse of the current Phnom Penh regime. But equally, there should be no illusions about the possiblity of Vietnam consolidating its hold on Kampuchea and gradually building up Kampuchean forces to take over from them.

There is also the possibility that the further delay in the formation of a coalition government would mean a further tightening of Vietnam's grip and Kampuchea's ultimate inclusion into an Indochinese federation dominated by Hanoi.

There is also the question of aid to consider. It would be easier and more effective for all international aid to be channeled to one government rather than three factions. It would also be wise for all three factions to ponder over the question of how long will the ASEAN nations wait patiently for a possible solution that if favorable to the Kampuchean people.

TRADE COMMISSION TO BE ESTABLISHED IN BEIJING

BK210951 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0600 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Malaysia will set up a trade commission in Beijing in July. This is to facilitate and promote greater flow of trade between the two countries. Chinese officials were informed of this intention by the secretary general of the Ministry of Trade and Industry, Tan Sri Nasruddin Mohammed, when he led a 20-member trade mission to the republic for 2 weeks. A senior official of the international trade division of the ministry has been appointed as Malaysia's trade commissioner designate to the Chinese capital.

MARCOS PROPOSES ASEAN SUMMIT AT ECONOMIC MEETING

HK210109 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 20 May 82

[Excerpt] President Marcos is proposing a third ASEAN summit conference to integrate the loose agreements reached by the region since ASEAN was set up in 1967. The first two summit meetings of the ASEAN were held in Bali, Indonesia, in 1967, and in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, in 1977. The president said it was about time that a third summit meeting was held to make the regional grouping more effective.

[Begin Marcos recording] The prime minister of Malaysia has called for the widest industrial cooperation. The prime minister of Singapore has called for a search for greater leeway in formulating and testing our new regional schemes. The president of Indonesia has called for performing the duties that cannot be delayed in solving our economic and development problems. The prime minister of Thailand has called for willingness to cooperate that is needed more than ever to ensure our common survival. I join fully in their calls for endeavors and greater cooperation. I say, let us press on, and if necessary, let us hold a summit, where we can call for fresh initiatives and the closer cooperation that we all seek. [end Marcos recording]

For the implications of the president's proposal for a third ASEAN summit meeting, we switch to NBS-4 correspondent (Joe Sabrino): [Begin (Sabrino) recording] Along with his call for an ASEAN summit, President Marcos suggested ways by which the regional organization can broaden cooperation. He suggested that ASEAN lose no time in establishing a free-trade regime, a proposal that the Philippines submitted 2 years ago. In addition the chief executive endorsed proposals to increase the number of products under the ASEAN preferential trading arrangement, called for the early implementation of the ASEAN liner service, and urged ASEAN to take a tough stand against protectionist policies imposed by certain industrialized nations. At the same time President Marcos cautioned against piecemeal or fragmented implementation of ASEAN projects. In this connection, he suggested that the current ASEAN economic ministers' meeting develop a comprehensive framework for cooperation, that will link the specific undertakings in each sector with those of the other sectors and that will unify these initiatives under a single ASEAN purpose. The idea of comprehensive planning was also suggested by the president for the ASEAN joint venture scheme.

The ASEAN economic ministers are meeting for 3 days in Manila, and all indications point to greater cooperation among them. [end (Sabrino) recording]

KBL CAUCUS DISCUSSES LABOR LAW, JUDICIARY, KKK

HK200059 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] The ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan [KBL] has endorsed through the special session of the Batasang Pambansa a substitute bill on antiscab and picketing. Meeting in a caucus presided over by the president, the KBL also discussed vacancies in the judiciary and ways to promote the KKK livelihood program.

The ruling party approved in principle the draft of Cabinet Bill No 49 which proposes amendments to the new labor code. The bill will now be deliberated upon by the Batasang Pambansa during its current special session. President Marcos certified the urgency of passing the bill in view of certain ambiguities in the labor code concerning such vital questions as jurisdiction over illegal strikes, the definition of strike-breaker and strike area, compulsory arbitration, as well as the powers of labor arbiters, and the scope of critical industries.

At the same time, the ruling party agreed to the filling of court vacancies in areas where the need for judges is most critical. President Marcos said he will make the necessary court appointments by next week. He asked party members to submit their respective nominees to the Ministry of Justice not later than Monday.

The chief executive also announced he has plans to fill up vacant seats in the Executive Committee. Of the 15 seats available, only 7 have been filled so far.

During the caucus the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Madam Imelda Marcos signed an agreement with Batasan Speaker Querube Makalintal creating a speaker's bureau for the KKK national livelihood program. The idea is for the batasan members to act as motivators of the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran. Members of the speakers' bureau will undertake a 1-week seminar after which they will take the field to explain to the people the philosophy of the KKK, whose main goal is the economic emancipation of the Filipino.

MUSLIM LEADER COMMENTS ON MISUARI'S STANDING

HK170052 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 16 May 82

[Text] The ranking official of the Muslim Assembly of the Philippines, or MAP, expects the downfall of Nur Misuari as chairman of the Moro National Liberation Front in the MNLF congress scheduled before the end of May. MAP Secretary-General (Datu Samad Hassan Ali) said Misuari's imminent downfall will prove the validity of the statement of President Marcos that the MNLF will oust Misuari because of his secessionist policy.

According to (Ali), the MNLF congress is being convened to elect a new Central Committee, which in turn will elect the chairman. (Ali) said Commander (Dimas Pundato), who is MNLF vice chairman, is likely to be named in place of Misuari, while Lawyer (Makapanton Abas) of the Bangsa Moro Liberation Organization is expected to be named head of the political affairs section of the MNLF.

(Ali) pointed out that this will benefit the government, because (Pundato) and (Abas) are opposed to secession.

FRASER VISITS, OUTLINES ECONOMIC PROPOSALS

Meeting With Suzuki

OW211213 Tokyo KYODO in English 1125 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 21 KYODO -- Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser Friday asked Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki to support his three-point plan for recovery of the stagnant world economy through lifting of protectionist restrictions on trade by nations. Fraser explained his plan in a two-hour meeting at Suzuki's official residence and said he wished the idea will be discussed at the Versailles summit meeting of seven major non-communist industrial nations next month, according to Japanese officials. The three points are:

-- A standstill on increases in protection and on the introduction of new protectionist measures.

-- No new or increased export incentives and subsidies, and an international commitment to abolition of existing export incentives and subsidies over a period of five years.

-- A commitment to significant and progressively implemented reductions in all forms of protection through the mechanism of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Fraser had earlier presented the plan in Washington and Ottawa in his meetings with U.S. and Canadian Government officials before coming to Japan.

The Japanese officials quoted Fraser as telling Suzuki that he was disappointed by responses given by President Ronald Reagan and Premier Pierre Elliott Trudeau. Reagan and Trudeau reportedly agreed merely with "underlying principles" of the plan.

Suzuki said that some government subsidies and incentives can be justified, such as those for development of advanced technology and for certain farm products. The Japanese prime minister, however, appreciated Fraser's proposal, calling it constructive and useful, according to the Japanese officials.

Fraser is now visiting Japan on the third leg of a 10-day trip. He is scheduled to leave Tokyo Sunday for South Korea.

On the Falkland conflict, Fraser, prime minister of a British Commonwealth country, emphasized that the present situation was brought about originally by use of force by Argentina, according to the officials. Fraser went on to say that the international credibility of the United States and the relations between the United States and Latin American nations would be affected if British operations supported by the United States did not succeed, they said.

Suzuki told Fraser that the second package of Japan's market opening measures would be decided and announced later this month. He said Japan will be careful not to cause disadvantages to third countries through bilateral agreements on liberalization of Japanese market. Australia is concerned about possible import restrictions on Australian beef if Japan increases beef imports from the United States.

In their exchange of views on the Asian situation, Suzuki told Fraser he did not think there would be a major setback in Sino-U.S. relations despite Washington's decision to supply dollar 60 million of military spare parts to Taiwan, as both China and U.S. wish to avoid a decisive deterioration of their relations, according to the officials.

Outline of Pacific Plan

BK211025 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 21 May 82

[Excerpt] At a meeting in Tokyo, the Japanese prime minister, Mr Suzuki, has outlined the plan for a new trading relationship between Pacific Basin countries to the Australian prime minister, Mr Fraser. A Radio Australia reporter traveling with Mr Fraser, (Barry Cassidy), says that under Mr Suzuki's plan, Japan, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Southeast Asian countries would establish a new economic order through mutual dependence. (Cassidy) says Mr Suzuki intends to promote the idea at next month's summit meeting in Versailles of the seven major noncommunist economic powers.

Fraser Press Conference

[Text] Tokyo, May 21 KYODO -- Protectionism will increase and world trading opportunities diminish unless the major industrial nations agree on positive action at next months's Versailles summit conference, Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser warned here Friday.

Speaking to reporters following his talks with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, Fraser said the summit must produce more than "a polite communique" in order to revitalize world trade, stem unemployment and protect Western living standards. "I believe that Japan shares the Austrialian view that we need joint efforts, that barriers to trade must be lowered and that, in particular, there must be a positive result from Versailles," Fraser said. "Prime Minister Suzuki made that point very forcefully."

Fraser said he found Suzuki's response "encouraging" to Australia's proposal for a three-point plan of action to revitalize world trade. The Australian proposal, which Fraser discussed with U.S. President Ronald Reagan and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau earlier in his four-nation tour, calls for a standstill on protectionist measures, phasing out of export incentives and agreement to gradually reduce all forms of protectionism.

Asked if Japan should [will] take special steps because of its huge trade surplus with the United States and the European Community, Fraser said the world's trade problems could only be solved by all nations acting in concert. "One of the reasons that some countries might find it hard to compete with what are plainly very competitive industries in this country," he said, "is that they spend enormous sums of money locking labor, capital and governments in support of industries that are not efficient." Frasier said the Australian proposals were designed to remove such subsidies and release funds for investment in new technologies and industrial productivity.

JAPANESE, SOVIET OFFICIALS DIFFER ON DISARMAMENT

OW220538 Tokyo KYODO in English 0514 GMT 22 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 22 KYODO -- Japanese and Soviet officials in a working-level meeting largely differed in their perception on how to approach global and regional disarmament, the Japanese officials said Saturday.

The first meeting on the disarmament issue was held Friday in Tokyo, but the results were made public Saturday because of a request by the Soviet delegation. Tokyo and Moscow had agreed to hold such working level discussion prior to the second U.N. special session on disarmament starting next month in New York when Deputy Foreign Minister Kensuke Yanagiya visited the Soviet capital last January.

Friday's meeting was attended by Shozo Kadota, director general of the Foreign Ministry's United Nations Bureau, and Vladimir F. Petrovskiy, chief of the Soviet Foreign Ministry's Insternational Organizations Bureau and other officials, according to the Foreign Ministry. In the five-hour discussion, th Japanese officials claimed that there have been moves since the first U.N. special session on disarmament leading to deterioration of mutual confidence which is essential for disarmament.

They referred to the Soviet invasion of Aghanistan, the buildup of Soviet military presence in Indian Ocean and the Far Eastern region and the development of SS-20 middle-range nuclear missiles in the Far East.

The Soviet officials shared the perception that the world situation has never been so complicated and tense since World War II. But they added that the current tension was drawn by the 1978 decision at the ministerial council in Washington to raise military spending by the member countries, according to Japanese participants. The Soviet officials expressed their readiness to pledge non-use of nuclear weapons against countries which do not possess nuclear arms in their territories, they said.

The Japanese side rebutted the offer, saying the pledge would be meaningless if it would not be guaranteed by a stop in production of nuclear weapons and reduction in nuclear weapons now deployed.

The Japanese officials said that the discussion at the meeting was "useful" and quoted the Soviet officials as saying that they were willing to hold more such meetings in the future.

RETURN OF USSR-HELD NORTHERN ISLANDS HOPED FOR

OW220555 Tokyo KYODO in English 0523 GMT 22 May 82

[Text] Nemuro, Hokkaido, May 22, KYODO -- Kunio Tanabe, secretary general of the Prime Minister's Office, observed the four Soviet-held islands off eastern Hokkaido Saturday morning aboard the patriol boat Ishikari. The two-hour trip, held despite stormy weather, was to indicate the lasting desire of the Japanese Government and people for return of the islands occupied by the Soviet Union since the war. Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and other state ministers closely observed the Soviet-held northern islands last September to promote the government campaign for the early return of the islands to Japan. Tanabe later left Nemuro by car for Cape Nosappu on the tip of the Nemuro Peninsula where he could observe Kaigara Island lying only 3.7 kilometers from the cape. He inspected also various documents and articles collected in connection with the islands.

Speaking at a press meeting held at Nemuro after his inspection tour, Tanabe expressed his strong desire for the early reversion of the northern territory to Japan. He also said he could understand the solution of the northern territorial issue is most important to people living in Hokkaido.

Touching on fishery problems, Tanabe said only a peaceful solution to the northern territorial issue could pave the way for satisfactory settlement of fishery problems in the northern Pacific.

U.S. LIFTING OF USSR DRILL-RIG EMBARGO SOUGHT

OW240325 Tokyo KYODO in English 0316 GMT 24 May 82

[Text] Paris, May 23, KYODO -- Japan asked the United States Sunday to lift an embargo on the export of U.S.-made oil drilling equipment to be used in a Japan-Soviet joint project to develop oil deposits off Sakhalin. Shintaro Abe, Japanese minister of international trade and industry, made the request when he met here with Deputy U.S. Secretary of Energy W. Kenneth Davis. Both Abe and Davis are here to attend a ministerial meeting of the International Energy Agency to be held Monday.

The U.S. Government banned the shipment of the equipment as part of economic sanctions against the Soviet Union for its intervention in Polish affairs. The U.S. action has caused concern in Japan that it will delay the Japan-Soviet joint oil development project.

Abe also told Davis that Japan hopes to start negotiations with the United States as soon as possible for conclusion of a formal agreement on spent nuclear fuel reprocessing in Japan in place of the current provisional agreement.

Davis said the U.S. Government is ready to start such negotiations within several months.

COCOM APPROVES SALE OF COMPUTER TO PRC

OW220258 Tokyo KYODO in English 0223 GMT 22 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 22, KYODO -- The Free World's major industrial nations have agreed to permit Japan's Hitachi, Ltd. to export a large computer to China, government sources said Saturday. These sources said the U.S. Government initially objected to the Paris-based Cocom (major Free World countries; coordinating committee against the exports of strategic goods to the communist bloc) about approving the export of Hitachi's computer to China. Washington reasoned that the computer is liable to be diverted to military uses. The sources said, however, the U.S. Government, considering its diplomatic relations with China, has eased its stand as to give Cocom approval to Hitachi's computer deal.

The new Cocom action has paved the way for the world's top computer maker, International Business Machines Corp. (IBM), also to export computers to China, according to the sources.

The Cocom, at its subministerial-level meeting in January, decided to tighten the restraints on the exports of strategic goods to the Soviet Union to prevent an expansion of the country's military capabilities. But it decided to relax its restraints on exports to China.

Hitachi, in 1979, contracted to export a big computer of the M-180 type to China for installation in Beijing for traffic regulation, and sought special authorization from the Cocom. However, the U.S. Department of Defense raised strong objections to the deal, leaving the deal hanging.

The Japanese Government also objected to IBM's export to China of a giant computer of about the same efficiency as Hitachi's M-180 type.

Under the circumstances, the United States, whose arms sales to Taiwan have resulted in aggravating its ties with China, has eased its stand on Hitachi's computer export to China for fear that its relations with Beijing might deteriorate further, according to the sources.

Japanese computer makers welcomed the new Cocom move, saying that it would open up a promising market for them.

KPNLF'S SON SANN SEEKS PRC SUPPORT THROUGH JAPAN

OW211039 Tokyo KYODO in English 1027 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Todyo, May 21, KYODO -- Kampuchean resistance leader son Sann said here Friday he hopes Japan will win Chinese support for his group fighting the Vietnam-backed government in Phnom Penh.

The chairman of the noncommunist Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) is now in Tokyo on a six-day visit at the invitation of a dietmen's group of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP). He has held talks with Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda and other government leaders.

Meeting newsmen in a Tokyo hotel, Son Sann said he hoped Japanese leaders will make statements helpful to his resistance group when they meet with Chinese Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang in Tokyo shortly. Zhao is scheduled to visit Japan May 31-June 5 as a guest of the government.

China has backed the Khmer Rouge or the ousted government of Democratic Kampuchea, the most powerful resistance force. The third resistance group, Moulinaka, is headed by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, former head of state. The three groups have been trying but so far failed to set up a proposed coalition government.

During the news conference, Son Sann, a former prime minister, said he is determined to form a coalition government. Earlier in Tokyo, he said three-party negotiations are deadlocked because of a hard stance taken by the Khmer Rouge.

Son Sann also told the news conference his group will continue fighting until Vietnam withdraws its estimated 180,000 troops from his country.

SAKURAUCHI PLANS SEPTEMBER TOUR TO MIDDLE EAST

OW200045 Tokyo KYODO in English 0007 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 20, KYODO -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi is planning to visit Saudi Arabia and other Gulf countries as early as in September or after the present extended regular Diet session ends in August, a Foreign Ministry official said Wednesday night. He said the foreign minister may visit Kuwait, Oman and the United Arab Emirates besides Saudi Arabia. The Foreign Ministry is reported conducting negotiations with the countries concerned on the schedule for the projected trip.

Since Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki is expected to visit Beijing early in September, informed sources said there is strong possibility of Sakurauchi making the trip in the middle of the month.

Sakurauchi is reported planning to visit the four gulf states in order to further strengthen Japan's cooperative ties with them.

JAPANESE CANADIAN BUSINESS LEADERS END TALKS

OW191121 Tokyo KYODO in English 1105 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Sapporo, May 19, KYODO -- Japanese and Canadian business leaders ended three days of economic cooperation talks here Wednesday after agreeing that measures should be taken for stepped-up Japanese imports of Canadian industrial products. Under the agreement, the Japanese side will form a special machinery to promote purchases of Canadian industrial manufacturers and the two nations will hold consultations more often in this conjunction.

The Japanese and Canadian business leaders also agreed during the fifth Japan-Canada businessmen's conference that the two nations should study the possibility of promoting joint ventures for development of Canadian mineral resources for their stabilized supply to Japan.

After the conference, Hisao Makita, leader of the Japanese delegation, told newsmen that the conference was useful in deepening mutual appreciation of economic conditions of the two nations.

The conference was attended by some 260 Japanese and 150 Canadian business leaders. The sixth session will be held in Montreal, Canada, in May next year.

VRPR: BOMB THREATS MADE AGAINST U.S. DELEGATION

SK211122 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] According to a reliable source, a disturbance occurred at the hotel accommodating the U.S. presidential envoys who came to commemorate the centennial of the establishment of South Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations. Telephone calls threatening them were made to that hotel. A man identifying himself as a member of an anti-U.S. suicide action squad said: I oppose the events marking the centennial. You should return to the United States immediately. If you reject our demand, we will blow up the hotel. He shouted three times "Yankee go home!"

It has been learned that members of the U.S. presidential delegation who received the threatening phone call reported this to the U.S. Embassy in Korea and asked for protection. The Chon Tu-hwan clique increased security at the hotel by mobilizing uniformed and plainclothes policemen and intensified public inspections.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES KOREA-U.S. CENTENNIAL

[NODONG SINMUN 20 May special article: "History of Aggression and Plunder Stained With Blood"; KCNA identifies this as an editorial article]

[Text] The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique are clamoring that they will commemorate 22 May, the centennial of the conclusion of the Korea-U.S. treaty, both in the United States and South Korea. On this occasion, they will intensify South Korea-U.S. friendly relations and promote mutual interests and understanding. In the United States, the week marking the centennial of the establishment of South Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations was promulgated by President Reagan. In accord with the U.S. plan, the South Korean puppets have announced similar plans.

The day when the disgraceful Korea-U.S. treaty was concluded 100 years ago by the unilateral, forcible demand of the United States was a shameful day arousing the national indignation of the Korean people. Commemorating this day under the pretext of the centennial of the establishment of diplomatic relations is an intolerable mockery to the patriots who fought against aggression and nation-selling, dedicating their lives to the nation's independence and freedom and an unpardonable challenge to the Korean people aspiring independence, democracy and reunification.

This shows what stage the criminal maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique, running amok with aggression and flunkeyist nation-selling acts by fabricating history, have reached today. All the Korean people in the North, South and abroad who treasure the dignity and sovereignty of the nation are sternly denouncing the rackets of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique in marking the centennial of the establishment of the South Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations with surging national indignation, branding them as a most shameless, flunkeyist act.

1. The imperialist aggressors and their lackeys fabricate history without hesitation to achieve their aggressive, nation-selling and treacherous objectives. The U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique are babbling that the 100-year history of aggression in Korea by the United States is a history of friendship and cooperation. However, history is a good judge. History proves that the century since the Korea-U.S. treaty was concluded was filled with bloody aggression and blunder by the U.S. imperialists and that the U.S. imperialists are the sworn enemy of the Korean people. The Korea-U.S. treaty, concluded on 22 May 1882, was itself a filthy document of aggression and plunder which opened a road for the U.S. imperialists to invade Korea. The U.S. imperialists attempted armed aggression many times, including the invasion of the vessel "General Sherman" in 1866 and an attack on Kanghwa Island in 1871.

However, they repeatedly suffered disgraceful defeats. The Korea-U.S. treaty of aggression and subjugation was fabricated by the U.S. imperialists in May 1882 by deceiving the incompetent and corrupt feudalist faction with honeyed words that they would protect Korea from Japanese aggression.

This treaty was a brigandish, unfair treaty which allowed the rights of U.S. consular justice and of most-favored-nation status and other unilateral priviliges such as establishing free trade centers and [word indistinct] and which unilaterally forced Korea to transfer and ensure such rights. Extorting a number of aggressive privileges including extraterritoriality and the right to most-favored-nation status through this treaty, the U.S. imperialists began to exploit our country, plundering precious metals and crude oil and using it for investments. They plundered 80 percent of our gold and silver. Moreover, the U.S. imperialist aggressors, organizing a firm in Korea called The Continental Development Company which traded slaves, engaged in buying and selling of slaves, taking our people as slaves on the pretext of emigration. They perpetrated intolerable, barbarous acts.

The aggressive nature of this treaty found a more salient expression in the fact that using it as a lever the U.S. imperialists actively backed the Japanese imperialists' aggression in Korea. After the conclusion of the treaty, the United States threw away even the signboard of protection of Korea from Japan's aggression, openly colluded with the Japanese imperialists and craftily suppressed and hamstrung the anti-Japanese patriotic struggle of our people, including the Imo army mutiny in 1882 and the Kabo peasant war in 1894-95, and zealously backed Japan's aggression in Korea.

Concluding the notorious Taft-Katsura agreement, they approved the Japanese imperialists' occupation of Korea and their colonial rule. They supported the Japan-Korea protectorate treaty in 1905 ahead of anyone else and unhesitatingly perpetrated treachery by withdrawing their legation first of all other foreign legations in Korea. This was a declaration that they did not recognize the status of Korea as a democratic independent state, regarding Korea as a colony subordinate to Japan, and was an abrogation of the Korea-Japan treaty. This was the practical result of the Korea-Japan treaty which expressly stipulated that they would protect Korea from aggression by another country.

They threw the treaty into a garbage can, declaring invalid this treaty which they had fabricated to open a road for aggression on Korea, since they had achieved their original objective.

The U.S. imperialists are attempting to use this slip of paper as a historic basis of South Korea-U.S. friendship; how shameless are the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers! The U.S. imperialists can never conceal the aggressive nature and reactionary contents of this treaty, which has been rejected and denounced by our people for the last century.

The shameless maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique did not stop distorting the historic facts of the past century. They are embellishing and decorating various cursed criminal acts they committed against the Korean people since they occupied South Korea following the 15 August liberation, as if they were aimed at promoting friendship and solidarity.

The U.S. imperialists, as shown by history and reality, sneaked into South Korea and not as liberators. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The U.S. imperialists, occupying South Korea by means of force, made it completely their colony and military base.

Although they are describing themselves as supporters and are propagating that Korea is an independent state, the rulers who seized all power in South Korea are the U.S. aggressors.

As soon as they landed in South Korea on 15 August 1945, to take the place of the defeated Japanese imperialists, the U.S. imperialists, who had schemed to turn it into a strategic vantagepoint for putting down the national-liberation movement and achieving world supremacy, proclaimed a military administration throughout South Korea, seizing all power in their hands.

Utilizing such antirevolutionary military violence as the military administration, they forcibly dissolved the people's committees which were organized by the people's initiative and openly made their appearance as the colonial rulers. They caused the tragedy of national division for the Korean people, who were overwhelmed with joy at liberation, by making the 38th Parallel a border line and severing traffic, transportation, and communications between the North and South. They fabricated a puppet regime by conducting a unilateral election in South Korea.

They did not hesitate to install such a despotic tyrant as Syngman Rhee and such a military hooligan as Pak Chong-hui in power and instigated them to a vicious, brutal colonial fascist rule to convert South Korea into a living hell and a graveyard of democracy where terrorism and murder prevail. The U.S. imperialists thoroughly subjugated South Korea politically and militarily.

On the pretext of joint defense, the U.S. imperialists deployed tens of thousands of U.S. troops and fostered the puppet army as their auxiliary -- seizing its command.

The South Korean Army cannot use even a drop of gasoline, to say nothing of weapons and ammunition, without the approval of the commander of U.S. forces occupying South Korea. Outside aggressors, occupying another's territory, control everything by seizing supreme military command. How can we talk about national sovereingty in such a situation? The U.S. imperialists are not only the vicious ringleaders of fascist rule and military aggressors but also shameless plunderers who reduced South Korea to a land of starvation and poverty by extracting excessive colonial profits, seizing South Korea's economy.

The U.S. imperialists had already plundered 80 percent of the property in South Korea on the pretext of enemy property at an early stage of promulgating the military administration in South Korea. Through aggressive and subordinate treaties and agreements concluded with the South Korean puppet regime, the U.S. imperialists exploited South Korea's economy to implement their colonial rule. They turned South Korea into their military auxiliary, taking "assistnce" as their basic means. More than 70 percent of South Korea's financial budget was spent for military purposes. Most of the coal and power production, as well as railway transportation, were directed for military aims. Several million soks of grain were plundered every year as military provisions and numerous farm lands and fishing ports were confiscated as military bases and training sites for the U.S. imperialist aggressors.

Because of the U.S. imperialists' policy of colonial plunder, South Korea's national industry was reduced to a subordinate economy of foreign capital, and agricu ure was ruined. Thus, South Korea, noted as a granary, became a land of chronic famine having to import several million tons of grain from abroad. The U.S. imperialists can never conceal that the unprecendented economic catastrophe and the people's plight in South Korea are the result of their colonial rule. The U.S. imperialists regarded their ideological and cultural invasion as an important means of wearing down the South Korean people's national consciousness.

In order to make the South Korean people their mental slaves, the U.S. imperialists propagated the ideology of anticommunism, worship of the United States, utilitarianism and a corrupt U.S. lifestyle. They trampled on and eradicated our people's long cultural tradition, good morals and manners by implementing colonial slave education. They are atrocious burglars who randomly destroyed and plundered our brilliant cultural property.

The crimes committed by the U.S. imperialists during their occupation of South Korea are not confined to this alone. The U.S. imperialists are the ringleaders of division and the henious foes of reunification who, seeking a policy of aggression, are maneuvering to oppose the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and to perpetuate our nation's division. The U.S. imperialists, who had sought unification through northward invasion, adopted South Korea as their bridgehead and base for an offensive to annex all of Korea as they crept into South Korea, waged an aggressive war against the northern half of the republic in 1950 and committed a massacre unprecedented in the history of war by mobilizing most of their ground, air and naval forces and even the armed forces of 15 countries at their beck and call.

They sustained an ignominious defeat in the Korean war and signed the armistice agreement. However, instead of learning a lesson from this and withdrawing from South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have persisted in the policy of aggression and war, remaining there since the war ended. As soon as they signed the armistice agreement, the U.S. imperialists, babbling about a new war, concluded the aggressive and subjugatory Korea-U.S. Mutual Defense Treaty with the South Korean puppet clique and moved the command of the United Nations forces from Japan to South Korea, violating the armistice agreement. Furthermore, they have fanatically accelerated preparations for war by beefing up aggressive armed forces through the introduction of lethal weapons, including tactical nuclear arms and missiles, into South Korea and by increasing military facilities and bases. In addition, they have continuously triggered military provocations against the northern half of the republic.

Every provocative incident, including the U.S. imperialist armed spy vessel Pueblo, the huge spy plane EC-121 and the Panmunjom incidents, are the result of the aggressive war policy which the U.S. imperialists have systematically used against our republic. Everybody knows that the tricky, wicked U.S. imperialists invalidated the 4 July joint statement between the North and South by instigating the South Korean puppets, thwarted the dialogue between the North and South and sought a two-Koreas policy, ignoring our proposal for the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea and the replacement of the armistice agreement with a peace agreement.

Because of the U.S. maneuvers to perpetuate the nation's division, our reasonable proposals for national salvation which we put forward to resolve the reunification question in a peaceful manner on the basis of democracy have not been realized. Our nation is suffering from intolerable miseries and pains due to 37 years of division.

The history of the U.S. imperialist aggressors' occupation of South Korea is a history of aggression and conquest perpetrated while enforcing a harsh colonial military fascist rule in South Korea and converting it into their colony and military base. It is a history of crimes committed to oppose the reunification of Korea and imposing the tragedy of national division on the people. The U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique cannot cover up or whitewash this stark historical fact, much less call a history of aggression and plunder against Korea by the U.S. imperialists a history of amity and friendship.

2. The history of the U.S. imperialists' aggression in Korea is a most shameful chapter. They are now enforcing the policy of strength under the cloak of building a powerful United States. As time passes, the U.S. imperialists become passive and defensive as the revolutionary advance of the world's people along the road of independence progresses. The U.S. imperialists have been isolated and rejected by the peoples of the world. They have almost lost the right to the economic monopoly and naval supremacy they once enjoyed in the capitalist world. The U.S. capitalists have been driven out of Asian countries where they were stationed. In South Korea, the U.S. imperialists confront a crisis in their colonial rule as the people's revolutionary advance grows.

Such a crisis is the outcome of the U.S. imperialists' policy of power. Running amok to occupy South Korea as their colonial military base and advance base for aggression, the U.S. imperialists are turning the spearhead of aggression toward the Korean Peninsula. The U.S. imperialists' aggressive maneuvers against Korea are stepped up in a brazen way, assuming an unprecedented and vicious nature.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: In a last-ditch effort to stop the decline of the imperialists and their stooges, the imperialists are making threats of a new war against our republic and menacing us with nuclear arms. The U.S. troops present in South Korea are beefed up, the equipment of the puppet army is reinforced and new military bases are under construction. Along with the rapid arms buildup, massive military exercises codenamed Team Spirit are repeatedly held in South Korea and its vicinity with the mobilization of nuclear weapons. Rifle firing into the portion of our side and espionage flights into our airspace by high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance planes are ceaseless.

The U.S. imperialists are conducting propaganda that the arms buildup in South Korea and hostile maneuvers against our side are a just action for peace and security. Occupying half of another's country, the U.S. imperialists are heightening tension by accelerating an arms buildup and waging war games. This is a reckless and dangerous war maneuver which disturbs peace in Korea and may cause an armed clash at any moment.

Openly raving that they do not rule out the use of nuclear weapons in Korea in case of an emergency, the U.S. imperialists are hastening nuclear war preparations and strengthening their combat posture by mobilizing all their human and material resources. This shows that the present U.S. authorities far surpass any preceding U.S. rulers in following a war line.

The U.S. imperialists are scheming to obstruct the reunification of Korea and create two Koreas by force of arms so as to perpetuate their colonial domination over South Korea. Imperialists used to rule a country by dividing it. This is their traditional tactic. Applying this tactic to the Korean Peninsula, the U.S. imperialists exacted division. Intensifying the policy of occupation of South Korea to perpetuate the Korean division, the U.S. imperialists are forcing the puppets to suppress the people's movement for national reunification. By waging anticommunist rackets for confrontation, the U.S. imperialists are inciting hostility and enmity among the nation and causing discord. Openly interfering in the domestic affairs of Korea, they are thwarting our people's efforts to resolve the reunification question and strenuously blocking contact and negotiations to reunify the fatherland between the North and South Koreans by cementing artificial obstacles between the North and South.

Stressing the necessity of increasing Japan's aid to South Korea on the pretext of South Korea-Japan friendship, they are zealously inveigling the reactionary forces of Japan in a two-Koreas plot. It is no secret that the U.S. imperialists are actively aiding Japan's arms buildup and the infiltration of Japanese monopoly capital into South Korea and are working to complete a South Korea-U.S.-Japan trilateral military cooperative system.

They are repeating in South Korea the tricks used by their ancestors who fished in troubled waters while backing the Japanese imperialists' invasion of Korea.

The U.S. imperialists, with their persistent splittist maneuvers, not only block the reunification of our country but also, under the mask of protector and collaborator, are forcing indescribably outrageous calamities on the South Korean people by imposing on them a brutal fascist military terror rule.

The Chon Tu-hwan military dictatorship, which has turned South Korea into a lawless state where fascist terror prevails, has been fabricated by the U.S. imperialists. The Chon Tu-hwan clique, while imposing brutal military terror rule backed by the U.S. imperialists, is infringing on Korea's national dignity by begging for a perpetual occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist aggressor troops, exacerbating the strained situation by beefing up the armed forces and accelerating preparations for war, swallowing up the national economy by bringing into South Korea foreign monopoly capital and, by following the U.S. imperialists' two-Koreas policy, bringing the situation to a more serious phase while promoting further division.

The extreme lack of political rights, poverty, economic crisis, social chaos and the wall of division which is being fortified between the North and South -- all suffered by the South Korean people -- are produced by the Chon Tu-hwan clique's nefarious military terror rule and its traitorous and flunkeyist acts.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique is the most vicious executioner and perpetrator of the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and traitorous group surpassing the five traitors who signed the annexation of Korea to Japan at the end of the Yi Dynasty.

Employing the Chon Tu-hwan fascist miliatry clique as a guide, the U.S. imperialists are pursuing their policy of subordinating South Korea as a colony and harshly suppressing and exploiting the people. Their protection of the Chon Tu-hwan clique shows that the slogans they are chanting are not for somebody else but for maintaining and defending the colonial system and interests they have established in South Korea.

Those who masterminded the Kwangju massacre -- in which thousands of old and young, men and women, who demanded social democratization in South Korea and reunification of the fatherland, were run over by tanks -- were none but the U.S. imperialists, who had such an interest in colonial rule.

Even today, the U.S. aggressor troops are devoting themselves to committing brutal acts in South Korea, plundering the residents by attacking villages, shooting at passers-by for target practice, raping women and girls and setting fire to civilian houses. These sorts of things are really the "protection" they are raving about.

What they have brought to South Korea is neither freedom, peace, nor friendship. With their military occupation and wanton interference in the domestic affairs of Korea, the U.S. imperialists are encroaching upon the national sovereignty of our people and laying hurdles in the way of national reunification. This brings unbearable national sufferings to our people.

At no time in our long history have our people suffered such a national division as today, although they have not infrequently undergone national sufferings as a result of invasions by foreign forces. How can the U.S. imperialist and their stooges excuse and rationalize such a stark reality? The U.S. imperialists are committing the most accursed aggressive acts in their history of aggression in Korea.

3. A wicked aim lurks behind the conspiratorial political propaganda of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets. They are distorting the 100-odd-year history of U.S. aggression and plunder against Korea as a history of amity and friendship. Above all, the U.S. imperialists are trying to whip up U.S. flunkey worship among the South Korean people and thus lull their anti-U.S. sentiments and persist in brigandish aggressive acts against the Korean people.

By saying to the puppet boss in his recent tour of South Korea that the United Nations hopes to have another dinner 100 years from now mutually pledging South Korea-U.S. friendship for another century, the U.S. vice president fully revealed the black-hearted intention of U.S. imperialism to continue its occupation of South Korea indefinitely and to continue its aggressions against Korea.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan of South Korea plans to hold functions celebrating the centennial of the establishment of Korea-U.S. friendship and loudly advertizes amity and friendship with the U.S. imperialists in a bid to justify the treacherous crimes he has committed as a pro-U.S. traitor and, at the same time, to beautify his master and gratify his wild ambition for power, backed by the master's strength.

The so-called functions celebrating the centennial of the establishment of Korea-U.S. friendship only foretell the ever more president maneuvers in the days to come of the U.S. imperialists for an invasion of Korea. This farce also patently shows the reactionary essence of the crafty, double-dealing tactics to which they always resort in invading other countries.

The U.S. imperialists are the ones who invade other countries under the pretext of friendship, they plunder and make slaves of other people while shouting slogans of aid; and they interfere in the internal affairs of other countries using military force and wage wars of aggression under the mask of peace. They are trying to stretch the talons of aggression and interference as ever to Korea, wearing sheeps' clothing and employing these double-dealing tactics.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Aggressive ambition is the nature of imperialism. The U.S. imperialists are the most vicious, greedy and ignominious aggressors and plunderers ever found in history. The nature of the U.S. imperialists as aggressors will never change; it takes on a more vicious and despotic color as the U.S. imperialists go downhill.

The United States is pursuing invasion and domination more than ever before. In recent years, the United States has frequently raved that it is a Pacific nation and that today is the era of the Pacific. This is nothing but a repetition, under new historical conditions, of the theory of Pacific nations cried out by the U.S. imperialists when they were making inroads into Korea and the Asian region during the mid-nineteenth century.

The theory of the Pacific nations has been a slogan of aggression put forth by the U.S. imperialists, daily being driven out of Asia, in a bid to maintain colonial rule and expand domination in his area at any cost. It is also nothing but an expression of their unchanging ambition for invasion of Asia.

The Korean Peninsula is an objective to which they attach the greatest importance in their aggression in Asia. They are employing the undisguised policy of strength and crafty and heinous political intrigues against us, the Korean people. This is clearly shown by the fact that they are practicing colonial rule in South Korea, after having occupied it militarily, and are attempting to split it forever by a policy of fabricating two Koreas and frantically preparing for war against our republic.

The U.S. imperialists' forcible occupation of South Korea and their colonial rule there are a mixture of the old and new colonialisms and a wicked example of imperialist domination imposed on other countries. The U.S. imperialists' policy of invasion of Korea is the manifestation of their brutal, brigandish and ignominious nature. The calamities inflicted on the Korean people by this policy are beyond counting.

The U.S. imperialists are the sworn enemy of the Korean people and the No 1 target of their struggle. As long as the U.S. imperialist troops of aggression remain in South Korea, and as long as the U.S. policy of aggression against Korea exists, neither the Korean people's complete national sovereignty, the nation's unified development nor peace on the Korean Peninsula is conceivable.

The Korean people cannot go on living with foreign troops of aggression remaining in the country, under the domination and depotism of foreign forces. To clear South Korea of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces is a vital demand for the country's sovereignty, the national resurrection of the South Korean people, the unified development of the Korean nation and peace on the Korean Peninsula.

Sovereignty is the life of the nation and people. It is a paramount and honorable task facing the country to struggle to clear South Korea of the U.S. imperialists, who are trampling underfoot the national sovereignty of the Korean people.

Today, South Korean people and students are vigorously joining in the anti-U.S. struggle. Clearly realizing that the United States is not a friend or aid-giver but an aggressor who is against the Korean people and the ringleader who is instigating the puppet traitors to fascism, division and war and to such flagrant criminal acts as the Kwangju massacre, they are staging various sorts of anti-U.S. struggles, including demonstrations, assemblies, publishing letters of protest, declarations and statements, and shouting slogans reading "Yankee, go home" and "U.S. troops, go away."

The arson at the Kwangju and Pusan American Cultural Centers clearly showed how vehement the anti-U.S. struggle is. The anti U.S. struggle of the South Korean people was not waged by momentary sentiment or impulse. It is developing into a massive struggle participated in by the awakened South Korean people of all walks of life, including religionists, and it is being strengthened.

The anti-U.S. struggle, being staged in a new manner, is the explosion of the accumulated national resentment against the aggressive crimes of the U.S. imperialista and the manifestation of a firm national will to force the U.S. imperialists to withdraw from South Korea and restore lost national sovereignty.

The anti-U.S. struggle is a patriotic and just one for national pride and happiness. All Koreans should rise more vigorously in a sacred struggle to force the U.S. imperialists aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea. The unity of the national patriotic forces is a firm guarantee to win victory in the anti-U.S. struggle. All people loving the country, regardless of their residence, transcending differences in their political views, religion and ideology, should wage a nationwide struggle against the U.S. imperialists, firmly united under the banner of the anti-U.S. struggle and independence and peaceful reunification.

They should establish the consciousness of national sovereignty, thoroughly rejecting pro-U.S. flunkeyism and a treacherous ideology dependent on foreign forces. They should also smash the fraudulent maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and pro-U.S. stooges to spread honeyed words of amity, protection and collaboration.

Though they pretent to be powerful, the U.S. imperialists are powerless in the face of the people valiantly struggling for soveriegnty and independence. If all Koreans rise in the nationwide anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation, they will not fail to win victory in this struggle. The struggle to force the U.S. troops from South Korea is closely linked to the struggle to end the traitor Chon Tu-hwan's military fascist rule and realize the democratization of South Korea. As long as the puppet military fascist rule exists in South Korea, the South Korean people cannot think of the people's freedom and democracy in South Korea. They must end the U.S. imperialists' colonial domination. Strengthening the struggle to end the reactionary rule of the puppet clique -- a dirty group used to execute the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression of Korea -- and to establish a democratic regime is a necessity for the development of South Korean society and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

If the military fascist regime in South Korea is overthrown, the U.S. imperialists' aggressive foundation will be remarkably weakened, opening a broad road for the South Korean people's struggle. It is high time that the United States discontinue its criminal aggressive acts of trampling on the independent rights of the Korean people and mocking the destiny of the nation.

The U.S. imperialists' anachronistic occupation of South Korea should discontinue. In an era in which all the world's countries and peoples are advancing on the road of independence, occupying another country with armed forces and using a policy of power are unpardonable. Babbling about the commitments of the Korea-U.S. mutual defense treaty, the U.S. imperialists are trying to justify the occupation of South Korea. This is sophistry. The Korean people rejected such a treaty between the U.S. imperialists and traitors long ago. The U.S. imperialists should withdraw from South Korea taking along all lethal weapons, including the U.S. troops and nuclear arms, and stop aggression and interference in Korea.

If the United States withdraws from South Korea, the Korean people will realize independent and peaceful reunifiction, and a nonaligned Korea will be no threat to anyone. Should the U.S. imperialists persist in division and fascism and follow the road of adventurism and war, nothing good will result.

If the South Korean puppets, while betraying the nation, continue to serve as the proxy of the U.S. imperialists' aggression, adhering to a flunkeyist, treacherous line, they will expedite ruin. The Korean people will hold aloft the banner of the anti-U.S. struggle and independent and peaceful reunification. They will also construct an independent, prosperous and reunified Korea, burying forever the disgraceful history in which they were victims of foreign forces over the course of a century.

SYMPOSIUM REVIEWS U.S. 'CRIMES' IN KOREA

SK210824 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0804 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 21 (KCNA) — A scientific symposium of historians exposing the aggressive crimes of the U.S. imperialists against Korea took place at the Grand People's Study House on May 20. A portrait of the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song was placed on the platform.

The symposium was attended by Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland, and other personages concerned and social scientists and teachers at universities and colleges.

At the sumposium Dr. and Assistant Prof. Yi Chong-hyon made a speech on the subject "Korea-U.S. treaty is an Unequal Treaty of Aggression Stipulating the U.S. Imperialists' Subjugation of Korea," academician, Dr. and Prof. Pak Si-hyong on the subject "U.S. Imperialism Is the Sworn Enemy of the Korean People Which Has Invaded Our Country Through History," Dr. and Assistant Prof. Choe Tae-chin on the subject "The Characteristics of the U.S. Imperialists' Policy of Colonial Enslavement of South Korea," Associate Dr. and Assistant Prof. Choe Hyok-ku on the subject "Turning South Korea Into a Military Base Is the Main Point of the U.S. Imperialists' Policy of Colonial Enslavement There," Associate Dr. and Assistant Prof. Hwang Kong-yul on the subject "The Characteristics of Colonial Fascist Dictatorship of U.S. Imperialism Over South Korea" and Associate Dr. Kang Sok-hui on the subject "The Two Koreas Plot of the U.S. Imperialists is the Main Obstacle to the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of the Country at Present."

Denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique who are now engaged in pro-U.S. treacheries, staging every day a burlesque called "celebrations of the centenary of the Korea-U.S. friendship treaty" in South Korea on the occasion of the day when the shameful "Korea-U.S. treaty" was faked up, the speakers said that this is a vicious distortion of history and an intolerable insult to our dignified people.

They stated that the modern and present-day history of Korea shows that the U.S. imperialists are aggressors, maruaders and shameless hypocrites without parallel in history and the sworn enemy of the Korean nation who has ruthlessly trampled underfoot our national sovereignty.

VRPR REPORTS ANTI-U.S. LEAFLETS IN SEOUL, KWANGJU

SK211318 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] According to a report, anti-U.S. leaflets were scattered in Seoul and Kwangju on the occasion of the centennial of South Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations. The leaflets greatly inspired our masses' anti-U.S. sentiment.

The leaflets, which were disseminated around Songouk-ku and Tobong-ku in Seoul, were entitled "We Resolutely Oppose the Events Marking the Centennial of South Korea-U.S. Relations!" and contained the following:

Masses from all walks of life, let us smash the events commemorating the centennial of South Korea-U.S. relations! Commemorating the centennial of South Korea-U.S. relations, a disgraceful history, is an intolerable mockery of the patriots who fought against aggression and nation-selling, dedicating their lives to the nation's independence and freedom. Our people, who experienced a painful history of national ruin and nation-selling, should ensure that the national ordeal of disgraceful flunkeyism is not repeated.

Masses of all strata, let us crush the events marking the centennial of South Korea-U.S. relations and drive out the delegations sent by the Reagan administration to mark the centennial of South Korea-U.S. relations.

Let us make the U.S. troops withdraw from South Korea. Let us overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan clique -- the U.S. lackey and flunkeyist national traitor. Masses from all walks of life who love the nation and the people, let us end the history of disgraceful subjugation by more courageously waging the anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle. Let us achieve independent reunification!

Anti-U.S. and antigovernment handbills were also scattered in Kumnan-no in Kwangju. The leaflets read: We oppose the events marking the centennial of South Korea-U.S. relations. The United States is the ringleader of the barbarous massacre of the masses, and the Chon Tu-hwan clique is the culprit supported by the United States. Let us r se in the anti-U.S. anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle, recalling the shouts of the martyred patriots.

NODONG SINMUN IMPLICATES CHON IN LOAN SCANDAL

SK24C200 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2246 GMT 23 May 82

[NODONG SINMUN 24 May commentary: "The Ringleader of All Corruption and Irregularities in South Korea is Traitor Chon Tu-hwan Himself"]

[Text] Babbling about responsibilities in connection with an unprecedented loan scandal, the puppet traitor Chon Tu-hwan of South Korea replaced 11 ministers, including the defense minister and two other ministerial-level officials by staging a farce of a so-called Cabinet shakeup on 21 May, while dismissing four officials of the ruling Democratic Justic Party, including the party's secretary general.

Clamoring that this Cabinet shakeup and the party post reshuffle are designed to embody responsible politics, traitor Chon Tu-hwan seems to try to bring to an end matters concerning the responsibility for the scandal. This notwithstanding, such a shallow political fraudulent act cannot deceive anyone.

The puppet traitor babbled he would renew the image of the puppet authorities by forming a pan-national Cabinet. However, in reality, he only transferred some ministers to similar posts and appointed other minions. Moreover, he has been holding power and acting as if he is not connected with the case at all.

So as to soothe the public's belief that the president is implicated in the case, he had the prosecution office, which he created himself, kick up a racket publicizing the news that the presidential involvement is totally groundless. What a truly clumsy farce this is!

Connected with this case are an uncle of Chon Tu-hwan's wife, the Chang Yong-cha couple -- the relatives of his wife -- and the high-ranking circles of the ruling party. It is unimaginable that the large-scale fraudulent case masterminded by the relatives of traitor Chon Tu-hwan -- unprecedented even for South Korea -- was able to happen without the knowledge of the puppet traitor. This loan scandal called the Chang Yong-chap couple case is more precisely the case of the Yi Sun-cha couple -- stringpullers of the case. Everyone thinks and says as much. That is the truth.

Nonetheless, traitor Chon Tu-hwan had the puppet prosecution office stage a farce of investigating the case in order to soothe opinions at home and abroad. As he was in danger of being exposed as being implicated in the case, he staged a farce of carrying out a Cabinet shakeup while babbling about responsibility for the case. This is nothing but a trick. Furthermore, what is significant is that the puppet traitor promoted the prosecutor general, who had been in charge of investigating this case, to the minister of justice and he is trying to raise ranks of investigators.

This, of course, is an attempt to buy off these officials, who have the complete knowledge of the case, aimed at silencing them. Moreover, he retained the puppets' deputy prime minister and minister of finance, who are responsible for this scandal. This is aimed at silencing them.

Corruption and irregularities breed other such cases. This notwithstanding, they clamored that the case was settled. However, who would believe it? It is clear that the Cabinet shakeup, the reshuffle of the party posts and their deceitful publicity are a fraud. He who pulled the strings in the loan scandal behind the scenes and received a huge sum of money is trying to avoid the responsibility for the case by putting the responsibility on his minions. He is scheming to cope with crises facing the military fascist rule by hushing up the case and calming the political, economic and social confusion. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is trying to resort to tricks to cover up the unprecedently sordid scandal committed by himself and his clansmen. This reveals how sly and shameless is the chieftain of corruption and irregularities.

This scandal is the inevitable result of traitor Chon Tu-hwan's nature and his military fascist rule. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is the imperialist tainted stooge and the U.S. imperialists' colonial policy's truculent executioner [chiphaengia] who ignores the interests of the country and the people.

Since he usurped power by guns and bayonets, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has clamored about ending the old era and creating a new era. Moreover, babbling about the four goals of state affairs and the three liberations [segaji hoebang], he has publicized that he would induce changes in the social and political life in South Korea.

However, with the emergence of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist regime, instead of a new era the Yusin dark rule and oppressive order under which fascism and terrorism prevail has returned to South Korea. Behind the facade of Koreanization of democracy and liberation from political suppression, the puppet traitor has turned South Korea into the prison of the people, gloomier than under the Yusin dark rule, and the tomb of democracy and civil rights. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan has babbled about building a welfare society and liberation from poverty. This was nothing but glittering, empty talk to deceive the people.

While saying he will cope with the economic crisis and achieve the second economic leap, he has given all kinds of privileges to the capitalists and afforded them opportunities to make a large fortune. Allowing the South Korean economy to be subordinated to foreign monopolistic capital, he has accelerated the subordination of its economy.

Although traitor Chon Tu-hwan babbled about ending the economic recession and inflation, during the short period since he assumed power, the South Korean economic crisis, characterized by a decline in production, skyrocketing prices, inflation, sluggish exports and an increase of foreign debts, has been aggravated, and the people's living standard has declined. South Korea has been turned into the human hell of the 20th century in which no human being can live.

Since he usurped power by guns and bayonets, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has babbled as if he were clean and innocent by clamoring about the embodiment of a just society and eradication of the three-point negative psychologies. He has even publicized his tactless remark that he has been leading a life similar to that of the common people without any worldly desire for profits.

However, all of these are lies. Speaking of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, he is the most sordid, illicit fortunemaker among all the puppet rulers of South Korea. It is known to the world that he was an illicit, power-related fortunemaker who defrauded people of their property and embezzled the national treasury under the protection of the previous dictator and with the support of Chongwadae.

Since he illegally usurped power, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has snatched a big fortune embezzled by the previous dictator over 18 years. He has gained over a hundred billion won by threatening the old-time politicians under the pretext of cracking down on illicit fortunes.

The puppet traitor has been directly involved in all the minor and major cases in South Korea during the past year and a half, including the illicit payoff scandal, the case of low-calorie coal briquettes and the case of illicit import of U.S. rice. This being the case, traitor Chon Tu-hwan still claims to be clean. What a shameless and brazen-faced man he is!

It is too clear that the puppet traitor -- the matchless immoral man lacking shame or morality, the political swindler who uses every means to satisfy his defense for power and self-interest and the chieftain of corruption and irregularities -- doesn't care about the interests of the country, the nation and the people.

As is shown by this loan scandal, the root cause of the corruption and irregulariites rife today in South Korea lies in the reactionary rule of traitor Chon Tu-hwan. Puppet Chon Tu-hwan's nation-selling, antinational, military fascist rule is another root cause by which South Korea has been turned into a human hell totally deprived of the rights to survival and a fascist suppressive place where democratic freedom is mercilessly trampled on.

If we leave traitor Chon Tu-hwan -- the executioner of the U.S. imperialists' aggressive policy against Korea, the matchless fascist tyrant and murderer, and the chieftain of corruption and irregularities -- and his military fascist rule intact, we cannot imagine the people's rights to survival and their democratic freedom but we will only see the repetition of the ghostlike cases and the miserable situations which throw the society into confusion and inflict every kind of misfortune and pain on the people.

Puppet traitor Chon Tu-hwan should assume the responsibility for inflicting misfortunes and calamities on the South Korea people and immediately step down from power.

The more desperately he tries to remain in power, the faster it advances his ruin as the enemy of the people and the nation. The military fascist rule should be removed in South Korea, and it should be replaced by a democratic government.

This is the demand of the times and the development of South Korean society and is the unanimous aspiraction of the people. The South Korean people are courageously struggling to end the fascist, suppressive rule as well as holding aloft the banner of struggle against the U.S. imperialists -- the aggressors -- for a dignified and happy life.

Such a just struggle by the South Korean people is being firmly supported by the entire nation, the world's progressive peoples and peace-loving peoples. No force can block the advance movement by the South Korean people to bring down the military fascist rule and establish a democratic government.

DJP TO CONVENE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY SESSION

SK240830 Seoul YONHAP in English 0734 GMT 24 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 24 (YONHAP) -- Korea's ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) Monday decided to convene an extra short-term session of the National Assembly to handle the recent bill fraud incident.

The decision came during an emergency meeting of party officials Monday morning, vice spokesman Yi Chong-yul said.

How long the special House session will meet and whether the parliamentary right to inspect the administration of state affairs will be invoked will be decided at a meeting of party officials and the Central Standing Committee Tuesday, according to the vice spokesman.

A dominant view during the Monday meeting was that the proposed special house session should be operated in the direction of putting an end to the bill fraud case, the vice spokesman said.

Even if the Democratic Korea Party and other opposition parties make a motion to form an ad hoc committee to invoke the parliamentary right to inspect government records in connection with the fraudulent bill transactions, the DJP is likely to turn it down at a National Assembly Standing Committee meeting, a political observer said.

The convocation of the special house session will be announced in a couple of days.
